These stamps vary in many ways from the Bancroft productions, although the designs are fair copies of the latter. The chief point of difference is in the small shield on the breast of the eagle, which in this issue is 4½ mm. wide and the tip points to the right of the large shield below.

While the Bancroft stamps were in larger sheets the Anderson stamps were in sheets of only twenty in four horizontal rows of five with imprint A. ANDERSON & CO., LITHOGRAPHERS AND PRINTERS, PORTLAND, OREGON, in letters about five mm. high on the bottom margin which was separated by perforations from the lower row of stamps. The other three sides of the sheets were imperforate leaving but nine stamps on each sheet perforated clear around.

Phil Metchan, State Treasurer for several terms is authority for the statement that the remainders as well as the stones from which they were produced, were destroyed soon after they became obsolete. As considerable quantities remained in the hands of private parties, a bill was proposed for their redemption but was never passed by the legislature. Nevertheless, many of these stamps were subsequently redeemed by the State and kept in the Secretary of State's office for a number of years. The writer had the good fortune to gain possession in 1908, of what few were still remaining. These consisted of some values from the issues of 1880 and 1884 and all values of 1886. An extensive effort was made about 1901, to recover used copies from the insurance companies doing business in Oregon during this period but with no success as old policies had either been destroyed or returned to the insured. But twenty "foreign" insurance companies were licensed to do business in the State during all this time. None of the stamps can be said to be

There are severa tinct sets of these all of which are counterfeits. The first set was ma Anderson & Co., about 1890, from transfers for one C. W. Lomler. Alfred Anderson of this company resides and conducts a printing lishment in Portland. Now these original proofs many minor peculiarities which evi were traced from the stones us produce the original stamps but wh show up on the so-called reprints.

NEW YORK POSTAGE METER.

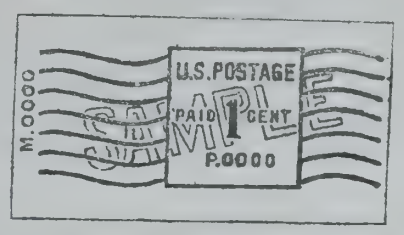
A postage meter machine, first of its kind authorized by the N. Y. City Post Office Department for metering and printing postage directly on mail, was introduced in this city yesterday. It was demonstrated and later put into effect in the mailing department of the National City Bank. In this institution 14,500 letters were sent out by the latest invention that will save millions of dollars a year now expended in the manufacture and distribution of adhesive stamps, in facing postmarking and the cancelling of mail, as well as the loss and labor by the sender.

The meter is a small printing and recording mechanism in a bronze housing, detachable from the machine which operates it so that it may be taken to the Post Office for setting. The machines are leased to users by the manufacturers.

The lessee purchases the amount of postage and the Post Office Department marks the amount on the register of the machine. As for example, should $100 worth of postage be bought, the meter would be placed at 5,000, which would designate the amount in value of 2-cent stamps. When these are used the meter is then taken back to the Post Office to be reset at the amount desired by the user.

The machine is equipped with two registers. One is an ascending total indicator of the amount of postage used, and the other register just described. The ascending register runs to a million, when it automatically resets to zero. Capacity of the purchaser's register is $2,000 in 2-cent stamps. It is not necessary to discharge the meter completely before having it reset. Postage may be purchased in any quantity required.

The register door is locked and sealed by the Post Office after each setting. Each meter prints impressions corresponding to the denomination and color of the adhesive stamp for which it takes the place.



Metered mail, as it will be called, will go directly to the sorting boxes as soon as it reaches the Post Office having been fully identified for its delivery to the receiver in the office where it is addressed. It will do away with fully 80 per cent of the time and labor now required to affix postage stamps to mail matter, as it operates at a speed of 250 letters a minute and is so simple that it may be operated by any office employee.

The printing die on the meter machine is engraved steel. It is permanently attached to the meter and will not print unless the meter is in proper position on the machine. It is mechanically impossible to waste metered postage, as the register will not record unless an imprint is made on a piece of mail. A set of interchangeable steel type for the date and hour of mailing is furnished with each meter. With stamps many thousands of dollars are wasted annually.

The postage meter is licensed for use under special rules issued by the Post Office Department. Permit to use the meter must be secured from the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Division of Classification, Washington, D. C. Application must be made through the local Postmaster on Post Office form.—N. Y. World.

ORIGINALS AND REPRINTS.

By Donald E. Eastlake.

original or the first reprint. The 20 cent shows the same peculiarities from the proof as the other reprint. The shield is not so near the numeral as on the former reprint, however. In the 50 cent the amount of boot projecting below the shield varies with each design. One is the same as the original in this respect but the left outer line is peculiarly double or split. The upper projection of the right hand frame line and the line under A show only slightly on some of the designs. The one dollar designs have the dots in the numerals but not the diagonal line under ONE.

One more set claims attention. These are what Mr. Anderson describes as "photozene" or photo-lithographs from photographs of the originals. They are out and out counterfeits but resemble as far as the design is concerned more closely the originals than do any of the reprints, and have been sold by responsible dealers both here and abroad as genuine stamps. However the colors, paper, gum and perforations, are all different from the genuine.

The sheets contain but three rows of four stamps, each set well apart so that when perforated all specimens have good margins. They come perforated 12, also imperforate. Entire sheets are said to bear the Anderson & Co. imprint. The paper is hard, white, vertically wove, and the gum smooth, white and shiny. The 10 cent is dark reddish brown, the 20 cent olive green, the 50 cent greenish blue and the one dollar claret, and one tete beche design appears in each sheet of the one dollar, this no doubt being responsible for the statement in Forbin's catalogue that the genuine comes thus.

Bear in mind the fact that the genuine stamps are perforated 11 while the so called reprints and counterfeits are perforated 12 and you are safe.

Everybody seems to agree that the 'Boundary Experts' of the 'Peace' Commission were excellent astronomers. We see that Roumania and Cjecho-Slovakia have swapped some villages.

No doubt this will lead to some new issues to swap.

U. S. Senator France was denied admittance into Russia. This seems gross ingratitude after the American philatelists have supported so many Governments in Russia by buying their new issues.

Speaking of Russia, it seems that the only concession that Washington D. Vanderlip seems to have missed over there is one for postage stamps.

The next generation won't be so quick to fight when they see the stamps that the last war was responsible for.

Iowa is all excited and het up because some gold and silver have been found there that runs from $20 to $40 per ton, but they are pikers compared to certain European nations that have issued so-called postage stamps that pan out $20,000 to $40,000 to the ton.

Why is the victim of a bandit like the album of a careless stamp collector?—Because they both get stuck up.

The J. M. Bartels Company must also be tone deaf referring to a 3 cent green and their Pink List in the same ad.

Japan seems to be doing well financially for a "chosen few" who seem to be given a corner in the "scarce" values of her many special issues.

There may not be any actual crookedness but there seems to be a slight bend in the straight and narrow boulevard.

Perhaps our good friend Mr. Yokohori and the other upright philatelists of fair Nippon will be able to straighten it out.

The obvious remedy would seem to be to issue sufficient stamps to meet all legitimate demands and insist upon them being sold over the counter and not through the back door.

Thank goodness we have not had any new issues to "Fiume" over lately.

That thought leads us to suggest that if the wishes of philatelists have any weight, the Angel Gabriel will have quite a lengthy list of grievances against Gabriel the Poet.

Wonder if the Cuban government has given a thought to a new series of stamps as a means of getting out of financial difficulties?

EDITORIAL.

Milwaukee—The philatelic capital of the country this week is Milwaukee, where the annual convention of the American Philatelic Society is being held under favorable conditions, as the attendance is representative and enthusiasm noticeable. Though twenty-one years have elapsed since the last convention was called to order at Milwaukee, a half dozen or more hardy annuals who bridge the past and present are to the fore. In fact the memory of man extends further into the past and among the veterans of the past we see the inspiring figures of Wolsieffer and Stone with the Chicago convention of 1887 to their credit and Michaels and others with St. Louis, 1889, on their pennants. On the fraternal field there is a great conclave and members are relaxing joyously in philatelic communion.

Start—The convention got off with flying colors, with Dr. Chase, president, in the chair. The secretary to Milwaukee's mayor, Daniel Hoan, was witty and felicitous in his address of welcome. The secretary, Thomas Duncan, said that a friend observed, when told that he, Mr. Duncan, was to address the stamp collectors, that judging by his Scotch name he was better qualified to speak to coin collectors. Dr. F. A. Kraft of Milwaukee was the spokesman for his city and discharged his duty happily. President Chase's message was clever and concentrated, and Secretary Davis showed that the goal of membership of 2,000 was comfortably passed. The report of the treasurer, Mr. Scott, revealed that while the general fund was tottering and gasping for breath, the stock and other funds were hale and hearty. As Counterfeit Detector, Mr. Klein gave a most interesting report which we shall publish elsewhere.

Committees—The reports of standing committees were followed closely, and those of the Look-Out and Publicity Committees were tabled for discussion. It becomes evident that when the reports of the convention committees are made, there will be material provided for much discussion. On the surface it appears that the Publicity Committee made no appropriation for campaign work because the general fund could not provide the sinews of war. The Look-Out Committee seems to have scanned the horizon without seeing a black flag, but they are drafting some remedial legislation whose nature is not divulged in the report.

Working—The working wheels of the society, the Board of Vice Presidents, and the Sales Superintendent rendered faithful reports of their stewardships. The systematized procedure of the Vice Presidents disposed of a big grist of business, and their thankless work is kept from accumulating through frequent meetings. The Sales Superintendent, Mr. Guest, has made a record in his department with yearly sales of twenty thousand dollars, a total that he promises to surpass now that his first term with its preliminary interruption is past.

Election—The Springfield, Mass. Board of Vice Presidents was re-elected and Messrs. Phillips and Good were returned as directors. The other candidates were unopposed. The proxy representation was heavy with a count of nearly 900. The plan of electing candidates by direct vote was favored, provided there is no clause in our Minnesota charter making the action prohibitory. Other details to facilitate voting were adopted.

Reception—Milwaukee gives both hands in greeting and "Welcome A.P.S." is emblazoned on the tower of the city hall. The Hotel Pfister has the full name of the society on its large electric sign-board over the main entrance. Badges with the names of delegates were distributed and make a brave showing. The group photograph was taken appropriately enough on the steps of the post-office building. The Milwaukee exhibition in the Public Museum was opened on the afternoon of Tuesday with fitting ceremony, and the display is most creditable. Particulars later will be given of the exhibits. The auction sale by B. L. Voorhees attracted a large assemblage in the evening. The newspapers did their duty, and fact and fancy were blended in their accounts. On Wednesday morning the opening is being held at Waukesha beach where we shall leave the delegates in the midst of their deliberations.

OPENING REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT.

It is customary, in fact, the By-Laws direct that "at each annual Convention the President shall address the Society on such matters of interest as he shall determine". Fortunately the length of this address is not specified, so if it were true that brevity was all of wit instead of only the soul what I have to say would be most witty.

This is the thirty-sixth successive year that we have met in Convention, and relatively few societies of any kind have reached such a record. The American Philatelic Society has grown slowly and surely, though not always steadily, since its inception, and I am now most pleased to tell you that the membership for the first time exceeds two thousand. The Membership Committee and the entire Society is to be congratulated.

It is not my desire, and I trust it is not yours that I should attempt to review what has happened in Philately for the past year.

The officers and committees will make their annual reports during the early sessions, and I trust that you may find more to praise than to condemn in what they have accomplished, whether or not we are all in accord as to their judgment. I think I may truthfully say that they have all had the good of the American Philatelic Society at heart, and that they have worked with this sole point in view. Incidentally, when I began my term as President, I had an idea that the position was largely honorary, but I soon discovered that, like war, it was ninety-eight percent hard work and a scant two percent of glory.

I have no particular recommendations to make, except that I should like the Society as a whole to consider whether or not it may be wise to make a moderate increase in the yearly dues, and further to consider carefully the question of a revision of the By-Laws to simplify the election of officers. The present method is round-about, and might lead to certain awkward situations. For example, it appears to me wiser that the Society elect the officers directly instead of, at least theoretically, allowing the Board of Directors to choose them from their own number.

One other point—inasmuch as this Society is "American" and not of the United States alone, it would perhaps be fairer to change the By-Laws, which now makes citizenship of the United States a necessary qualification for an officer, so that "citizenship of the United States or of one of the component parts of British North America" becomes a qualification.

Although it was with reluctance that I accepted, please believe that my election to the presidency for a second term is most heartily appreciated, and that I hope better to serve because of the experience gained during the past year.

Allow me to thank the officers, committeemen and the membership at large for the hearty support of the Society during my past term and to wish the Society a most prosperous future.

REPORT OF THE COUNTERFEIT DETECTOR.

Philadelphia, Pa., August 5, 1921.
To the Officers and Members of the American Philatelic Society,

Gentlemen: During the period of September 1, 1920 to August 4, 1921, 440 stamps were submitted to me for examination.

Opinion was given as follows: 260 genuine; 115 counterfeits; 30 reprints; 31 forged overprints and cancellations; and 4 faked grills. The genuine stamps included 115 presented for classification.

A number of stamps submitted were those of Heligoland. Collectors, outside of those who specialize in this country find it difficult to make their way through the maze of reprints. I have recently rearranged the Heligoland portion of my reference collection and decided to bring it to Milwaukee where our friends have placed it on exhibition at the Public Museum, where it may be inspected.

The collection is arranged according to the different printings as distinguishable by their colors and the varieties of cancellations found on the different stamps.

I am showing the originals first.

The 1867 issue consists of four values, the ½s, 1s, 2s and 6s, all rouletted. The ½s is found in two different types, one with a large curl, the other with a small curl. The genuineness of these stamps is easily told by the large curl as the reprints all have the small curl. The small curl type of the ½s can be told by the colors.

The 1869-71 issue shows a curious variety and that is the so-called short stamp. The stamps of the top and bottom rows of each sheet are one perforation shorter than the stamps in the other rows. This variety is found in all the perforated stamps excepting the 3p and 20p of the 1876 issue.

The 1873 issue is interesting on account of the unusual quadrille paper used by which the genuineness of these stamps can easily be verified.

In the 1875 issue only the 1p and 2p stamps were reprinted, hence all the others are genuine. In the 1876 issue the 3p was reprinted in too light colors.

In the 1879 issue the 1m and 5m stamps perforated 11½ have never been officially issued although cancelled specimens are known.

Reprints were first made in 1875 in Berlin for Mr. Goldner who purchased the remainders and also the plates. The early reprints are very well made and the colors are close to the originals in several instances.

The plates were transferred to Giesecke and Devrient in Leipzig where reprints were made in 1888. These are poorly printed and it is little wonder that they did not please Mr. Goldner. He UNITED STATES.—On August 6th in New York City, the postage meter was used by the public in this country for the first time. Such a meter had been experimented with in Australia some years back, and more recently in Europe, but the National City Bank of New York was the first here to use the machine recently approved by the Post Office Department. This piece of apparatus operates somewhat like the automatic cancelling machine and as the letter runs through it, a square about the size of the postage stamp is printed in which appear the words "U. S. Postage—Paid 2 Cents".

The machine is equipped with a register which can be set only by post office authorities. When the register shows the user has stamped as many letters as he paid for, the machine stops and has to be taken to the post office to be reset.

If this introduction proves satisfactory, it is more than likely such machines will be used by all of the larger business houses and consequently decrease the great use of coil stamps.

From remarks made by the Postmaster General it seems that he is desirous of learning as to whether parcel post mail is paying its own way at the present rates. There is only one way of actually finding out the costs and that is by the use of special stamps. If this is decided upon it is hoped that Mr. Hays will not fall back upon the series gotten out by the former Postmaster-General, Frank H. Hitchcock. The Bureau of Engraving & Printing had prepared previous to this issue, dies for a very practical series, showing large figures in the center. Their general appearance is somewhat similar to the postage due series, but the long part of the stamp is horizontal. The die proofs are in different colors and the set is very attractive.

Dr. George H. Smith has sent me copies of the current perforated 11, 2c surface printed stamps and Mr. Bryon Elliott copies of the 2c Pilgrim stamps which seem to be printed on a ribbed paper. These varieties were quite common during the 1902-1908 series but I have not noticed many here of late.

The Bureau claims that this is caused by worn blankets on the printing press and that they are not paper varieties.

Mr. John L. Howard has located in his post office quite an interesting variety of the circular die 2c envelope. The "G" in "Postage" has the bar missing and the letter is a perfect "C". The variety is on the new watermarked paper and is Die H, Size 5, on white.

Mr. A. H. Hoffman sends the first colored envelope that has been seen with the Butte overprint. Mr. C. M. Bleecher sends a new variety from Brooklyn while Mr. C. L. Clay has located the first size 3 from New Orleans.

But a few cities precancel their coil stamps and consequently they are of more than ordinary interest. Mr. C. C. Keller sends the first seen from Detroit, precancelled in two lines reading down, in a new type.

We wish to thank Messrs. Frank Shreiner, H. A. Meyer, G. S. Dill, C. H. Hermann, Otto F. Frank, P. F. Robertson, L. A. Boone and R. S. Brown for notes of interest.

ANTIGUA.—Mr. Frank M. Mason has forwarded to us a copy of the new 2sh 6d value in the type of the recently issued set. The color is black and red on blue.

AUSTRALIA.—We stated last month that the queer error in the 2½d Kangaroo, third wmk., with the "1" of the fraction missing, was only known overprinted "N. W. Pacific Islands". We have now been shown two used copies of the ordinary Commonwealth stamps. As the batch containing this error arrived in Rabaul in Oct., 1919, they were probably printed off just about two years ago. The same sheet has the bottom left corner stamp with an extra wide coastline around West Australia.—Australian Philatelic Record.

BELGIUM.—Mr. Henry Hooreman has shown us the new 20fr parcel post stamp, the type being the same as the other franc values and the color is blue.

CONGO.—Mr. Henry Hooreman advises that the Congo "1921" issue of 5, 10 and 15c will certainly become good stamps to hold and especially the 5c.

FIJI.—Mr. J. A. Galbraith has submitted to us copies of new printings of the 3d and 1sh values.

FRENCH OCEANICA.—Mr. F. W. Reid has shown us the 2c of the 1913-15 set overprinted "05 1921" in two lines with a heavy bar between. The 15c has likewise been surcharged "25" with the date and the 45c "10" at the top with the date at the base of the stamp. All surcharges are in black and Mr. Reid adds that "We stopped at Tahiti en route here from Australia and could get no 5, 10, 20, or 25 cents of current issue. These three surcharges the P. M. would sell only with complete sets, 1c to 5frs., and cards and letters mailed by passengers on our boat had to be handed in and stamped by a clerk with 10c or 25c for cards and letters respectively. The P. M. told me that the Nos. issued were 15,000 each of the 5 and 10 and 17,000 of the 25."

LITHUANIA.—To the 50sk portrait stamp chronicled last week we have now regretfully to add an 80sk orange and red

BRITISH MILITARY ADMINISTRATION OF THE TERRITORY OF NEW GUINEA.

By J. H. SMYTH.

PROCLAMATION.

Whereas by an Act of the Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia entitled the New Guinea Act 1920 provision was made for the Civil Government of the Territory of New Guinea and Whereas the said Act is expressed to come into force on a date to be fixed by Proclamation. And Whereas the Ninth day of May One Thousand nine hundred and twenty-one has been fixed by Proclamation as the date on which the said Act shall come into force Now Therefore I Evan Alexander Wisdom the Administrator of the said Territory appointed by the Governor General under the Seal of the Commonwealth pursuant to the provisions of Section 7 of the said Act Do Hereby Order And Proclaim that as from the Ninth day of May aforesaid the Military Occupation of the said Territory shall cease and a Civil Government shall be established in and over the said Territory.

Dated this Seventh day of May One Thousand nine hundred and twenty-one.

EVAN A. WISDOM,
Brigadier General,
Administrator.

ORDER.

Whereas by an Act of the Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia entitled the New Guinea Act 1920 it was provided that the Territory formerly known as German New Guinea that is to say Kaiser Wilhelm's Land, the Bismarck Archipelago, the German Solomon Islands, the Admiralty Group and all other former German Pacific Possessions south of the Equator, other than the German Samoan Islands and the Island of Nauru shall henceforth be known as the Territory of New Guinea And Whereas it is expedient that the same name for the said Territory should be adopted within the said Territory. Now Therefore I Evan Alexander Wisdom, Brigadier-General British Military Administrator of the said territory Do Hereby Order that as from the date hereof the territory formerly known as German New Guinea as hereinbefore defined shall be known and referred to as the Territory of New Guinea.

Dated this Sixth day of May One Thousand nine hundred and twenty-one.

EVAN A. WISDOM,
Brigadier-General,
Administrator.

For some time past most of the catalogues have described this country as "New Britain" for which we never could find any justification or authority, and apparently the new name will simply be "New Guinea". Further, I received from the same correspondent by the same mail a copy of the Government Gazette issued at Rabaul on the 31st December, 1920. The gentleman from whom we received it said that he sent us one previously, but we never got it. It contains the following which may now be stale news, but we have never heard if any designs were sent in or if any adjudication has been made up-to-date. It shows, however, that a move is being made in the direction of new stamps to supersede those overprinted "North West Pacific Islands". If the news is of any use to you, you are welcome to it. I intend publishing it in the Australian Stamp Journal next month.

POSTAGE STAMPS, DESIGNS.

In all probability, under Civil Administration, it will be necessary for this Territory to provide itself with its own distinctive Postage Stamps and designs for such stamps are invited from members of the Garrison and others.

Such designs are to be forwarded to reach the Military Secretary on or before 31st January, 1922.

A committee will be appointed to adjudicate as to the best design.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

We have received from Gelli and Tani, 70 Rue Marche-aux-Herbes, Brussels, Belgium, a copy of an illustrated catalog, entitled "Postage and Telegraph Stamps of Belgium and Belgian Congo". The price is 8:50 francs. As may be expected, coming from this firm, the catalog is the latest word on Belgian issues. The book is freely and beautifully illustrated, and consists of 132 pages, with imitation cloth cover.

"AN ERRONEOUS REPORT"

A. C. Roessler through his Stamp News states that he has received a Bulletin from the Post Office Department which is illuminating so far as the proposed new 25c special delivery stamp is concerned. The Bulletin submitted by the Department is as follows:—

"Due to an erroneous report that Postmaster-General Hays was going to increase the special delivery rate from ten cents to twenty-five cents, Third Assistant Postmaster-General Glover has been deluged with requests from stamp collectors for the new twenty-five-cent stamp.

No recommendations have been made by the Postmaster-General, nor even any consideration given to the question by the Department of increasing the special delivery rate from the present rate of ten cents, which has been fixed by law for many years."

STAMPS OF THE PLEBISCITES—MEMEL.

By DOUGLAS B. ARMSTRONG.

The Baltic town and seaport of Memel lies at the Northern extremity of the Kurisches Haff, 70 miles N.E. of Dantzig, and about 65 from Konigsburg. It possesses an excellent harbour and is an important centre for the timber trade. The town, with its population of over 150,000, was founded in 1252 by the Knights of the Teutonic Order, and it was here that the Treaty between England and Prussia was signed in 1807.

Under the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles, Memel was separated from Germany and pending decision as to its future status, was occupied by a detachment of French troops commanded by General Odry in the name of the Supreme Council.

The specific clause relating to Memel as set forth in the Peace Treaty reads as follows:—

"Section X. (Memel), Article 99.—Germany renounces in favour of the principal allied and associated Powers, all rights and title over the territories included between the Baltic, the north eastern frontier of East Russia as defined in Article 28 of Part II. (Frontiers of Germany) of the present Treaty and the former frontier between Germany and Russia.

"Germany undertakes to accept the settlement made by the principal Allied and Associated Powers in regard to these territories, particularly in so far as concerns the nationality of the inhabitants."

Following the Allied Occupation the use of German postage stamps in Memel and the surrounding district was discontinued. The Director of the State Printing Works in Berlin having declared that his stocks would not permit of his supplying an overprinted issue for use in the territory, recourse was had to the French Government Printing Establishment in Paris, which supplied a set of twelve contemporary postage stamps of France overprinted "MEMEL" and surcharged with local values in pfennigs and marks. These stamps were duly placed on sale by the Memel Post Office on July 9th, 1920, and were comprised as under:—

20pfg on 25c blue.
30pfg on 30c orange.
40pfg on 20c violet-brown.
50pfg on 35c violet.
60pfg on 40c red and blue.
80pfg on 45c green and blue.
1 Mark on 50c brown and lilac.
1m 25 on 60c violet and blue.
2mks on 1fr claret and olive.
3mks on 5fr blue and buff.

Apparently, as in the case of the Saar Territory, objection was raised by the German postal authorities to the form of the overprint on these stamps. It was therefore ordered as a temporary measure that they should only be used to frank letters addressed to places remote from Germany: a special "Memelgebiet" in Gothic characters upon the supply of issue for local use being created by overprinting the word German

2.50 Mks red-lilac.

By order of the French Administrator the use of these stamps was finally discontinued as from November 1st, 1920, the French issue alone remaining in circulation for both local and overseas postage.

In December, 1920, and January, 1921, the surcharged French series was augmented by three additional high values, viz.:—

3 Marks on 2fr red and blue (Jan.).
4 " on 2fr red and blue (Dec.).
10 " on 5fr blue and buff (Dec.).
10 " on 5fr blue and buff (Jan.).
20 " on 5fr blue and buff (Jan.).

A variety with wide, open "4" occurs twice in each pane of 75 (Nos. 1 and 70) on all sheets of the 4 marks on 2 francs.

Consequent upon an all-round increase in the postal tariff stamps of the face values 10 and 40pfg became redundant. They were therefore transformed into the denominations "15" and "60" pfennigs respectively by means of a locally applied surcharge in larger blue numerals, in March, 1921.

Now that the territory of Memel has been granted autonomous government under a mandate of the League of Nations, a distinctive issue of postage stamps may be expected to replace the overprinted French types at no distant date.—West End Philatelist.

THE Y¼ SURCHARGE OF CUBA.

By H. A. SPOWART.

At the time when the first issue of stamps for Cuba and Porto Rico was being prepared, it was proposed to establish a local town post for Havana, and a suggestion was made that a special stamp should be printed for this purpose.

Finally, however, the 2 real stamp was surcharged for this purpose and was issued on November 19th, 1855.

Only one printing was made amounting to 200,000 stamps, the work being entrusted to José Toribo, a printer of Havana.

The full sheets of the first issue of this country were composed of 170 stamps (10 rows of 17 stamps), as, however, the quantity of type available did not suffice to surcharge the whole sheet, it was set up in sheets of 100 stamps, and for the same reason two different types of Y were used, one of which is much wider than the other.

The printing included what must have been a very small number of the brick red stamps, as these appear to be very much scarcer than the carmine ones, though the prices quoted in various catalogues do not point to this fact in any marked degree.

It is usually stated that the wide Y is scarcer than the narrow one, but they seem to turn up in about equal proportions.

All the stamps referred to above have watermark loops, the stamp with lattice watermark was never surcharged and all that are found on this paper are forgeries.

In the early part of 1858 a further issue of 100,000 was made, and a similar number in 1860. The total number, therefore, being the same as the 1855 issue. These two printings of 1858-60 were on the 2r stamp without watermark.

The work was done by the same printer as in 1855. It will be noticed that in 1855 the figures are more uniform than in 1858, whereas in the case of the Y, the reverse is the case.

One copy of the 1855 stamp (loops) has been noted with the 1858 type of surcharge and appearing genuine in every way. It is, of course, quite possible that a few 1855 stamps were included in this 1858 printing; if so, they must be very rare.

Various theories that have been advanced as to the meaning of this surcharge.

Probably no other surcharged stamp has ever caused as much discussion as this one. From the earliest days, up to a few years ago, frequent notes appeared in philatelic journals concerning it, and it is only comparatively recently that what appears to be its real significance has come to light.

Many interesting (and amusing!) suggestions have been made—most of which can be rejected after brief consideration.

Before going into these it must be remembered that the official documents relating to the issue of the stamp state quite clearly that it was to be used for the town letter post of Havana and, furthermore, that (as stated above) it was only issued after some months of consideration as to whether it was advisable to print a special stamp for this purpose and that the surcharge remained in use for a period of seven years.

These facts are sufficient to destroy the theories that the Y meant Ynterior—Ysla—Ympresos—or Ynterino, which would signify a stamp to be used for the whole of the interior of the island, or for newspaper post, or a provisional stamp.

Again, it has been suggested that the letter signifies Ysabella, on the grounds that it may have been the Queen who suggested that this local post sh established, but from what is kn Her Majesty it seems very pro ical if she would ever bother about any such trifling affairs! ever, even if we grant the possib this explanation, we are then fac revenue stamp bearing the same and, presumably, celebrating t that she had been gracious enc place additional taxation upon ready overburdened subjects! Si revenue stamp is of the valu pesos, this does away with theory, that the Y was a sym "real."

The true meaning of the su should be to convert the stamp i of a face value of 2¼ reales si original value, 2r, is not barred since Y in Spanish when not foll a full stop means "and"—but t was not the meaning of it is pr the official documents, which st its value was ¼r only.

As long ago as 1875 notes ar from collectors who lived in Cu the stamps were current, and state that no information was p as to the stamp beyond the f they were to be used for the rate.

An old edict of Philip II exist ordered every finished documer marked with the sign of the Cr it seems very possible that the having no crosses available, m of a Y as the nearest imitation.

This would appear to be t probable significance of the surc the only possible alternative be the Y has no meaning at all! that the use of this letter in suc was a fashion peculiar to the many of their old documents bei in this style—"Habana y Seti de 1860"—it appears that this le never used thus in documents i and would have no meaning w

In any case it would appear must rest satisfied with this exp namely, that the surcharge has n ing referring to the use of th nor to the circumstances atten issue. In view of all the var the surcharge and its general h must certainly be considered t interesting surcharged stamp ever been issued.—Stamp C Monthly Circular.

"WILLY."

By EDWIN B. HILL, Ysleta, Tex.

(To W. V. A.)

There are certain places of salesmanship in the neighboring city of El Paso which I haunt whenever opportunity permits. These are numerous, for there is ever the drifting populace, which buys and sells furniture, in the main, and occasionally disposes of a library or little lot of books. Some of these volumes appeal to me, while others are merest junk, and unworthy of aught but the waste heap. But I oppose waste-heaps, and all things within covers seem not wholly reprehensible. It was in one of these places, to me very delightful, that I picked up my "Trautwine's Engineer's Pocket-Book" for twenty-five cents. The book, which is of incalculable value to the civil engineer, as well as of interest to the hydrometrist, to which class I hold allegiance, was a bargain. There, too, I have added to my general library, but, alas! nothing so far along philatelic lines had come to me.

Recently I was in the best of the three shops which form a triangular unity, when I brushed against a man who was peering into the table of contents of an ancient folio. I apologized. He turned part way round, and smiled his acceptances.

"Et tu, Brute?" he quoted, with a quizzical look.

And then we talked!

Here was a scholar,—a teacher,—a student. He knew all things, it seemed, and much of books. We handled the volumes before us, each deferentially awaiting the other's choice. Outside the rain began. So we stayed on, and talked again of things we both loved, and of the men who wrote years ago, as well as of those who write today. Finally, as we poked amongst a mass of ancient school-books, we unearthed a derelict upon which we pounced. It was a little old stamp album, with the name Oppen on the cover. Our eyes lighted. The find was opened carefully. There was little of moment in it, but the little told of other days when Youth was afire with enthusiasm, and the collector was by no means "advanced."

There was a name on the fly-leaf, and a few notes in a trembling hand,—"Willy, from his Grandmother," and the date, August 17, 1876.

Now August 17 was my natal day, and, curiously, it was that of my new-found friend, whose name I learned later, bore a similarity to that in the volume.

"This shall be our joint collection," said my friend. "We need not add to it,—for that would be sacrilege. But we can enjoy it together, and perhaps find solace of a rainy day."

I studied the man as he went over to interview the clerk. He was well past fifty, with a fine face, rather thin, and eyes of deep brown. "The soft eyes" came back to me from the past. I had known a man with those eyes, in the long ago, but he had taken the never returning journey. The man's hands, as he caressed the pages of the books, appealed. They were fine and delicate, and as nervously sensitive as a woman's. Altogether his was a personality to be loved.

The rain having ceased, we strolled forth. He insisted that I accompany him to his rooms, not far distant, where he lived alone, with his cat. The room into which he ushered me was filled with books,—books everywhere,—overflowing from the shelves, upon the table, and on a stand in a corner they tottered to a delayed fall.

"Browse an' you will!" he said.

I looked over the volumes nearest at hand. Dear Charles Lamb seemed uppermost in his thought, for here was "Saint Charles"—as Thackeray called him—in various editions and format. I opened one volume of essays. "Willy from his Grandmother" leaped at me from a fly-leaf. But it was in a handwriting different from that in the stamp album.

So his name also was "Willy"! I had forgotten that we had not exchanged formalities, and so I told him my name, and added a few items of personal history to account for my haunting the shop wherein we met.

His name was William Berry. He had been a writer for magazines of a technical nature,—a student in research work,—a book-lover and book-collector,—and also a collector of stamps. There we met on common ground. He opened a quaint old writing desk, and brought out a box in which were three loose-leaf albums. Then we turned the pages. Here was a glory and a remembering! A strip of five five cents 1847, on cover,—its companion in the ten cents,—and several singles of each. Then, in 1851, the most beautiful copy of the five cents I had ever seen, with wide margins, together with the rest of the set, all lightly cancelled and perfectly centered. And 1869,—my favorite issue,—both used and unused, with a pair of the ninety cents on cover!

I spent three hours looking over the U. S. A. treasures. Then, my friend brought forth a little Oppen, the companion of the one we had picked up, and placed it in my hands. It had some of the earlier U. S. A. stamps in poor condition, inclusive of the 1847, and part of a New York Postmaster's stamp, 1845. There were few stamps in perfect condition. The pathos of it came forcefully. I harked back over the long years, visualizing the little lad garnering the bits of paper,—even as I, back in Detroit, in 1874.

"My Grandmother gave me the album, when I was eight years of age," said my friend, reminiscently. "I was the proudest lad! There was a friend who gave me stamps, and helped me to arrange them. Hinges were unknown, so he pasted a corner with the merest touch. I was, for anything,—even parts of stamps, as you may see. But he was a purist, and it hurt him that I was so reckless and improvident in my desires. When he removed to Chicago, his example and precept did not die. In fact, the impress he made upon me has survived the years. That is why, now, he lives again in the other collection."

I told my friend, then, of my various collections, and of my present one, which, in the main, consisted of stamps beyond hospital aid. "I find pleasure in these derelicts,—for they have come to me mostly through gift of appreciative friends. And I visualize them."

He looked up quickly.

"Visualize them?" he repeated, "Why, that was what my boyhood friend said when we arranged my first collection. 'If we cannot have the perfect things, let us visualize the imperfect,' he was always repeating. I don't know where he found it,—those words of wisdom: but that is a truth to cling to. And so you visualize?"

I told him, then, of my Canada revenues,—all perfection copies, with few exceptions,—how I had tried to uphold my ideals with these beautiful bits of paper. And then of my U. S. A., which soaring values placed wholly beyond reach. But I was not denied the sad specimen with its corner gone, or a hopeless tear, or even the piece of a stamp. Still I could visualize!

"Yes, we all visualize," he said, "some with stamps, and some with life. And then we aspire, and that is best of all, if the finer instincts lead us. It is true of this boyhood friend of mine, and it is true of ourselves, if we are true to ourselves,—and that of course we are, according to our lights."

I rose to say good-bye.

"Be sure to come again,—as often as you will. We can always find common ground and ideals that live in the hearts of us."

I looked fleetingly upon the albums, and the books, and came away,—but I shall return again, and yet again. I, too, meantime, shall visualize.

"LADY M'LEOD" STAMP OF TRINIDAD.

By D. B. A.

One of the few instances of a private postage stamp attaining the dignity of catalogue rank is afforded by the lone stamp of the Lady M'Leod steam packet, which anti-dated by four years the first government issue for the colony of Trinidad.

In the year 1847, the only means of communication between the two chief towns of Trinidad, Port of Spain and San Fernando, was by means of a small coastal steamer, The Lady M'Leod, owned by one David Bryce. Accordingly, the merchants of both ports were in the habit of entrusting their letters and prices current to the master of this vessel for conveyance, in the absence of any government postal service. Upon all such letters a charge of 5 cents (U. S. currency) was levied by the owner and paid in cash. This system had its drawbacks, however, as regards the giving of change, etc., and eventually, on April 16th, 1847, adhesive stamps were introduced for franking ship letters between the two ports. A notice published in the Port of Spain Gazette for that date announced that on and after the 20th of the month letters would only be accepted when bearing this special label.

The stamp itself was finely produced by recess-printing in sheets of 100 copies, and was imperforate. It bore upon a lined ground a vignette in white of an auxiliary steam and sailing ship of the period and beneath it the initials "L. M'L." interlaced; probably a reproduction of the house flag or note heading of the firm. Complete sheets of the stamps were sold at a reduced price of $4.

Beyond this, very little is known as to the Lady M'Leod stamp or its use. Neither the artist nor the printer have so far been discovered, although the latter case should present little difficulty since the only firms engaged in the production of similar labels at that period were Messrs. Bacon & Petch of London and Rawdon, Wright, Hatch and Edson of New York. Perhaps some reader of the Stamp Collectors' Monthly Journal may be in possession of fuller information regarding this scarce and interesting local stamp?

Originally listed under "Trinidad," the Lady M'Leod stamp was transferred in 1899 to the special Local section of the Gibbons catalogue. For seventeen years it remained buried in oblivion; then in 1917 it was as suddenly restored to catalogue rank as No. 1 of Trinidad, with a brief footnote as to its use.

Always a scarce stamp, the Lady M'Leod averaged for many years about £15 a copy in used condition. On its restoration to catalogue rank its price was raised to £16, but at the recent sale of the Herbert Royle collection at Plumridges a fine specimen, used on entire, realised £54.—Stamp Collectors' Monthly Circular.

SHAKESPEARE AS A COLLECTOR.

By W. B. HAWORTH.

"Sweetest Shakespeare, Fancy's Child."
—John Milton.

It is a remarkable fact, but one that cannot be put out of sight, that amidst all the multitudinous works listed by Jaggard in his "Shakespeare Bibliography," not one is to be found devoted to the study of our mighty dramatist's connection with philately. A very hurried glance through the pages of that volume reveals books on Shakespeare's astronomy, religion, books, botany, doctors, correspondents, birds, flowers, learning, legal knowledge, military knowledge, phrenology, and a hundred and one other subjects, but until now no one has considered him as a stamp collector. Just as we go to press we have received from our old friend Mr. G. A. Higlett a copy of a pamphlet which will remove this reproach for evermore.

For many years Mr. Higlett has been working at this subject, and now, on the eve of the Eighth (and first live) Congress he has published the result of his exhaustive researches, and generously given the whole edition to the Congress Executive Committee, by whom it will be placed on sale at Harrogate on May 3rd.

That the Bard of Avon suffered from many of the troubles that are with us to this day is clearly evidenced by the quotations from his works. Who has not bought hinges which would not hinge? Shakespeare undoubtedly had done so, for we find in "King Henry IV.," Part II., Act I., scene 1, that he speaks of "strengthless hinges."

Then again, when working over a collection in an old Lallier, often have we found all the gems in worthless condition. And Will must have suffered likewise, for he mentions the subject repeatedly. "How they are stained!" he cries in "Titus Andronicus," III., 1, and again, "Maim'd and most imperfect" in "Othello."

He must also have been bitten by finding that some cherished purchase was repaired since, amidst all the humour and riotous fun of "Twelfth Night" we find him saying with a sigh, "Anything that's mended is but patched."

There can be no doubt as to his having been a specialist, Mr. Higlett adduces so many references to pairs and blocks, varieties of paper and control, watermarks, retouches, overprints and surcharges, and even to forgeries. One can easily imagine the Immortal Will, after he had retired and settled down in his native town of Stratford, showing his specialised collection of, say, the issues of Henry VIII.'s reign, to some interested friend, perhaps Michael Drayton or even rare Ben Jonson, and as he turns the leaves he calls attention to the most interesting items, concluding with "These are the forgeries" ("Midsummer Night's Dream," II., 1).

Shakespeare was no fool to be gulled by the issues of cheap and needy States, and when he is offered any at more than ten per cent over the face value he says with Falstaff (I. "Henry IV.," II., 4), "You may buy now as cheap as stinking mackerel."

Time and space forbid us to go further into this interesting booklet. We must however, draw attention to one or two small points, which Mr. Higlett appears to have overlooked. Speaking doubtless of the large posters of Djibouti, Shakespeare refers (I. "Henry VI.," II., 5) to the "lavish tongue" which must be used to moisten them. And again, after the reference to the Athens and Paris prints on page 7, there is omitted the reference to "Coriolanus," III., 1, "As 'twas used sometime in Greece." The dramatist must have been opposed to new issue services, for he definitely says they were invented "To fust us in unused" ("Hamlet," IV., 4). One other point, and one which must appeal to every true philatelist, is his inclusion of postal stationery in his collections. In "Love's Labour Lost," II., 1, he speaks sadly of a mutilated envelope, "But the one half of an entire," and again, in "Othello," V., 2, we find "one entire and perfect."

Mr. Higlett has undoubtedly performed a great service, not only to we philatelists, but also to all who love their Shakespeare, and it has given us the greatest pleasure to read his brochure. As we have already said the work is to be on sale at Harrogate on May 3rd for the benefit of the Congress Committee Funds, and, the edition being strictly limited, we advise early application to Mr. Stanley J. Telfer at the George Hotel.

One final word must be said about the illustrations, which form the frontispiece. From some source, known only to himself, the author has unearthed four XVIth century "Penny Blacks," bearing portraits of Henry VIII. (without wives), Edward VI., Mary, and Elizabeth. They prove one thing most definitely, namely, that the Tudor philatelic art was far in advance of that of today. They are, however, larger than the Penny Black of 1840, and Mr. Higlett must have made great use of "his lavish tongue" (I. "Henry VI.," II., 5) when he mounted them—unless he used an automatic damper.—Phil. Journal of Gr. Britain.

THE CREAM CITY CONVENTION.

AUGUST 9, 10, 11, 1921, MILWAUKEE.

By LOWELL J. RAGATZ.

The crowd was right, the spirit was right, the program was fine and so was the weather—most of the time. The hundred and forty delegates and guests in attendance enjoyed themselves meeting friends old and new, there were philatelic gems in abundance for everyone to see if not to purchase, and everyone went away happy. All of which can mean but one thing, that the Milwaukee convention was a true success in every sense of the word, and will not soon be forgotten by those in attendance.

Nearly a hundred members and guests had registered by Tuesday morning, and about fifty more arrived during the course of the next two days.

The official opening of the 36th annual convention took place in the Red Room of the Hotel Pfister at 10.10 A.M., daylight saving time, on Tuesday, August 9, with President Carroll Chase presiding. Dr. F. A. Kraft, president of A. P. S. branch society welcomed the delegates to Milwaukee in the name of the local society, and expressed his pleasure at the large attendance. Mr. Arthur Duncan, personal representative of Mayor Hoan, who was absent from the city on his vacation, extended the welcome of the city to members of the society, and regretted that those who were in Milwaukee in 1900 would find that the city had changed into a badly watermarked specimen during the interval. However, he had heard it said that collectors liked watermarks, and hoped that visiting ones would like the Milwaukee of today.

Dr. Carroll Chase, in his presidential address, expressed his gratification at the 500 new members secured during the past year, and at the fact that the society had now passed the 2000 active member mark. A society such as the A. P. S., which has withstood the storms of thirty-six years, has become a true institution, he stated, and cannot fail to play an ever increasing role in the field of organized philately.

He suggested an increase in dues to meet rising expenses, simplification of the election system so as to provide for the direct choice of officers on the part of members, and the doing away with the United States citizenship qualification for the holding of certain offices. Convention committees were appointed.

P. M. Wolsieffer, chairman of the credentials committee reported that 928 votes had been cast. The Board of Vice-Presidents reported having held forty meetings during the past year to settle differences which had risen between members and members and non-A. P. S. collectors.

Mr. J. E. Guest, Sales Superintendent, reported that the society sales department is now the largest in the world. $20,000 worth of cash sales were made last year. Only a few substitutions were reported, and only two buyers are still on the delinquent list. The Examining Board had removed a considerable number of counterfeits, chiefly Hayti surcharges, Moldavia and Uruguay stamps. At the end of the fiscal year 3332 books having a net value of $82,000 were in circulation or being made up into circuits. The sales goal for next year has been set at $25,000.

Secretary Holland A. Davis reported that a net gain of ninety-two members had been made during the past year, bringing the membership up to 2034, with some seventy applications still pending. With the admission of Syracuse and Akron branches, and the re-instatement of the Kansas City branch, there are now 24 local societies affiliated with the national organization. Sixty-four new life members had been secured, making a total of 105 at the close of the fiscal year. A. A. Jones holds the record for securing new members, eighty-four of his proposed members having been admitted since the 1920 convention.

Treasurer J. E. Scott reported a balance of $2214.20 cash on hand, besides $8000 face value bonds, held in the name of the society, these having been purchased at a cost of $7539.34.

Mr. Eugene Klein, International Secretary and Counterfeit Detector, reported having received nine letters to translate, and some 440 stamps to examine, during the course of the year.

Mr. W. C. Stone, Editor of the American Philatelist, reported on present and coming features and urged the bring-

SOME GALL

We have come to the conclusion that a dealer who charges a collector for his monthly price list has got some gall. We used to do it but have quit and are henceforth going to send our MONTHLY CIRCULAR free, even if it does cost us some couple of hundred a month to do it. It's worth it.

There is only one "but" in this proposition. Here it is—but—we reserve the right as to who or who not we put on the list. Do us the favour to write on your business letter head for a sample copy.

Some collectors write us that this CIRCULAR of ours is so absolutely different from any other so-called monthlies—most of which are merely pricelists like ours—that they wouldn't miss it for anything. In the November CIRCULAR we shall explain why we threw the 3c scarlet into the discard.

IOLE DIONE, BELLEVUE, WASH.

THE STORY OF JONES
Jones started his United States collection twenty years ago and bought his fine 5c 1847 for a quarter and a pair at a dollar. He got some much scarcer stamps at corresponding rates. He spent $200.00 or $300.00 and has a creditable collection. Now his growing family prohibits further additions to his collection. Is there a way he can do it?
Jones is a thinker and he finds he has a dozen stamps, perhaps some original covers, the scarcity of which is out of proportion to the rest of his stamps. These dozen stamps or covers cost him $20.00 and are now worth $200.00.
Jones of Maine and Jones of Utah recently solved distinct problems—one got his full investment back and has a fine collection left—the other has without cost made his collection complete in all U. S. cataloging under $5.00. WHAT DID THEY DO?
Next week, I will explain fully.

UNSOLICITED EMCO PACKET TESTIMONIALS

Packet No. 124 entirely satisfactory. I added over 450 new varieties to a previous collection of 2000 stamps.—H. S. Lynn, Pittsburgh, Pa.

I was very much pleased with the War Stamps I received in your 3000 variety packet as I added about 100 varieties to my collection of 300 Wars. It is a splendid packet all through.—R. Speer, Long Beach, Calif.

I added 316 stamps to a collection of about 3200, not counting the envelope stamps—(given as a premium)—I also found many better specimens to substitute for not-so-good ones already in my album. Then I made up the balance of the stamps into smaller packets and sold them to collectors for $3.00. As I only paid $3.25 for packet No. 124 in the first place, my net expense was 25 cents on the deal. I got so much fun looking the pile over (worth a good deal in itself) that I am converted to packets from now on.—F. M. Gracey, Cambridge, Mass.

Received packet No. 126 (2000 varieties at $10.00) in good condition and am very much pleased with same. Another order enclosed.—C. C. Colyer, Altoona, Pa.

Don't Hesitate—Your opportunity is now. Remember the packet must satisfy or we refund your money plus your postage in returning same. Could we be more convincing of these packets sterling qualities? Try one today—acts like a good tonic.

H. F. COLMAN

SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C.

ing up to date of the indexing of the society library and the publication of a library catalogue for members to replace the now obsolete one of 1912.

Telegrams received from the Rubber City Stamp Club, St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Club, and the American Stamp Dealers' Association, were read. Mr. Harry Swenson extended a cordial invitation to members to attend the S. P. A. convention opening in Minneapolis on August 15.

Most of Tuesday afternoon was given over to viewing the stamp exhibit in the coin room of the magnificent Milwaukee Public Library and Museum. Dr. Leon D. Peaslee, an A. P. S. member and a well-known collector, was chief of the museum until his resignation a few months ago.

While the exbihit was not a large one, many choice items were shown. Among these were the early German States, France, Naples, Triangular Capes and British Colonials owned by Dr. F. A. Kraft. The page of this collection which attracted the most attention was one bearing nine copies of the 3pf red Saxony, in one strip of three, one pair and four singles.

Mr. John H. Puelicher's collection of Holland numbers 1, 2 and 3 and Belgium numbers 1 and 2 was a superb one in every way. Mr. C. Steinmetz, Jr., had a page of Hawaiian numerals and sheets, large blocks, proofs and reprints of later issues. Part of the Wm. J. Uihlein collection, including a page of Swiss Cantonals and complete sets of mint British Colonials was shown. Mr. Uihlein has bequeathed his large collection in its entirety to the Milwaukee Museum.

Mr. Eugene Klein had on display his collection of Heligoland featuring the various reprints, counterfeits and fake cancellations. Louis Burmeister displayed early United States and Europe; W. O. Staab, United States proofs; Carl Light, general European issues; Fred Noske, Neurope; Alvin Krause, Spain and Spanish colonies; Charles Regan, United States and Chili; and Charles F. Vogelsang, United States Revenues.

At a short business session following the exhibit, it was held to be unwise to remove the citizenship qualification for office-holding, or to give members abroad the privilege of receiving circuits, due to the present insecurity of the mails and high insurance rates.

Investment of surplus society funds hereafter is to be made only in such securities as are full and direct obligations of the United States, one of the states, or municipalities of 100,000 or over.

The proposition to increase dues to $2.50, $1.25 per member, of which instead of seventy-five cents as now was to be paid into the American Philatelist account, was voted down. Dues therefore remain at the old figure of $2 per year. All ballots and proxy blanks are, in the future, to be mailed first class postage due to the poor service given printed mail matter.

Mr. Voorhees' sale of Tuesday night began at 8 o'clock, and lasted some four hours. The attendance was good, and the prices realized were average. A 5c New York on cover brought $28.25; 5c 1847's off cover from $4.75 to $5.75; a mint 10c 1847, $52; an 1851, 1c type I fine, used, brought $41.

Wednesday was Waukesha Beach day, and special interurban cars were chartered to take the delegates to this summer resort. Morning showers, however, dampened the enthusiam of some, so only two cars full made the trip. The cautious stay-behinds had cause to regret their action, for the rain soon stopped, and those who had ventured forth were well repaid by a pleasant outing. One of the features of the day was the launch ride around Lake Pewaukee.

Springfield, Mass., the convention city of 1902 and 1912, made a bid for next year's convention. Mr. W. C. Stone, the veteran collector from this eastern city, presented Springfield's invitation. Invitations from various city chambers of commerce had been received, but as it had been generally understood that Springfield would be a candidate, there was little opposition, and the choice of this city was unanimous.

The proposition, to appropriate $1000 and to ask dealers for another $1000, the total sum to be used for publicity purposes, was voted down after a heated and extended discussion.

The bourse was held in the Club Room of the Pfister on Wednesday evening, and many gems were shown. Sales ran into the thousands of dollars, some pieces changing hands more than once during the course of the evening. One 5c 1847 with early cancellation date, sold for $7.50 near the opening hour, and reached its third owner of the evening at $22.50, two hours later. A theater party for the ladies was held the same evening.

Thursday morning's session saw the passing of what will undoubtedly rank as one of the most constructive pieces of legislation ever enacted by the society. It is well known that widows have in the past been swindled by unscrupulous dealers who purchased the late husbands' collections at mere fractions of their true values. In view of certain notorious cases which have arisen in late years, it was decided that the A. P. S. should henceforth safeguard the interests of the heirs of deceased members.

Upon receiving notification of the death of a member the secretary will hereafter inform the heirs that the society will, if they so desire, take charge and dispose of the stamps of the member to the best interests of the estate. If the offer is accepted, the Board of Vice-Presidents will appoint a special committee of not less than three members to dispose of the collection without expense to the estate.

A special committee will be named in each case, and each committee will be required to make a written report of its activities to the Board of Vice-Presidents, such reports to be published promptly in the American Philatelist.

It was urged that members provide for their heirs availing themselves of this service, in their wills. Should a member wish a certain other member to be one of the committee appointed by the Board of Vice-Presidents, the specification of this man in the will would insure his being named.

It was voted to give Mrs. Fred Michael of Chicago the number of her late husband, long an active member of the society, upon her being admitted to membership. The Junior Philatelic Society of London was elected a corresponding member of the A. P. S. The sum of $250 was appropriated for publicity during the next year, this money to be expended under the supervision of the board of directors by the publicity committee.

Commencing with the 1921 Yearbook, dealers, collectors, collector-dealers and exchangers will be specified in the membership lists, the information in every case being supplied by the members themselves. It was declared to be the sense of the society that no by-laws be adopted in the future until given at least sixty days publicity in the American Philatelist before the convention at which it is to be acted upon. This was, however, not made obligatory.

The treasurer was directed to try to get as large an amount of interest as possible on non-active funds, such as the checking account balances over varying minumum amounts set by different banks.

A motion to have the secretary eliminate from the printed report of the proceedings all immaterial, unimportant and irrelevant verbal colloquy and to brief the accounts of the sessions, the copy as put into shape for the printer to be approved by the president, was voted down. While such action would reduce printing bills considerably, it was felt that members are entitled to extended reports and should have them. The secretary has in the past, as it is, eliminated nonessential matters, and it was thought that digesting was on the whole desirable.

Because of the fact that the society has certain members who have had shady dealings, but against whom no one will press charges with sworn affadavits, it was decided to amend the by-laws so as to no longer require sworn charges before the Board of Vice-Presidents can commence action.

Hereafter members of the Board of Vice-Presidents will be nominated and elected in units. This change was made to prevent the arising of awkward situations through the election of members living more than the thirty miles apart specified to make possible the holding of frequent meetings, which might easily have happened under the old system. All officers will, in the future, be elected by direct vote of members instead of through the indirect system employed to date.

The election of the following officers was announced:

President, Dr. Carroll Chase, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Board of Vice-Presidents, Robert C. Munroe, H. P. Atherton, John W. Prevost, all of Springfield, Mass.

Secretary, Dr. Holland A. Davis, Denver, Col.

Treasurer, J. E. Scott, Detroit.

International Secretary, Eugene Klein, Phila.

Directors at large, H. B. Phillips, Berkeley, Cal.; Alvin Good, Cleveland, Ohio.

Later, the following appointments were made at a meeting of the directors:

Sales Superintendent, J. Eustace Guest, Dallas, Texas

Examiner of Sales Books, T. E. Flick, Galveston, Texas.

Editor of American Philatelist, A. D. Fennell, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Librarian, John H. Leete, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Assistant Librarian, C. M. Tyler, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Attorney, H. M. Lewy, New York.

Counterfeit Detector, Eugene Klein, Phila., Pa.

Expert Committee, John N. Luff, John A. Klemann, J. C. Morgenthau, all of New York City.

Philatelic Literature Committee, William R. Ricketts, H. F. Deats, W. R. King.

Philatelic Index Committee, William R. Ricketts, Clifford W. Kissinger, C. A. Howes.

Obituary Committee, F. H. Burt, Rev. L. G. Dorpat, Julian Park.

Catalogue Committee, Carroll Chase, Walter M. Gibson, Henry C. Slater, Eugene Klein, Stanley Ashbrook, D. C. Hammatt.

Lookout Committee, Charles E. Hatfield, E. R. Ackerman, H. F. Colman.

Publicity Committee, H. C. Needham, W. W. Palmer, L. B. Mason.

Handbook Committee, Stanley Ashbrook, B. K. Miller, Henry C. Needham.

Recruiting Committee, A. A. Jones, C. Gordon Fennell, N. A. Georgantos, Joseph Gallant.

Two hours Thursday afternoon were spent in seeing Milwaukee from "rubberneck" busses and autos. Many attendants, including Secretary Davis, left the city before evening.

The banquet, held in the Fern Room of the Hotel Pfister from 7 to 10.30 P.M. brought the convention to a fitting close.

BELIZE POST OFFICE DESTROYED.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

On the 17th August, 1918, one of the most disastrous fires in the history of British Honduras took place in the capital town, Belize. Starting between the Post Office and the District Commissioners' office, it spread to adjacent buildings, and the Court House containing most of the public offices, as well as offices and stores nearby were entirely destroyed. It was during the fire that the Governor, W. Hart-Bennett, who had arrived only in April of that year from Bahamas (where he had been for twelve years, Colonial Secretary), received injuries from a falling flagstaff, which resulted in his death 4th September.

The Post Office and all equipment was entirely destroyed, as well as all postage stamps at the time in the office. It was expected that surcharging might be necessary to provide for some of the lower denominations, but the reserve stocks in the vaults of the Treasury were quite sufficient to care for all needs until further supplies were received from London. The 1c War, London overprint, of which majority stock was in the Post Office, was destroyed, and not until March, 1919, did a further lot reach the Colony.

The cancelling stamps of the Belize Post Office of course were destroyed. At the time of the fire, the cancelling stamp used by the Registry Division was lettered "A"—a single lined circle, 24 mm. diameter, lettered "Belize, British Honduras," with the date in the center in two lines, "DE 15—15." A second stamp lettered "B" was used for ordinary mail matter. The Registry Division also used at times, a stamp lettered "Belize, B. H. Reg. Div." between two concentric circles, measuring 31 and 26 mm. respectively. It was usually applied in purple—at times in addition to the stamp lettered "A", and sometimes alone. At other times it was applied to the envelope, and the stamps cancelled with "A".

With the destruction of the cancelling stamps, it was necessary to resort to locally-made rubber stamps. For ordinary mail matter, there was one of two concentric circles (34 and 29 mm. respectively) with "Belize, British Honduras" between, and the date in two lines in the center, "Jan 23—1919." The rubber stamp used by the Registry Division was also of two concentric circles (33 and 28 mm. respectively), lettered "Belize, M. O. & Registration." The date Feb. 25, 1919, was added separately by means of a second stamp. The impressions are usually in blue or black.

A rubber registration stamp was made at the same time, measuring 50 x 21 mm., lettered "Belize—British Honduras" in two lines, with a large "R" to the left, and No.....

A new cancelling stamp of steel arrived during 1919—that for ordinary mail matter being in the form of a single lined circle, measuring 26 mm., and lettered "Belize, British Honduras" in the center in three lines, "3 PM—AU 14—19." The steel stamp for the Registration Division did not come out for several months later. It, too, is a single lined circle, 27 mm., lettered "Registration" at the top, and "Belize, British Honduras" at the bottom. In the center in three lines, "10 AM—MY 20—20."

The estimate population of the Colony is 43,368, only three-fifths of whom speak English. There is a very efficient telegraph and telephone system, controlled by the Post Office Department, the receipts from which in 1917 were $9,684. as against an expenditure of $15,190. A cable laid under Rio Honda connects Corozal, British Honduras, with Payo Obispo in Yucatan, and telegrams for abroad pass over the Mexican lines. The Col also in wireless communication Jamaica and New Orleans.

The revenue and expenditure Post Office Department in recent are as follows:

	Revenue.	Expendit
1913	$28,892	$24
1914	17,436	29
1915	15,337	35
1916	14,467	22
1917	19,984	23
1918	Not available; record

The large expenditure is due heavy expenses of mail conveyan yond the Colony.

WHY NOT A STAMP CLUB?

(Southbridge, Mass., is to have a stamp club, and we print herewith the letter that will turn the trick. It was written by L. H. Brigham, and when he asked our opinion of it, we replied that the best praise we could give would be to use it in the WEEKLY as a model for others to follow. Get busy with the collectors in your town or city along similar lines.—W. O. W.)

The long fall and winter evenings are almost upon us.

This is the time of year dear to the heart of the Stamp Collector. What greater enjoyment imaginable than an open volume before you in either your own or some friend's warm, cheerful home, with plenty of bright light, good fellowship and—"nothing to do till tomorrow"?

Here is recreation; here is real enjoyment—and it is lasting!

Unlike the movie show with its scant hour or two of relaxation and entertainment soon forgotten, our stamps are an over-existant source of pleasure and delight to us.

Let's all get the most we can out of them. Far more enjoyment can be procured through "group collecting" than is ever possible with each collector remaining by himself and having no knowledge of or interest in what the other fellow has. Half of the enjoyment in connection with this hobby is in displaying and showing to others the stamps that we ourselves possess.

We all have more or less duplicates which are of no value to us since we already have these stamps in our own collection. These can, however, be made to possess value by exchanging them with others for stamps which we lack in our own collections. You may not have many of these to dispose of but each one of us has something or other that the other fellow can use.

And then the small, private auctions among a friendly group of collectors! Did you ever "get in" on one of these? It is a sport in a class by itself.

Wouldn't you like to be able to obtain some of the many new attractive issues which are coming forth almost daily, as soon as they appear, at a price little more than their face value, instead of being obliged to pay higher prices for them to some dealer in order that he may realize a profit?

All of these things and many other attractive features are made possible by "group collecting".

Southbridge now has a sufficient number of active collectors to form a small Stamp Collecting Club. We should all be able to find at least two evenings a month which can be readily given over to this subject.

Gatherings could be held at either the respective collectors' homes in turn or if it were deemed more agreeable, a common meeting place found, such as the Y. M. C. A., the Southbridge Club, etc., which could in all probability be obtained without charge. Meetings held at the collectors' homes have advantages that a common meeting place cannot give us. We come in contact with the wives and other relatives of the collectors, thereby making new friends and acquaintances; smoking is usually permissible and the homelike atmosphere ever present under conditions such as these is a factor which cannot be too highly regarded.

Will you be good enough to give this matter your consideration and either get in touch with the writer in person or by letter and give him your viewpoint on the proposition as outlined.

Towns much smaller than Southbridge have formed these clubs with great success. Worcester has a club of 75 to 100 live members, which can be termed a "howling" success.

Mr. Coes, President of the Coes Wrench Company is extremely active in the Worcester Club and states that this Club would be extremely pleased in seeing such a Club formed in Southbridge; would give us all possible aid, and be more than pleased to enter into friendly relationship with us.

Copies of this letter are being sent to the following: * * *

The majority of the individuals in this list are well acquainted with one another. Get in touch with some of these other brother collectors and get their opinion on this matter.

Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. —M. M.—The Dictionary will appear as soon as the "Addenda" is completed, within a few months.

—J. E. N. Paul sends us a new Canada cancellation consisting, in five lines, of "Do - not - place -money-in-unregistered-mail."

—We are indebted to L. L. Sisk for a complete volume of The Collector's Gazette, published at Dallas, Texas. The volume in question is No. 1 and the successive issues have shown a marked improvement.

—A very fine booklet, fully illustrated with half-tones and describing the National Military Home at Marion, Ind., has been received from Eugene DeMent.

—The Newark News of August 11 contained a halftone showing two packages with approximately 175 2c U. S. stamps on each bundle. The cut was accompanied by an article that stated the reason for the use of this large number of stamps. A mail order company had asked for an exchange of the stamps for some of higher denominations, at the Post Office, and when met by a refusal, used this method to get rid of them. Only a short time previously, the P. O. Department had made the request that in the interest of economy, high denominations be used whenever possible in the mailing of parcels. The Postmaster is now of the opinion that the regulations should be modified.—Clipping from W. L. Hamilton.

—A. A. Leve has obtained a specimen of the medal struck to commemorate the completion of the Erie Canal in 1825. A story appears in the Syracuse Journal, with a double column cut of the medal.

—H. S. Powell, Mgr., and sole owner of the H. S. Powell Stamp Co., died quite suddenly at his home in Storm Lake, Iowa, August 10, after a very brief illness. His home was probably one of the oldest residences in Storm Lake, situated quite near the lake and about a mile outside of town, with the finest view possible over the lake. Here, also, was his place of business. Mr. Powell was a young man, honest and straight. He married a few years ago and had one child. His aged mother is still living. He paid me several visits in Liebenthal, Kansas, and from personal knowledge and the experience of 15 years business relations with him, I considered H. S. Powell one of our best philatelists in the U. S.—REV. R. STOLLENWERK.

SCOTT STAMP
33 WEST 44TH ST.,

UNITED STATES 1c

By ELLIOT

1c 1857-75.

The Centennial reprints of the 1c stamp originally issued in 1851-60 were printed from a new plate containing 100 subjects, arranged in ten horizontal rows of ten stamps each, and are not exactly like any stamps of the original issue.

The thin crisp paper upon which they were printed was very white and unless stained or discolored, the reprints can be identified by this characteristic paper in addition to the fact that the perforation is 12 instead of 15. As these reprints had the design absolutely complete at top, bottom and sides, even including the full scrolls at the bottom, they are sometimes mistaken for type I of the original stamps, and occasionally are offered as the rare imperforate Type I, after having their perforations trimmed off. This deception is assisted by the fact that the reprints were spaced further apart on the plate than were any of the original stamps, so that it is often possible to cut off their perforated edges without cutting away any part of the design. The color of the reprints is a light blue, not greatly different from the first imperforates printed from Plate No. 1 of the original 1c stamps in 1851, but certain details of the design are distinctly different from any of the early imperforates. The reprints are all clearly printed and the writer has never seen any of them bearing noticeable shifts, whereas there are noticeable shifts on No. 7 R from the original state of Plate No. 1, which is the best example of Type I imperforate, and the stamps to either side of No. 7 on the original plate do not have scroll shaped ornaments below the "N" of "ONE" and the "N" of "CENT" absolutely complete.

The stamps from the bottom row of the original Plate No. 4 (Type Ia) are usually a beautiful dark blue, clearly printed, but do not have complete designs at the top, and therefore are readily distinguishable from the reprint by their shade and design when imperforate, and

CONVENTION JOTTINGS.

By LOWELL J. RAGATZ.

Between the A. P. S. and the Mayer Boot and Shoe Salesmen conventions, the Pfister Hotel was well filled. Late comers were obliged to seek quarters elsewhere. This did not, however, offer any difficulty, as a dozen other hotels are located within easy walking distance of 1921 headquarters.

"Welcome American Philatelic Society" and "Welcome A. P. S." said the illuminated signs on the Pfister and the City Hall respectively. The latter seemed to puzzle some of the loungers before a cigar store near the hotel de ville. "A. P. S. must be American Plumbers' Society", ventured one. "Plumbers nothing! It's the American Patriotic Society boosting La Follette for our next president, that's what", held his neighbor.

A stubborn blaze threatening a five-floor bookstore near the city hall provided pre-convention entertainment Monday night. Two firemen were overcome and tens of thousands of books were ruined before the fire was gotten under control. It had been noted earlier in the day that the window display included a copy of Fred Melville's book on stamp collecting.

The Lobby Monday night resembled a stamp club, and the shoe convention delegates and other non-collecting guests seemed much puzzled at "who wants a pair of 5c 1847 on cover at $20?", I'll give you $40 for that 1c Pan American invert", and similar remarks that were floating about.

A St. Paul member got his dates mixed and arrived two days ahead of time. He felt better, however, when he found several other early ones coming in on Sunday, and delegates arriving on every train Monday. It gave extra time to swap and talk stamps.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sidney Thompson of Los Angeles held the long distance record for those in attendance. "C. S." was royally welcomed by the many who have been enjoying his articles in the WEEKLY. He was a booster for Los Angeles in 1923 and from first to last pictured the attractions of the city of the movie stars. Mrs. Thompson confesses an interest in stamps, too.

A block of four 3c engraved, printed on both sides, attracted much attention. William Mannheimer of St. Paul is the owner.

The local press co-operated heartily in the matter of publicity. It was very evident, however, that the persons sent to cover the convention were much puzzled as to what it was all about. One sweet young thing was a college classmate of the writer's, and a former fellow-worker on student publications with him. Naturally, he was glad to be of assistance. It took the combined efforts of two members to convince a cub from another paper that a philatelic society is not an organization of bug and beetle collectors. The stories read right in essentials when they appeared, so no effort had been wasted.

The convention picture was taken in front of the post-office Tuesday evening, after some waiting for tardy members and lining up. Meanwhile, an Ohio delegate, one of the first to arrive, had stepped inside to get some of the 2c on 3c blue window envelopes which rumor had it were on sale. He came back envelope-less just in time to hear the photographer say "That's all; thank you!"

J. V. Yegge, a guest from De Witt, Iowa, for twenty-one years a member of the Chicago Philatelic Society, was present with such choice items as a Buchanan 5c on cover with "Paid" cancellation, and Mauritius second issue with promenade margins

"Laugh and grow fat," said the sage. Old stuff, old stuff. "Collect stamps and grow fat" is more up to date. At least, one could not help feeling so after meeting some dozen of America's biggest collectors.

One of the interested visitors at the exhibition Tuesday afternoon was Princess Bogolubski, wife of Prince Boris Bogolubski, who is touring the country in the interests of the royalist cause, and happened to be in Milwaukee. The princess had come to see the Indian relics, but insisted upon seeing the stamps too when she heard that some were being shown. Between her attempts at English, and the writer's attempts at French, it developed that her late father, a resident of Moscow, had collected stamps for years, and that she had often gone to Paris with him on stamp-buying trips. A brother from whom she has not heard since the outbreak of the Revolution inherited the collection upon the father's death. The princess seemed fairly well posted on stamps, especially on early British colonials.

The first-timers were puzzled by the constant references being made to "P. M." The mystery was solved when they had the pleasure of meeting the jovial Mr. Wolsieffer, who has been attending A. P. S. conventions and helping run them since pre-Seebeck time.

Four members brought a suitcase each full of stockbooks and approval cards. Business must have been good, for one room of the Pfister saw deals being pulled off to the wee sma' hours from Monday to Thursday. It isn't always quantity that counts, though. One retiring chap had but a couple of pocket stock books with him. "Not much," he said, deprecatingly. But investigation showed that the contents were classics and that scarcely a page ran below $1000 net.

Even the particular brand of amber fluid that made Milwaukee famous was conspicuous by its absence. An eastern member reported that a shine boy had told him that he knew somebody who knew a place where—. But the rumor must have been a false one, for the thirsty one was seen to be indulging in mere lemon cokes and the like at every opportunity.

Prof. Charles E. Brown and John G. Bassler of Madison, Percy Mann and Philip H. Ward, Jr., of Philadelphia, and Victor W. Rotnem of Minneapolis, all of whom had intended to be at the convention, were unable to come because of the rush of business.

Milwaukee is operating under the daylight saving plan, hence local time is one hour ahead of standard central time. This caused considerable confusion, as many failed to change their watches upon arrival and consequently were running an hour behind the convention schedule. Railroads run on central time, so some leaving the city arrived at the station an hour ahead of the time they thought it was.

A number of firms distributed copies of their house organs to convention attendants. A. C. R., the enterprising, of Newark, broke forth with a special forty-page fine white paper edition of

From the above list it will be noted that the Bureau is again turning out engraved 2c stamps from the flat plates for these are the first plates made since they started the 2c offset some months back. I imagine that the life of the 2c offset will be but a few months longer and that with the new tax law in effect we will have new 3c surface print.

The above list also shows a lone 20c plate No. 11801. This means that something happened to one of the other plates and that this plate has been made to take its place. Speaking of this recalls to mind that a postal clerk informed me that he had found a block of 20c stamps wherein one of the subjects were missing. He had misplaced the block and not seeing it I hardly thought it worth mentioning but now noting that one of the 20c plates was possibly defective gives more weight to the story.

The catalogue for years has separated the first issue of postage due stamps into two series, one of yellow brown and the other of brown. If you have ever tried to match up these stamps in sets you have learned how it is almost impossible to do this. The department authorized no change in color but we have always been lead to believe that the early printings were in the yellow brown shade and that the browns came later on. Mr. P. M. Mann has just found a complete pane of 100 of the 1c which conclusively shows that the assumption is not correct. This sheet was recently found in a small Pennsylvania Post Office in the envelope in which it had arrived from Washington. The full data is with it showing that it was among the first due stamps sent out. It however is in the brown shade which we had always thought a later printing, heretofore. Scott gives full numbers to these shades whereas in such cases as the 10c Panama Pacific wherein a change of color was actually authorized we find the stamp listed as a subvariety.

While the department has issued instructions to postmasters to discontinue the surcharging of the old 3c envelopes, nevertheless many new varieties are still being found. Mr. J. V. Nielsen sends a couple from Charleston, Mr. E. C. Brown has found a new Indianapolis, Dr. W. L. LeCron an unlisted window from Cleveland while Mr. E. J. Newcomer sends a new Salt Lake, a new Seattle and a new San Francisco.

Quite a few have come to hand from one of the small New England offices, overprinted in Manchester.

is somewhat different from the usual run. Our method of advertising is thorough and different—it gets results, and that's what the seller wants. There are several mighty good reasons why both buyers and sellers prefer to do business the Sudden Service way. If you are thinking of selling your stamps at auction, our figures are convincing.

Catalogs for our next sale will be mailed shortly. Are you on our list? We have several fine old collections booked for the coming season, and are prepared to handle more.

CONVENTION JOTTINGS.

his News, with four Milwaukee illustrations on the glazed cover pages, and a thousand bargains inside. June and July issues were also presented.

Frank E. Hadley gave copies of the eight-page July issue of his Stamp Life to all comers with the pithy warning "If you put this into the wastepaper basket, put the basket into the safe." R. Kenneth Milne of Grand Rapids distributed literature advertising his Dealers' Protective Association which has been making good rooting out frauds in the philatelic world, together with sample copies of various stamp publications for which he is the subscription agent.

Vahan Mozian showed a piece of cover twelve by eighteen inches, bearing $460.80 in $5 perf. 10 and $5 bi-colors in large blocks, and singles of the current 30c and 50c. This enormous amount of postage had covered a shipment of Liberty Bonds from Washington to New York, and official certification of the payment of this sum appears below the stamps.

The sale Tuesday night dragged somewhat at first. Auctioneer Alexander Nett had never sold stamps before, and seemed intent upon squeezing the last possible nickel out of the bidders. Consequently, only sixty lots were sold in the first hour and the perspiring, silk-shirted Nett's "I'm going to sell it, gentlemen! I'm going to sell it!", began to bring more loud guffaws, "Let 'er go, old top," and the like, than bids. W. O. Staab, auctioneer for the local branch society, came to the rescue, took charge of affairs, and placed the next hundred lots in half an hour. Auctioneer Nett then again took matters in hand, and having learned how it's all done, proceeded to run off the rest of the sale at standard speed.

A painting in the hallway before the Red Room in which the business sessions were held has a distinct philatelic flavour. It represents one end of a pioneer's home. Sticking in a crack in the door is a letter bearing a splendid reproduction of the 25 centime France, issue of 1877, Paris postmark, and the name and address "Mons. R La Barre Goodwin, Washington, Etats Unis."

A mint block of the airplane inverts changed hands at private sale for $3000. Allan Logan of Kansas City was the purchaser, Eugene Klein the seller.

Y. Souren, late of Erivan, Armenia, and now of New York, and Franz Szekula of Geneva, Switzerland, were featured in Milwaukee Journal accounts of the gathering of stamp collectors and their ways. From these stories it was learned that the former was obliged to walk 300 miles to escape the Bolsheviki last year and had $15,000 worth of baggage stolen before he embarked for America, and that the latter finds American girls heartless, rude, and incomparable with the golden-haired damsels of Sweden.

The reporter failed to state the items of chief interest to collectors, that Mr. Souren displayed what is in all probability the finest lot of Armenian stamps in existence, and that Mr. Szekula, who represents his brother, Bela Szekula, had but to learn your specialty to show you all the scarce ones in your line, with catalogue prices naturally forgotten.

Incidentally, it may be mentioned that Mr. Szekula's characterization of American girls brought forth a dozen published protests from Milwaukee women in the next issue of the Journal.

The Sentinel featured pictures of General Coolidge and Alvin Good, with accounts of the former's campaigns with Custer and his leading the American forces to the relief of Peking, and the latter's one-time connection with the Worthington collection.

A number of delegates took the interurban for Mukwegan, some twenty miles down the lake-shore, to meet C. R. Hollister, who has long been well known among collectors. Mr. Hollister is an invalid, and was therefore unable to attend the convention. He enjoyed these visits with stamp friends.

Choice stocks of classics were shown by Vahan Mozian, Eugene Klein, John Klemann, P. M. Wolsieffer, H. F. Colman, and B. L. Drew. Charles Sidney Thompson offered a splendid stock of scarce items, both 19th and 20th century, in superb condition. Mr. W. A. Sisson's stock of privately perforated U. S. from 1902 attracted much attention, as it is probably the best of its kind in existence. Mr. Sisson has long made these stamps his specialty; the writer purchased some from him more than ten years ago.

The convention reporter was Miss Virginia Bland, director of the Expert Reporting Company of St. Louis, who made her first acquaintance with the hobby in reporting the St. Louis convention in 1919. The young lady has not yet fallen a victim to the wiles of philately, though she admits that stamps are now more than mere bits of paper to her since she has seen what serious interest men who are doctors, attorneys, and professors can take in them.

Several of the ladies present came as real collectors, not as mere wives. Mrs. W. A. Sisson of Webster Groves, Mo., is interested in stamps from all countries of the world, showing postmarks of capital cities and cities near which historic battles were fought. Her collection of these is a very creditable one. Mrs. F. G. Suits of Oconomowoc has a six volume collection. Her United States volume, seen by the writer, is replete in select singles. Mrs. T. S. Farquharst of Des Moines is a general collector. Mrs. H. A. Diamant is collecting triangular capes, as she likes their "angularity." Her first copy was a gift from Dr. Holland Davis. Miss Debby Lewis Kirk of Kirklyn, Pa., has some nice United States stamps. She is interested in shades.

Charles Christensen, Milwaukee's only "regular" dealer, was a constant attendant at the meetings. He has been selling stamps for many years, and has been devoting his entire time to the selling of them for the past four years. He employs two clerks.

President Chase was much interested in one of Karl Koslowski's items, a 3c of 1857 with sheet margin showing plate number 14 with the 4 reversed. This is a hitherto unknown variety. The stamp has been photographed, and an illustration of it will appear n the forthcoming handbook on the 1857 issue.

B. L. Drew offered a block of 27 3c 1851 (two horizontal rows of ten with a horizontal row of three in upper right hand corner) at $250. It will be recalled that a complete sheet of this stamp recently passed through his hands.

Karl Koslowski is forming a novel collection of 3c 1851 and 1857 with dated cancellations. These items are arranged by months and days. The collection, which he has been working on for four years, is very nearly complete. He was able to secure a couple of missing dates, including February 29, at the convention. Mr. Koslowski also had with him a little album of Poland number 1's. Included in this lot of "Junk," as Mr. Koslowski modestly terms it, are nine superb unused copies and a host of superbly used copies on and off cover.

R. Kenneth Milne of Grand Rapids, nephew of General Milne of the British army which occupied Constantinople in 1920, was among those present. If the general had the interest in stamps that his nephew has, the occupation would probably have been commemorated by a special issue. Mr. Milne has a fine lot of Palestine surcharges sent to him by his uncle, who is now stationed in the Holy Land.

Two bookshops near the Pfister capitalized the convention by hanging out signs, "Stamps for Sale". Investigation brought disappointment, however, as only cheap packets and common singles, many of which were marked several times catalogue net, were to be had. When questioned as to what catalogue these robber prices were based on, one clerk solemnly assured his quesioners that "we use 'em all."

DEALERS, DEMAND SPECIAL OFFER!

LOOKING FOR RARE STAMPS.

By FRANKLIN H. CHASE.

PARIS, FRANCE.

You can go to a market in Paris and buy used postage stamps for your collection, just the same as you can go to the North Side Market and get eggs, chickens and lettuce. But the postage stamp market of Paris prefers to be compared with the Bourse, or the Hotel Druot, where rare books are sold. Many of the dough boys who were in Paris will remember the market, for it is just north of the Theater Marigny, which was used to entertain the visiting soldiers during the war. The postage stamp market never even stopped during bombardment, for it was held out under the trees that are a part of the Champs Elysee, and they were safer than cellars. * * *

Besides the regular market, there are thousands of dealers in used postage stamps, and even the government went into the business when it came to the sale of the collection of M. Philippe de Farrari, son of the Duchesse de Galliera, who died in 1915. This collection of Farrari was the largest and most complete in the world. At one time Farrari had an idea that he would leave his collection to the Vatican, and then changed his mind and left it to the Berlin Museum. Well, 1915 was a bad time to leave anything to Berlin, if it happened to be in Paris, and that is where this collection was. So the French government confiscated the stamps, and they were sold in sections. The first section brought 1,293,445 francs. * * *

It is quoted that only a short time since a Rubens picture sold in Brussels for 52,000 francs, and yet a two-cent postage stamp of Hawaii, of the issue of 1851-52 brought 183,300 francs at this sale. The total from two stamps from British Guiana was 246,750 francs. * * *

When Farrari was a boy he began collecting stamps, only then he preferred the green ones. It was said that when he grew up he offered to marry the woman who would bring him for her dot an 1847 Mauritius stamp. But neither the girl nor the stamp showed up. * * *

The man was simply bound up in his stamps. It was said that he would go about Paris in old clothes, a yachting cap and sandals, yet he was spending 200,000 a year on stamps, the interest on a fortune which his father left him.

The cost of newsprint paper certainly did go up, but it must be admitted that it never reached the price of that bit of canceled paper on which was printed the Hawaiian stamp.

Then the courts of Paris have reached a decision in the case of the man who made a claim for a half interest in a rare stamp which he found upon a letter in a lawyer's office, and the heirs of the lawyer's client to whom the letter was addressed also put in a claim of ownership. The courts decided that the lawyer was the owner in entirety of the stamp, which was valued at several thousands.

The record prices for stamp rarities has served to increase the interest in postage stamp collecting, if that were possible. Everybody seems to be looking for a rarity that somebody else has missed, and thereby finding a fortune. But the dealers in stamps know their business, and before putting up those enticing packets of stamps for a certain price, which look as if they might contain everything and anything, they have not missed a single thing that collectors are seeking. There are only eleven stamps known in the world of the one that sold for 183,300 francs.

Postage stamps, like art, books and everything that man collects from tea pots to fiddles, depends upon knowledge of the subject. Everything is in the knowing.—Syracuse Journal.

CYNIC'S PHILATELIC GLOSSARY.

By A. D. HESIVE.

(Our cynic takes his turn at the bat and makes some lusty swings at the ball, but whether or not he makes a hit depends upon the viewpoint of the reader.—Editor.)

Advanced Collector—One who has collected stamps until he has enough to think he knows it all.

Album—A book printed by dealers with places to put only such stamps as they want to sell you and for those rarities no dealer can supply.

Auction—Where you buy at your own price if its high enough to suit the dealer.

Cancellation—Inky daub on the face of a stamp that cannot be erased or removed, but collected by the radicals for the fancy designs and color of ink used.

Catalogue—A publication by stamp dealers giving the prices they would like to get for their stamps but never do.

Catalogue Price—That on which the value of a stamp is based but seldom worth it.

Chalky—Color of the face of the unscrupulous collector when caught at "putting one over" on the dealer.

Condition—The dealers motto, "Remit within three days".

Due Stamp—A rubber stamp used by dealers saying, "Please remit".

Duplicates—Stamps worth ten cents a thousand.

Errors—What some dealers call a new issue.

Essay—Manuscript ground out by the collector in the second stage of the game.

Expert Philatelist—Erroneous expression used by dealers to make collectors believe they know all about the fine points of philately.

Fac-simile—Usually rare and made in Switzerland.

Fake—A side-line dealer who advertises a rare stamp for sale which he does not possess, to make it appear he is a big gun in philately.

Grille—A scrub board impressed on the Continental issue of the so-called 1870 set of U. S. by unscrupulous dealers Guarantee—Something easily said but seldom done.

Hinge—The back of a so-called mint specimen.

Locals—An interesting series of rarities invented before commemorative issues were thought of.

Neurope—Where wall paper comes from.

Oddity—A collector who destroys a counterfeit instead of imposing on another at full catalogue price.

O. G.—An auction term for a neatly cleaned used stamp and regummed from the muscilage bottle.

Part Perforate—A revenue stamp with side perforations trimmed.

Philatelic Expert—One who says a stamp is counterfeit when owned by another but genuine when in his own collection.

Philatelist—A monomaniac.

Philately—The polite name for stamp collecting.

Piker—A dealer's private term.

Pre-cancelled—A stamp cancelled before it is sold by the postmaster.

Proof—Documents produced by dealer when he alone tries to place a questionable stamp on the market.

References—Catalogues of foreign dealers used by auction managers in order to set a higher value on their stamps than shown in the Standard American catalogue.

Registration—The fee of 25 cents charged by auction dealers to deliver the goods.

Remainders—Similar to duplicates but harder to dispose of.

A. P. S. CONVENTION NUTS.

Special News Letter by JOHNNY COURTEAU.

Dear Monsieur Wylie:—

Victoire and I have come to this so grand convention from Los Angeles. Victoire, she has not seen this part of the America, but she is tres familiar with La-Celle-St. Cloud, pres Paris, where I have met her after the late war, which was still going on when we reach Milwaukee. Me. I have been educated in that night school, and I know the English, but Victoire, she obtain the knowledge of the English language exclusivement á là argot Americaine. I shall tell you what I have seen, and use the English tres pure, but Victoire, who have accomplished the American idiom so well, she shall tell you what she see also.

Three days it is from that Los Angeles to Milwaukee. Arizona, it is dry; New Mexico, it is also dry; Texas, it is also tres sec, likewise K. C. and Chi., but this material that made Milwaukee so famous, to the contrary, Milwaukee, it is the driest place of all. Formerly, when one say "drei" in Milwaukee, he receive that many quarts, but now we get not even three drops! Victoire say, "Eees ect possebeel! And we have ze whole Pacifique ocean in zat Los Angeles! Where zey acquire zat disturbance! When zey say, 'Ze relatives will now pass ze bier,' zey refaire to ze funeral, ne-c'est-pas?"

M. Wylie, I know you will pardon me if I am not so accurate on the names of the so prominent gentlemen who are present, but sometimes I make the mistake with the appelation. and if so in this instance, you will understand me, I fear.

M. Charles Sea Fern, he have made a large speech on the emissions of the 19th century. He refer to history, art, navigation, commerce, and so forth. Victoire say, "Prie Dieu, Meestaire Sea Fairn. he don't make to commence to tell about zose New Europes! We be here for one more day in zis hotel. and ze expense, she is awful."

M. Harry Silvervest Swansong. the orator aquafiliac of Minneapolis, talk fluently about his seven lakes. He paint the wonderful polychrome aquarelle, water color sketch quite marvellous. Victoire say, "Why zat man rave so about ze wataire? Have he got ze bat' house in zat Minneapolis. or does he own ze bazing-suit factory? Aussi, I wondaire eef his cellar she got anysing in him beside wataire? I bet you all hees stamps, zey don't be watairmarked! Some of zem must have ze benzine or somesing!

M. P. M. Wool Sifter dite "Watch Dog of the Treasury" was up from Philadelphia seeking for excitement. He quote the poetry from Omar Khayyam so beautifully, when he say, "Ah, keep the cash. and let the credit go." Victoire say, "Ah, but yes! Zat charming leetle duck wiz ze gray moustache, what you call him, ze Chaplin soup strainaire. I onderstand zat man pairfectly. He desire ze real excitement after zat Philadelphia. I bet you hees return ticket he read via Sleepy Hollow, New York!

M. Henri Diamond Dyes. the great expert of Mexicans and also artist, assisted most ably by M. Wool Sifter (I am inform that P. M. W. stand for "Publicity Money Wasted") made the eloquent and masterful plea for the advertising and the publicity. Victoire say, "Ah, but Meestaire Diamonds, he ees thee so wonderful man! Soch eye! Quel hair! He ees what you Americaines call ze athlete Mexicaine! How he do remove ze hide from ze gentleman cow!"

M. Engine Klein, locomotive electric from Philadelphia, was also present. He was not excited. He could not see the Mauritius Post Office. He have the myopia! He could not see the British Guiana No. 1. He have the astigmatism! He could not perceive the Brattleboro sur cover. He have the exaphoria! And why. Tres simple. He have sold the block of aeroplane inverted centers for more than 50,000.00 francs, according to the calculations of Victoire, who say, "Wiz zat amount of monnaie, we could pay ze bills in zis hotel for almost anozzer week!"

M. Jawn Klaymoon, according to M. le Roastmaster the King of Stamp Dealers, (garcon, page Washington. Philadelphia. and Elkhorn,) said considerable of the words and succeed perfectly in concealing the information Victoire say "Mais oui, but yes. I comprehend zat man to one hondred pair cent of perfection. He don't say nossing at all, but ze monnaie, She Talk!"

M. Jay Useless Gust, the Tornado of Texas, tore most frantically the statistics of circulation and sales, and the so elevated Texas temperatures, 147 degrees in the shade, and no shades. Victoire says "Texas, she certainly have ze hot air!"

MM. Diamond Dyes, Swansong, and Klaymoon are at the same table avec M. Charles Skidmore Thompson of Los Angeles. M. Skidmore Thompson, he has the lungs of leather, and he wear all his feathers when he make the boost for Los Angeles. Victoire say "Why zey call zat long table up zere ze speekaires platform? Maybe zey do speek, but ze orators par bleu, we got him all at zis table!

M. LeGeneral Coolidge. the grandpapa of the philately, he has made the concluding speech. Say Victoire "Sacre coeur! Cing-mille tonnere! How arrive! I have ze impression ze war, she is all over!"

Dear M. Wylie. some of these so gifted philatelists try to what you call kid Victoire. One gentleman he have said "How you like the Thousand Island dressing?" Victoire have not been to those Thousands Islands but she say immediatement. "Oh. I don't theenk eet ees so mooch. You should see thee bathing suits at that dear Venice, pres Los Angeles. That is thee dressing! But there is one theeng, there is very leetle of it!" After this break in the conversation, the banquet is over, and so is the convention.

Hoping that this will get over also. and that I shall see you soon, accept. dear M. Wylie, my most profound and impressive salutations and thanks.

Yours with the goodbye,
JEAN COURTEAU.

PRECANCEL COMMENT.

By H. S. DICKEY.

I'll start with the Pilgrims as they are decided favorites, and will be a very short lived issue and very desirable. I got a beautiful Kansas City, Kansas, tiny type, (up), 1c Pilgrim, also a big type 2c Kansas City, Mo., Pilgrim normal. then a fine 2c Elkhart, Ind., Pilgrim normal; and nearly shouted for joy at the 1c Des Moines, Pilgrim, in that peculiar type (sidewise). Oh, boy, it's pretty, and then came a 1c Manitowoc, Wis., normal, and last but not least 1c and 5c Brooklin, N. Y., Pilgrims, inverted. I must not forget the 1c Pilgrim of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Jamestown, N. Y., as I've found about 25 of them. All of these stamps were gotten off the original by myself and are O. K.

Victorys are not found very often now; I can only chronicle Kent, Ohio,

THE TRANS-ATLANTIC AIRMAIL.

By JOSEPH WARD.

Copyright 1921 by Joseph Ward.

Written in the City of Philadelphia, June Fifteenth and Sixteenth, Nineteen Twenty-one, the Second Anniversary of Captain Sir John Alcock, K.B.E., D.S.C., and Sir Arthur Whitten Brown, K.B.E.'s successful flight 'across the pond' taking to the United Kingdom the First Trans-Atlantic Airmail.

PREFACE

The months of May, June and July, 1919, should forever linger in the minds of English subjects, in particular, and all philatelists, in general. In these three months were staged the three flights, and one attempted one, that proved that it was possible to cross the vast Atlantic by air.

We will treat them in the order in which they come. First came the Hawker-Grieve flight which, unfortunately, ended 800 miles from the other shore; the Raynham flight, which resulted in a mass of wreckage in Newfoundland; the Alcock-Brown achievement; the R-34 visit from England, and return; and Roget's proposed flight from Africa to South America.

In all the flights mentioned except the last, philately figures.

One will recall how Sir Rowland Hill was ridiculed by the people for his advanced ideas. One poetic-critic wrote:

"Invention is progressing so, and soon
it will be seen,
That conveyance will be quicker done,
than ever it has been,
A plan's in agitation, as nought can genius fetter,
To let us have the answer back, before they get the letter."

That is how the world always has looked on the man with the new idea in his pocket, and time will not change us. Should this critic communicate with us earthly beings, it is probable that he would write some 'encouraging' lines about 'getting the answer before we post the letter'.

Aeroplane mails are new to us simply because the airplane itself is of recent invention, but sending messages by air is indeed as old as the world. Historians can take us back to 500 B. C., to the siege of Potidoea, when messages were shot to the besieged, (from an agent on the outside) fastened to a lance. Many times have ships released pigeons when they were taking the final plunge down to Davy Jones' locker.

But to be more modern, take for instance the siege of Paris, in the last century, when messages were taken out of the city by balloon and replies came by homer pigeons.

From New Zealand we learn that someone in that Dominion, in days past instituted a pigeon post from one island to the other to get better service than the slow government mail steamer afforded, but this was suppressed by the provincial government.

The airmail on land is intensely interesting, but the ocean airmail is even more so. Take for instance Harry Hawker, down at sea, 800 miles from the nearest shore and picked by a miracle. (The U. S. Navy flight has been omitted because it was not philatelically represented.)

THE HAWKER-GRIEVE FLIGHT.

Harry Hawker, and his pilot MacKenzie Grieve, were the first men to brave the dangers of the deep in order to win the honours of the first non-stop hop.

The stamps used by him were the issue then in use in Newfoundland, the "Trail of the Caribou," three cent brown. The design of the stamp bore the head of the caribou. (the regimental crest of the Newfoundland regiment whose deeds on the field of battle were memorialized by this issue of stamps) over which read "Newfoundland Postage" below "3 Cents 3." The overprint read:—

"First Trans
Atlantic
April 1919"

At the time that the stamps were surcharged in the office of the Royal Gazette it was intended to stage the flight in the month mentioned on the stamps, but last-minute repairs, caused them to delay their 'hop-off'.

WHAT EACH JONES DID

Those two thinkers described last week simply sold me their dozen scarce, out-of-proportion stamps and reaped the benefit of a ten fold profit.

Jones of Maine got all his money back and has a fine collection left that has cost him nothing.

Jones of Utah has sufficient funds to complete everything under $5.00 and will be proud to make such a boast.

Jones of Missouri recently asked how it was I got so many good items away from city dealers. Three reasons will "show" him or you:—

(1) Better prices—low expenses permit it.
(2) Prompt service—offers acted on in 24 hours.
(3) Ready cash—the asset of any business.

If you're a Jones, write me about your particular case. U. S. stamps only.

H. F. COLMAN

SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C.

We might say here that when one wishes to recall an event of any great consequence, we always consult the newspaper files. Therefore, I am going to quote the news dispatches as they were printed in United States and English newspapers, with a few official documents thrown in.

It was rumoured vaguely in the press that the flight was to be staged, but it was not until they were off did the world realize that two Brtish citizens were risking their lives in an attempt to prove to us that the idea of crossing the ocean in "a heavier than air" plane was not an impossibility.

The first dispatch read:

"SAINT JOHNS, N. F., May 18—Harry G. Hawker, aviator and commander MacKenzie Grieve are winging their way across the vast Atlantic on the most perilous trip in the history of aerial navigation.

They took the air at 5.55 Greenwich time and expect to reach the Irish coast in twenty hours unless some accident causes them to plunge into the sea.

Up to a late hour to-night no word had been received from Hawker since he started on his flight. Weather reports were favourable and indicated clearing up in some storm areas.

If the daring Australian wins his gamble with death, it will bring him honours in the first nonstop Atlantic flight, undying fame and a rich prize.

He is winging his way straight for Ireland regardless of shipping lanes.

Hawker got away in a lurching three hundred yard run bumping hazardously over the uneven field. Hawker was in control."

(In order to avoid confusion with the "daylight saving" or "summer-time" in Great Britian, Canada or the United States, I am going to quote all times in Greenwich manner.)

It was five o'clock in the afternoon when Hawker ordered the plane brought out for inspection, and looking it over pronounced it "good enough". Grieve agreed.

At 5.51 the Sopwith was ready. At 5.55 Hawker gave the command to "let-go", and the small plane lurched over the uneven field, then steadied itself and went forward smoothly.

The Sopwith plane, and the Martynside were both known to the people and great crowds were at Mount Pearl, Pleasantville, and St. John's.

The Sopwith was the first to leave the ground. Leaving the 'drome at Mount Pearl, she passed the station at Quidividi two thousand feet in the air, dropped the undercarriage of the plane, and continued on with the best wishes of the people of Newfoundland.

THE RAYNHAM FLIGHT MEETS MISFORTUNE.

At the time that Hawker passed out to sea Raynham and his Navigator, Morgan, were tuning up, and seeing the Australian drop the under-carriage of his plane (realizing that he was off for good) they determined to follow him, but the hand of misfortune interfered.

Hardly had the plane sped two hundred yards, when she crashed to the ground, a complete wreck, fortunately from a low height. The men suffered minor injuries.

Special stamps had been prepared and these later have caused considerable comment. Like Hawker's issue, the Caribou set were used. The one, two, three and twenty-four cent values were overprinted—

"1st Atlantic
Air Post
Martinsyde
Raynham, Morgan"

Covers bearing these stamps were postmarked May 17th. Later Raynham sailed to England, taking the "air-mail" with him. Therefore the stamps are not air-mail franks.

Scott's Monthly Journal treated of these stamps in a recent issue. Their history was disclosed in dooming finality. The article read:—

"Capt. Raynham sailed for England, taking the mail bag with him. Any letters carried across the Atlantic in this way could not truthfully be said to have gone by aerial post. At a later date English stamp journals reported covers bearing Newfoundland stamps overprinted '1st Atlantic—Air Post,—Martinsyde,— Raynham,—Morgan' in five lines, duly cancelled with Newfoundland postmarks of correct date. It seemed rather surprising that the Post Office Department would lend itself to such palpable advertising as appeared in this overprint. Now the truth is coming out. It is stated flatly that there was no overprint on any of the stamps when the letters were put in the mail bag, leaving us to infer that it had been added later and unofficially. Roessler's Stamp News gives a very frank statement of what appears to be the inside history of the affair:

'A journalist who claimed he had interviewed the Kaiser—but hadn't—was sent to Newfoundland by one of the big London newspapers to report the 'hopping off' of Hawker, Alcock and Brown. Time hanging heavy on his hands and being 'enterprising', he got out an airplane stamp of his own and called it the Martinsyde—so named after the machine. He went so far as to persuade one of the P. O. clerks to run the covers through the electric cancelling machine, giving them every appearance of being genuine. They came to us from England. We investigated and now the beans are spilled. They are fakes'."

No more was heard of the brave Australian. Dame Rumour had complete monoply over the newspaper head lines.

"Hawker Lost At Sea—Loses Race With Death".
"British Navy Searches in Vain For Their Gallant Aviators".
"Aviators Hawker and Grieve Fall in Mid Atlantic".
"Australian Falls 300 Miles West of River Shannon".

and these are but a few of them.

OSSA ON WELL-KNOWN PELION.

It's bad enough to have some crook in the Post Office who is a stamp collector remove from our foreign covers fine provisionals and high values, put there purposely by our correspondents for some favorite customer, but when we are taxed postage due, all we can say is that it is rubbing it in.—Roessler's Stamp News.

SOCIETY OF PHILATELIC AMERICANS.

Minneapolis Convention, August 15-17. 1921.

The convention of the Society of Philatelic Americans was called to order by the president, C. W. Kissinger, in the ball-room of the Curtis Hotel, on the morning of August 15th. The attendance was not large as the local papers of Minneapolis, which were profuse in their notices of the convention, would have it that the convention was to begin its sessions on Wednesday, the 17th. There were about a dozen members present from outside the local area when Mayor Leach of Minneapolis welcomed the delegates. A feature of the opening exercises were the remarks of Mr. George W. Achard of Minneapolis under whose jurisdiction, the re-incorporation of the American Philatelic Society was entered in Minnesota, many years ago. At the Monday morning session, committees were appointed and reports were received from different officers and by noon, the convention was well under way. In the afternoon the delegates were driven about the beautiful city and its environs; and in the evening, the "bourse" was held, at which stamps held sway for hours. Some interesting collections were on view and the evening was by no means a dull one.

On Tuesday morning, the report of the credentials committee showed that the regular ticket was elected without exception and that the proposed Pennsylvania Philatelist received many more votes than the Stamp Herald for the official organship. It transpired, however, that Mr. Kissinger the publisher of the prospective Pennsylvania Philatelist feels it incumbent upon himself to alter his plans; and he thought it unwise to take the organship after all. Under the circumstances, the Stamp Herald was chosen temporarily, as the official paper of the S. P. A. It was understood, however, that the directors will name the permanent journal later, when the claims of the Pacific Philatelist which were not on the ballot will be considered with those of any other papers. Mr. Charles S. Thompson of Los Angeles was authorized to publish the year-book with the reports of the convention proceedings for the past two years, without expense to the society. In the afternoon, the boat-ride on Lake Minnetonka was declared off because of the inclemency of the weather.

The Wednesday session was the best attended of all, both morning and afternoon. The chief discussion was over the best means of employing the insurance fund on hand to recoup owners for losses that may be fully ascertained of books of stamps in the sales department circuits. It was decided to pay all of those who have established their claims such proportion of their losses as may be determined by the highest proportionate figure. The sales superintendent, Mr. H. S. Swensen is confident that he will be able to render a good accounting to all, in view of the attractive prospects now surrounding his department. Unsettled business was refered to the board of directors for deliberate action. In the afternoon, addresses were made by Messrs. Severn, Swensen and Thompson and in due course the convention was adjourned. The convention picture was then taken in front of the hotel. In the evening the banquet was held at the hotel, at which the attendance was nearly fifty. Mr. Kissinger presided and after talks by Messrs. Severn, Swensen, Thompson and Sisson, others were called upon for brief remarks. The absence of Mr. Rotnem, due to illness, was noticed and the sympathy of the members was expressed. A toast written by Mrs. W. A. Sisson was read.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Herman Kupper submits for our inspection a very interesting cover bearing the inscription "Saved from the Mail Steamer 'Milano', sunk January 16, 1893." The regular stamp is missing, but it was addressed, and the postmark was "Aussee", a town and health resort in Austria, famous for its salt mines.

—The Grand Rapids Herald, in a series of articles on "Hobbies of the Folks You Know", pictures W. E. Milliman of that city, Kent Co. Y. M. C. A. Secretary, and tells the story of his devotion to philately.

—We regret an error which occurred in the Hussman advertisement of August 13. 25 Portuguese Colonies, cataloged over $22, were advertised for $13 instead of $3. We are very glad to call attention to the corrected price upon this offer.

—At the meeting of the Philatelic Section, Maryland Academy of Science, held August 12, resolutions were adopted upon the death of Joseph B. Leavy. A copy of the resolutions has been received by us.

—The Protective Bulletin is published weekly by the Stamp Trade Protective Association, Box 145, Grand Rapids, Mich. Incorporation papers have been filed with the following officers:—C. H. NEW STAMPS CAUSE DIPLOMATIC INTERVENTION.

By IVAN I. MATINCHEFF.

On June 2nd, 1921, a new set of 5 stamps was issued in Bulgaria. This set in significance, subjects, values and workmanship is a supplement to the War set of 1917 (Yvert Nos. 109-116, 121, 124). The set when completed in this manner is one of the most handsome war sets that has ever come to light.

There are four varieties of 10 stot value and one of 20 stot which are as follows:—

The first 10 stotinki is claret in colour and represents the "Ancient Bridge" near Skopje (a town in Macedonia).

The second 10 stotinki is also claret in colour and is an upright view representing "Schar Mountain" (Macedonia).

The third 10 stotinki is claret. It represents the map of greater Bulgaria, with the portrait of Ex-Tzar Ferdinand in the centre. Just above the map is inscribed "Dobrudja" (Bulgarian territory lost to Roumania) and in the lower corner "Macedonia" (Bulgarian territory ceded by the Treaty of Newilly to Servia and Greece).

The fourth 10 stotinki is also claret. In a circle is framed the Bust of Ex-Tzar Ferdinand in Macedonian costume. Above his head is the Royal crown. On the left side of it is inscribed "Debar" (a town in Macedonia). Below the bust is the Bulgarian Lion lying down in peace.

The 20 stotinki is blue. It represents the Lake of "Ochrida" and the monastery of "St. Clement", which is a living monument to Bulgarian culture in that part of the Balkan Peninsula. Here on the mountain is planted a cannon with a sentinel near it. At the upper left hand corner is the Bulgarian Lion; in the upper right hand corner is "The Holy Bible", supported by "the sceptre".

These values are a part of the War set of 1917 which were printed in Germany, having been held there by the armistice and subsequently kept there until some time ago, when they were forwarded to Bulgaria. The size, paper, gum, perforations and workmanship are the same as the rest of the set referred to. They are printed in single colours in sheets of 100 stamps in panes of fifties with horizontal rows of ten stamps each.

This set had been issued at a special time, when the ordinary 10st stamp had been sold out. But not for long! At first the two varieties with the portrait of Ex-Tzar Ferdinand had been prohibited and later—the entire set, when the stamps were also forbidden for postage use. This has been imposed by the Entente on account of the pressure exerted by the representative in Sofia of a "friendly" state. As motives of this intervention were assigned the articles of the Treaty of Newilly in which Bulgaria renounces the possession of Macedonia and Dobrudja. Stamps with views from places in the lost territory and with the map of Greater Bulgaria, and the portrait of Ex-Tzar Ferdinand, the personification of this idea, was considered dangerous for the peace of Europe.

The diplomatic intervention must have been very strong and earnest, be one day all of a sudden officials Intelligence Bureau were sent o the city to collect all the stamps o set that were to be found in the m And they succeeded in taking ba better part of them, since the se been in circulation for a short tim and most stamp dealers were k their stock, which as a matter o had not been very large owing severe limitations of the sale.

This is a new precedent in the a of the history of postage stamps. it is rumoured that the stamps h have been taken back, as well as th that have been unsold will be b Far back in 1415 John Huss was t at the stake, but they failed to bu idea of John Huss, which is still in the heart of many freedom people and will live for ever. E ence has proved too clearly to be i that ideas cannot be killed by oppr and force.

This Martyr set if we could call has been in circulation only from 2nd to June 22nd; some of the valu ing on sale for the full period, a other only a part of it. This shor set is not sold any more; it can used for postage purposes too. I victim of foreign intervention an lomatic intrigue. From the stand of philately this set will be much ciated and in a couple of years will become very scarce. Now a large part of the stamps issued ha confiscated and after receiving from the provinces that they we sold there with the exception of towns and only of one kind i place, we come to realize that the ber of complete sets now in the of stamp dealers and collectors small. S. P. A. CONVENTION SNOOZE.

Special News Letter by JOHNNY COURTEAU.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA, 8/20-1921

Dear M. Wylie:—

The convention of the S. P. A. is now over and Victoire and I feel that we have much to be thankful for. After leaving Milwaukee we have gone to that dear Chicago, where I have visited the Saturday session of the M. P. A. convention. En passant, I was overjoyed to find that the Chauffeur-in-Chief of the M. P. A. is none other than M. Verte-feuille, most distinguished gentleman with the name absolutely impossible for Americans. Victoire refused to attend this session, as she desired to purchase a few trifles, she said. When I have returned, there is no Victoire, but later I hear the so great commotion in the vestibule of our so restricted compartment, and voila, Victoire have arrived. She say "Collection you have brought! Look at my collection! Perfect copies, all unused!" And such a collection have she acquired! There are boxes, crates and barrels of lingerie, hats, gowns and boots, and the collection of engraved paper necessary to pay for all this splendor will take three years to accumulate!

Then we go forth to view this so wonderful city together, this marvel where automobilists actually heed the commands of the gendarmes, which Victoire have learned to call "flatties", also "bulls", though I have supposed this latter term to apply to certain kinds of communications, sometimes written by popes, and at other times written to editors.

At any rate we have approached the so marvelous shopping district, and Victoire say "Ah but yes, I onderstand pairfectly where we are. I have ze unerring sense of ze direction." Me, I remain in communication with my personal self at this, because I have also this sense, having been able to find vin rouge, cognac, and other proscribed and prescribed beverages, even in Los Angeles. Victoire say "We now go some more," but not until we have passed around M. Marechal Field's place three times do she recognize the same display of silk beneath-clothing, and since then I hear nothing more of this so unusual directional ability.

Our hotel in this Chicago is tres noisy. Victoire say "For why zey park ze guests on ze L? Why not in ze subcellaire of ze railroad, where zere is quiet!"

We go to Minneapolis to this S. P. A. convention and somebody ask Victoire which way we go and why. She retort "We go to ze meeting of ze S. P. C. A. in ze twin-beds cities, St. Pail and Minnehokus. For why you don't attend yourself and jump in ze lake. Zen you will know ze new watermark."

M. Clifford Washington Kissingbug have presided at this convention. We have met him before in that San Francisco, when he is desecrated with one tooth-brush moustache. Now he have lost this distinction, and Victoire say "For why you eat so much puree? Ingest ze consomme, and she don't kill ze spinach."

M. Harry Silvervest Swansong, whom I have mentioned in my last letter, is also present. He is the father and mother of the convention, also of the twin stamp clubs, but this Paul twin, he is indisposed, and we have met only his sister Minnie.

M. Swansong have entertained us with a dinner in a Norse cabaret called the Club Odin, a sort of gastronomic Valhalla with great blonde garconettes. They bring us many strange Skandahoovian dishes, one of these being the "filibunk", of which M. Swensen partakes copiously. Victoire ejaculate "Now I onderstand where he get all this superheated stoff. It is this Skandawegian fullabunk, which he inhale."

M. Charles Esterly Seafern is also at the convention. He is the so handsome man that we are often embarrassed by the interest of the Minneapolis ladies as we parade on the Rue Nicollet, principal thoroughfare of the Norse annex of America. Victoire say "These ox-eyed, peroxide Valkyries, they think they see the Apollo or the Adonis. Pouf-pouf! Eet ees only Charley Sea Fairn! For why zey don't come to Los Angeles and take one leetle look at Dug Pickbanks or Beel Hart! Zose is ze reel guys!"

M. Charles Skidmore Thompson have made the lecture, as per usual, this time on the antiquities of Crete, subject of absorbing interest. Victoire say "Why he talk about antiques! You should see ze millinery in zis one-cylindaire establishment. Zey are ze concrete example of ze abstract."

M. Gunderson of Minnetonsils have addressed the banquet on the issue of United States 1851. He is of the extremely nervous fiair, and have dropped the dish on the floor. Exclaim Victoire "Dis-donc! Zere is ze cracked plate."

M. Quivery, apothecary of Windy, Minnesota, and collector of blocks, is also present. When requested to address the asemblage about his blocks, he remain eloquently-mute. Say Victoire "He is completely blocked."

M. Sisson, pioneer dealer of St. Louis, is present with his so charming wife, who speak in his stead and advise advertising. Victoire, with the eye for the business, obtain the signature of M. Sisson to a large year-book contract. When Madame Sisson have discovered this, she tell M. Sisson to take her advice in future and let such nonsense alone. Say Victoire "Advice, she don't cost nossing, but advertising, she is ze expensive necessity, like reportaires and undertakers, and you will be ze one fit subject for ze mahogany mackintosh, eef you don't advairtise." Dear M. Wylie, if I may be permitted to descend to the idiom, I should say that Victoire have enunciated considerable face full.

MM. Klaymoon and Engine Klein are reported on their way to the convention, but have not arrived. It is rumored that they endeavor to acquire the collection of the gentlemen in St. Paul, but Victoire say "Someone besides M. Swensen is fullabunk, also."

M. Joseph B. Parker, of Canada, is unable to attend the festivities. He have telegraphed that he entertains the company. Later comes the letter which say that the guest is named M. Carbuncle, and that M. Parker feels that he gets it in the neck. Victoire say "I bet you one doughnut wizout ze periphery, zat when he get feenish wiz zis M. Carbuncle, he weel be hard-boil'."

Today we leave for Canada and expect to visit that dear M. Parker, as well as Moose Jaw, Sickamous, and other unusual localities.

Hoping you are the same, and with my most profound salutes and impressive felicitations.

Accept, dear M. Wylie the continued assurances of my most bathybial considerations.

Ever at your service,

JEAN COURTEAU,

We are satisfied that the proposed tax revision by Congress will go a long ways towards restoring business to normal condition and with the improvement that will result the stamp trade will have known no real period of depression. The columns of the WEEKLY are a barometer of trade conditions and the prosperity of the stamp business has been emphasized week by week during the past two years by our being compelled to run twelve and sixteen pages each week. We have now opened our energetic campaign for new subscriptions which will be reflected in an increased value of our publication as an advertising medium during the coming months.

EDITORIAL.

Over—It is just as well that the closed season for conventions is now on as during the two weeks beginning August 7th, we attended three full-fledged philatelic conventions and what virtually was a fourth convention the informal session of the members of the American Stamp Dealers' Association at Milwaukee. The conventions of the American Philatelic Society, the Metropolitan Philatelic Association and the Society of Philatelic Americans, respectively, are now in the discard but the memory of them will long endure, not because of any special significance attaching to any one of the meetings but because of the high average of interest that was manifested, as a rule, in the business of the bodies. All the other conventions were secondary in attendance and importance to that of the American Philatelic Society meeting but for that matter, one could not fail to recognize the abounding faith that inspired many of those who participated in the affairs of the other conventions. We cannot believe that even the smallest convention does not have some beneficial influence on our pursuit.

True — The Milwaukee convention will go down in the history of the American Philatelic Society as one of the best ever held by the organization. Under the guidance of President Chase, the business was conducted in a workman-like manner and although there were times when the discussions became somewhat involved, they never verged upon burlesque. We maintain that in recent years, the conventions have been conducted efficiently and earnestly; and that in comparison with those of other societies, we have no reason to hang our heads. Even the formalist cannot find any grave objections to our procedure and the thirty-five years spent in polishing the by-laws have perfected them into a smoothly-running machine. Year by year, it becomes the more apparent that the delegates to the convention assemble, animated solely with the thought of improving the workings of the society and of promoting legislation that is helpful to philately in general. The result of this devotion is to be seen in the present flourishing estate of the leading national organization.

Need—One of the most practical and progressive resolutions ever passed by the American Philatelic Society was that presented by Mr. Michaels providing for a means to market the stamp effects of deceased members. The society expresses its willingness and desire to appraise collections, etc., at the behest of heirs through the medium of a committee of disinterested members and to dispose of the stamps to best advantage. It is unnecessary to dwell upon the propriety of this action on the part of the society or to enlarge upon its benefits. The demand for legislation of the kind has been felt in the past and some of the societies abroad have had boards of stamp realization, in instances of death, and certainly, it was time that our national organization proceeded to remedy the omission.

Coin—It happened that several members who sent their proxies to us voiced their surprise and regret that no systematized plan of publicity had been put in operation, notwithstanding that it was understood at the Providence convention of a year ago that measures would be employed to carry on missionary work. Too, it was our belief that the society was remiss in not having accomplished something on these constructive lines or, failing this, an explanation should have been given before the time of the convention to indicate why no action was advisable. It became apparent that the amount of money in the general fund, after having met the deficits incurred for some time past by the publication of the official journal was not adequate to meet the demands of the expense of sustained publicity work. Of course, if the money was not forthcoming, there could be no appropriation and it has been pointed out to us that the reports of the treasurer showed the condition. However, so far as the society itself is concerned the past year has been one of such exceptional progress that criticism loses its point and the members are within their rights in saying that the sustenance of the official journal is the paramount duty of the society. However, it is expected that a hand-book will supplement the publication of the American Philatelist during the year.

Fund—The life membership fund of the A. P. S. is growing through the numerous memberships that are being taken and on the floor of the convention there was a stampede to get into this preferred class. In this connection, an increase in dues was voted down, so far as the annual member is concerned; and a proposal to eliminate the immaterial matter that appears in the convention report in each year-book was defeated. It was evident that many members did not resent the allotment of space to matter that was not exactly relevant in the course of discussion; and that they did not look with disfavor upon the trivialities that often are injected into debate The funds other than the general funds have grown to amounts so large that the interest derived from the investment of them is a considerable sum and a measure to safeguard the principal investment was adopted by restricting the class of bonds that are deemed prime investments

Weed—The recommendation of the board of vice-presidents that they be empowered to act upon complaints against members without having the charges supported by affidavits provoked a good bit of discussion; and after it was gathered from the tenor of the remarks of speakers that the board of vice-presidents should take cognizance of general ill-report affecting the reputation of a member, it was decided that complaints could be received without being certified to by affidavit. This decision brought up the question of the liability of the society to action by a member who might be expelled and the able legal elucidations of Messrs. Michaels and Swensen proved that under no circumstances within reason would the member feeling himself aggrieved have recourse in a punitive sense against the corporation; and that his only satisfaction would be that he could compel his re-admission into the society, if the evidence upon review by the courts should so warrant. When the member joins he agrees tacitly to abide by the by-laws and consequently, he cannot waive their stipulations when he feels that their enforcement works hardship upon him.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—A great interest is being shown by the stamp collecting fraternity in the new metered envelopes and the question is being asked if they should be classed as stamped envelopes and collected as such. So far I have seen or heard of five different denominations all imprinted in the color of the engraved stamp. This series consists of the 1c green, 2c red, 3c purple, 4c brown and 10c orange. Other denominations may exist but if so they have not come to my attention.

The machines being used are leased by the manufacturers and are a device for metering and printing postage directly on mail matter. The postage imprint is a combination of postage stamp, cancellation and postmark. The meter is detachable and is taken to the post office to be set for postage as required, payment being made at the time of setting. This machine by the way also has an envelope sealing attachment but it is so arranged that the flap is on the bottom while the stamp is at the top.

Mail sent out in this way must not be confused with mail sent out under a first class permit and is not governed by the same postal regulations. Being paid for in advance, per piece, through settings of the meter, metered mail is accepted by the post office in any quantity, and may vary in size, weight and contents. It goes direct to the sorters when it reaches the post office, without delay for verification of count and collection of postage due.

Special rules and regulations applying to the use of Postage Meters were issued by the Post Office Department under date of December 28, 1920. They provide as follows:—There is no minimum limit on mailings of first class matter bearing Postage meter indicia. Any number of pieces may be presented at one mailing.

Pieces comprising a mailing of first class matter need not be identical as to size, weight, or contents.

Mail matter bearing this indicia may be addressed to Canada, Cuba, Mexico, Panama and all offices within the United States.

It may be used for first, third and fourth class mail under the same permit number.

Unmailed matter bearing Postage Meter indicia may be redeemed at the post office just the same as stamped envelopes.

The first official setting of a postage meter was made in the home town of the manufacturers, Stamford, Connecticut on November 16, 1920.

Personally, it looks to me as if these stamps are certainly entitled to a place in every envelope collection for they are printed under government supervision, paid for like stamped envelopes and are redeemable by the department.

Through the courtesy of the Hon. James L. Wilmeth, Director of the Bureau of Engraving & Printing we are able to bring our recent list of plate numbers up to date.

One thing of interest to be noted from the above list is the fact that the Bureau is now making a good number of engraved 2c plates and is cutting down its production of the 2c offset type. This possibly means that in a short time there will be enough flat plates on hand to take care of the daily requirements and then the surface printed 2c stamps will be a thing of the past.

Any collector of envelopes will recall that a Die H variety in the circular die with a low back is something most unusual. In all of the provisional overprints there was not a single die H on low back found and previous to that time, if my memory serves me rightly there was but one such variety. Mr. J. M. Bartels now shows me a die H 2c, size 5 on white, wmk 25 with low back. This comes in a deep pink shade peculiar to most of the recent work turned out by the envelope manufacturers.

Good Old Postage and Revenue Stamps
MY SPECIALTY

If you haven't been getting just what you need, or everything you need, just shoot a want list out this way in any of the following stamps—U. S. Postage, Revenues, Departments, cut square Envelopes or Match and Medicine, in British North American (very fine line of these popular stamps), British Colonials, European, So. American of the 19th century, or rarities. I pay little attention to new issues, but, believing in the soundness of old issues, I have invested my money where I think it will net me something. New issues are all right, but I can't handle everything, so am willing for the other fellow to have the trade on recent specimens.

Den Curios in great variety, lists for 6c.

ENCORE, AS WE FRENCH SAY.

On Wednesday, May 4th, the members of the Stamp Club held a very interesting meeting in Room 303. Mr. Soulman, the father of one of the members, talked to the club on the "Origin of Postage Stamps" and incidently advised the boys on the art of collecting. Then came a real surprise. Each member was presented with a stamp from Mr. Soulman's valuable collection. The boys are planning more good meetings. Visitors are invited. The club meets in Room 303 on Wednesday.—High School Paper.

BULGARIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. send us copies of three new stamps for this country. They are 10c grey lilac, 20c green and 75c lilac and show views of different parts of the country. At the same time they also include a copy of a 2L brown with a portrait of a woman bearing a bundle of grain.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—Messrs. Bright & Son advise as follows:—

Probably the following quotation from a letter just received from the Commissioner of the Cayman Islands will be of interest to your readers:—

"In consequence of the 10/- old type being practically exhausted I have requisitioned the Crown Agents for this duty in a new type. This should be received in September and will be the only addition of the new type this year. The 5/- new type having been exhausted a further supply has been requisitioned for. These stamps appear in two shades mainly in yellow green. Two panes only of blue green were issued here and went mainly to small purchasers abroad."

We think this helps to prove that the 5/- in the blue green shade of the new Cayman Island stamp is likely to be a rarity.

The 3d stamps of the new design are printed on orange paper, but by some accident a few sheets were printed on lemon-yellow paper, and of these the Postmaster of the Cayman Islands informs us that he found only seven panes of sixty in his whole stock.—Whitfield King's Monthly List.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.—We are informed by the Economist Stamp Co. that the 3c and 6c values have been issued on the new watermarked paper.

INDIA.—Regarding the recently issued provisional Messrs. Bright & Son advise that "We have received a sheet of the 9 pies on 1 anna Indian Provisionals which contains two errors. The last 4 stamps on the 12th row reading Pies—Pies instead of Nine—Pies, and the last four stamps on the 14th row reading Nine—Nine instead of Nine—Pies."

JAMAICA.—Another sensation! The new sixpenny stamp, recently foreshadowed, has been condemned on account of its "utterly execrable coloring," with the result that His Excellency the Governor (who is very jealous of Jamaica's fair name) has ordered the whole lot to be destroyed.—Stamp Collecting.

LEVANT P. O. IN CONSTANTINOPLE.—Messrs. Bright & Son send us the following:

It may interest your readers to know that the various Levant Post Offices in Constantinople are now issuing stamps overprinted in Turkish currency as in pre-war days.

The British Post Offices have already issued 30 paras on ½d, 1½ piastres on 1d and 7½ piastres on 5d, while 15 piastres on 1sh, 75 on 5sh and 150 on 10sh are likely to be issued.

The French Post Office have already issued the following values:—

30	paras	on	5c
1	piastre	20	paras	on	10c
3	"	30	"	"	25c
4	"	20	"	"	30c
7	"	20	"	"	50c

LIBERIA.—Le Journal Philatélique de Berne and Le Bulletin Mensuel chronicle a new series, which is thus described by The Times:—

"In the negro Republic of Liberia a striking new series of picturesque designs has just been introduced—the first since 1918. From the watermark, consisting of noughts and crosses, the stamps would appear to be of German origin. The values, colours, and subjects are 1c green (landscape), 5c blue and black (portrait of President), 10c scarlet and blue (Liberian Arms), 15c purple and green (crocodile), 20c carmine and green (pepper plant), 25c orange-yellow and black (tiger), 30c green and violet (native village), 50c orange-yellow and blue (mandigo in boat), 75c scarlet and brown (waterfall), $1 scarlet and black (antelopes), $2 yellow and violet (bird), $5 violet and red (elephant). There is a long series of Service stamps in the same designs, overprinted 'O.S.' or Official, and five stamps of the denomination 10c for registration purposes, in a triangular design showing a snake, inscribed with the names of each of the head post offices in the Republic."—Stamp Collecting.

MEMEL.—The Economist Stamp Co. submit to us a copy of the 45c stamp of France surcharged "Memel 80 pfennig" in two lines in black.

NEW ZEALAND.—On July 25th our first example of the new 8d value in the King George series arrived from our Christchurch correspondents, Messrs. Verne & Co. As already explained, the colour of this stamp, blue, being practically identical with that of the 2½d stamp of the same series, it is likely that the latter will be withdrawn.

With regard to the shades of the Victory series, Messrs. Verne remark that is somewhat different from the usual run. Our method of advertising is thorough and different—it gets results, and that's what the seller wants. There are several mighty good reasons why both buyers and sellers prefer to do business the Sudden Service way. If you are thinking of selling your stamps at auction, our figures are convincing.

Catalogs for our next sale will be mailed shortly. Are you on our list? We have several fine old collections booked for the coming season, and are prepared to handle more.

IN THE DRIFTWAY.

since the days when he collected and coins the Drifter has had a n for those infinitesimal relics of sm, Liechtenstein and Andorra, o and San Marino, tiny fish in the an sea which by the trick of fate l gobbling by the growing state- Somewhere the Drifter must ve a San Marino sou with which ist aunt once stirred his numis- breast; once he came near enough Morra to glimpse its snow-capped rom a pass near Ax-les-Thermes; warmly recalls the pride with he told a friend where San Ma- as when San Marino with all its declared war on the Central . Now, on behalf of these be- eudal relics (which he has never d which, therefore, he can still rough a haze of romance) he is . The Allies are creating new c republics.

el, after all, is well enough, for is but a forgotten fishing-port ven now knows nothing of mod- sh and bustle. The accident naintains homesick French troops desolate Baltic village has its r aspects. Memel was to have e Lithuanian Danzig; it was de- from Germany, transferred by ace of Woodrow, Georges, and to the "Allied and Associated " and in due course of time, ithuania attained an "organized ment," it was to have been pre- on a silver platter to prove the devotion to the cause of small ities. But the silly Lithuanians. ight peaceably have annexed es to Poland and thereby have themselves on the honor list -Bolsheviks (they might even ured the glories of another grand turned their backs on the Allies and committed peace with the Bolsheviks. Naturally the Allies could not present Memel to so peaceable a republic, however organized its government; so the homesick French soldiers still eat fish in Memel. And it is very cold in Memel in winter, and very hot in summer. The Drifter, sympathetic though he be to any homesick mortal, cannot suppress a chuckle.

But Danzig is another matter. Danzig is booming and prosperous. It is a small country that fairly revels in high finance. Statemenship and diplomacy, though more than half unwittingly, have given the Free City of Danzig every possible advantage—so the sleepy old Hansa town is losing its musty charm and is becoming a mere Polish Hamburg. Danzig is not part of Germany, so it skips German war debts (though there are rumors that if it continues to prosper the Allies will discover some fat debts for it); yet Danzig is not part of Poland, so it eludes Polish Misswirtschaft and pays no taxes to support the Polish army. Yet Danzig is Poland's port, and all the trade of Poland passes through and pays toll as it passes. (That is another of the pretty ironies of statemanship. Danzig, before the days of German national unity and Grossmachtpolitik, was Poland's natural outlet to the sea, and prospered by the trade in grain and wood. Then, after 1870, Germany got protectionitis, and imposed all manner of customs duties on Polish products. Result: Russia developed the port of Libau, and Polish trade followed that unnatural route while Danzig languished in a picturesque idleness much dearer to the Drifter than its present bustle. Today, with no tariff on Polish goods, Danzig prospers, and it is Libau, now separated from Poland by a new tariff frontier, which languishes.) The Drifter resents so industrious and hustling a small state as present-day Danzig.

. To be sure, Danzig has its Zoppot. But for Zoppot, all the Polish trade in the world could not keep Danzig free from debt. For Danzig, unlike Liechtenstein and Andorra and San Marino, is disgustingly up to date and insists upon all the modern luxuries of harbor police and schools, police courts and sewage systems, street lights, pavements, salaried officials, and other expensive frills. Hence the need of Zoppot to fatten the Free City's purse. Zoppot is the Monte Carlo of the Baltic. It is the high gaming-place of the northern world. You can reach it from Germany or from Poland by aeroplane (thus dispensing with the formality of a passport visa); and you can lose your money there quite as rapidly and almost as genteelly as at Monte Carlo. Half the croupiers are guaranteed genuine Russian refugee princes and grand dukes. A private company administers the Casino, but Danzig supervises it and leaves it only 11⅓ per cent of its profits. Zoppot lends over-modern Danzig a certain picturesqueness, a charm not unrelated to that of the good old-time pirate adventures.

And now the Allies talk of making an independent state of that desert of smoke and soot, of ultra-modern luxury and ultra-modern misery, which is Upper Silesia. The Drifter protests. Small states should be sleepy and unprogressive, forgotten except by small boy collectors of stamps and coins.—The Nation.

DICTIONARY ADDENDA.

By WILLARD O. WYLIE.

AZERBAIJAN.—This republic was composed of parts of former Russian, Persian and Turkish territory. It was overthrown by the Bolshevists and ceased to function as this book went to press (1921).

CHRISTMAS ISLAND.—A British possession in the Pacific Ocean which has been leased for a long term of years to the Central Pacific Cocoanut Plantations, Ltd. A local stamp has been issued by the company to be used on the mail despatched to Tahiti, the nearest member of the Universal Postal Union. Supplementary stamps of Tahiti would be required for transmission beyond that point.

EESTI POST VIRUMAA.—Esthonia stamps with this inscription are said to have been issued for Virumaa, a district in Esthonia occupied by the Bolshevists for a few weeks in the winter of 1918-9. They were not regularly authorized and are not recognized as genuine.

GORNY SLASK.—This is the Polish name for Upper Silesia and is found on certain stamps issued for the towns of Beutheen, Kattowitz and Gleiwitz.

HIC MANEBIMUS OPTIME.—This inscription is found on the stamps of Fiume bearing the head of d'Annunzio and means:—"We cannot do better than remain here." Subsequent events demonstrated that there were those who thought differently.

LA AGUERA.—A colony of Spain on the west coast of Africa, south of Cape Juby, and in the northern part of Rio de Oro. The inscription above is found on the stamps of Rio de Oro, issue of 1920.

MEMEL.—A seaport town of some 20,000 people on the Baltic, 70 miles northeast of Danzig. Under the treaty of Versailles Germany renounced all rights and title over this territory and pending decision as to its status French and German stamps were overprinted for use there. The French stamps overprinted "Memel" were for postal use outside the country and the German stamps overprinted "Memel Gebeit" were for internal service only. As this book goes to press a distinctive issue of postage stamps is indicated in view of the fact that the territory has been given governmental authority by an order of the League of Nations.

MEMEL GEBEIT.—This overprint on stamps of Germany means "Memel District" and was used in connection with all correspondence within the district of Memel and Germany proper. See Memel.

PILGRIM TERCENTENARY.—This name is given to a set of three stamps issued by the U. S. in 1920 to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, Mass. There are three values, 1, 2 and 5c.

POSTE CESKOSE ARM SIBIR.—This inscription is found on certain stamps issued for the Czecho-Slovak Army in Siberia. The translation is:—"Czecho-Slovak Military Post in Siberia."

SCRIPT C A.—A form of watermark for use in British Colonial stamps introduced in 1920. It differs from the preceding watermark considerably, as is indicated in the following illustration, where the two watermarks are shown side by side:—

SOUTHWEST CAUCASUS GOVT.—A tract of country in Asia Minor with the Black Sea on the north, Georgia and Armenia on the east, Persia on the south and Turkey on the west. Its establishment was an outcome of the world war and the government lasted about four months, long enough for a set of postage stamps to be printed and a postal department to be instituted. It is now a part of Armenia.

STACEYWISE.—These letters are found as watermarks on certain Newfoundland stamps. The complete word is the name of the paper manufacturer.

VOJENSKA POSTA—CESKOSLOVENSKE VOJSKO NA RUSI.—These words inscribed on certain stamps issued for the Czecho-Slovak Army in Siberia mean:—"Military Post of the Czecho-Slovak Army in Russia."

WOLMAR-RONNEBURG.—A Latvia district where in 1918 a set of stamps was issued of crude manufacture and design. The set is fraudulent.

ANY collector, who has half a right to the name, collects U. S. stamps and nine-tenths of our collectors get most hopelessly balled up on the varieties listed in the catalogue. We have seen many really big U. S. collections with the 10c re-engraved in as a National, etc., etc. Owing to the foolish law prohibiting illustrations of U. S. stamps, we are forced to rely on diagrams and line illustrations of crucial sections to demonstrate our descriptions and therefore collectors will be glad to secure an authentic, unbiased, reliable and explicit series of books on U. S.

These four books are written by Mr. Power—one of America's oldest and best known experts, and what Mr. Power says he means. That's why he threw out the three cent lake, three cent scarlet, Continental grilles, Douglas Patents, etc., etc.

We are now able to offer a complete library on U. S. for the very small sum of Two Dollars, as follows:—

I. Issues 1847 to 1869. Green Covers

This work goes into detail of cancellations, the ways of the fakirs, what to look out for, what's right and what's wrong, what's in the catalogue and what ought to be thrown out, which are the rare colours to look for, etc., etc. Things you ought to know and to be educated sufficiently to know them when you see them.

Ready End of September. 1st Edition, 50 Cents

II. Issues 1870 to 1893. Red Covers

Illustrating with careful line diagrams the various marks and engraving of the Bank Note Companies, National, Continental and American.

The means employed to enable an amateur to distinguish, instantly, these various printings is practically a philatelic table of deduction and by this means no collector can possibly misplace his issues. This work has cost over 250 dollars to produce and is the last word on the stamps, the cancellations and the market quotations.

Just Put On Sale. Price 50 Cents

III. Issues 1894 to 1900. Gray Covers

Commonly called the Bureau series. Here we find illustrations of the various perplexing varieties, the triangles, the 10c brown and the dollar black and a completely tabulated list of all the plate numbers, which in itself was a most exhausting piece of work. This book also gives the values of the imprints and many a strip will be found to be rare which you thought common.

1st Edition. Now On Hand. Price 50 Cents

IV. 1901 to Date. Blue Covers

We suppose this book is so well known that hardly any description is necessary to call it again to your attention. Dealers and collectors alike use it as THE standard of quotation and reference. This work is now in its third edition and prices plate imprints, arrows, coils, booklets, private perforations and every possible thing that turns up in modern U. S. Most active collectors know this book full well but to those who have never seen it we can say it is the last word on modern U. S., which are, perhaps, the hardest of all to get straight.

Third Edition. On Hand. Price 50 Cents

With an order for these books goes a free perennial mailing card for our Monthly Circular—sometimes called the "Philatelic Philistine."

STICKY.

Every time a person licks a United States postage stamp he gets a taste of sweet potato. The gum on the stamps comes from that vegetable. All of the gum used on the stamps is mixed at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where the stamps are made. It is spread on the sheets after the stamps have been printed.

In a liquid form, the gum is forced up through pipes from the basement, where it is made. These pipes lead to a series of machines consisting of rollers, between which the sheets of stamps are fed one at a time. A fine spray of the liquid falls upon the rollers. The sheet with its wet coating of sweet potato mucilage passes from the rollers into a long horizontal flue filled with hot air. When it comes out at the other end of the flue the gum is dry.

There are two kinds of postage stamp mucilage. If one could see the packages of stamps as they come to the Postoffice ready to be sold one would find them labeled, according to season, "summer gum" or "winter gum." The former is much the harder of the two, and was devised to keep the stamps from getting sticky in warm, moist weather.—Detroit News.

CHEERFUL!

A German philatelic journal has suggested that a reproduction of Durer's etching, "The Knight Death and the Devil," should be included among the designs of a special issue of stamps commemorative of the fiftieth anniversary of the German Empire. The knight is to represent Germany disarmed by force. Death is John Bull, and the Devil France. The background would show views of Strasburg Cathedral and the town hall of Posen. Other subjects suggested include: 30 pfennig, a Pole knouting a German with the aid of a Czecho-Slovak: 40 pfennig, a German mother with her famished children, a disabled soldier wearing the Iron Cross and a neglected soldier's grave; 80 pfennig, the new "Watch on the Rhine"—colored soldiers mocking a bound German while his wife is violated before his eyes. It is declared that "this series might fittingly take its place side by side with the so called Victory stamps of the entente."

At the time of the German successes on the western front early in 1918, the Bavarian postal administration was entrusted with obtaining designs for a set of stamps to commemorate the impending triumph of the German arms. Allegorical designs depicting the Goddess of Victory, a sword crowned with laurels, lions, etc., were submitted by various artists, but in the light of subsequent events the issue was abandoned. One of the designs, however, depicting the figure of peace, by Professor von Kaulbach, was actually utilized for the 3 and 30 marks values of Bavarian postage stamps issued last year modified to the extent that for the original victor's crown of laurels was substituted a spray of foliage.—Newspaper.

THE BRITISH WEST INDIES REGIMENT.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

One of the first dispatches sent out to the Colonies by the Colonial Office, after the outbreak of war in August 1914, was that they were expected to organise a defense force of their own, and at their own expense, as it was known that the German cruisers Dresden, Karlsruhe, etc., were at large in the Caribbean. As a matter of fact, the Dresden, during the last week of July, entered Kingston (Jamaica) harbor with ex-President Huerta of Mexico, on board, as a refugee. She hurriedly left port, and subsequently, it was learned that she had cut the cable of the Direct West India Cable Co.

But the Colonies were not content simply to provide for local defense and vote money toward defraying the war expenses of the Mother Country—uppermost in all minds was the idea of a West Indian Regiment for service overseas. But the Home Government refused to accede, and insisted that local forces should be held in the islands for local defense.

As the Home Government had accepted in August, 1914, the offer of an army from India for active service in France, this heightened the belief in the Colonies that they were reluctant to use black troops against Europeans. This was a great disappointment, for France employed her Colonials in the early stages of the war. In the French wars, the aid of the islands had never been refused, and Barbados' offer of armed ships had been accepted, and utilised in blockading French ports in the Caribbean.

White volunteers from the islands proceeded to Canada and England, and there enlisted with the Canadian or Imperial forces. As they were not large enough to be retained as individual units, they were merged in some Canadian or British regiment, and disappeared from Colonial view. The islands were not satisfied that their contribution of men should only consist of nameless contingents swallowed up in the general army. They were content that their gifts of money and material should go to the general funds for military expenses, or be earmarked for special purposes such as Red Cross work, or the purchase of aeroplanes, but in the matter of men, their natural desire was that in some way these men should retain the individuality of the land that sent them out to fight, and those at home might follow them and their achievements be publicly recorded.

In four of the Colonies (Barbados, Jamaica, British Guiana and Trinidad) in spite of the refusal of the Home Government to accept contingents, recruiting was commenced, and contingents raised for overseas service.

In May, 1915, the Jamaicans cabled offering a contingent of 100 to 200 men, mentioning that the recruits would be black, colored and white. There had been a change of mind in London, and the Home Government cabled their acceptance of any number of men which the Colonies might wish to send. But the question was not settled whether these and future contingents would be absorbed in the regular army, or whether a separate unit would be formed. The Colonies, of course, were in favor of the latter.

With the Home Government's acceptance of Jamaica's offer, recruiting spread to all the islands, and British Honduras, British Guiana and Bermuda—while not classed as British West Indies—willingly sunk their identity in contributing their quota. Federation of the West Indian Colonies had never made much progress, due to the separate and conflicting interests of the different islands, but when it came to war effort, their interest was a common one, and all differences were wiped out.

The persistence of the Colonies won the day, and in the London Gazette of October 26th, 1915, the announcement was made that—

"His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to approve of the formation of a Corps from Contingents of the inhabitants of the West India Islands, to be entitled The British West Indies Regiment."

The first three battalions of the Regiment arrived in Egypt in early 1916, followed by the 4th and 5th, in August. By midsummer the first three battalions

UNSOLICITED EMCO PACKET TESTIMONIALS

Packet No. 124 entirely satisfactory. I added over 450 new varieties to a previous collection of 2000 stamps.—H. S. Lynn, Pittsburgh, Pa.

I was very much pleased with the War Stamps I received in your 3000 variety packet as I added about 100 varieties to my collection of 300 Wars. It is a splendid packet all through.—R. Speer, Long Beach, Calif.

I added 316 stamps to a collection of about 3200, not counting the envelope stamps—(given as a premium) —I also found many better specimens to substitute for not-so-good ones already in my album. Then I made up the balance of the stamps into smaller packets and sold them to collectors for $3.00. As I only paid $3.25 for packet No. 124 in the first place, my net expense was 25 cents on the deal. I got so much fun looking the pile over (worth a good deal in itself) that I am converted to packets from now on.—F. M. Gracey, Cambridge, Mass.

Received packet No. 126 (2000 varieties at $10.00) in good condition and am very much pleased with same. Another order enclosed.—C. C. Colyer, Altoona, Pa.

Don't Hesitate—Your opportunity is now. Remember the packet must satisfy or we refund your money plus your postage in returning same. Could we be more convincing of these packets sterling qualities? Try one today—acts like a good tonic.

H. F. COLMAN

SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C.

had taken up positions along the Canal; a month later the 3rd and 4th battalions sailed for France, while the 5th, was stationed at Alexandria as reserve. Later, calls were made upon them for 500 officers and men for service in East Africa with troops from the Cape. The 1st and 2nd battalions in December, 1916, moved forward with the Egyptian Expeditionary Force towards Palestine, and from 1917 on the history of the British West Indies Regiment becomes merged with the E. E. F. under General Allenby. By the end of 1917, the Regiment had increased with new drafts from overseas, to 7 battalions.

The 1½d Contingent Embarking stamp of Jamaica has been termed by many as a Peace stamp, but the idea of the authorities was to use it as an aid in recruiting troops for overseas service in the British West Indies Regiment.

The sketch for the stamp, which was worked up locally and sent to De La Rue late in 1917, was of such size that when they came to reducing it for use on a postage stamp, there was such a mass of detail that neither the regulation size, as used for the contemporary stamps of Jamaica, nor the larger size, as for Bahamas Queen's Staircase, could be used. A still larger size was necessary, and to this De La Rue worked in an endeavor to design a stamp which would be pleasing and acceptable to the Island authorities. The first color trials sent out were in orange, the accepted color for 1½d postage stamps, according to the Crown Agents' color scheme, but the color did not bring out the details, and gave to the stamp a blurred appearance. Finally, green was selected, and the printing proceeded.

No confusion with the ½d Arms type stamp was expected, as the new stamp was so very much larger.

The stamp was withheld from issue for several months after arrival in the island to allow of lowering of stocks of the 1½d brown orange, King George (Nyasaland type), issued in the summer of 1916, to care for the combined letter rate and war tax, effective April 1, 1916.

The Official Gazette of July 3, 1910, announced the issue of the new stamp on the following day, but through error, it went on sale at several of the country Post Offices on the 3rd July, and copies may be found bearing this date.

"Stamp Office,
27th June, 1919.

The following is a description of the one penny half penny adhesive stamp to be used for Postage and Revenue purposes, which will be put into circulation on the 4th day of July, 1919.

The design of the stamp is denoted by a representation of the Jamaica Contingent embarking; at the right hand corner is a profile of King George the Fifth surmounted by a crown, and underneath the profile are the figures 1½d. At the left hand corner are printed the words 'Postage and Revenue', while at the top of the stamp is inscribed the word 'Jamaica', as also the words 'One Penny Half Penny.'

The stamp is printed on green paper (sic.)

Sgd. Geo. S. Thompson,
Deputy Stamp Commissioner."

The stamp is of large size, a transverse rectangle, measuring 42 mm. x 22 mm. On a ribbon extending across the top is "Jamaica", while under is the value in words "One Penny Half Penny." At the right is the head of King George V in a crowned shield, below which is a smaller shield displaying the value 1½d. Reading upward at the left is "Postage—Revenue", and at the bottom is "Contingent embarking."

The vignette shows a portion of the troop-crowded decks of the transport "Verdala", which conveyed to England the first Jamaican contingent for service overseas. On Monday, Nov. 8, 1915, the Verdala arrived at Kingston from Belize, from which port she had sailed on Nov. 4th, with the first contingent of troops from British Honduras. At Kingston the Jamaican and Bahamas contingents were taken on, the latter having come down from Nassau some weeks previously. The Verdala sailed from Kingston, Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 9th, and reached Portsmouth safely on Nov. 25th. The second and third contingents left the Island on Jan. 7th, and March 6th, 1916, respectively, and during the war Jamaica continued to provide contingents of men for duty in the various theatres of conflict.

The stamp was received with much criticism, and local editorials called upon the government to withdraw it from sale.

"The authorities ought certainly to withdraw the new stamp. Formal designs of this nature with shields and other insignia woven into them ought surely to follow the established rules of heraldry. If so, why is King George put on the sinister side of the stamp? His true place is the place of honor known as the dexter chief, which is exactly opposite to where he is now. It may be that the designer wanted him to look to the left, and in that case he would have been looking away from the stamp. But that is surely what we should all like to do. If the Government had taken one of the photographs marching down King street with the palms and public buildings in the background, it would have had a distinctly tropical touch. Instead we have something which at first sight looks like a view of the Culebra Cut, and which no one would ever guess to be a ship."

The Legislative Council also found time to discuss the stamp—

"Brig. General M. Barrett said that the present 1½d stamp was very inartistic and far too large, and entirely out of ground. As regards the color, he thought the green was not in accordance with the Postal Department, it being clear to him that in order to facilitate the work of the postal authorities there ought to be stamps of a certain color. The size of the stamp served to interfere with the trade of the Island. After further criticising the issue, he said he hoped that the matter would be taken into consideration at any further issue of stamps; he personally would be glad to see this present one withdrawn. He knew that a great many people objected strongly to the stamp and would not use it at all. He hoped the Government would abolish the issue. He was sure that it would be a popular move."

The stamp is printed in green from line engraved plates of 40 subjects (5 horizontal by 8 vertical), on heavy white paper, mulitiple Crown and C A (1904 type) watermarked, sideways, with the top of the crown to the left. The perforation is 14, by a machine which perforates the bottom and sides of a horizontal row of stamps at one operation. The perforation goes through only the upper margin of the sheet.

PHILADELPHIA STAMP CO.
22 SO. 18TH ST., PHILA., PA.

Five plates have so far been used in printing these stamps, of which large numbers are required for inland as well as Empire letters. The first plate manufactured was without number, but later, four others were made to keep up with the requisitions, and these had numbers inserted. On all five plates there is a double marginal line, with cross marks in the upper and lower margins, over and under, respectively, the 3rd stamp; and in the side margins, opposite the line of perforation between the 4th and 5th horizontal rows of stamps. On plates 1, 2, and 3, the number is in the lower right corner, inside the marginal lines, while on plate 4, it is outside the marginal lines, in the left margin, opposite the first stamp of the 4th horizontal row.

The first and second consignments sent out in 1919, were from the plate without number. The consignments received in November 1919 was from plates 1, 2, and 3, as well as the unnumbered plate. The March 1920 receipt contained sheets bearing the numbers 1, 2, 3, and 4—the unnumbered plate had evidently become so worn as to render it unfit for further printing. From this it would appear that four plates go to press at a time.

The normal position of the watermark is sideways, with the top of the crown to the left; however, it is known inverted (i. e. crown top to the right), and inverted and reversed (i. e. printed on the wrong side of the paper).

This stamp while issued as a commemorative stamp in 1919, forms a part of the new pictorial series in process of issue, and in February 1921 (previous to the 10th) it appeared on the new 1920 type of multiple Crown and C A watermarked paper (script type). The watermark is positioned as before, top of the crown to the left, and plates 1, 2, 3 and 4 are being printed from.

To signalise the end of the war, and the return of the local Contingents, the 2½d stamp of the new series pictures a pier with a transport alongside, from which troops are disembarking. It is printed in blue and dark blue, from line engraved plates at two operations, on white paper with the 1904 type of multiple Crown and C A watermark, in upright position. The design is treated in an upright rectangle measuring 25 x 30 mm., and is perforated 14, single line. The vignette is lettered "Return of a Contingent, 1919". In the two upper corners is the value, with "Jamaica" between. Labels in the lower corners are inscribed "Postage" and "Revenue" respectively, with between crossed flags, and a miniature dove above. In panels at either side is the Union Jack. The stamp was issued February 18, 1921.

"Stamp Office,. Kingston,
15th February, 1921.

The following is a description of a two-pence half-penny adhesive stamp to be used for Postage and Revenue purposes.

This stamp will be put into circulation on Friday, 18th February, 1921.

The design of the stamp is denoted by a representation of a Contingent returning from Active Service.

The denomination 2½d is shown in a square at the top of the design, in the left and right corners. Between the denomination is printed 'Jamaica'. Under the design are the words and figures 'Return of a Contingent, 1919'. At the bottom to the left the word 'Postage' is printed on a label, and to the right also on a label, 'Revenue', and between these words are flags crossed, and a dove above.

On each side of the design is a Union Jack.

The color of the stamp is blue.

Signed, C. C. Manton.
Deputy Stamp Commissioner."

The stamp comes in sheets of 60 (12 horizontal by 5 vertical).

As the Union Jack at the right is drawn in an inverted position, the design has been redrawn and "reprinted at the expense of the Crown Agents who advised the Government of the distress sign in the flag, and hold themselves responsible for the mistake."

Further printings of this value will be on the 1920 script type watermarked paper.

INCREASE.

The postal administration of Netherlands West Indies has advised this department that the postage rate applicable to letters mailed in the Netherlands West Indies addressed for delivery in the United States, has been increased to 12½ cents for the first 20 grams (about three-fourths of an ounce) or fraction therof and 7½ cents for each additional 20 grams or fraction thereof, to become effective Sept. 1, 1921. The item Netherlands West Indies, on Page 147 of the Postal Guide for July, 1921, is modified accordingly.—Postal Notice.

COIL STAMPS OF THE UNITED STATES.

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

CHAPTER XI.

The 1916 Issue, Rotary Press, Unwatermarked.

During the latter part of 1916 the unwatermarked coils from the rotary press began to appear. The Bureau of Engraving & Printing had found that thousands of dollars could be saved in the printing of the regular adhesive stamps on unwatermarked paper and as they decided to use this paper for the flat plate printing there was no reason why the unwatermarked paper should not be used for the rotary press.

The 2c sidewise coil which was issued in November, 1916, was the first of the unwatermarked varieties to make its appearance and as there were good supplies of most of the seldom used varieties the series was not completed for several years. This issue only differs from the previous series in that the watermark is omitted. The same plates were used, printed by the same methods in the same colors and still perforated 10.

The plates from Die I of the 2c, both the 150 subject plates for the endwise coils and the 170 subject plates for the sidewise coils were all cancelled before the unwatermarked paper came into use. As a result the 2c is known unwatermarked in Die II and III only with the sub-variety Die IIIa previously described.

While this series was in use the domestic rate, on account of the war, was changed to 3c so that a great demand was created for this denomination. The Bureau therefore took advantage of its previous experiments with the 2c value and made a new die known to the Bureau as die number 657. We know this die philatelically as Die II. Only sidewise coils were made from this die although two endwise plates of 150 subjects were laid down, same bearing numbers 9195 and 9196. The change in postal rates came before these plates were required so that they were never completed, consequently we have no stamps from them. If for any reason postal rates are again increased before there is a change in design there is a likelihood of this variety appearing. This second 3c die was approved on December 8, 1917, and the first rotary plate made from it was number 8269.

There were no unperforated coils issued unwatermarked and the entire series consist of the perforated 1c, 2c Die II, 2c Die III, 3c Die I, 3c Die II, 4c and 5c coiled sidewise and the 1c, 2c Die II, 2c Die III and 3c Die I coiled endwise. The 3c runs strongly to shades which vary from a purplish blue to a pinkish violet, in fact I know of no other coil variety in which so many shades may be found.

The difference between the two dies of the 2c found in this series was described in the previous chapter. The two dies of the 3c may be told apart as follows:—

Die I. The hair is light and is composed mainly of thin lines which tend to give the head a bald appearance. The mouth line is very light and the back of the head stands out distinct from the background. At the chin there are two very deep horizontal lines.

Die II. The hair generally is recut and is composed of deeper lines. The mouth line is heavy and very distinct. The back of the head has a tendency to blend with the background. The two lines at the chin do not stand out prominently. The cord and knot at the neck are sharpened.

The Bureau keeps no record of the first plates used on the unwatermarked paper so that it will be impossible to give the first plates as in the case of the unwatermarked stamps. The only exception is the 3c Die II, for this variety made its initial appearance with this series.

The 1c green, coiled endwise (perforated horizontally) perforated 10 was issued January 10, 1918.

The 1c green, coiled sidewise (perforated vertically) perforated 10 was issued on November 17, 1916.

The 2c carmine, Die II coiled endwise (perforated horizontally) perforated 10 was issued on November 15, 1916.

The 2c carmine, Die II coiled sidewise (perforated vertically) perforated 10 was issued on November 17, 1916.

The 2c carmine, Die III coiled endwise (perforated horizontally) perforated 10 was possibly part of the first lot issued on November 15, 1916, for the Bureau at that time had in use plates from both Dies II and III.

The 2c carmine, Die III coiled endwise (perforated vertically) perforated 10 no doubt appeared along with the Die II on the first day, namely November 17, 1916.

The 3c purple, Die I coiled endwise (perforated horizontally) perforated 10 was issued on October 10, 1917.

The 3c purple, Die I coiled endwise (perforated vertically) perforated 10 was issued on July 23, 1917.

The 3c purple, Die II coiled sidewise (perforated vertically) perforated 10 was made from a new die approved on December 8, 1917. The first pair of plates from this die are numbers 8269 and 8270 and first went to press on March 27, 1918. The variety was first issued in April, 1918.

The 4c brown, coiled sidewise (perforated vertically) perforated 10 was issued October 19, 1917.

The 5c blue, coiled sidewise (perforated vertically) perforated 10 issued January 15, 1919.

TWO NEW CONTRACTS.

The W. C. Phillips Co. has just closed up a 5000 line contract for the coming season. It speaks well for the value of the WEEKLY as an advertising medium and indicates the firm's belief in the prosperity of the coming year.

We have also written a 3000 line contract with Maxwell Krause, and Mr. Krause will be heard from in this number with a fine large advertisement. If other advertisers are interested in contracts for similar amounts of space we shall be glad to hear from them.

BOOM.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 18.—An indication how swiftly American influence is growing in Shanghai, which is China's largest commercial center, is to be found in a comparison of the amount of business done at the American postal station in Shanghai with that of postoffices in the United States.

A report issued recently by the postal department which shows post receipts of fifty leading postoffices in the United States records that only sixteen cities made increases in the month of May, 1920, over the same month the preceding year and the largest was 15.32 per cent.

The increase in postal receipts in Shanghai in April, 1921 over the same month the preceding year was 179 per cent and the May increase was 123 per cent.—New York Times.

Note—Perhaps, as Mr. C. F. Adams suggests in the clipping says the sale of U. S. over-printed Shanghai had something to do with the record postal receipts.)

BOOK REVIEW.

From Stanley Gibbons, Inc., we have received two books of a series of four books that will cover the issues of the United States postage stamps from first to last. The first of the two books under notice considers the issues, 1847 to 1869, inclusive, and the second, the stamps from 1870 to 1893, inclusive. First of all, let us give the platform of the compiler, Mr. Eustace B. Power: "This book is for the good old every-day collector who wants something more than the catalogue and something less than an epitome." It is to this collector, the bone and sinew of philately, that the books are dedicated.

The individualistic element in the books make them distinctive; and Mr. Power's ripe experience gives him a sureness of touch that inspires confidence in his findings. We suppose that the specialist will find objections here and there to some of the statements made in connection with the earlier issues, and in the light of developments during the past few months, in certain of the price estimates, but Mr. Power does not allow his sense of the perspective to be disturbed. He comments crisply on interesting phases of the stamps, he gives attention to varieties that show above the surface and all in all, he provides a vade mecum for the collector for whom he writes. Mr. Power's course of instruction in U. S. issues as exemplified in the two books under inspection is one that we can recommend and we are sure that the characteristic manner in which the information is supplied will keep the students' eyes on their teacher. As some one has asked, "Who has not compiled a catalogue of U. S.?" we shall make the answer that Mr. Power has given a class of readers aid for knowledge of the stamps of their country, something that will hearten them mightily and ease their task of really understanding not alone the outcroppings of U. S. issues, but also details that are somewhat under the surface. The books are generously illustrated and well worth the price of fifty cents each that is asked by the publishers, Stanley Gibbons, Inc., 198 Broadway, New York City.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The devotion of Mr. V. M. Rotnem to a specialty is shown by the continued appearance of The Precancel Gazette; and we notice in the July issue that The Precancel Club of America has been organized. Precanceled stamps have claimed so many followers that this line of collecting has become standardized, in a sense.

—The convention of the Metropolitan Philatelic Association was held in Chicago on August 13, 1921, at the Sherman Hotel. There were two sessions, morning and afternoon, which were presided over by Mr. L. B. Lincoln, while the secretary of the organization, Mr. L. J. Bachand-Vertfeuille supported him. The attendance was composed of a dozen visitors and perhaps as many members, and after the customary formalities the convention got down to business. The feature of the morning session was the excellent and thorough report of the secretary, who outlined in plain terms the present condition of the association. It was felt that in the efficient hands of this gentleman, the society will expand; that is, if he is given the support of members generally. There were manifestations of interest in the convention and the local committee on arrangements did their work well on short notice; and though there was much to distract the attention of newspapers from the modest affair, they did not ignore it.

—The Philadelphia Stamp Co. would like to obtain the address of G. E. Foster, formerly of Milltown, Washington. The publishers of the WEEKLY would also like to be made acquainted with this gentleman's whereabouts, and there may be others. Who can help us out?

—The Rueger Stamp Co. has removed to 31 Cambridge Ave. in Dayton. The firm has improved itself considerably by the change, having quite a little more room for its expanding business.

—W. F. Hubbell, Weekapaug, R. I., has more than a hundred back numbers of the WEEKLY, also several catalogs, that he will be willing to send to any stamp club willing to pay cost of carriage.

—Harry Leonard, Cristobal, Canal Zone, now using adlet space, calls our attention to the fact that some collectors are spending 5c postage on letters to the Canal Zone, when only 2c is required.

EDITORIAL.

Postal—We hope to have a report on the transactions of the Pan-American Postal Congress which convened at Buenos Aires on August 10, 1921. Our informant says that delegates from this country as well as about all of the other countries of the Western Hemisphere have arrived to begin important constructive work in a postal sense. It is known that conditions affecting our postal interchange with other countries are not propitious for the development of the best interests of the parties to the contract; and the expectation is to remove the obstacles to a closer postal embrace. The question of samples, customs, insufficiently stamped mail and such subjects are docketed for discussion; and we should not be surprised if matters or resolutions of philatelic moment were brought into being before the close of the convention.

Health—From Mr. Henry Perlish we have received a letter, as follows: "You will note from the attached health bulletin, issued by the Postal Life Insurance Company to its policy-holders, that Dr. C. E. Skinner, the writer of the article recommends, among other things, the collecting of postage stamps as a factor in health conservation." Dr. Skinner says: "A judicious measure of systematic indulgence in well-chosen recreations will enable one to carry on a monotonous—even an uncongenial—occupation, and still preserve his mental and physical health and vigor." He approves of the action of men who "become enthusiastic and skilled collectors and classifiers of stamps."

Stumped—Having mentioned the name of Mr. Perlish, we now have to confess that we have been unable to secure definite and dependable information on the subject of the labels showing the payment of newspaper postage on post office account that we have referred to several times in the past. Of one thing we are sure, and that is non-departmental origin in view of the fact that our Washington friend says that the post office department never took cognizance of an issue of the kind, so far as it emanated from itself. We have made something of a discovery and in this connection we may say that we have seen a label, printed in red on white paper and on yellow paper, respectively, with the words: "U. S. Postage Prepaid by the Quarter." We make the guess that these labels of the kind were receipts for postage paid and were attached to records kept by the postmaster, rather than the public.

Bill—We are interested in the following autograph letter of Jefferson Davis, Secretary of War, dated, "War Department, Washington, January 3, 1855," whose link with philately consists of the reference to "foreign postage." The letter no doubt was addressed to the attorney-general of the post office department but the inscriptions and notations on the other side of the sheet have been erased. We forgot to say that the letter was sent us by Mr. J. H. Houston of Washington, D. C. "Sir, The enclosed bill for 'foreign postage' has been presented by the Postmaster of this city. As the laws make all matter received by or sent from this department, through the mails, free of postage, and as there is an appropriation of money from the Treasury, to supply deficiencies in the revenues of the Post Office Department, it does not appear to me that this bill is a proper charge upon the appropriation for contingent expenses of this Department. I have therefore to request your views upon the subject before deciding the question of payment. Very Respectfully, Yr. Obedt. Sert." The Hon. Jefferson Davis was chosen by President Franklin Pierce to serve as Secretary of War, beginning with Pierce's presidential term, March 4th, 1854. Mr. Davis had succeeded Senator Adams of Mississippi in the Senate before his accession to the Cabinet.

Sing—Here is a letter that pleases us: "I have been reading with much interest your recent editorials relative to music and particularly singing and the songs of Starr Dickey. I have a rather singular profession and one that is particularly interesting. My work is organizing community music for community service and leading large groups of people in singing. I never let a chance escape to get stamp collecting started in the various cities I work in; and I meet many collectors. I wouldn't like to keep house without your valued WEEKLY. We pat the writer, Mr. Francis Wheeler of the War Camp Community Service on the back and we feel that he is the means of making many cheerful philatelists.

Yore—A somewhat astonishing letter has come to us from a philatelic investigator who noses around in quest of stray bits of stamp information in the old newspapers and other prints both foreign and domestic. He says: "It is generally conceded that the year of 1860 marks the advent of the stamp collection and the maker thereof as before that time, 'philately' was incoherent and without form. I must tell you that I have irrefragable evidence that you are all about a century behind the times and I can prove it. Give ear and you will admit that I can make out a case. In 1869, the Standard Guide said: We find on consulting an old file of newspapers that John Burke, Esq., Receiver-General of the Stamp Duties, Ireland, formed a collection at Dublin in 1772 (in which year the stamp duties commenced in Ireland), arranged in a quarto volume, with MS. description on vellum, for presentation to the Commissioners of His Majesty's Revenue in Ireland. This volume he entitled, 'A Collection of the Impressions to be made on every Skin, or piece of Vellum or Parchment, or every sheet of Paper, in manner and form as hereinafter expressed' and contained samples of Irish stamps from the value of six pounds down to that of one half-penny." Yes, we must admit that the foregoing is the first collection of stamps, not inaptly called impressions, of which there is any record; and we thank our friend, the antiquarian, for telling us the story.

Revenue—We wish to call attention to the fiscal stamp studies of Mr. Frank L. Applegate, whose re-establishment of the state revenues in their rightful places of interest is a work generously undertaken and well accomplished. It must not be thought that the state revenue issues following the civil war period have always been ignored as on the contrary there have been times in the past when these issues were in high collecting favor among those who gave welcome to our revenue stamps. On the whole, however, the state revenue issues have been made to feel like children in the happy home of philate and we must remove the chil which they are treated. Mr. Ap writes to send a one and one-ha denomination, orange, of the Io arette tax stamps and says that he positively of a five cent blue. THE TRANS-ATLANTIC AIRMAIL.

By JOSEPH WARD.

HAWKER PICKED UP AT SEA.

One, two, three and finally six days passed and no word was received. Then Sunday afternoon the Atlantic cables jumped to action. Hawker unofficially reported saved, but no details. Later, and well into the evening the British Admirality confirmed the message.

Monday's papers thruout the world, gave the news in detail. The following is the London Times-Montreal Star dispatch version of this historical event.

"LONDON, May 25,—Missing for six days and virtually given up for lost, Harry G. Hawker and his navigator Lieutenant Commander MacKenzie Grieve, the British airmen who essayed the flight across the Atlantic Ocean without protection against disaster save what their frail airplane afforded, are safe tonight aboard a British warship off the Orkneys. Tomorrow they will reach the mainland and will proceed to London where they will be acclaimed as men returned to life.

Some 1100 miles out from Newfoundland and 800 miles from the Irish coast, on Monday May 19th, the lone aviators making the best of an engine that was failing to function properly were compelled to alight on the water. The little Danish steamship Mary bound from New Orleans, and Norfolk, U. S. A. for Aarhuus, Denmark, picked the wayfarers up and continued on her northward voyage.

Lacking a wireless outfit the captain of the steamship was obliged to withhold the glad tidings of the rescue, until he was off the Butt of Lewis, the northernmost point of the Hebrides, where the information was signaled by means of flags.

Hawker and Grieve were in the water for an hour and a half before being taken aboard the Mary.

The official announcement of the British Admirality is that the aviators were picked up in latitude 50.20 and longitude 29.30.

The ariplane was not salvaged (which means that the mail was lost at sea.)

Hawker released the undercarriage of his 'plane before leaving Newfoundland, thereby lightening the weight of the plane, but making it more dangerous should he drop on land. But this was greatly to his advantage when he had to light on the water.

His plane remained afloat the ninety minutes that it took for the crew of the Mary to effect the rescue.

When the Mary rounded the Butt of Lewis she wigwagged, 'Saved Hands of Sopwith Airplane.' The land station asked 'Is it Hawker.' 'Yes', laconically replied the Danish vessel.

The admirality has sent a warship to intercept the Mary and take off the aviators.

The news electrified England. Eight destroyers after a three-hundred-mile search of the Irish coast had given up the quest and there was virtually no hope that the aviators were alive.

Nothing except some great battle of the war has excited Londoners as the unexpected news of the safety of the airmen."

The next morning brought in fresh news, Hawker had landed at Thurso, Scotland. The dispatch read:

"THURSO, SCOTLAND,—Harry G. Hawker and Lieutenant Commander MacKenzie Grieve were warmly received today when they landed from a torpedo boat two miles from Thurso town. The senior naval officer and the parish councillors officially welcomed the rescued airmen.

'In the name of the people of Thurso', said Provost Mackay, 'I offer you a welcome not only to Thurso but to the shores of Great Britian. Your country greets you warmly and proudly as heroic pioneers and sportsmen.'

It was at this landing that Lord Kitchner said farewell to the land that he loved, and now we shall also know it and mark it as a place of wonderful welcome to two brave sons of the Empire.

Hawker merely replied, 'I thank you for your kind greetings'."

The Australian's trip as told by himself appeared in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, and is reprinted here thru courtesy of the Public Ledger Company:

"We had a very difficult ground to rise from on the other side, and to get the air at all we had to run diagonally across the course.

Once we got away we climbed very well but when about ten minutes up we passed from the clear bright weather into the fog off the Newfoundland banks. We got over this well, however, and of course at once lost all sight of the sea.

The sky was quite clear for the first four hours then the visibility became very poor. Heavy clouds were encountered and eventually we flew into a storm with rain squalls. At this time we were flying well above the clouds at a height of about 15,000 feet.

About five and a half hours out owing to the choking of the filter the temperature of the water cooling our engines started to rise, but after coming down several thousand feet we overcame this difficulty. Everything went well for another few hours when the circulation system became choked with the temperature of the water rising to the boiling point. We, of course, realized that until the pipe was cleared we could not rise much higher without using a lot of motor power.

When about twelve and a half hours upon our way the circulation system again became choked, and we realized that we could not go on using our motor power.

It was then that we reached the fateful decision to play for safety. We changed our course and began to fly diagonally across the main shipping routes for about two and a half hours when to our great relief we sighted the tramp ship Mary.

THAT OLD GAG

about "Queen Anne front and Mary Ann back" has just been resurrected in the Bureau of E. & P. at Wash., D. C.

While my very small supply lasts, I will sell the latest U. S. 10c Special Delivery—issue of August, 1921—with Blue Front and Red Back, unused, o. g., at $1 per copy—no blocks at any price to anyone—and will further offer to re-purchase within one year each and every copy sold by me at the same price, Provided, that purchasers reciprocate by giving me the option so to do.

Am informed only a few of these red backs will be issued, but, nevertheless, if they become as common as mud I'll buy 'em all back, so you are fully protected against loss and can't lose a nickel. Old customers given the preference—of course.

A HUMDINGER IN FOREIGN STAMPS

"More than your money's worth, or money returned."

In buying collections, in order to obtain the United States, I often find it necessary to buy the foreign. I have not the time to mount these and send on approval, so offer them at ridiculously low prices in order to move a large stock that has accumulated. Lots consist of all different fine used and unused stamps such as found in general collections, and will list from 5c to around a dollar each. No trash, but absolutely good desirable copies. Send any amount from $1 up, tell me what interests you, and I will do the rest. If possible, designate what interests you, such as British Colonies, South America, 19th Century, 20th Century, West Indies, Early Europe, Late Europe, etc. These stamps will readily sell at 50% or better.

A similar advertisement a few weeks back brought twenty-seven replies and they were one and all more than satisfied. Seven collectors and two dealers ordered from two to five lots and two of the collectors still seem to be ordering a lot about once a week. That certainly speaks for the quality. Remember that if you are not pleased in every way they may be returned for a full refund. Any amount from a dollar up will bring a lot that you will admit is a humdinger.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Some weeks back I chronicled the appearance of the 1c rotary press, perforated 11, which were made from the imperforate coil waste. At first but a very few were located in New York where they were issued and it looked for quite a while as if the variety would be rare. Recently a second lot or rather the tail end of the first lot was located and as a result the variety has become more plentiful. The first finding, which was in a deep yellow green, varies greatly from the light yellow green and the bluish green of the latter lot. The second find by the way are mostly in a somewhat off centered condition.

Mr. Frank L. Appiegate sends for my inspection copies of the ½c, 1½c and 5c cigarette stamps issued by the State of Iowa. I mentioned some time back the 1c and 2c, thus making a series of five varieties. The design is the same throughout, the ½c being printed in gray, the 1½c in orange red and the 5c in a light blue. Mr. R. J. Tarpy also kindly brings our attention to this state issue and promises to send us copies of the revenue act under which they were issued.

Mr. H. W. Lindemann adds a new provisional envelope to our list with the Cleveland overprint while Mr. W. W. Randall sends reply cards of a new type of overprint from San Antonio and Oklahoma City.

Now that the overprinting of the envelopes has drawn to an end it is desirable that a list be compiled, as near complete as possible, giving all issued varieties from the several cities. This information cannot be obtained through the post offices, for they have kept no account of the sizes, colors, knives and watermarks of the different envelopes that have been surcharged and consequently an accurate list can only be gotten together through the efforts of the collectors who are interested in them.

I will give from time to time all known varieties from the different cities, listing one or two cities at a time, and if our readers will report any additions they will be given full credit for the information. To make it worth your while to help us compile this list I will gladly send anyone two different provisional envelopes for his collection for any new variety not upon our list that is mailed me.

To date we know of the following only from the cities specified:—

We wish to thank Messrs. George R. Rankin and George Prechavsky for information of interest.

BELGIUM.—Mr. Henry Hooreman sends us a copy of a new value of the Parcel Post set. This time it is the 55c and the color is yellow.

BRITISH LEVANT (P. O. at Constantinople),—Mr. Leon Minassian advises that the following new stamps have been issued: 30 paras on ½d; 1½ piastres red on 1d; 4½ pia on 3d; 7½ pia on 5d; 45 pia on 2sh 6d; 90 pia on 5sh and 180 pia on 10sh. Mr. M. Dicranian adds that the 30 paras is overprinted one line while the 1½ and 7½ piastres are two lines.

BULGARIA.—We have received some further interesting information respecting the Bulgarian stamps referred to in our last month's issue. It appears that the Serbs objected to these stamps being put into circulation because they showed views in Macedonia, which is now a part of Jugo-Slavia. At the request of the Allied Commission of Reparations which is charged with the execution of the Treaty of Neuilly, the sale of the stamps was not only stopped but all stocks in the hands of Bulgarian dealers and speculators were seized and confiscated. Our correspondent informs us that one dealer in Sofia had to give up stamps to the face value of over ten thousand levas.—Whitfield King's Monthly List.

ESTHONIA.—Mr. Charles Murley and the Economist Stamp Co. have shown us two new Red Cross stamps of this country. They are the 2½ Marks plus 1 Mark selling for 3⅓ marks of which one mark goes to the Red Cross. The color is orange and brown with a Cross of red. At the top is the value "2½" in each corner with "Eesti Posta" between, while just below is "Marka." At the base are the words: "Punase ristiga Muugi hind" and also "3½ Marka." This means; For the benefit of the Red Cross Selling Price Marks. The 2½ value is blue and brown with the cross as in the other value. The lettering just slightly different in the 3½ value.

FRENCH LEVANT (P. O. Constantinople).—Mr. M. Dicranian advises that he has received the following surcharges on French stamps: 1a paras on 10c, two lines; 3pia 30 paras on 25c, and 7pia 20 paras on 50c.

GERMANY.—We are in receipt of the following from Mr. J. L. Riedel. The following new provisionals have been issued of the Germania type: 1m 6pf 5pf brown; 3m on 1m 25pf carmine on 75pf violet; and 10m on 75pf violet.

GRENADA.—The Economist Stamp Co. has shown us the 1sh, value printed the emerald surface paper of the watermarked variety.

HONG KONG.—The Economist Stamp Co. submit to us a copy of the 50c value printed on the emerald surface watermarked paper.

Can you show the various types of 1c in fine condition?
Have you the 3c with double lines at the sides?
The minor varieties of the 10c? Of the 12c?

of stamps for this Italian colony. They are of two types, the 1c, 2c and 5c being of one design, while the 10c, 15c and 25c are of the other. The colors are as follows: 1c brown and grey, 2c red brown and grey, 5c green and grey, 10c red and grey, 15c orange and grey and 25c blue and grey.

LUXEMBURG.—In reference to the "Souvenir" stamps mentioned in our last issue Mr. W. T. Wilson advises:

These stamps are available for internal and foreign postage, at the face value only. The surplus goes to the Committee for the "Souvenir" Monument which will be erected in Luxemburg in memory of the Luxemburg soldiers who fell in the service of the Allies during the great War. The stamps are issued in sheets of 50 each (5 x 10) and I have of the 10 plus 5c, Plate 2 and the 15 plus 10 and 25 plus 10c Plates 1 and 2 of each.

MEXICO.—We are indebted to Mr. A. J. Morcom for the following information:

NEW HEBRIDES.—Amongst the recent batch of surcharges, the 2d on 40c has now turned up on French watermark paper. It is said that there was only one sheet of 30 of this stamp issued. Another rare thing to pick up is the 5c on 50c 1908 type without the word "Condominium."—Australian Philatelic Record.

NOTES ON CZECHOSLOVAK STAMPS.

By F. S. POTEET.

I am indebted to the Czechoslovak Embassy and particularly to the Consulate members in Omaha for securing and translating an article from the keeper of the archives of the Ministry of Posts and Telegraphs, Mr. J. Leseticky.

While much of the information has been published at various times and secured from various sources, I find some points which, I trust, will be of general interest to all philatelists. Some of the minor points pertaining to the dates of issue of some of the stamps of the Hradchin type, I wish to include in a later article after verifying some of the conflicting points.

The general issues of the Czechoslovak Republic have all been printed by the "Bohemian Graphic Co." of Prague. Presumably this is the same company as the "United Czech Printing Co." which has been given credit for these issues in the philatelic press.

Of the Legionary stamps, there were issued 1,500,000 stamps made up of 2,500 sheets of 100 stamps each, of six denominations. Of these, 2,000 sheets were surcharged by handstamp with either a circular Jubilee mark or a Linden leaf. Only the stamps so overprinted were sold at an excess over face value. The extra 10h charged went to the orphans of the Legionaries. In addition, there were printed 35,000 sheets of each denomination, presumably after the last day the first supply were valid, or Nov. 3d, 1919. This lot of 3,500,000 stamps was presented to the Relief Committee for disposal as they saw fit. This makes a total of 5,000,000 stamps issued. After allowing for those handstamped, there remain 4,800,000 stamps to supply the demands of stamp collectors. There should be enough to go around!

In the middle of February, 1920, at the instigation of the Allied Plebiscite Commission for the district of Teschen, Spis and Orava, there were issued all current Czechoslovak stamps with the surcharge "S. O. 1920". This surcharge in intended to be interpreted both as "Silesie Orientale" and "Spis and Orava". These stamps were valid until Aug. 11, 1920.

The current set, up to the 80h value, is surface-printed, the 80 and 90h are copper plate neotype, the 100 to 600 of the Industry type are from electro-galvanized plates. The change in postal rates effective August 1, 1920 was responsible for the change in colors and design of the 5, 10, 20, 25h values. This change also caused new denominations for the Newspaper, Special Delivery and Postage Due sets.

For the benefit of the Czechoslovak Red Cross, there were issued the three values with the supercharge of 20h on the 40 and 60h, and 25h on that of the 125h. The drawing of the surcharge is by Alois Mudrunka. These stamps were valid for inland postage from Dec. 15, 1920 to Jan. 15, 1921.

We at once set up our light distress signals. These were answered promptly and we flew on about two miles and landed in the water ahead of the steamship.

The sea was exceedingly rough and despite the efforts of the Danish crew it was one and a half hours before they succeeded in taking us off. It was only at the risk to themselves that they succeeded in launching a small boat owing to a heavy gale from the northeast that was raging.

It was found impossible to salvage the machine which, however, is probably still afloat somewhere in the mid-Atlantic.

Altogether before being picked up we were fourteen and a half hours from Newfoundland. We were picked up at 8.30 Monday morning.

From Captain Duhn of the Mary and his Danish crew, we received the greatest kindness on our journey homeward.

The ship carried no wireless and it was not until we were off the Butt of Lewis were we able to communicate with the authorities.

Off Loche Eribol we were met by the destroyer Woolston and conveyed to Scapa Flow where we had a splendid welcome home from Admiral Freemantle and other men of the Grand Fleet."

On May 27th the American press received the following dispatch:

"SAINT JOHNS, N. F.—The Sopwith biplane in which Harry Hawker and Grieve attempted to cross the Atlantic was picked up in longitude 29.8 west and latitude 49.0 north by the American ship Lake Charlottesville."

The next day another message informed us that the plane and mail had been taken aboard the American vessel which was proceeding to Falmouth, England.

After getting in touch with the vessel after she had touched land we were informed that "the biplane was floating tail up and off the top of the tail was a white shirt as a signal of distress. Near the top was lashed a brown mail bag marked 'Newfoundland G. P. O'. The mail in it was very much watersoaked and otherwise damaged. We dried it and pasted the stamps back on them."

Hawker's welcome by the people of London, rivaled that of many a war general. Masses lined his route to the Aero Club. Special police were called out. His arrival was cause for such celebrations as the Armistice day in 1918, but eight months before.

Concerning the stamps themselves. We are told on good authority that two hundred were issued and were disposed as follows:—

Damaged and Destroyed,	19
Presented to His Majesty,	1
Presented to Gov. General,	1
Presented to airmen,	6
Presented to Castle Museum,	2
Cancelled and used on mail,	95
Sold for Marine Disasters Fund, at $25 each,	76

Later one of these stamps on a cover with the signatures of Hawker, Grieve, Alcock, Brown and Northcliffe was sold for charity for two hundred guineas.

UNITED STATES, SERIES OF 1857-60.

By ELLIOTT PERRY.

Conclusion.

In presenting the foregoing upon one of the most interesting series of United States postage stamps, the writer feels that a few remarks in explanation and apology are due to those who have been or may be indulgent enough to read them. Ordinarily the writer upon a philatelic subject makes as complete a study of his subject as the material which he is able to obtain, and the circumstances under which he writes, will afford, and having completed the subject to the best of his ability, he then lays before his audience the results of his work. In the present instance, however, no such plan was followed, for in the first place, when the articles were commenced, the writer had no intention whatever of covering even in a fragmentary manner such a broad subject as is presented by this series—probably the most difficult series of U. S. postage stamps.

Beginning with little except a rather limited collecting experience covering twenty odd years and a desire to solve, if possible, the long standing difficulty which many collectors and dealers had experienced in classifying the varieties from the second plate of the 5c stamp; when this result appeared to have been achieved to a fairly satisfactory degree, his attention was drawn to the similarity in the design of the 24c denomination to that of the 5c and to the possibility that although no previous writer or student appeared to have noted any varieties of the 24c stamp, varieties in this latter denomination similar to those found on the 5c stamps might indeed exist. When within a comparatively short time it became evident that there were distinguishable varieties in the 24c stamp, the experience gained from studying the 5c was of great assistance and by applying the method by which the second 5c plate had been made to the 24c, there was little difficulty in identifying the 24c varieties and in establishing their positions on the plate. From that time on the work, like the immortal Topsy, "just growed".

Because other students were working on the 1c, 3c, 10c and 12c stamps, the writer next turned his attention to the 30c and 90c, expecting to find that they also, like the 24c and second plate of the 5c, had been made from transfer rolls containing six reliefs, and he was considerably surprised when it was found quite impossible to arrange either the 30c or 90c stamps upon the basis of six relief transfers. Continued study developed the fact that the transfers from which these plates were made contained less than six reliefs and demonstrated that the six relief transfer method of making plates, which had been in use for about three years, did not continue through to the end on the high values of the series.

The articles on the 5c, 24c, 30c and 90c stamps were almost entirely the result of the writer's own work and instead of being a resumé of a finished work are merely the story of his study as it went along. This is one reason why there has been no definite effort to make the articles a finished study of the series. They consist rather in the story of the writer's successes and failures in those phases of the study which happened to be of most interest to him.

After the articles on those four stamps had been written it was suggested that collectors might welcome articles upon the other four values, so that a booklet covering the entire series would be available. In the articles on the 1c, 3c, 10c and 12c, a large portion of the material was drawn from the study and writings of other students, the 10c stamps being the only denomination to which the writer himself was able to devote much study. At the time the 1c articles were written the study of the imperforate and perforate 1c stamps of the 1851-60 series had not been completed, and in fact is not yet completed, so in fairness to those who were working upon the 1c denomination, the articles upon the 1c stamps contained little that had not already been published.

At the present time it is proper to state that considerable advances have been made by well known philatelists working on the series, in particular on the 1c and 10c stamps. It is now known that there

"APPROVAL WANT-LISTS"

Here is the system that I strongly advise. It has been in use with me for many years and has proven of the greatest satisfaction to hundreds of my clients.

It's simple, too. Here it is in a nutshell:

(1) You send your want-list of United States, using Scott's Numbers.

(2) Add a bank or philatelic reference, if you have not had an approval account with me within the past two years.

(3) I make your wants in an approval selection with the privilege of returning any or all copies.

5c Red Error, Perf. 11

Block of 12 stamps, containing 2 & 5c errors. Not perfectly centered, but good average copies. Scott's No. 414. Price $5.00. Money refunded if not satisfactory.
Remember, I am Headquarters for stamps of the United States and its Colonies.

H. F. COLMAN
SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C.

were two plates of the 1c stamp which came after plate No. 1 and before the plate formerly known as No. 3, and therefore the number 4 has been assigned to the last named plate. There can hardly be the slightest doubt that its correct number is 4. This is the plate on which the stamps in the top row have the design complete at the top; those in the bottom row are complete at the bottom ("full scrolls") and the other 160 subjects are incomplete at both top and bottom. All of these plate No. 4 stamps above the bottom row usually have traces of the complete scrolls which distinguish Type I and some of them have the broken arcs which distinguish Type III. It is also known that plates Nos. 5 and 6 were in existence and stamps from them have been identified. Some of the latter are the stamps classified by Stevenson as "Type IV Early," being very similar to the common Type V stamps from plates Nos. 7, 8, 9 and 10, but having complete, or more nearly complete, side ornaments.

The reader's attention is called to a misleading classification and incorrect statements regarding certain varieties of the 5c stamps from plate No. 2 which have appeared in print, both in America and abroad. The 1920 edition of the Scott catalog dropped Type III and now lists only two types of all the 5c stamps of 1856-60, viz., Type I, which has all four side ornaments complete, and Type II, which has the ornamental projections at top and bottom partly cut away. The stamp formerly listed as Type III, "with projections at top and bottom entirely cut away" is now considered to be merely one of the six (or seven) sub-varieties of Type II.

—On Friday evening, October 14th, the Philatelic Society of the Oranges will hold its anniversary dinner followed by a small auction sale of desirable stamps. All collectors are invited whether they are members of the society or not. Tickets are $2.25 each and may be obtained from the Secretary or other members. It was just a year ago that several collectors in East Orange "got together" and organized the Philatelic Society of the Oranges. In less than a month the membership had advanced to twenty-five and permanent club rooms had been obtained. Since that time a meeting has been held every Friday evening and the membership has advanced to over one hundred. The attendance at meetings has averaged over fifteen for the year, and over eighteen for the summer months when there should be a falling off.—JOHN G. JEWETT, Sec.

LIECHTENSTEIN BUBBLE BURST.

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—How the principality of Liechtenstein, swept by an epidemic of speculation in postage stamps was induced to change its currency from an Austrian crown basis to one of Swiss francs and, frenzied by failure to realize its speculative hopes, stood for several weeks on the brink of a revolution, is a romance that hitherto received no publicity.

The Liechtenstein government, on the advice of its financial and business councilor, an Austrian privy-councilor, Dr. Josef Peer, gave to an Austrian business corporation exclusive rights to print and sell the Liechtenstein postage stamps to stamp dealers throughout the world, the principality retaining a profit-sharing interest in the contract.

PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

The Austrian consortium, calling itself "The Philatelic Sales Department of the Liechtenstein Principality Postage Stamps" in the endeavor to win for itself popular support of its concession, began a publicity campaign throughout the principality advertising the profits that could be derived from its business.

Untold wealth was promised the community. Taxes were soon to be abolished. Electrical power stations were to be established from the money made out of postage stamps.

As an asset in its sales and profiteering campaign, "The Philatelic Sales Department of the Liechtenstein Principality Postage Stamps" induced the government to change its currency to the Swiss franc basis, thus heavily increasing the face value of these stamps for retail sales purposes in foreign countries.

EXCITEMENT INTENSE.

For two years popular excitement and the interest on the part of small shop keepers, mechanics, and peasants in the popular indoor sport of stamp collecting was indescribable. The population was busily occupied with its stamp speculation. Everywhere one heard bits of conversation about "watermarks," "perforates," "gold standard and postal value," "profits in kronen exchange," etc., etc.

Everywhere, people were dreaming of futures in luxury and idleness, when last December, the Liechtenstein legislature met, and balancing the state budget, found increases in the taxation rates.

The crash was quick and sudden. The popular fury knew no bounds. Protest demonstrations were held everywhere. Resolutions were passed, committees were formed to take action, circulars expressing the popular indignation were printed and distributed.

The government grew uneasy. "Prince and Fatherland" were declared to be in danger. A "general staff" for peace and order was established. Warrants for the arrest of leaders and agitators were issued.

PROCESSION OF PROTEST.

While the government was still busily occupied in preparations for its own defense, a large community procession of protest was organized and marched upon the palace, and, to the astonishment of the startled court, came not upon a mission of dethronement, but to pay their respects and give expressions of honor to their Prince, petitioning him to end the scandalous postage stamp "normalcy" by exiling the arch-deceiver, Royal Privy Councilor Dr. Josef Peer. With the granting of this request, peace was again restored to Liechtenstein.

So ended the Liechtensteiner's South Sea bubble and dreams of luxury and Lydian delights. Stamp collecting has become most unpopular as an indoor sport throughout the length and breadth of the principality of Liechtenstein.—Los Angeles Times.

BOOK REVIEW.

"Gems from Jamaica" is the name of a very handsome booklet by G. A. Higlett, author of "Shakespeare as a Stamp Collector," "The British Lion," "French Philatelic Art," etc., etc. The edition consists of 127 copies and is presented for sale in aid of a philatelic object, none other than the 1922 Congress expenses. The price is 5sh. There are six chapters in the book, each devoted to one of the pictorial issues of the Island. The 1½d is treated as picturing "The Call to Arms". The handsome 2½d of the recent issue, showing "Return of a Contingent 1919" is treated in a chapter "The Return of the Remnant". Each of the chapters is illustrated with a copy of the stamp itself, the entire booklet being an artistic piece of work. Mr. Higlett's address is 50 Mark Lane, London, England.

CREDIT SLIPS.

By ARTHUR D. BUZBY.

I would like to add my protest on a subject which has already been discussed at various times, namely, the practice of certain stamp dealers in retaining the entire amount of a remittance when they do not fill the whole order, and issuing a credit slip for the balance.

Within the past few weeks the following have worked this scheme on me, for the first, and, I may add, the last time:

The reason that I have named the above is because I sent them orders as a result of their advertising in your paper. Cannot something be done to discourage this practice? Perhaps you could compel advertisers doing business on this basis to print a line in their advertisement stating, "Credit slips issued".

In my opinion, the practice is reprehensible, and even approaches dishonesty. As far as I am concerned, when I find a dealer who does not make cash refund for stamps that he is unable to supply, I simply cross him off my list, and never give him another cent's worth of business. If a sufficient number of other collectors who object to this method of doing business, will adopt my treatment, there would soon be some results from such a campaign. I do not stand alone on this matter. At least a dozen of my collector friends feel as I do.

THE FRANKFORT MATCH STAMPS.

William Gates and William Gates' Sons.

Frankfort, New York, is a village on the south side of the Mohawk Valley, about nine miles east of the City of Utica. In 1870 the population was 1083 souls and five years later this number had increased to 1,337—it is not much larger today. For many years the chief, and almost the only industry, was the Gates Match factory, although in 1807 the first woolen mill erected in Herkimer County, and one of the first of such factories in the United States, was started there and operated for many years.

William Gates, Senior, the founder of the business, died in 1877, and of the three sons who succeeded him in the business only one, Frederick Gates, is now living. The latter at present resides in Long Valley, Morris County, New Jersey. In January, 1921, he published a pamphlet, entitled "Ancestry and Descendants of William Gates, late of Frankfort, New York." Part of the historical data in regard to the family and business is taken from this genealogy, and other facts were given the writer by Mr. William H. Grant, still living in Frankfort, who worked in the match factory and who was brother-in-law to George Gates.

William Gates, Senior, was born in Mechanicsville, New York, leap-year day, 1808, and died in Frankfort in his seventieth year. In 1843 he moved from Half Moon, New York, to Frankfort, several of the family, including William B. Gates and George Washington Gates, the latter less than four months old, traveling in a one-horse democrat wagon, while the father and the eldest son, Theodore, came by the Erie Canal with the goods. At first William Gates sold and repaired clocks and watches throughout the surrounding country. During the winter of 1843-44 he was salesman for a firm of Westfield, Mass., whip makers, selling whips and cigars. This combination seems rather odd, but when we remember what a large proportion of the number of matches manufactured each year are used to light cigars, pipes and cigarettes, it is even more odd to learn that at this time Mr. Gates tried to learn to smoke and couldn't.

During his travels as salesman that winter he became impressed with the idea of making friction matches, particularly because the act of use destroyed the match so there would be continual consumption and a constant demand. He investigated and learned the method of manufacture. Returning home from a trip in the spring of 1844, he went to work on the idea, and finally perfected a composition for match heads. He made five gross of matches and took them to Utica but was unable to sell them there. He even found it quite difficult to place them on trial, as at that time everybody was wedded to the use of flint and steel. Returning home he made more matches and traded them for groceries and dry goods.

After the first start he had less difficulty in disposing of his product because those who once used his matches never went back to flint and steel. Merchants began to buy from him. He put up a small building or two, hired some help and gradually built up a paying business. His son Frederick well remembers riding with him to Utica behind the old "Charley Horse" in the democrat wagon, taking with him 20 or 30 gross of matches to be peddled out for cash, credit, groceries—anything to make a sale—and when all were disposed of the horse's head was turned toward home and the load of barter was there disposed of to the best advantage. This was a weekly occurrence.

Being blessed with an inventive turn of mind Gates invented improved machinery and methods of manufacture. The first continuous match machine ever built was patented by him in 1854. For that day it was a marvel, taking in blocks of wood at one end and delivering matches ready for use at the other. He also bought a crude machine for making paper boxes, perfected it, made it work, patented the improvements and for years it "ate" rolls of paper and dropped finished boxes into the basket at the rate of 60 per minute.

About this time he began the manufacture of phosphorous on a small scale to supply his need, the price of that commodity being very high at the time. Importing some workmen skilled in the art he soon succeeded in making enough to make him independent of the foreign manufacturers. At the Herkimer County Fair, held in Frankfort in the fall of 1855, he exhibited samples of his machines and also some phosphorous. On page 12 of the Gates Genealogy referred to, will be found a fac-simile of the placard he hung above the latter exhibit.

His business prospered and he was able to buy land, put up buildings, install improved machinery, etc., until at the time of his death his factory was the most complete in the country. His success was not a matter of luck or chance, but of hard work and bull-dog tenacity. He earned it.

With his employees he was generous and helpful. He knew what poverty was and helped them over the hard places without ostentation. Many acquired homes by his aid, paying him in installments as they were able. The aroma of his kindly deeds lingers in many homes and hearts in Frankfort.

Theodore, the oldest son of William Gates, was not associated in the match business. He went to California and later to Australia, seeking gold, but never came back, dying in Lima, Peru, of yellow fever.

After the death of William Gates in 1877, the business was operated for several years by the three surviving sons, William Buckminster Gates, George Washington Gates and Frederick Gates.

STAMPS AROUSED PROTEST.

A new set of postage stamps issued less than three weeks ago by Bulgaria has aroused lively agitation in the diplomatic circles of the Balkan countries and, following a protest from the Serbs, backed by some of the allied powers, the Bulgarian Department of Posts and Telegraphs recently suspended the sale of the stamps and called in all that were held by the various Post Offices. There are five stamps in the set, two of which bear the portrait of the former Czar Ferdinand, one showing him in Macedonian costume and the other with his profile superimposed on a map of "Greater Bulgaria". The appearance of this map, indicating the early Bulgarian successes in the war, and the portrait of Ferdinand, who abdicated in 1918 in favor of his son, Czar Boris, were regarded by many of the Balkan countries as dangerous propaganda.

When the stamps were first issued Bulgaria, it should be said, limited their use to domestic postage, prohibiting them being accepted at the Post Offices for international mail. Due to the hostility created by their appearance, a Government order was recently sent out forbidding Post Offices to accept any mail matter on which were stamps bearing the portrait of Ferdinand or views of Macedonia and Dobrudja. Two of the five stamps had views in Macedonia. The opposition to the Ferdinand stamp with the map was occasioned by the feeling that Bulgaria was still inclined to claim rights to territories which she has renounced and the stamp was regarded as a defiance of the terms of peace with Bulgaria.

The history of the stamps forms an interesting chapter in philately, and owing to their prohibition, it is quite likely that the "Ferdinand" stamps may in time become quite rare and be eagerly sought after by collectors as curiosities in the stamp world. It is explained that the five stamps were originally ordered from Germany early in the war, in 1915. This is further attested by the dates, 1915, 1916, in the upper right hand corner of the stamps. They were intended to celebrate the Bulgar success of that period in Macedonia. Owing to delays due to the war the stamps were not delivered by the German printers to the Bulgarian Post Office until last May, and on June 1 they were put on sale for domestic use, the Bulgarian authorities evidently feeling that although the stamps commemorated victories which had long ceased to be effective, they might get some postal use from them at any rate. The agitation they caused in surrounding countries, and especially in Serbia, was so great that they only remained officially on sale for three weeks.

Fred. J. Melville, the English stamp expert, in calling attention to this Bulgarian issue recently, confessed to being very skeptical regarding the thoroughness of the withdrawal of the stamps or their destruction. It was reported, he said, that a large stock of them had been destroyed. For the benefit of collectors, he states that it would be desirable to know something of the strictness or laxity with which the order for destruction was carried out as well as the quantities of the stamps printed and how large was the quantity which, supposedly, was destroyed. These facts would indicate something as to their rarity and value in the future.

Mr. Melville, in this connection, calls attention to the fact that a few years ago the Dominican Republic issued a set of stamps bearing a map of the Island of Haiti, the eastern portion of which is occupied by the Dominican Republic and the western portion by the Haitian Republic. The boundary line proved to be inaccurate. The Haitians entered a protest and the stamps were withdrawn. Officially they were burned, but copies are still plentiful for collectors at very moderate prices.

One of the new pictorial stamps recently issued in the series for the Island of Jamaica was recently held up after the entire stock had been printed and was ready for use. It bore a scene illustrative of the abolition of slavery, but certain objections to its use were made and it has been abandoned and the issue of that particular stamp destroyed.

It is also interesting to note that the Turks set up a lively clamor a few years ago because one of Turkey's first war surcharged issues showed a six-pointed star. That has been considered in Turkey as the emblem of the star Bethlehem. The stamp was withdrawn and replaced with one bearing the five-pointed star. The British stamps printed in 1898 for use in the Sudan, bearing a neat camel design, aroused the indignation of the native Sheiks because the quatrefoil device of the watermark was taken to be the Christian symbol of the Cross.

Prior to the appearance of the troublesome Ferdinand stamps in Bulgaria that country had designed and printed in England a new issue in ten values. Three of them bear the portrait of Czar Boris III. and others depict different scenes in the country, among them being the Cathedral at Sofia. Still a newer set is in preparation which will have the distinction of being the first issue of postage stamps to commemorate a journalist. They are issued in memory of the late James David Bourchier, who is buried in the church of the Rilo Monastery, a view of which appears on one of the stamps. There are, on the other values, two portrait designs of Mr. Bourchier, one with the full face and the other showing him in the national costume of Bulgaria.

Mr. Bourchier, who died about a year ago, had been a Balkan correspondent for The London Times for many years. He was born in Ireland and was a graduate of Cambridge University. In 1895 he prepared a report for the British Government on the atrocities at Despot in Macedonia. He was a member of the party which accompanied the deposed Emperor William of Germany to Jerusalem in 1898. He was a close student of Balkan affairs and took a very prominent part in 1911 and 1912 in the formation of the Balkan League. He was decorated by Bulgaria, Montenegro and other countries in that locality and was an officer of the Order of St. Alexander of Bulgaria.—N. Y. Times.

DETROIT P. O. SELLS CANADA STAMPS.

Canada has increased its charge for special delivery letters 100 per cent. The cost now is 20 cents, and stamps to that amount must be affixed to the letter when it is mailed. The sender may use either special delivery stamps or ordinary postage stamps, but they must be Canadian, while the regular postage for a letter mailed on this side of the line must be American. Senders of special delivery letters to Canada will not be obliged to go to Windsor to buy stamps. Postmaster Nagel keeps a small stock on hand for the convenience of the public.—Detroit Paper.

Portuguese Colonies — "Hard-to-Get" Item

We offer below what we believe is the finest lot of Port. Col. ever offered in the WEEKLY or any American stamp paper. It represents a several years' hunting which time we have bought practically everything which allowed us a handling margin of profit. Even at that our stock of most items is very limited, with further supply in sight. Most of the obsolete issues are "hard-to-get". How many collections have you seen that were well filled up in these Colonials? How many dealers' stocks that had more than a scattered showing? Most of the obsolete issues are really scarce and priced much too low compared to Br. Col. and thousands other stamps. This is a splendid chance for the general collector to fill up spaces in these, prices on which in most cases will not run over 60% of cat., many at half have ninety per cent. of all others not advertised here, but far too few to offer. Send us your want list and we'll send what we can. This is a chance to fill up vacant spaces that have been staring at you from your books.

IMPORTANT We do not issue any regular price list. The enormous variety, fluctuation of supplies and prices, do not make su practical. Further, its cost would force us to charge more for goods. Simply send us a list of what you want (see "Wa under our Approval Dept.) and we can submit if in stock. Stock list prices are usually higher, anyway. It would cost us thousands of dollars to issue a list o stamps we can supply. At intervals we send out lists of special offers, etc. The yearly price list is getting to be a relic of the past.

W. C. PHILLIPS & CO., 721 Main St., (Mail to Box 1012) HARTFORD, CO

We believe we have one of the best series of books, etc., out for the average collector. Selections suitable for all classes of collectors whether able to spend $5 or $50. An enormous variety, mounted in books by countries or groups of countries, priced at reasonable net prices. The list below gives only a partial idea of what we can supply.

We will gladly send any books wanted to serious, responsible collectors, who mean business and are prepared to make reasonable purchases. Prompt returns and business statement are all we require. Strangers must give us some proof of their responsibility. Those who have dealt with us before and we know are O. K. need give no references.

Values given on these books are only approximate. They vary from time to time and range in value according to the size of your collection and amount you can spend.

Want Lists—The Best Way

When you can possibly get time to make out a want list, or list of stamps you need to complete your collection and are ready to buy, it is far and away the best way to buy. Costs you no more, you get just what you need. Saves our sending you $50 worth of goods to make a $10 sale and tying up $40 worth to no advantage. If you are well filled up in certain countries, by all means send us a want list. Where only a few items are needed, it's a small chance you'll get them out of an approval lot. Tell us just what you want and save everyone bother.

Prices usually about half cat., seldom over 60%. However, the cat. is away off in pricing many stamps, and we have to charge according to cost. If we ask you three-fourths list for a stamp you can depend on it that it is worth it. That our profit on it is less than on most items we sell for far less, and that a few years will surely prove the stamp a "better buy" than the bigger discount stamps. We are not quoting prices on stamps we do not have in stock, as publishers of the catalogs do. We buy as cheap as it is possible for anyone to buy on the average, and draw on every quarter of the globe for our supplies. When we have to charge you what appears to be a stiff price for a "hard-to-get" stamp, you can be sure that price is fair. There are thousands of stamps a dealer cannot buy to sell for half list or anything like it, few dealers carry them. Such goods are far and away the best investment, have best future, and we make a specialty of them. That old idea many collectors have that they must get at least 50% discount, causes them to "lose out" on most of the really good stamps.

If there is a limit to the amount you can spend on your list, please give it. We do not want to pick out $25 worth of wants from stock for one who can only spend $10. We assume if condition is satisfactory, you are ready to take most of the stamps asked for. All we ask is a square deal, and you'll find us always ready to send you more than half way. You also get best copies in stock. Big lists of 2c and 3c stamps not wanted, but we are willing to supply a fair proportion of them with higher priced items. Such lists do not pay for clerk hire on them. Want list blanks supplied those who want them.

REMEMBER Business treatment of us and our selections and returns within 10 days of receipt.

"Jumbo" Books

This series of books is suitable for general collectors not too far advanced. Contains a mixed line of stamps cat. 1c to 50c each in most cases. About 25 books, each different, 250 to 400 stamps to the book, priced about half list usually and marked net. Extra discount of 10% on purchases of $3 or more and 20% on $5 or more. Thousands of collectors have bought from this series in past years and it has been very popular. Books not sent out for purchases of less than $2 at a time. We do not take space to list books, but can be sent in order if wanted.

Large Selections

We are also preparing for those ready to spend $20.00 or more at a time a large selection mounted in sections. Cat. numbers and prices under each stamp. The value of each book running into three figures. British, French, Portuguese Colonials will be in separate books of their own. Over 2000 var. of Port. Colonials will be represented. For those with large collections or who wish to look over and select from larger lots than usually sent, this is the best offer we have ever made for those who want items priced under $5 each. Very few stamps listing over $5 will be found in these books. The rarer items can be furnished on want lists or in special lots.

SATISFIED CUSTOMERS

Below a few extracts from letters sent us by satisfied customers. All are absolutely unsolicited and we have received hundreds of others about the same. All these customers have fairly large collections and buy from all sources.

This party has one of the largest collections of used only 20th in the World. We did not get his lists until his collection was three-quarters complete. He wrote:

"Have received the first three lots from my 20th Century want list, and I certainly am pleased with the showing that you have made, as this is more than I have received from any source for the last year or so."

Our sales to the above party ran into four figures in a short time, even though the largest firms had been through his lists before we saw them.

This from a Washington collector with a large general collection. He went through 30 of our approval books and also sent want lists.

"All those which you have sent have been most interesting, and my relations with you have been most satisfactory. Indeed, I know of no other dealer in stamps quite so pleasant to deal with as yourselves."

This from a Boston collector whose purchases ran into four figures in a short time.

"You have always given me the best of service and at the time that I resume collecting, you will most surely receive my want lists to work on."

This from a Wisconsin man—

"I am delighted with the stamps you sent, and have taken quite freely. I shall call on you again."

This from Massachusetts—

"I am frank to admit I like your service and the quality of your stamps have been far above the average."

Remember, these expressions are not from over enthusiastic schoolboys. We have many others, but all along the same general line and the above will do to show that we give satisfaction. We mention nothing to show who the writers are, but the letters are on file in our office, along with others not quoted above.

We have one of the largest stocks in America, our prices are as low as legitimate goods can be sold, our service the result of 20 years' experience, our equipment the best to be had. Liberality—We are always ready to meet customers more than half way in any matters that arise, and to meet any reasonable request, but we do not "knock down" prices to a certain few. Our rates are the same to all, based on cost and regardless of what the other fellow asks.

EDITORIAL.

Blank—An esteemed reader says that a person has a sheet of blank paper with the double line U.S. watermark, the size of the full sheet for four hundred stamps; and that while it has been folded, it is in fair shape. He adds that it is the first time that he has ever seen anything of the kind and we may echo his words. We have seen envelopes absolutely without impression of any kind on the regular watermarked envelope paper but we have never seen a sheet such as mentioned by our correspondent, who takes occasion to ask: "Is it against the law to have it in possession?" Technically we suppose that it is, but we suspect that the owner of it would not be beset with attentions from the secret service men.

Warning—Professor Chas. E. Brown, curator of the State Historical Museum at Madison, Wisconsin, was booked to attend the Milwaukee convention, but much to the disappointment of his friends, he came not. Prof. Brown has an alibi that certainly holds good; he was tracking two Chicago crooks who despoiled the museum of relics, etc. Their depredations had included other cities, but in Madison, the two were held to the juvenile court for trial. Prof. Brown says that these boys of 15 and 18, respectively, are stamp collectors and were in Milwaukee during the convention. Our correspondent, a disciple of deduction, asks whether they didn't have the wish of robbing the A. P. S. exhibit at the Milwaukee museum. The exhibit was so well guarded that looting it was an impossibility. Later, we learn that the kids have been sent to the State Industrial School for boys at Waukesha.

Decision—We thank our correspondent, Mr. James D. Havens, who has sent us what seems to be the entire text of the decision of the Court of Appeals of New York in the case Alice F. Halladay, Respondent, v. Harrison B. McGraw, as Assignee, etc., of George H. Worthington, and Warren H. Colson, Appellants. In the decision, the value of the stamps was supposed to be about $700,000. The case is so complicated that it would take a Philadelphia lawyer to follow it in all its meanderings, but we gather that the court of appeals has ruled that Mr. Colson has no claim against the assignee, Mr. McGraw, for services performed, the decisions of the lower courts having been affirmed.

Clan—Wishing us to be seasonable, Mr. E. A. Young of New Haven, Conn., contributes the following remarks on a topic of the day: "So much is being published about the 'Ku Klux' these days that it may be interesting to your readers to know that a 'Ku Klux' cancellation exists. It is not as striking as the well-known Masonic and Odd-Fellows cancellations as it consists simply of a rather thick circle 20 mm. in diameter with the three letters, 'K K K' enclosed. The example that I have is on the 1870 envelope issue, three cent, with the postmark of Beloit, Wisconsin. I have seen the same cancellation on a 3c National print, off cover, indicating that it must have been used for a short period, at least." While this cancellation has been noticed before, it may just as well be introduced again, now that Ku Klux investigations are so popular.

Zurich—The second International Congress of Postage Stamp Dealers was held at Zurich, Switzerland, on September 9th to 12th, inclusive, under the auspices of the Union of Swiss Postage Stamp Dealers. The programme discloses that most of the time will be devoted to actual stamp transactions, the dealers being invited to avail themselves of special stalls in the Tonhalle, at a small rental. A banquet, a "congress meeting" and an excursion are scheduled and our correspondent says that there are "untold advantages to be gained from affiliation with these trade meetings."

Here—A paragraph such as the foregoing, telling of the progress in trade aspects, abroad, brings to mind our own organization, the American Stamp Dealers' Association, which, as we have said practically held a convention at Milwaukee last month. President H. F. Colman presided at this experience meeting which proved several things conclusively,—first, that the A. S. D. A. is a definitive factor in commercial philately at present and secondly, that its influence will increase in accordance with the addition of members of the right kind to the roll. While improvements in the conduct of the affairs of the association were deemed advisable, of course, it was shown that effective work was being done. In fact, a contrast between the fast and loose business methods that prevailed in all too many instances before the appearance of the A. S. D. A. and those of to-day, shows that there has been a change for the better; and that, largely through the instrumentality of this dealers' association. Opportunely enough, we have received the following letter from R. Kenneth Milne of the Protective Bulletin: "I was in Kalamazoo, Michigan, to have our own incorporation papers drawn up and the lawyer in looking over the A. S. D. A. incorporation papers saw this clause: Article VII. "The qualifications required of officers and members are as follows: Any dealer in postage or revenue stamps in the legitimate interests of philately, without regard to age or sex; and so on." Evidently, there is not an age limit, as we have assumed there was; and steps probably will be taken to repair this omission. In order to bring the association more directly to the attention of members, the dues were raised! Here's psychology for you.

Clever—From Mr. George Soulman, we have received a part of cover bearing a three cent green, U. S., at the right of which is the neatly-printed label: "This letter was dropped in the Baltimore P. O. without a stamp, and would have been sent to the Dead Letter Office in two days. The postage was paid by box 700, and any return will be devoted to charity. Address, 'Charity,' Box 700, Balt. P. O." The letter was dated August, 1879, and bears the latest date on which this or a similar label was used on letters that originally were "postage due." Labels substantially the same as the one quoted have been seen on letters emanating from San Francisco and St. Louis. We do not wish to traduce the motives of the enterprising mind that conceived this plan of trading upon the gratitude of the careless letter-writers when we say that it was a clever one, based on an intimate knowledge of human nature. While a good many blanks were drawn by the originators of the idea, we are sure that some capital prizes were won before the authorities shut down on this use of the post department. We doubt whether postal history of any other countr show the variations and distinctio that of our own and the marke dividuality of some of the postal iro tions of the past are of decided in and of some historical value.

THE STOCKHOLM LOCAL.

By ERIC KLING.

In 1848 a system for the delivery of local or drop letters was established in Stockholm. Letter boxes were placed thruout the city to receive such letters, which were collected and delivered three times daily. By 1855 the number of boxes in the capital was 37 and the volume of drop letters had increased so immensely that a special bureau under a head clerk and eight letter carriers was instituted to despatch the local mail.

Early in 1856 a rate of 2sk (6 öre) was fixed for drop letters, 1sk to be paid by the sender which was to fall to the postmaster and in the case of Stockholm the head of the drop letter bureau, the other skilling to be paid by the receiver upon delivery and was to go to the letter carrier. The sender, however, could if he so desired pay the entire 2sk, in which case the receiver would not need to pay.

For this purpose it was permitted to be issued in the city of Stockholm a special stamp of the value of 1sk or its equivalent in öre. The cost of this stamp was to be borne entirely by the head of the drop letter bureau and was to differ in design and color from the ordinary stamps in use.

This stamp could not be used for ordinary postage, but only for local letters within the city of Stockholm. It was printed in black without letters or figures of value and bears the inscription "för lokalbref," i. e., for local letters. It was issued 1 July, 1856, and remained in use until 31 December, 1861, when the government took over the delivery of local letters from the drop letter bureau. In all 1,556,500 copies were printed during the five and a half years it was used. It was cancelled by a star and rays tho copies with the regular Stockholm cancellation are known.

When the postal administration decided to take over the delivery of local letters itself, it became necessary to issue a special stamp of the value of 3 öre to pay the local rate as the lowest value then existing was 5 öre. Plates for a new stamp were immediately prepared but could not be made ready by 1 Jan., 1862, when the new regulation went into effect, so the government had to borrow the plate of the local stamp and print provisionally a new stamp of the value of 3 öre.

This, the so-called brown Stockholm stamp, was issued 1 Jan., 1862, and remained in use eleven months, until 1 Dec., when the new 3 öre stamp was ready. A total of 513,400 copies of the provisional 3 öre stamp were printed.

While the black local is strictly a local, as its use was confined to Stockholm, the bistre brown stamp is neither a local nor a "stamp for the city of Stockholm" as Scott and others erroneously classify it. Its use was universal thruout Sweden and was not restricted to local letters but could be used on other correspondence as well. The latter stamp usually comes with a town cancellation tho copies with a star cancellation are occasionally found.

These two so-called Stockholm stamps have been reprinted, the black one in 1868, 1871 and 1885, the bistre in 1871 and 1885. The reprints are exceedingly difficult to distinguish from the originals but fortunately very rare. A peculiarity of the reprint of the black local is that while the original is not valid for postage the reprint is, as all Swedish reprints are still available for postage.

I have the admirable work of the Swedish Philatelic Society "Sveriges Frankotecken" to thank for much of the above information. To anyone interested in the stamps of Sweden and able to read Swedish or German I can heartily recommend this very thorough book.

ONE THING AFTER ANOTHER.

In our issue of February 26th, 1921, Mr. George A. Hunt of Woburn, Mass., propounded seventeen questions that tested the resources of those who essayed to answer them. In order to give a setting to our question, "Do You Know Your Stamps," we offered ten copies of our new booklet soon to be issued, "The Stamps of Nova Scotia," to the ten contestants sending in the best solutions. Our readers read the questions and ran, as only eight entrants sent in their answers. We must admit that Mr. Hunt said that the excited contestants might claim almost anything for the answer to No. 11; but the "stars" is the best answer to: "What is the oldest known object depicted on postage stamps?" Perhaps, too, there was a bit of leeway to some of the other answers but as there were more prizes than competitors, there is nothing really to argue about. We had fixed up our report showing that Mr. A. A. Belser, 139 Center St., West Haven, Conn., had answered fourteen of the seventeen questions exactly as Mr. Hunt did "officially," and that sapient scrutineer, J. J. Prendergast, 23 Saxton St., Dorchester, Mass., bagged twelve answers; and H. S. Rotzell, 42 West End Avenue, Merchantville, N. J., hit the bell eleven times and R. E. Wade, Jr., 193 Glenwood Boulevard, Schenectady, N. Y., nine. While the four who also ran were not so good, they were not so bad. When the aforesaid report was ready to send off, we mislaid it; and when we found it, the answers were gone. Now that we have everything before us, we shall hurry up to send it on, at the same time informing Mr. Wylie that he should send the book to each of the noble eight who entered the lists. Mr. Hunt's answers to his questions follow:

THAT OLD GAG

about "Queen Anne front and Mary Ann back" has just been resurrected in the Bureau of E. & P. at Wash., D. C.

While my very small supply lasts, I will sell the latest U. S. 10c Special Delivery—issue of August, 1921—with Blue Front and Red Back, unused, o. g., at $1 per copy—no blocks at any price to anyone—and will further offer to re-purchase within one year each and every copy sold by me at the same price, Provided, that purchasers reciprocate by giving me the option so to do.

Am informed only a few of these red backs will be issued, but, nevertheless, if they become as common as mud I'll buy 'em all back, so you are fully protected against loss and can't lose a nickel. Old customers given the preference—of course.

Rare Error Provisional 2c on 2c Envs.

Some months back a few of the 2c envelopes were found in a branch station that had inadvertently been overprinted. They are much scarcer than at first thought, and the supply is not near enough to go round. There are not many left and I reserve the right to increase the price after 25 are sold.

These are Scott's Type III and the numbers given are theirs.

No. 2691, 2c on 2c on white, error $2.00
No. 2693, 2c on 2c on blue, error 2.00
No. 2694, 2c on 2c on buff, error 2.00
The three at one time $5.00

RARE TYPE VII, 2c on 3c ENVELOPE

There was also issued at Daytona, Fla., a special overprinted variety with a large figure "2". I received the first entire available supply which Scott designates as Type VII. There were less than 100 all told and remember that this is not a minor variety, but a main important type. The 3c error in red on blue sell at $17.50 and about 125 of these are known, the 3c black error sells at $15 and more than 100 of these were found. Then ask yourself if the price I ask for this Daytona variety is not reasonable.

No. 2708, Type VII Daytona Overprint $6.00

Or will furnish one copy entire, unused of each of the above four envelopes for $10.00.

I have no doubt sold more provisional surcharged envelopes than any other dealer and was the first to have the rare types V, VI and VII. If you want anything in this line, send me your want list. Will meet any advertised price, but see after this adv. has appeared if you can buy them cheaper anywhere.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—The Post Office Department must have inside information regarding action by the Senate on the new revenue bill insofar as it will affect the domestic postal rates. When the subject was first introduced by the House it looked very much as if first class mail rates would be increased to 3c and the department instructed the several postmasters to discontinue the revaluing of the old 3c envelopes. Now that the bill is in the hands of the Senate Committee without favorable action on this clause they have notified the postmasters to continue the overprinting and complete their work.

The stocks unsurcharged however are exceedingly low and another two or three months should see the revaluing draw to a close. It seems odd that new varieties should be located from the largest cities at this late date, but I recently saw passing through the mail a Philadelphia size 7 on buff. When calling upon the users I find that their supply was exhausted but they had thrown aside one or two albinos, thinking that these would not do postal duty. Under the circumstances I am chronicling these two varieties although I have located them in the albino only. A grocer here in Philadelphia has also started to use a new variety on amber with his special return card.

Mr. E. J. Newcomer sends quite a few additions from Butte, Cleveland, Des Moines and Milwaukee, mostly bearing return cards. Mr. R. H. Mason also kindly adds to our list by sending some new items from Manchester and Boston while Mr. R. F. Molitor adds two from Cleveland. Mr. A. F. Gamber has located unchronicled overprints from St. Paul and Los Angeles.

Messrs. E. Strasser and R. F. Molitor sent copies of the reply card with Cleveland overprint. The one from Mr. Strasser is surcharged on the back.

Mr. R. W. Boisselier sends for inspection a strip of twenty of the 20c perforated 11 from the bottom of the southeast pane of sheet number 11793 wherein the plate number failed to print. We have found this variety in several other denominations and is caused by the plate not being entirely inked.

In our Chronicle for August 27th attention is called to the fact that the Bureau made a lone 20c plate and that it no doubt was for the purpose of replacing some defective plate in one of the sets of four. Engraved plates always are made in sets of four while rotary plates are made in pairs. Mr. W. R. McCoy writes to inform us that plate number 11794 is no doubt the defective plate, for after an extensive search he has been unable to locate a block from this plate.

In further reference to the metered mail which has been mentioned in the Chronicle several times here of late would advise that those interested in the details of this method of paying postage may obtain from their postmasters forms 3601, 3610 and 3612 relating to the subject. In addition the Division of Classification, under the Third Assistant Postmaster General sent out under date of December 28, 1920, a form letter supplemental to and in some respects a modification of the instructions appearing on the reverse side of Forms 3601 and 3610.

This letter was headed, "Conditions governing the acceptance of matter for mailing without stamps affixed under permit in connection with a device having a detachable printing and recording mechanism to be set by the postmaster and which automatically locks when impressions paid for are exhausted!

Paragraph 9 of the letter is quite interesting for it informs the public as to the number of pieces of mail mailable in this manner:—

"Any number of pieces of first class matter;

Not less than 300 identical pieces of second or third class matter;

Not less than 250 identical pieces of fourth class matter."

It is in this very respect that this form of mailing differs from the former first class permit mail for in the latter case not less than 300 pieces of first class mail could be posted at a time although this first class mail did not have to be identical as to contents or weight.

Mr. H. W. Boers kindly calls our attention to the fact that he has obtained one of the metered letters sent out from Utica which we mentioned in our Chronicle of August 27th.

AUSTRALIA.—The long-talked-of change of color in the 4d King George has at last been issued. The color is best described as "mauve violet"; it is certainly not purple still less plum. Upon enquiry at the Stamps Distribution Branch we are informed that, although these stamps arrived there on 15th, yet they were not put into us til June 15th, in order that the sto the old color might be used up.

We only obtained a few on the day of issue, and yet these few tained two minor varieties—one h boil on the back of the King's and the other had the P and PENCE joined at the top.

The 2d King George has appear very thin paper.—Australian Phil Record.

CAMEROONS.—We learn from M Champion that the local stocks o 20, 25 and 50c and 5fr stamps been sold out. Application was to the Governor-General for perm to create provisionals of those deno tions, by surcharging the current and 40c values, of which there abundant supply. The Governor, ever (immortal hero!), refused th essary authority, and it was ther arranged that the 5 and 10c deno tions of Gabon should be used i Cameroons, without overprint of kind, alongside the 15c of the Came series, thus making 30 centimes' of postage. We do not understan need for this improvisation if, a Champion says, there was an ampl ply of the regular 30c Came stamp. Ten thousand pairs of th bon 5 and 10c values are stated to been used in the Cameroons, and stamps of the Middle Congo are employed there in the same way.

The impending appearance of a tire new set for the Cameroons moured.—Stamp Collecting.

COSTA RICA.—Stamp Collecting us the following interesting inform

"Our Parisian confreres report t pearance of a novel issue, which described by Mr. A. C. Roessler:—

J. O. MOORE, INC., RHEIMS, N. Y.

scroll work and a 'closeup' of the coffee bush. The other side shows a government building. All this is printed in black.

The frame for the picture is printed in blue with a large '5' in the upper corners and on the arch over the picture is 'Costa Rica Correos.' In a panel under the picture is 'Centenario de Cultivo del Café.'

Printed in sheets of 50 (5 x 10?) with the two middle rows tête-bêche. 1,500 colones worth issued. Of course, sold out the same day put on sale.'

The stamp is perf. 11½."

FRANCE (Offices in China).—The Bulletin Mensuel chronicles the 25c stamp of the 1902-3 issue surcharged "10c" with the added overprint "4 Cents" and two Chinese characters.

LOURENCO MARQUES.—Three new local provisionals are reported:—"Um quarto de centavo" on 115 on 10 reis red-lilac (surcharge in green). 1 centavo on 2½c violet (Ceres). 1½ centavos on 2½c violet (Ceres).—Stamp Collecting.

MEMEL.—Mr. A. Brun advises that the current stamps of France have been surcharged "Memel" and with German value; 60pf on 40c, 80pf on 45c, 1m on 50c, 3m on 60c and 2m on 2frs. These six stamps have the word "Flugpost" surcharge reading diagonally downward in dark blue color.

MEXICO.—W. Cloonan writes:— "A friend of mine had some papers sent from Mexico and on the wrapper was a 10 centavo stamp surcharge 'Oficial,' but on looking at it carefully I discovered that the word 'oficial' was spelt 'OFICIAN', all in capital letters. Perhaps this may be of interest."

The following values of an entirely new series were due for issue on July 1st, the Centenary of Independence:—1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 10, 15, 20, 50 centavos, 1 and 5 pesos.—Stamp Collecting.

MOROCCO AGENCIES.—We are informed that the stamps with surcharge in centimos and pesetas have now been finally withdrawn and replaced by the current ones, overprinted simply "Morocco Agencies", which series (hitherto reserved principally for use on parcels) now includes the 1½d and 3d values of this country; supplies of the 5d and 6d are awaited.

As a matter of fact, the 3, 6 and 12 pesetas denominations were used up long ago and should prove to be commercially desirable.—Stamp Collecting.

NYASSA.—The Bulletin Mensuel in its recent issue notes the following local overprints on the stamps of 1911 issue: ¼c on 2½c, ½c on 2½r, ½c on 5r, 1c on 10r, 1½c on 300r, 2c on 20r, 3c on 400r, 5c on 50r, 7½c on 75r, 10c on 100r, 12c on 500r, 20c on 200r. The surcharge is in two lines.

PARAGUAY.—The Bulletin Mensuel announces the appearance of two stamps of the type of the 1910 issue, lithographed, perforated 11½. They are the 5c blue and 10c carmine. Also the 75c of the 1910 issue and the same value of the 1913 type have been surcharged "50" with two bar lines obliterating the former value.

SENEGAL.—Stamp Collecting reports that during a recent shortage of stamps at the post office of Grand Bassam the halves of 50c stamps were used as substitutes for the 25c.

ORIGINALS AND REPRINTS.

By DONALD E. EASTLAKE.

There is one new series of stamps that we will all welcome. That is a disarmament series. They hinge—and this not a pun—upon the success of the plans of President Harding.

Holy hinges! "Can ye magine" what disarmament will mean? No more War Issues!

It has been a hard summer, and it is going to be a hard fall for some of those dealers who are stocked up on War Issues.

An Eastern psychologist says our longings of today are but the unsatisfied longings of our childhood which take on new form as we grow older. Now, when we lie awake nights and yearn for an unused 5 cent brown U. S., issue of 1851, we understand why it is that we can't sleep. The old unsatisfied boyish yearning is reasserting itself in a different form. In our boyhood, it was the yearning to own a goat.

Be a genuine guy. The whole world hates an imitation like a stamp collector hates a reprint.

Some men remind us of a stamp without gum. They lack stick-to-it-iveness.

It is a poor perforation rule that won't work our way.

It doesn't do much good to try to dodge the collector—when he shows you his album.

If grandmother's foresight had been as good as our hindsight, lots of us would have St. Louis bears.

After us comes—the unsolicited approval book!

Oh, for a legal search warrant and a skeleton key that will open all the attics in the world!

But every man to his own taste. You, gentle reader, may crave a key to the cellars!

After twenty years of stamp collecting, at last we have the issues of one country complete—Thibet.

The Greeks are pushing the Turks back, so there will be new surcharges on Greek stamps for use in Turkey. In a little while the Turks will probably push the Greeks back and we will have new surcharges on Turkish stamps for use in Greece. Ha, ho, hum.

Philately is just one surcharge after another!

A WORD TO THE WISE

"As a matter of fact, the whole trade has been caught napping with this change of watermark which is happening much more quickly than they supposed would be the case, and there are no stocks of this stuff anywhere, so that bigger advances in some stamps will take place than even in the old single C. A. Lines."

This is an extract from a letter from an English correspondent who is in close contact with market conditions in London. My personal experience in trying to pick up some of the Georges with old watermark that are already obsolete bears out his statements. I can still supply practically everything in these old watermark sets. Buy now before the prices go a-kiting.

STAMPS, STOCKS AND BONDS.

By C. H. HOLLISTER.

The present depression in all lines of business is proving a trial to stamp collectors. They have a lot of money tied up in stamps and they need it and are beginning to wonder if it is thrown away and wonder if they can get any of it back. When the same condition happens in Wall St. the little investor sells and sells at whatever he can get. The man of experience sets back and watches the selling, then when he sees signs of business picking up, he steps in and buys to the limit of his pocketbook. This shows that a falling or slow market is a poor market for the seller and a good one for the buyer.

If you are thinking of selling your collection think twice. Hold it if you possibly can and in a few years it will be found a good investment.

STAMP ENGRAVER HAD TWIN COMPLEX.

"On looking over the current two cent stamp I find that the engraver ran to pairs about a score of times," said the observing stamp salesman at New York's unpopular post office, which is frowned upon by both the Woolworth Tower and the Municipal Building not to mention most of the rest of lower Manhattan.

And taking a stamp in hand he proceeded to point them out:

Two numerals "2."

Two words, "Postage" and "Cents."

Two abbreviations, "U." for United and "S." for States.

Two periods, one after each abbreviation.

Two branches of leaves.

Two scrolls of ribbon, one above each numeral.

Two printed letters "E," two of "S" and two of "T."

Two thin letters "S" formed by the white line at either end of the right hand scroll of ribbon.

Two reverse letters "S" formed in the same way on the left hand scroll.

Two buds, or berries, at the base of each group of leaves on each branch, eight pairs in all.

Two chins on the profile of George Washington, count 'em, a score of pairs in all, and with a magnifying glass you're sure to find some more.—N. Y. Sun.

WHAT OF THE COMING SEASON?

By WILLARD O. WYLIE.

"In good times men collect stamps because they have money to spend. In poor times they collect because they have time to spare so the dealer keeps busy anyhow."—STANLEY GIBBONS, INC.

I am close enough to the channels of business in various directions to be conscious of the fact that a general depression exists in nearly all lines. Fortunately this depression has been a long time on its way towards the stamp shops. This of course is largely due to the fact that numerous war issues have been placed upon the market and the making of new countries has resulted in stimulating to a large degree the interest in stamp collecting.

During the past three years the general press has not hesitated to use freely matter of philatelic interest, full pages have been given over to illustrations and descriptive text to such an extent that a large amount of desirable publicity has been gained. Without a doubt philately has been favored to a large degree in this direction and while other businesses have keenly felt the general trend of affairs, the stamp trade has been able to prosper.

This condition of affairs has also been reflected in the philatelic press and our twelve- and sixteen-page issues of the WEEKLY that have regularly appeared in past months are a striking testimonial to the virility of the stamp business. During the past three months the first intimation of dullness in the stamp shops has come to our attention. Business was so good in the summer months of 1919 and 1920 that dealers were illy prepared for the proverbial "summer slump". I am frank in confessing that some of our dealers have mentioned "poor business" in connection with their advertising. But when we recall the years prior to the war and how dealers generally shut up shop during the heated season, I do not hestitate to affirm my belief that this year's business has greatly surpassed any pre-war summer season.

I am qualified to pass judgment on the matter of business activities. For some eighteen years the active business management of the WEEKLY has been upon my shoulders, and I can safely affirm that the low watermark of the general depression has been reached. We have as it were struck bottom and the present Congress is dealing with the taxation problem in such a manner as to warrant the belief that the money of the country instead of being husbanded in tax exempt securities will soon be flowing back into the channels of manufacturing industries.

It is our intention to conduct a vigorous campaign for new subscribers during the coming months and we solicit the co-operation of dealers and subscribers that new collecting blood may be added to our mailing list. In every community there are scores of stamp collectors who would gladly subscribe to the WEEKLY if the opportunity were presented. The interests of the dealer, the collector and the WEEKLY are one. What profits one member of the triumvirate profits the other two. We have subscription forms that we are glad to send to those who will use them.

The publication of the new catalog comes at an opportune time and its revision of prices upward and downward will be of material help to the stamp trade. I frankly say that the coming season will be one of great possibilities for philately. Let us take advantage of all forms of publicity. Stamp clubs should be organized whenever and wherever possible. Remember that newspapers are glad to have special features dealing with stamps and stamp collectors. The A.P.S. should get busy with a publicity campaign that will compel attention to our hobby. I have asked two or three dealers to give their opinions of the general trade situation and I am sure our readers will be interested at the conclusions arrived at.

It is fortunate indeed for the stamp trade that a new catalog is slated to appear within the next few weeks. The advance sheets have been a distinct service to the trade and dealers have expressed great satisfaction with the policy of the Scott Stamp & Coin Co. in connection with prices. This is particularly true of the stamps of New Europe. Hugh M. Clark, the treasurer and manager of the Scott Stamp & Coin Co., expressed to me upon a recent visit to

SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C.

N. Y. City his belief that no business had held up under the general depression so well as the stamp business. He looks forward to an active fall and winter trade as is evidenced in this brief word received from him:—

"In reply to your letter of September 6th, asking for an expression of opinion regarding the prospects for the coming season, would say that if the past four months can be taken as any indication, I will freely predict one of the most active seasons the stamp business has ever seen. The Summer months are usually considered to be the dead season for stamps, but in spite of this fact, June, July and August just past have shown a decided increase over similar months of the past five years."

The J. M. Bartels Co. offers through its proprietor, J. M. Bartels, the following summary. Mr. Bartels has had an active dealing experience in Washington, Boston and New York and his opinions should have more than ordinary value:—

"In reply to your enquiry 'What of the coming season', it gives me pleasure to state that I consider the outlook excellent. The stamp business is not strongly influenced by the general industrial depression and both here and in Europe Philately has been kept extremely active.

The demand for fine U. S. will be as keen as ever and new record prices will succeed each other throughout the season. Auction sales will be numerous and the cataloguer who offers popular lines will do the best business, finding a steady stream of buyers at excellent prices. No up to date dealer or collector can keep abreast of the times unless he patronizes the auctions which are the backbone and pulse of the business.

There is one line which is going to be more active than ever before. Due to the revaluing of the 3c envelopes (and 2c postal cards) a decided interest has been stirred up in U. S. envelopes, especially issues of the 20th Century, both entire and cut square and they are going to be in demand as they never have been before.

The adjusting of the catalog prices to correspond with the European quotations will steady the market in the numerous issues of the past five years and re-establish confidence with an increased demand on a staple basis, while dealers and collectors alike will have to pocket a few losses sustained through heavy shrinkages in foreign exchange rates."

From the veteran dealer P. M. Wolsieffer, proprietor of the Philadelphia Stamp Company, we have an optimistic word from which we quote the following:—

"From present indications and the optimistic tone of those I met on my Western trip, I take it that the 'Coming Season' will be all that can be desired. At the one night Stamp Bourse in Milwaukee, thousands of dollars worth of stamps changed hands, one purchase of six thousand dollars was reported, and this in the month of August. You never saw a more lively and enthusiastic lot of buyers and traders than those present at that Stamp Bourse in the Hotel Pfister.

Another striking feature of the 'Coming Season' will be the advent of the new 1922 Standard Catalog, advance sheets of which have been received up to New South Wales at this writing, Sept. 8th. Many worthy old issues show a deserved advance while numerous over priced stamps have been reduced. The greatly over priced New Europe issues have been hit hard in spots as was expected, but this new 1922 Catalog will surely aid the business situation in many ways. From my view point I can only see a prosperous season."

John A. Klemann of the Nassau Stamp Co. has an optimistic word in which he calls especial attention to the wonderful prices obtained at the first Ferrari sale. His letter reads:—

"From every viewpoint it seems to me the outlook for big business in the near future is better than it has ever been before.

During the recent business depression there was no letup in the demand for very fine old issues of all countries, due largely to the fact that these stamps could be obtained here cheaper than anywhere else. Foreign dealers were able to come into the American market and pay top retail prices in American dollars, disregarding entirely the exchange factor, and sell the goods purchased in their home markets at a considerable profit.

The Ferrary Sale in Paris established prices for fine goods three to five times higher than similar items fetched here. This sale of 172 lots, averaging $550. per lot and held at a critical time is a sure indication of the strong demand for fine things.

I cannot help but feel that the effect of the War which destroyed thousands of collections and on the other hand made tens of thousands new collectors, increasing the demand enormously over the supply, will be far reaching, making the catalog quotations in the new catalog, which is about to appear, obsolete even as they are printed.

I look for such activity in the stamp business as we have never had before."

Edward Stern, the capable and energetic manager of the Economist Stamp Co. and a close student of the stamp trade, gives us the following opinion concerning the coming season:—

"I have your favor of the 16th inst. and note it. I certainly believe that the coming season will be a busy one. Of course the general business situation is not very bright, but from past experiences as you know, the stamp trade does not suffer in bad times, as the collector then has more time to devote to his hobby. Then again, there have been a great many new collectors of large means who have gone in for stamps during the past five years, that have absorbed great quantities of rare stamps from the market, which has naturally depleted dealer stocks.

There is no question but stamps have been increasing in value continually, and there is no reason why they should not continue to do so, as the old issues are getting scarcer all the time."

Just as we go to press with this issue, a contribution has been received from Joseph V. K. Wells. It deals with the subject matter of this resumé and I consider it of sufficient value to make a generous quotation. Mr. Wells writes as follows:—

"With the appearance of Number 1600 of MEKEEL'S, and the announcement of the 1921-22 'Season Opener', I fe it is the time to say a word that ha on my mind for some time.

During the War we all said n times that the year Peace came w the first year of the 'Golden A Stamp Collecting' and many other ful things.

As a matter of fact the 'Golde has not arrived for any one except dealing in New Europe, and it is n private opinion that it never wil until there is more of a spirit of b hood between those who have ph interests, whether they deal in s collect stamps, or both.

I believe that MEKEEL'S WEE doing a big work and has already plished a lot along the line of co tion, but no paper can do it alone A. P. S. is a strong factor, and i meeting at Milwaukee, they made wise and just laws. But the p wish to make is, that the 'Golden Stamp Collecting' cannot com every last one of us gets behi hobby with the spirit of makin better hobby, and not simply grab the cash in sight.

It seems to me that the collecto apt to forget that the dealer is a who has feelings and rights. A the other hand, the dealer forge the collector is something more mere name, that when the collecto a dealer money, he purchases a the dealer's time and that as well goods.

There is something to be said c sides, but instead of criticising other, wouldn't it be a whole lot all around if every last one of u up our minds to treat the other fe if he were a friend of ours? Let' a year say and see how it works. every last one of us, collectors, exchangers, in short, every one in any way interested in our hobby to let bygones be bygones, and de

A COLOR GUIDE AND COLORS IN GENERAL

By FRANK L. APPLEGATE.

Anyone who has given the subject of color names any thought, realizes that we need more enlightenment on the proper classification of colors. In considering Mr. A. Mack's "Color Guide" recently printed in the WEEKLY, I feel compelled to offer some criticism. I hope to make my points of contention so clear that every reader will realize that it is not merely captious but constructive criticism based on many years of study and comparison.

Mr. Mack's purpose of compiling a practical guide has unfortunately not been attained in the full measure that it should because of the fact that he has worked from false standards. I once made a list of color names and combinations used in the Scott catalogue and found 373 which would be presumed by the casual observer to represent that many distinct colors, which even if it did would not nearly exhaust the possibilities. Prang's color chart recognizes and prints 1800 hues, shades and tints. The color names in the catalogue—any catalogue—do not represent definite colors applicable to the color of other stamps as a standard. Take for example "Chocolate" which should naturally represent a fairly constant color. Compare your 5 cent 1895 U. S. (270) with Salvador 2c 1911 (398) and note the contrast. Again compare the olive green of your 8c 1908 (U. S. No. 329) with the "olive green" of the current 8 cent stamp. Now pick out a stamp of a certain color and match it with other stamps of the same identical color throughout your collection and then look up the names used in the catalogue to describe them and note how they vary.

Many catalogue names are the result of habit. Those first describing a new issue, perchance government officials, use names that appear to them to be appropriate and philatelic compilers not stopping to compare the supposedly new color with other stamps already well-known under entirely different color names follow the original description. Take for instance the color of the 2 cent Columbian (U. S. 1893) which Mr. Mack quotes as his standard violet. The color of this stamp was originally described as violet hence violet now although there is very little true violet in its makeup, a true violet being a color midway between a true red and a true blue. Color analysis shows this color to consist of red 80%, black 17% and violet only about 3%. If we are to have a representative violet as a standard by which to measure color values let us have something as near as possible to the real thing. Compare this stamp with the brightest copy you can find of our late 3 cent surface print.

The catalogue makers can not be blamed for all this. Lacking any fixed standards, it is a wonder they do as well as they have. Many absurd and meaningless color names have been dropped from the catalogue within recent years which remained there through repeatedly copying of original listings. Who can not remember when the Agriculture set was listed as "straw", or when the 30 cent 1888 was "puce brown" and the 2 cent 1883 "claret"? Mr. Mack points out also that the names "mauve" and "stone" have disappeared, and we doubt the future will bring many changes and improvements.

Personally I prefer the Bradley color system to any I have examined as a basis for color classification as it enables one to compile his own chart from stamps but on a scientific basis wherein color values may be definitely measured. It is based on the solar spectrum which is the result of dividing white light by passing it through a prism on to a prepared screen. Six primary colors have been selected and definitely measured by the number of light waves per second. These have been carefully reproduced by a process of printing which is the nearest approach to perfection yet devised. Colored papers thus produced are those used throughout the country in kindergarten and school work dealing with color. The six primary colors are violet, blue, green, yellow, orange and red. The secondary color hues, red-violet, blue-violet, violet-blue, green-blue, blue-green, yellow-green, green-yellow, orange-yellow, yellow-orange, red-orange, orange-red and violet-red have also been printed, but can also be produced from the primary colors by means of the color top or wheel, and their value fixed by percentages of the primary colors from which derived. It will be noted that I have avoided the use of the word "shade" as this term should be reserved for colors having black in their composition, as most stamp colors have. There is an infinite number of shades of each spectrum hue as well as tints which are hues mixed with white. Few true tints are found among stamp colors except paper tints but the number of "broken" colors or colors mixed with both black and white are legion. All these are subject to color analysis.

I have my own color chart which consists of a large blank book, a separate page of which is allotted to each of the eighteen primary and secondary spectrum hues named above. Each page is ruled horizontally into three parts to each of which is assigned an additional graduation of spectrum hue, that is, the middle section represents one of the eighteen colors named, the upper section a color tending toward the color on the previous page and the lower section toward the hue on the succeeding page, thus giving me spaces for stamps representing 54 hues each fixed definitely by percentages.

These pure color representatives are arranged down the middle of the page between rulings, while to the left are mounted tints and broken colors and to the right shades graduating toward black on the right hand margin. Thus I am enabled to fix definitely any number of colors and it only remains to find names for all of them. This is obviously impossible, but we can standardize the use of many names used more or less constantly as magenta for violet-red, rose for violet-ish red, purple for red-violet, etc., and ad infinitum. Where exactness is desired we have to resort to symbols and this is where the beauty of this system comes in. If we want to fix accurately the color of say the 2 cent Columbian, we simply write R^{80} D^{17} V^{3}, D standing for dark or black to save confusion with B, the symbol for blue. Of course, I have all these percentages marked under each stamp and mount on my chart hence I can always make a close estimate of the color of a given stamp without actually analyzing it.

In analyzing colors it is never neccessary to use more than two primary colors, and these will invariably be adjacent colors in the order of the spectrum. I particularly deplore the use of such names as brown-violet, violet-brown, lilac-brown, purple-brown, rose-brown, etc., all of which presume a content of orange (the browns are shades of orange or orange-yellow) on one side of red and violet on the other, the orange and the violet not being adjacent colors neutralize each other. All the colors designated by these names will be found to be dark reds or red browns. "Reddish bistre" comes in this class also as bistre being a dark orange-yellow can only be modified by orange or yellow, never by red. Practical color mixers may dispute this but we are not here concerned with the peculiarities of mixing pigments but with a system of describing colors already mixed and applied.

The use of such color names as red, blue, green, yellow, brown, etc., when found in the catalogue were never intended and are seldom accepted as representing specific colors or shades. It is only when modified by other color names that we are justified in suspecting an attempt at accuracy. Mr. Mack's example of primary colors are mostly too dark for good standard colors. His yellow (U. S. 10c 1910) is better described as orange yellow and his orange yellow (current 10 cent) is a yellow orange. As examples of the primary colors I suggest the following:

Violet, 3c surface print (U. S. No. 437 bright).

Blue, Falkland No. 11, 2½d deep blue, many of the ultramarine British colonials come near to standard blue, but a true blue is hard to find among U. S. printings. If you can get hold of a $2 Massachusetts stock transfer stamp you will have a very good blue.

Green.—Mr. Mack quotes the current one cent U. S. postage. While the hue is good the example is too dark. A pure green is elusive. The closest examples are usually described as emerald green. See the Roumania dues of 1890, also the ½d Australia No. 19 and some of the brightest Australia dues. Some of the late Bavarias are good examples except that they are a little too yellowish. See Bavaria No. 310.

Yellow.—Switzerland 15 cent, No. 54. St. Helena No. 36.

Orange.—Roman States 10 cent, No. 18. The current 6 cent U. S. is not bad.

Red.—New Zealand 1d, 1901, No. 99. Many of the 2 cent U. S. are good especially those printed around 1908, but are too variable to make good examples.

I would like to carry my comment far enough to cover all of Mr. Mack's examples and many others, but have used up too much space already. I hope some time to have an opportunity to go still further into this subject. Nothing would suit me better than to aid in adapting this whole system to the use and for the benefit of all collectors and philatelic students.

STAMPS IN THE MAKING.

An exhibition of designs for the new postage stamps of Austria took place in the first half of the current year at the Museum for Art and Industry at Vienna and it is very interesting to note what the Graphische Revue, a trade journal of the graphic arts, has to say about the stamps to be:

"Postage stamps unfold for a people to a certain extent cultural developments. Do these prize winning designs, destined for use, measure up to the justified expectations?

Let it be said at the outset that the result of this competition will stir up in a harsh form the pros and cons when these stamps are put in use. The design winning the first prize, executed by Professor Berthold Loeffler, produced astonishment and opposition. Astonishment, because of the meaninglessness of the design and opposition to the award of the judges. It represents a woman with slit eyes, whose impossible headdress is interwoven with leaves and grapes. As a label for the wine card of a profiteering saloonkeeper it would be easily adoptable. The productions which received the second prize are, aside from Fred. Andin's design, representing a peasant woman standing in the middle of a wheat field, hardly worthy of being mentioned; this is also true of the sketches receiving the third prize. Peche exhibited work which resembled more the design of wall-paper or advertising posters, but not stamps. These, however, arrived too late, not to our displeasure, and were not included in the prize competition. Among the designs recommended for purchase were those by Franz Lex, an expressionist of the horrible kind.

What did the judges think? Were and are they of the opinion that Austria is populated by art students of extreme tendencies? It surely is not the object to belittle the judges, but the right to criticise must also be upheld for the non-artist, because, as indicated at the outset, postage stamps are measures of a peoples' progress, and eccentricities of any kind cannot be looked upon as such.

Among the sketches recommended for purchase were a few, which though, not very conspicuous, would have a representative effect. They are the work of Zerritsch, Dachauer, Kieslinger and Herta Ramsauer. The exhibited designs that were not included among the prize winners but are pleasant to behold are those of Wacik, Hans M. Glanz, Hesshaimer, Pollak, Sabine Krinninger and last but not least those of Dr. R. Jung. It is reported that the well-known painter, Julius Klinger, submitted designs for the competition, but which up to now were lost in some inexplicable way. These surely are peculiar conditions.

It is worth mentioning that two of our colleagues, Hobert Kracher and Franz Ritz, were represented by very good designs, which among those worth mentioning had some distinction.

All in all, in this case the judges were obliged to give the public the reasons for their awards or exhibit the prize-winners only. Among the exhibits that received no award were designs of a very adoptable nature. We come to the conclusion that this is an impossibility, not to say a scandal."

The philatelists, however, will patiently await the actual results.

MAX FRUCHTER.

THE FORTUNES OF FERRARY.

By FRED J. MELVILLE.

(Starting in the days when the rarest stamps cost but ha'pence, Philipp von Ferrary, with the purse of Fortunatus, spent half-a-century and nearly half-a-million in bringing together the vastest treasure-collection of rare stamps ever known. In this article Mr. Melville outlines the history of the collection and tells of its rich store of the great rarities, which for most of us will never be more than such stamps as dreams are made of!)

It would seem that the era of the great general collection has passed. The Tapling collection, cut short where the late Mr. T. K. Tapling, M. P., left it, is in the British Museum, the property of the British nation, and several other public institutions contain lesser collections of a general character. The last of the great encyclopædic collectors, Philipp la Rénotière von Ferrary, has gone to his rest, and by a strange combination of events his wonderful accumulation is being dispersed. This is a fate which its late owner never anticipated during his long career, and it is curious to reflect that a similar unexpected disintegration has been the ill-fortune of most of the great general collections except Mr. Tapling's. The late Sir William Avery had hoped his collection would interest, and be continued, by his son; Mr. Frederick Breitfuss was disappointed in the early death of H. I. H. the Grand Duke Michael Alexis Michaelovitch, who had signified his intention of purchasing the Breitfuss collection and presenting it to the Russian nation. Mr. George H. Worthington, in the later years of his life, encountered financial embarrassments, and instead of bequeathing his collection to the Cleveland Museum of Art, he was obliged to see it broken up and sold in America and Europe.

The Ferrary collection, the greatest accumulation of the world's stamps ever brought together, was definitely destined for a public institution by its owner. Twenty-six years ago, when the late M. Felix Faure, President of the French Republic, opened the now famous Musée Galliera on the banks of the Seine at Paris, the magnificent museum for which Von Ferrary's mother bequeathed some five millions of francs, it was confidently hoped in philatelic circles on the Continent that there the great Ferrary collection of stamps would find its ultimate resting place.

Possibly the wish in that case was the father to the thought. The character of the contents of the museum scarcely supported the idea, and at no time did Von Ferrary give any hint of such an intention. There is, however, some reason to suppose that in the last years of his long life Von Ferrary changed his mind about the destination of his collection. It is believed that in an earlier will than the one admitted for probate he bequeathed the Great Britain portion of the collection to the British nation, possibly as a mark of his warm feelings for this country as "an adopted child of England on whose soil I was weaned and brought up, and which I was in my childhood taught to love above all."

FERRARY'S LAST WILL.

As we now know, his final wish was that the collection should go in its entirety to the Reichspostmuseum, or Imperial Postal Museum at Berlin, an institution which possesses a very valuable collection of the world's stamps, many of the rarer stamps having been contributed by Von Ferrary during his lifetime from his vast treasure of duplicates. But even this last intention was frustrated by events of international significance. The outbreak of war found the cosmopolitan Von Ferrary at his favourite home in Paris, but as an avowed Austrian citizen, it was necessary for him to leave Paris, and to leave his stamps behind him. He settled in Lausanne in Switzerland, where he died on May 20, 1917. At the termination of the war the French authorities decided that the collection should not be bestowed as its late owner willed, but it is being prepared for dispersal by public auction in Paris, and the immense sum of money it is likely to realise will go towards the payments due from the Germans for reparation or war indemnity.

A MAGNET FOR RARE STAMPS.

The story of Von Ferrary and his wonderful collection is full of mystery and romance. Very little is known of the man, and much has been conjectured both of the man and his many possessions. Fabulously rich, he gathered unto himself all the postage stamps of the world in every variety, and of the greater rarities he loved to secure many duplicates. A Croesus in wealth he made his stamp room in the Austrian Embassy building in the boulevard St. Germaine quarter of Paris, a veritable Aladdin's cave of priceless philatelic gems. He had everything in his favour. He started in the days when stamp collecting was young and when Philately as a science was as yet unnamed. In those days the price of the rarest stamp known did not run to more than shillings. Through half a century Von Ferrary pursued the cult of the rare postage stamp, and, as prices rose, his purse strings expanded with them, and it is no exaggeration to say that no price was too much for him to pay to secure the possession of a rarity that had hitherto escaped him. His name and the fame of his purchases and of his collection spread throughout the world, and the older dealers of all countries, whenever they procured newly discovered rarities, sent them forthwith to Von Ferrary, pricing them according to their own fancy or the measure of their coveting. Thus did the stamps of great price, found in the uttermost parts of the earth, get drawn to one magnetic centre in Paris, into the vast collection which Von Ferrary spent half a century of his life in getting together.

SOME RARE "CAROTTES."

Naturally the omnivorous collector swallowed many a carotte. When the supply of true rarities fell short there were not wanting certain filibusters who designed and invented imaginary rare stamps. So great was Von Ferrary's desire to miss nothing that he bought many stamps which were made for him, and it may have been the knowledge that he had oft been gulled which made this shy and reserved man withhold all

A. S. D. A. MEMBERS AT A. P. S. CONVENTION 1921.

Through the courtesy of W. F. Slusser we have received the halftone cut picturing the members of the A.S.D.A. who were present at the last A.P.S. convention. It is certainly a body of fine looking men and we are glad to have the WEEKLY staff represented. Accompanying the cut was a letter from Sec. Slusser which we are pleased to quote from:—

Next year will probably see the Annual convention of the American Stamp Dealers' Association, Inc., held at the same place as the A.P.S. convention, namely, Springfield. The date will be a day earlier, as contemplated at present.

This half-tone cut represents a number of our members who attended the A.P.S. convention at Milwaukee this year and improved the opportunity to discuss ways and means tending to the welfare of the A.S.D.A. for the coming year.

With approximately 185 members, making our organization the largest of its kind in the world, the Board of Directors have now planned to enact certain changes of a business nature which will give the members better protection against the unreliable stamp dealer; reduce to a minimum the losses thru the activi swindlers who use the mails; broaden our field for the receipt of foreign in tion, and to redouble our efforts to drive from the marts of philatelic trade, individuals and concerns whose only excuse for doing business is to make thru a system of fine-drawn swindling, alleged to be legal!

The persons represented in the half-tone cut are as follows:

1.—Chas. A. Christensen
2.—J. D. Hubel
3.—C. T. Wessbecher
4.—Ora E. Stark
5.—C. Gordon Fennell

sight of his stamps from the public gaze during his life-time.

Many were the cunning devices to create new varieties to tickle the palate of Von Ferrary. Some of the doubtful Confederate Postmasters' stamps were probably entirely invented for him; but the more subtle deceivers played pranks with genuine stamps. A curious book might be written of these many inventions, but a single example will indicate the quaint subtlety of some. About 1894 an English dealer sold Von Ferrary a Belgian 10 centimes of 1861 on paper which appeared to be quadrillé, like the paper used very much later for the 15 centimes Peace and Commerce stamps of France. The quadrilling was distinctly marked on the back. Now note the condition of this unique specimen, it was a very poor defective copy, and it was subjected to the skilful attentions of M. P—— of Brussels, whose talent for painless surgery was well known to have cured many stamps of the ills they are heirs to. The poor copy, thus restored to something like fair health, was eagerly acquired by Von Ferrary for 100 francs, not a big price, but an ample one for a variety that was nothing more than a chemical phantom.

FERRARY'S FADS.

I have said that Von Ferrary was a man of mystery, and but little is known of the man or his life. Even his names have been mysteriously confusing, and his rare appearances in public prints have been mostly designed to suppress real or imaginary grievances which he felt against persons who attributed to him titles which he entirely and consistently disclaimed. Possibly, had he lived, he would have again protested at the recent statement in a London magazine, in an article by the Infanta Eulalia of Spain, in which H. R. H. says, "The Duke of Galliera had a son Phillipo, who refused absolutely to use the privileges which his birth had bestowed upon him. What were his reasons nobody knows."

THE FOUNDATION OF THE GALLIERA WEALTH

The Galliera fortune is understood to have been founded by an old Genoese banker, Ferrari, an eccentric miser, of whom it is told that he met his death by inadvertently closing himself in his own strong room, to which none had access but himself. His son extended the fortune he left and married into a noble Genoese family, and the Italian titles of Duke of Galliera and Prince of Lucedio were bestowed upon him by the Pope and King Victor Emmanuel respectively. He had two sons, but at his death in 1876 he left all to his widow, the Duchess.

The story goes that a little while before he died he handed the Duchess the key to his private library, to which none had ever been admitted, not even his wife. After his death it was found to contain some three hundred leather-bound volumes on book shelves, apparently a collection of books uniformly bound. Each volume was fastened with a gold clasp and each contained 1000 pages, each page being a 1000 franc French Government Bond. This portion of his treasure alone represented 300,000,000 francs.

FERRARY'S "PAVILLON."

The Duchess, who was born in 1812, was well known and liked in England, and maintained a great establishment in Paris, where Charles Greville had attended a ball in 1847 (Greville Memoirs VI., p. 36); she dispensed the money in most regal fashion. She had long been a figure in the Parisian world, her father, the Marquis de Brignole Sale having been Sardinian envoy to the court of Louis Philippe. She acquired the magnificent palais in the rue de Varennes, the former residence of the Duc d' Enghien, placed it at the disposal of the Comte de Paris, reserving a small part for her own use, but stipulated that the mansion should never be used for any political manifestation against the government in power. This stipulation was dishonoured on the occasion of the marriage of Amelie d'Orleans to the future King of Portugal, and the Duchess in her wrath ordered the Comte's family to quit, and altered her will, leaving the palais to the late Austrian Emperor Francis Joseph for use as the Austrian Embassy at Paris, but reserving a pied àterre, a petit pavillion for her son Philipp, the subject of this article.

FERRARY'S BIRTH AND EARLY YEARS.

Philipp von Ferrary was born in 1848, the year of the revolution which brought about the downfall of Louis-Philippe, who was godfather to the infant Von Ferrary. Mr. Charles J. Phillips in the obituary notice in the London Philatelist (xxvi., 117) is in error in stating "he must have been born about 1858-60" and that he "must have been a collector for some 45 years." He became a pupil at the lycée Louis-le-Grand and at the Ecole Centrale, and in one of his later eccentricities returned to the latter as a teacher in a curious desire to earn his own livelihood although he was possessed of more than ample means.

He was a neurasthenic person, moved by fervent passions; in some of his rare letters he mentions his vivid recollection of "the distress inflicted on my young soul by the disasters of Magenta and Solferino," which occurred in his eleventh year, and "never did I feel purer joy than for the days of Custozza and Lissa" seven years later. It appeared to be an obsession with him that enemies were darkly intriguing against him by joining his name to Italian titles, and he energetically protested that he was never of Italian nationality; and never had any right to the alleged titles, an son of Austria he "always felt a sion for Italy as against Austria's foe."

FERRARY IS "ADOPTED."

FERRARY'S START IN STAMP COLL

It would be impossible to fi certainty when Ferrary started to stamps. It was no doubt at sch certainly as early as 1861, which Ferrary amongst the earliest pioneer collectors, as he is also t individual who maintained an unr record of over half a century o collecting, possibly more than 5 Unlike nearly every other adult tor he never knew the pathos s expressed in the plaint, "If I ha kept the collection I made in my days!" NDOVER NEEFUS, HUDSON, N. Y.

U. S. SPECIALIST SINCE 1894.

ed from other eminent collectors were not disposed to sell, but were ng to exchange. One historic swap ad with the late Mr. Tapling, in n he is said to have given the latter st Office Mauritius in exchange for shmere stamp. Tapling certainly me of his "Post Offices" from Fer- the unused Two Pence, shortly be- his death. Ferrary had had it 1875, when he bought it from is for 600 fcs. (£24).

Rare Contributions to Philatelic Literature

fortunately for the general advance- of philatelic knowledge, Von Fer- was extremely reticent, rarely ad- ng any one to his pavillon at the rian Embassy, never exhibiting his tion, and only in extremely rare did he grant a few noted philate- a casual inspection of his treasures. pt as a boy of seventeen, he con- ted nothing personally to the phil- press. But his first articles ed that he already possessed a wide ledge of stamps and a deep-rooted on for the acquisition of rarities. wrote refuting the idea, held by of the most eminent philatèles of time, that the triangular Capes and early British Colonials on bleuté been passed through blue water; as familiar, too, with the Cape dblocks," and the very rare errors of, likening them, curiously enough e ½ anna red Indian which was officially used.

out the same time he expressed his t having "put his hand on" a copy e Wells, Fargo (Pony Express) in of which the normal colour is blue, ror sans doute." "I am the more y to possess this rarity," he wrote 65, "because I know only one other . . . . . it adorns one of the fine ian collections, that of Mons. G. in." It is strange to read the ful plutocrat on the price de- led for this 25 cents red from Eng- "le prix fabuleaux de 5 livres st. (125 fcs.)." Von Ferrary, as we know, was mistaken in considering this 25 cents red as an error for the blue stamp; it was simply a new issue in a new colour, and is to-day a much cheaper stamp than the blue one of December, 1861.

His Friendship With Mahe.

He was known early to the stamp dealers of Paris, and I believe the late Pierre Mahé first met him about 1863, when Ferrary became a regular visitor to the little shop in which Mahé had set up at No. 18 rue des Cannettes. Ferrary made a close friend of Mahé, and about ten years later, in 1874, Ferrary established M. Mahé as the curator of his already vast and continually growing collection. This association begun in 1863 lasted throughout the dealer's lifetime, and when Pierre Mahé died in 1913 the work was carried on by his son.

Some idea of the regard Ferrary had for Mahé, and of his all absorbing passion for stamps, may be gathered from a little anecdote related by Mons. Victor Robert. M. Robert had gained the esteem of Ferrary by supplying him with numerous welcome additions to the great collection, but at one period he (Robert) had an altercation with J. B. Möens the eminent philatelic pioneer of Brussels. The quarrel evidently disturbed Ferrary, who called on Robert.

"Mons. Robert," he said, "I like you, but do not touch M. Möens; do not touch M. Hanciau" (Möens' great collaborator).

Then after a pause, and raising his right arm as if he were uplifting a banner, and in an agitated tone, he spoke as if from the soul—

"M. Möens and M. Mahé, they are my gods!"

Stamp collecting had become a religion to Ferray and these were its high priests.

Memorable Purchases.

The Ferrary collection was built up stamp by stamp, but some of its richest accessions were obtained by the absorption of several notable early collections. He bought the important general collection founded by the late Judge Philbrick (except for the Great Britain portion) for £8000 in 1880. In this was the bulk of the collection formed by Sir Daniel Cooper, Bart., K. C. M. G., the first President of the London Philatelic Society. Another important collection bought outright by Ferrary was that of another of the very early collectors, Baron Arthur de Rothschild. Besides these two vast collections he acquired many less important ones.

Like most collectors of the old school he developed special fancies from time to time for particular stamps, but almost anything rare possessed a strong appeal for him. At least seven of the known copies of the Post Office Mauritius were acquired by him, of which five or six are still in the collection. At another time he appeared to become smitten with Capes, Hawaiians, Sydney Views, Reunion, Moldavians, early German States, and so on, and Mr. Griebert has told how in the early nineties he was particularly fond of the 3 pfennige red Saxony, 1850, of which he must have acquired a fair quantity unused at £3 to £4 each.

Philatelic "Vandalism."

Mr. Griebert has also told me that like many collectors of the old school, Ferrary never cared for pairs or blocks although he would be very eager to collect as many varieties and shades of single stamps as possible; nor did he care to insert any stamps on original covers. When Mr. Griebert sold him the Modena Provisional Government 80 cents on the entire cover, Ferrary immediately tore the stamp off the letter!

In spite of this many fine blocks and pairs, and numerous rare stamps on entire do survive in the collection, and indeed it would have been a real misfortune to philately if some of the fine blocks had been separated and had the famous rarities been divorced from their covers.

Many are the estimates of the amount Ferrary spent on his collection, of the number of stamps it contains, and of its present or recent value. Most of these are entirely speculative. It was estimated in Messrs. Hardy & Bacon's "The Stamp Collector," 1897, that he had then spent a quarter of a million on the collection. He continued spending more or less freely on stamps, probably up to £10,000 a year until the war broke out. Probably, all told, his purchases were a little over £250,000. On several occasions we remember there were suits in the French courts to restrain his enormous expenditure on stamps, suits initiated by the trustees or heirs of his revenues. An estimate of the number of items, stamps, blocks, sheets, etc., may be somewhere around 200,000, and the value to-day, estimated in prominent stamp circles in France, as around ten million francs, is undoubtedly far below the mark, when a mere 304 stamps included in the first sale fetched a million francs, and those not the rarest and most valuable selections.

His Admission to the London Philatelic Society.

I have not been able to trace any association between Ferrary and the French philatelic societies, but he joined the Philatelic Society of London, being proposed by Mr. E. D. Bacon and seconded by Mr. Douglas Garth at the meeting on October 23, 1891, as Herr P. von Ferrary. Later, at his request, he was named "Philipp la Rénotière." At the same meeting of the Philatelic Society which saw the election of Ferrary to membership, another eminent collector, Mr., afterwards Sir, William B. Avery, was also elected.

The sale of the first portion of the Ferrary collection in Paris in June last, although it comprised but a small portion of the vast accumulation of rare stamps, enables us to review in brief outline some of the special features of the collection of which so little definite information has hitherto been accessible.

EDITORIAL.

Down—At the Buenos Aires postal convention that we have referred to before, an important measure was adopted and if it is ratified, it will have consequences that will affect philately to some extent. It was voted to allow each South and Central American country to decide upon its own foreign postage tariff, so long as the rates do not exceed the Postal Union rate of five cents an ounce, American gold. Thus, under the authority of this enabling act, the United States will have the privilege of naming a two cent rate to all the other countries in the western hemisphere. The Pan-American congress has proved to be of most advantageous character to the countries whose delegates participated in its deliberations, we are informed.

Heed—Our "dynamic" P.M.G., Will H. Hays, asks that the widest circulation be given the following amendment to the postal laws and as we strive to please, we append: "Paragraph 11, section 511, of the Postal Laws and Regulations is hereby amended by the addition of the following paragraph: (b) Business letters for foreign destinations, deficient in postage, bearing the address of the sender will not be despatched from the United States but will be returned to the sender from the mailing or exchange office marked 'Return for additional postage.' After being fully prepaid such letters will be forwarded to destination. The postage stamps originally affixed will, when the letter is again presented for mailing, be accepted in payment of postage to the amount of their face value."

Item—The following bit of entertaining description of the famous Paris stamp bourse has been handed to us by Mr. Howland Speakman who rescued it from Richard Harding Davis' "The Streets of Paris," published in Harper's Magazine, issue of October, 1894: "The idle man, who knows that 'they also serve who only stand and wait,' must find the Champs Elysees the most acceptable of all places for such easy service. There are at one corner the stamp-collectors to entertain him, with their scrapbooks and market-baskets full of their precious bits of colored paper gathered from all over the known world, comparing and examining their treasures, bargaining with easy good-nature and with the zeal of enthusiasts. Three times a week he will find this open market or exchange under the trees, where old men and little boys and pretty young girls meet together and chatter over their common hobby, and swap Columbian stamps for those of some French protectorate, and of many other places of which they know nothing save that it has a post-office of its own."

Rich—Whenever we think of Mr. Howland Speakman, we see in our mind's eye, the foremost collector philatelic literature in specialized form, in our country. Mr. Speakman is better known abroad as a collector of early stamp print than he is in the United States. Be it known that he interests himself only in philatelic publications issued before 1870; and consequently, it is the decade from 1860 to 1870 that must yield its products to him. Mr. Speakman has been enriching his library with the rarest examples of the literary beginnings of our study and the catalogue of the works in his library would be a repetition almost of the publications in the catalogue of Lord Crawford's library. He has the first editions of Mount Brown's and Dr. Gray's catalogues with their imprimaturs of 1862; the earlier Berger-Levrault productions; and so on. We are glad to know that such a library exists in this country and (as we promised many moons ago) we must have fuller particulars of it for our readers.

Find—Speaking of early philatelic literature, we think it worth while to report that Mr. Wilson D. Wood of Kansas City, Mo., made a stamp paper find recently that causes us to ponder upon the perversity of circumstance that selects the other fellow as the one upon whom the cornucopia is showered. At our behest, Mr. Wood has sent in a list of his newly-acquired possessions; and we shall take the space to list a few of them for the benfit of the present generation of collectors. There are the twelve volumes of the Stamp Collectors' Magzine, Stafford Smith & Smith, Bath, 1863 to 1874; and each of the volumes has a really good stamp mounted on the front cover in a medallion. This plan of favoring readers may be credited to the publishers of this journal, we believe. Horner's "Stamped Envelopes of the United States," published in 1879 by Durbin, Philadelphia, is a classic and so is John K. Tiffany's "Philatelic Library," St. Louis, 1874, a catalogue of philatelic literature up to the date of publication. Mr. Wood's copy is No. 60 of 150 copies privately printed. Mr. Tiffany published the book which was the best of philatelic bibliographies up to that time while a law student at Harvard, we recollect. There is Trifet's American Stamp Mercury, of 1867 to 1869; volume 3, 1870, of the first series of the American Journal of Philately and Raymond's Collectors' Companion, Chicago, 1885-86. There are lots of other volumes deserving of notice in Mr. Wood's list.

Bank—We notice from newspaper ads that have been forwarded to us by a reader that the Wells Fargo Nevada National Bank of San Francisco is using the pony express theme effectively in its publicity. We quote: "When Wells Fargo Delivered the Mail. From 1852 to 1897 Western folk who wanted letters delivered promptly entrusted them to Wells Fargo. This company made it a rule that, in addition to its fee for service, the correct amount of U. S. postage had to be attached in order that the Government should not be deprived of revenue. An attempt by the Postmaster General to interfere with this practice, on the ground that it usurped a Government function, was met by a protest signed by 50,000 people from San Diego to Seattle." Again: "Henry Wallace, first pony rider. To Henry Wallace fell the honor of inaugurating the Pony Express. On April 1, 1859, he carried the first despatches out of St. Jo, Missouri. In his mochilla (Mexican saddlebags), he bore a message of congratulation from President Buchanan to Governor Latham of California, who received it in Sacramento 10 days later almost to the very hour." The first ad quoted, answers the question that sometimes is asked why both the western frank and the U.S. stamps were used. The government, too, was careful to see that the mail carried by the express was enclosed in stamped envelopes preferably or in envelopes that bore the required stamps for postage.

THE TRANS-ATLANTIC AIRMAIL.

The Alcock Brown Flight.

"I'd not give way for an emperor,
I'd hold my own for a King.
To the triple Crown I'll not bow down—
But this is a different thing!
I'll not fight with the powers of air,
'Sentries, pass him thru!'
Drawbridge let fall—he's the King of us all—
The Dreamer whose dream came true!"

Rudyard Kipling.

The people of the world had just about settled down to the everyday things of life, such as fires, revolutions, and political eruptions, when they were again turned into a state of excitement when they picked up their daily paper and read in flaring head lines, "Alcock Hopped Off For Ireland In Vickers Bombing Plane." The Newfoundland dispatch in detail read:

"Saint Johns N. F. June 14th. Confident of success where Hawker failed, Captain Sir John Alcock, K.B.E. D.S.O. hopped off today at 4.15 p.m. for a two thousand nonstop flight for Ireland.

In his Vickers-Vimy bombing plane he was accompained by Lieutenant Sir Arthur Witten Brown, K.B.E.

Captain Alcock's machine is said by experts to be better fitted for the long distance hop than was Hawker's, with one engine. Alcock's machine was two motors. Should accident cause one to stop working the other is sufficiently powerful to carry the plane.

The plane weighs about 1300 pounds. It carries 870 gallons of fuel and fifty gallons of lubricating oils.

The mail the plane is carrying was stowed away with the rest of the cargo. The mail is in a canvas bag made by a mother of one of the postal clerks in the central postoffice. Attached to the bag is a label reading 'On His Majesty's Service From Saint Johns N F For Postoffice London England.'

On the bag itself had been lettered 'By Vickers-Vimy-Rolls Airplane Trans-Atlantic Air Post 1919, J Alex Robinson, Postmaster General.' At the bottom of the bag appeared the request to 'Please return bag to J Alex Robinson.' The mail weighed two ounces over the four pounds as was agreed upon as the limit.

The entire town turned out to give the airmen a rousing send off. Every point of vintage was taken.

From London comes the word that the British Ministry has informed all vessels en route to keep a sharp lookout for Alcock.

The Vickers plane should reach Ireland about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Alcock is taking the hazardous course selected by Hawker."

An official report (that of the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs) in part read:—

"At 16.13 G M T, or 1.43 p.m. local time Saturday 14th of June Captain J Alcock D S C and Lieut. A W Browne, got away in a Vickers Vimy biplane on their successful flight across the Atlantic.

The wind at the time was from the westward and estimated to be blowing at the rate of about 40 miles an hour. The Vickers shot forward travelling at a speed of about 65 miles an hour, and after a run of some 250 yards rose in the air.

With the gale behind her and flying according to estimates 140 miles an hour the bomber flashed past the aerodrome out over Signal Hill, 150 feet above Cabot Tower and straight to the westward where she rapidly disappeared in the bank of haze."

Alcock's story as told by himself in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, was as follows. This narrative is reprinted here thru the courtesy of the Public Ledger Company:

"We had a terrible journey and the wonder is that we are here at all. We scarcely saw the moon and stars and for hours at a time saw neither of them. The fog was so dense that at times we had to come down to three hundred feet of the ocean.

For hours the machine was covered by a sheet of ice, that was carried by the frozen sleet. At another time the fog was so dense the speed indicator would not work and for a few minutes it looked very serious for us.

We looped the loop several times, I do believe, and did a very steep spiral as I have no sense of horizon.

The winds were favourable all the time, sometimes northwest and again southwest. We said in Newfoundland that we would do the trip in sixteen hours but I really never expected that we should.

An hour and a half before we saw land we had no idea of where we were, but believed that we were near Galway. Our delight at seeing Eastal Island and Turbot Island was great.

The people did not know who we were when we landed but thought that we were scouts out to look for Alcock. We encountered no unforeseen difficulties. We did not suffer from cold or exposure, except when we looked over the side, then the flying ice cut pieces out of our faces. We drank coffee and ate sandwiches and chocolate.

The flight has shown that the Atlantic flight is possible but I think that it should not be done in a seaplane or airplane but a flying boat. We had plenty of reserve fuel when we landed; we used but two-thirds of our supply. The only thing that upset me was to see the machine get damaged in the end. From above the bog looked like a nice smooth field but the machine sank into it to the axles and fell over on its nose."

Another and more detailed dispatch from England read:—

"London, June 15th— Captain John Alcock and Lieutenant Arthur W Brown in their Vickers Vimy biplane landed at Clifden, Ireland, this morning, completing the first nonstop aeroplane flight across the Atlantic. Their trip from St. John's, Newfoundland, was made in sixteen hours and twelve minutes. The landing was made at 5.40 o'clock British summer time. In taking the ground the machine struck heavily, and the fuselage ploughed itself into the ground. Neither of the occupants were injured."

The stamp used for mail carried on this trip was fifteen cent scarlet Cabot issue, overprinted in four lines,

"TRANS ATLANTIC
1919
ONE DOLLAR."

All mail bearing this stamp left Newfoundland the 14th (of June) and was delivered in London, and elsewhere in England, the 17th, three days later. The about "Queen Anne front and Mary Ann back" has just been resurrected in the Bureau of E. & P. at Wash., D. C.

While my very small supply lasts, I will sell the latest U. S. 10c Special Delivery—issue of August, 1921—with Blue Front and Red Back, unused, o. g., at $1 per copy—no blocks at any price to anyone—and will further offer to re-purchase within one year each and every copy sold by me at the same price, Provided, that purchasers reciprocate by giving me the option so to do.

Am informed only a few of these red backs will be issued, but, nevertheless, if they become as common as mud I'll buy 'em all back, so you are fully protected against loss and can't lose a nickel. Old customers given the preference—of course.

LAST CALL

For Bids For Our Fourth Auction Sale
October 4th, 1921.

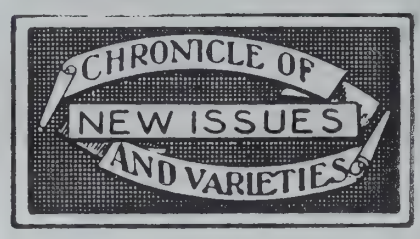
If you have not sent in your bids "do it now."

WHY NOT VISIT WASHINGTON DURING THE ARMAMENT LIMITATION CONFERENCE, AND Attend Our FIFTH Auction Sale, November 15th?

We extend a cordial invitation to make our offices your headquarters during your stay in the nation's capital.

THE STAMP SHOPPE, Inc.,

HARRY B. MASON, President. Rooms 300-301 1413 G St., N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C. ARTHUR M. McFADDEN, Secretary-Treasurer.



Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Mr. L. W. Robitaille sends me a clipping from the Sacramento Bee, dated Klamath Falls, Ore., September 5th, wherein the statement is made that two special stamps will be used to exploit the Pacific Highways Exposition which is to be held in Portland during 1925. On the one cent will appear the famous Crater Lake while on the two cent we will find an illustration of Mount Hood. No official confirmation of this information has been received but it is my opinion that this is the desire of the Exposition Committee, which was recently loaned several million by Congress and there is hardly a doubt but what a stamp or stamps will be issued in their behalf.

In the following year, 1926, Philadelphia will hold the sesquicentennial in commemoration of the Signing of the Declaration of Independence and it is to be hoped that a very beautiful series of postage stamps will be issued at that time. A picture of the signing as shown on the 24c 1869 would be most fitting for the 2c with a view of the world known Independence Hall on the 1c. Let us have several other values depicting scenes connected with the history making days of 1776.

In a recent Chronicle mention was made of several early covers in the collections of our readers showing the 90c rate abroad. Mr. Carroll Friswold states that he has recently acquired a cover showing three copies of the 1861 30c on a letter from Kansas to Germany.

Mr. Louis G. Barrett sends for inspection what seems to be a new circular die 1c green envelope on Kraft paper. The envelope in question is die A, size 5, with low back.

Regarding provisional 2c on 3c envelopes it is now necessary to change some of the designations in view of our knowing more about the uses of the several dies. What we formerly called the 3rd Washington will be known as Kansas City, for the die was only tried out in Washington and has been doing its main work in both Kansas City, Mo., as well as Kansas City, Kans. Louisville becomes Ithaca because the latter town used it first and for like reason Memphis becomes Nashville. In checking up these lists which now run close to twelve hundred varieties for those collecting sizes, watermarks and knives, special thanks are due Messrs. R. H. Mason and George P. Smith for sending quite a few unlisted varieties from several cities.

We wish to thank Messrs. E. H. Draper, C. A. Paige and A. W. Whitten for notes of interest.

AUSTRIA.—Mr. J. L. Riedel has sent us copies of four new high value stamps just issued in this country. They are the 3kr green and grey, 4kr bright red and maroon, 5kr lilac and maroon and 10kr violet and greenish blue. They are of the 1920 type being two shaded, the Arms and figures of value being printed in the second operation.

BULGARIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. submit to us three values of stamps of oblong shape issued by this country. They are 10c violet black, 20c green and 75c lilac brown. They are of different subjects and perforated 12.

CAMEROUN.—Mr. Brun advises that a new set of stamps has just appeared. The stamps of Middle Congo have been overprinted at the bottom with the word "Cameroun" in plain straight capitals, but all the colors of all values are entirely changed as follows: 1c olive and orange, 2c brown and pink, 4c grey and green, 5c scarlet and orange, 10c dark green and pale green, 15c dark blue and orange, 20c lake and grey brown, 25c black and orange, 30c red and scarlet, 35c grey and ultramarine, 40c olive and orange, 45c brown and pink, 50c blue and ultramarine, 75c lake and grey green, 1fr black and orange, 2frs olive and carmine, 5frs scarlet and slate. The first color mentioned is that of the frame.

DANZIG.—Mr. J. L. Reidel advises that a new set of Official stamps have just been issued consisting of 14 values. The design is the same as the postage stamps of the last issue with the letters "D M" in the four corners. These letters stand for Dienstmarke.

POLAND.—Mr. C. Chead, of Norwich, tells us that he possesses a mint copy of the 5f on 5f green "White Cross" stamp gummed on face as well as back (same flavour!).

The Times for July 4th says: "Poland is the latest country to provide dist[inct] stamps for the air post service. Te[st] sign of the 25 mark stamp represen[ts] aeroplanes encircling the envir[ons] Posen, while that of the 100 [mark] printed in dark blue, depicts a [flying] machine flying low over the ro[ofs] the city. Both stamps are in[scribed] 'Aero-Targ-Poznan, 1921.' " The[Times] illustrates them.

The 25 mark is in black and [red] and the 100 mark in black and[blue] they were issued at Posen late [in] July for use in connexion with the W[arsaw]-Cracow-Lodz aerial mail serve[ce]. Stamp Collecting.

ROUMANIA.—Mr. Arthur W. [Rob]child kindly points out a slight [discre]ancy in our previous paragra[ph] Roumania, where the 3 bani val[ue] referred to as having been with[drawn] whereas it is the 5 bani which [was] tended to indicate. The denomi[nations] which have become obsolete are [the] bani, the 5, 10, 15, 25, and 40 ba[ni] the green 1 leu.

Our Sofia correspondent learn[s] Roumania has been much impress[ed] the handsome philatelic picture [al]produced by Messrs. Bradbury, [Wil]son & Co., for Bulgaria, and has [placed] an order with the London firm [for] somewhat similar series; this new[s], however, should not be accepted definitely the moment.

The Echo de la Timbrologie illus[trates] the design of the "Social Assi[stant]" stamps, which have just appeared: shows a woman sheltering an old [man] her right arm and extending her l[eft] child. The series comprises nine [values] ranging from 10 bani to 50 lei, of [which] only the 10 bani (green) is availa[ble] postal use.—Stamp Collecting.

TRANS-JORDAN.—Messrs. Bright[man] send us the following information [that] may interest your readers to kno[w] we have received the 1 mill. Tran[s]-Jordan perf. 14 with overprint inver[ted]

FENNELL'S NEXT BIG AUCTION

All stamps have been classified according to condition. Part I contains thousands of old stamps in fine condition only. When Fennell says "fine", they are fine. If you're a condition crank, here are selected copies only. Your name on your business letterhead will bring a Catalog.

Part II is composed entirely of a large number of lots by countries. Every stamp is perfect. Of interest to dealers—small and large. Get your name on our list.

Every stamp which is damaged in any way, or average condition, is included in a separate part. Some of these are excellent buys, and can be secured at prices that make them still better buys.

WORTHINGTON WINS IN STAMP SUIT

In 1916, Mrs. Alice F. Halladay of Buffalo, N. Y., entered suit against H. B. McGraw, as Assignee of Geo. H. Worthington, to foreclose a mortgage amounting to $337,500.00 and accrued interest upon the Worthington stamp collection, the physical custody of a portion of which was in her possession, while that of the remainder was in the possession of Warren H. Colson of Boston. This litigation resulted in the establishment of Mrs. Halladay's mortgage lien and at its conclusion she advertised the collection for public sale, but before the sale was consummated, McGraw, as Assignee, tendered to her the full amount of the lien with interest, and asked for the return of the collection. She was unable to return the entire collection because a portion of it was in the hands of Colson who claimed a lien on it for $100,000 for services claimed to have been rendered by reason of an alleged contract for the exclusive sale of the collection. Such of the collection as Mrs. Halladay could return to McGraw were sold by McGraw to Alfred Lichtenstein; and as against the stamps in Colson's hands and the proceeds of sales thereof, Mrs. Halladay and McGraw contracted to deposit $101,000.00 in a bank in Buffalo in escrow to await the determination of the question as to whether: (a) Colson had a valid claim by reason of the sales agency contract above referred to; and (b) whether it was for Mrs. Halladay or for McGraw to get from Colson the stamps and money in his hands; and (c) whether or not it was requisite for McGraw to pay the attorney's fees of Mrs. Halladay in the foreclosure suit.

The Court of Appeals in Albany has just held: (a) that Colson has no claim for commissions under the alleged contract for sale of the stamps above referred to; (b) that it is for the Halladay Estate to recover from Colson stamps and money in Colson's possession; and (c) that the Halladay Estate must pay its own attorney's fees in the foreclosure suit.

McGraw, Assignee, is awarded outright about $45,000 of the fund deposited, and is awarded the remainder, i. e., $55,000, excepting to the extent that the Halladay Estate is able to redeliver to McGraw, stamps belonging to the Worthington Collection and now in Colson's hands or in the registry of the court at Buffalo.

The decision just rendered by the Court of Appeals affirms the decision of the two lower courts to the effect that Colson had no claim against McGraw, Assignee, for services under the contract above referred to, made with Mr. Worthington as agent for Mrs. Halladay for the sale of the Worthington Collection.—American Philatelist.

TRUTHS FROM THE PHILATELIST'S CREED

By L. H. BRIGHAM.

Remember, my collector friend, that:—
The actual value of your entire collection depends not so much on how many stamps you possess, what stamps you possess, or how you have them, as it does upon the condition of the stamps that you do possess.
These need not be unused, but they should at least be good, clean, bright-appearing, well-centered copies; free of all tears, missing perforations, thinned spots and other faults which place them in the inferior and to-be-avoided class of specimens.
Fully as much attention should be paid to raising the quality and bettering the condition of the stamps you already have by continual replacing with better specimens, as one pays to the securing of new and additional items to increase the size of the collection.
In stamps, as in other and more concrete examples of life, great size in one's collection is not always to be desired above other and more valued requisites.
It should be remembered that:—
At the auction the highest prices paid, whether for single copies or entire collections, are paid for—CONDITION.
At the exhibit the visitor views many collections but he is provoked into expressions of admiration by the collection which shows—CONDITION.
The judges base the award of the prizes on—CONDITION.
Interest in the subject is aroused in others by the inviting appearance of one's collection, which is due to a combination of clean, attractive looking stamps, plus their arrangement. This is nothing more or less than—CONDITION.
Inferior copies detract from the appearance of a collection to such an extent that one poor specimen alone can spoil what might otherwise be an entirely immaculate and complete page of beautifully conditioned stamps—in fact, a blank space is to be much preferred.
There is a time-worn satirical adage to the effect that "Position is Everything".
Every real philatelist will some time realize that although this statement may be true, there is also a far greater truth to be accepted and that is that—"CONDITION is Everything".

THE FRANKFORT MATCH STAMPS.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

William Gates and William Gates' Sons.

Parts of the Gates factory are still standing in Frankfort. The original twelve-foot-square factory erected in 1844 stood on the bank of the Erie Canal, but the later factory was on Litchfield Street, about forty rods south of the original site. Some of the buildings have been altered and at the present time are occupied by the Litchfield Paper Company. A history of Herkimer County, published by F. W Beers & Co., 36 Vesey Street, New York, in 1879, contains a large full page view of the factory opposite page 139, and in the lower corner of the view is a portrait and fac-simile signature of William Gates. The portrait greatly resembles the one shown on all the Frankfort stamps and quite possibly both were taken from the same source. The following account of the Gates factory is taken from page 139 of that history, and no doubt the statements given were obtained from the proprietors of the firm at that time.

The first matches were cut by hand with an implement somewhat similar to a plane, which would make about three at a time, some three in length. These were cut in pieces twice the required length of the matches, dipped in bunches in melted sulphur, then put by hand into frames which held them with the ends apart for dipping in the deflagrating compound. Then they were taken from the frame, cut in the middle, put in hand-made boxes, and peddled in small quantities in the vicinity of Frankfort and Utica. Mr. Gates also made what were termed block matches: which were in blocks that had been split but not separated. They were dipped a block at a time and the matches torn from the blocks as they were used. They were sold at about ten times the prices which matches now bring (1879!).

It must be remembered that at the time friction matches had but recently been invented, and no machinery for their manufacture was known. Recognizing the necessity for such machinery, Mr. Gates from time to time applied himself to the invention of what would facilitate his work, as did also his sons. The result is the almost perfect machinery by which the material is taken from the hands of tenders, and the matches ready for boxing returned: and also the machinery by which the material for boxes is taken, and the boxes ready for filling given back. Mr. Gates early developed what has always been the motto of this factory, "none better". The result has been a constantly increasing demand for these matches, which has necessitated enlargements of the factory. Eight such enlargements and additions have been made, and now, instead of a twelve-foot-square building, the works include nineteen buildings, with 34,718 square feet of floor room.

The machinery of this factory is driven by the water of Moyer Creek, assisted by a 40 h. p. engine. The annual consumption of lumber is 1,776,800 feet. Of this 1,126,800 feet are for matches alone. Of sulphur 360,000 lbs., or 180 tons, are annually used. For small boxes 48,000 lbs. of paper per year are used; and 130 tons of strawboard are manufactured into large boxes. A few years since three hundred hands were employed in this factory; but labor-saving machinery has been introduced till no more than half that number are now required, though the business has steadily increased.

The annual production is 375,600 gross, reckoning 100 as a unit. They are sold in all parts of the United States, from Maine to Texas. The present firm name, William Gates' Sons, was adopted August 1, 1877, soon after the death of William Gates, Sr.

Wm. Gates.

210 stamps per sheet (14x15).

The design forms an upright rectangle of the usual 1c size, and in the central portion bears a colorless circle containing a nearly full face portrait of William Gates upon a shaded background. The frame is almost identical with that of the Kyle and Messinger match stamps. At the top a colorless label curved downwards and inscribed "One Cent" is placed between two large acanthus ornaments, which may be said to form the ends of an inverted horseshoe, the lower curve of which encloses the central portrait and is labeled "U. S. Inter." reading upwards at left, "Revenue" reading downwards at the right and "Wm. Gates" below. At the bottom a colorless label reading "Matches" is placed between two ornamental scrolls, each of which encloses the numeral 1. A crescent shaped space between the curve of the horseshoe and the central portrait is filled in with horizontal shaded lines in pairs, and at the bottom just over the name Wm. Gates is placed a narrow colorless curved panel inscribed "Frankfort, N. Y." The design is rather pleasing and would be even more pleasing had it been printed in some other color than a sombre black.

There are two dies of this stamp and regarding them the Boston Book states:

"There is no way of separating the stamps printed from these two plates. Die 1 was undoubtedly the first as it is by far the most common on old paper; in fact Die 2 on old paper is quite rare. It will also be noticed that Die 2 corresponds exactly with the Wm. Gates' Sons stamp, which also goes to prove that it was the later of the two."

This statement is quite correct, except in the use of the word "plates". Certainly there must have been more than two plates for these stamps. The quantity issued on old paper would indicate about eight plates and the quantity issued on silk paper would indicate about seven plates, or fifteen plates in all. As Die 1 is quite common on both old and silk papers and Die 2 is also common on silk paper, but rare on old paper, it would appear that none of the plates from Die 2 were made until just before the silk paper came into use, and that one or more plates of Die 1 were in use after the first plate of Die 2 came into use. As a matter of fact part of the data given in the Boston Book regarding the dates of issue can hardly be correct, for either the quantity issued on silk paper must have been considerably larger than the amount given in the Boston Book, or else the date when last issued given there, viz., August,1875, cannot be correct. There is a gap of two years after August, 1875, in which the Boston Book gives no records of any 1c stamps, yet the Gates factory was in continuous operation, and between August, 1875, and September, 1877, when the Wm. Gates' Sons 1c stamp appeared, millions of the Wm. Gates 1c stamps must have been used.

Die 2 is evidently a re-engraving of Die 1. Most of the differences consist of additional fine lines in many parts of the design, or a re-cutting of fine lines into heavier ones. The differences between the two dies are readily noticed.

On Die 1 the shirt collar has no shading, except for two very faint lines at the extreme back on the left side. These are so faint as hardly to be seen without a strong glass. On Die 2 there are three strong shade lines on the left collar at the back, and several short lines on the right point of the collar. The colorless circle on Die 1 surrounding the portrait appears about twice as wide as the circle on Die 2, because on the latter a circle of color has been added. The pairs of horizontal shade lines between the portrait circle and the adjoining labels on Die 1 have been closed together, and each pair on Die 2 appears as a single heavy line, each of which has a fine point of color between it and its neighbor at the left end. On Die 2 also the color line at the edge of the stamp outside of "U. S. Inter." is much heavier than the similar line at the right side outside of "Revenue", whereas on Die 1 these two lines are of approximately equal thickness. On Die 1 the curved label reading "Frankfort, N. Y." is closed by a single short curved line at either end. On Die 2 much heavier curved lines are found there. There are many other differences of similar character. In each instance, however, the difference between the dies indicates that the second die was merely an elaboration of the first, and we do not find any lines on the first die that are not present in some form on the second die.

All of the 1c Wm. Gates stamps issued up to August, 1875, were printed in Philadelphia from plates engraved there by the Carpenter firm. Those issued after August, 1875, may be assigned to the National Bank Note Company. Probably all of the later printings were from Die 2, as it seems likely that all of the Die 1 plates would have been worn out before 1875.

R-34 England to America, and Return.

next month, July, we witnessed rival of the British dirigible R-34. r American bound trip she carried cial mail but on the return voyage d forty pounds.

giant gas-bag had a rough time while in America, arriving here at on of the year when stiff breezes over New York Bay and vicinity. at Long Island, her station, a nt watch had to be maintained, and es when the gale increased a thou- soldiers (called from a nearby g camp) and civilians were called hold down the dirigible.

left Britain July 2nd and arrived ay of Nova Scotia) in New York th, and left for "home" four days rriving in England July 13th.

uncertain atmospherical conditions side hastened her departure from Island. Homeward bound, she om the flying field shortly before ht of July Ninth, and amid the glare of many searchlights, encircled the Woolworth Building, passed over the Knickerbocker City, and turning her nose towards England, left "the States" for Skipper Captain Scott's "Home Sweet Home."

A dispatch of the day appearing in the New York Tribune in part read:—

"About forty pounds of official mail were stowed aboard the dirigible including gold medals of the Aero Club of America awarded to aviators Alcock and Brown, for making the first non-stop trans-Atlantic 'hop' to the British Isles from America."

The mail thus carried needed no special stamps or postmarks. The newly reduced two cent rate was sufficient, and all that was required, however, was that the letter be marked "By R-34 British Dirigible," in a prominent place.

The R-34 too has met misfortune. This gaint "gas-bag" valued at $1,000,000, is now a complete wreck, lying at her aerodrome at Howden, broken in two, after a collision with a Yorkshire Hill.

French Ace to Try South Atlantic.

Every couple of months we hear rumours and reports of various companies and individuals, among the latter are included an aviatrice or two, who would venture to cross the Atlantic at different places.

What we believe to be the latest we translate from a dispatch sent to an English daily, by their Paris correspondent:

"Le Figaro today publishes an article announcing that Lieutenant Roget, the French Ace who made the first non-stop flight across the Mediterrean and return, will fly from Paris to Rio de Janeiro with only three stops en route He will use an ordinary Breguet biplane of two hundred horse power. His stops will be at Magador, on the Morocco coast; Dakar, on the Senegal coast; and Pernambuco, and thence from there to Rio, the Capital.

Le Figaro also adds that conflicting reports are current in the French Capitol concerning the postal activities of the proposed flight. One is that the French Postal Commission have given their consent for mail transit thus, while the other is that the higher heads of the French Government consider it entirely too dangerous to risk the peoples and the Government's correspondence."

Conclusion.

Philatelists can have the pleasure of knowing that it is the mails that is going to promote the aerial travel commercially.

When the airplane "business" has reached the next stage of perfection, it will be the mails that will be the indirect cause of reducing of the passenger and freight tariffs. This will result in more patrons; more revenue; soon the business will outgrow its original bounds, and new and no doubt better plans will be made to meet the demand.

The mail contracts will do the trick As we already know the Post Office Department when contracting with steamship and railroad companies, always pay for more space than is actually used.

When the steam train was first put in operation here in America, Amos Kendall, then the Postmaster-General, hesitated patronizing it, because they would go too fast to make connexions with stage coaches. The Postal Administrations the world over, hesitate sinking money in the new propositions, and thus it is with the airmail. When the efficiency of the airplane is proven the governments will take to it like they did to the steamship and railroad train.

The prices paid by the postal authorities will pay the running costs of the lines, and the passenger and express revenues will be clear profit. The latter rates will soon come down; then the postal ones will do likewise. In this way aerial commerce will gain headway with terrific momentum until the companies operating aerial carriers will be as many as those managing the ocean lines, and the rates will be as cheap, proportionately. Of course a difference between the two will always exist because where speed is guaranteed (take for instance the U. S. Special Delivery service), the price is just slightly advanced.

A British plan now in-the-making is to join Britain with the African, Asiatic, and Australian possessions. The route extends from London to Cairo, (with branches for the Cape), to Calcutta, (with a Hong Kong spur); and on down the Malay peninsula to Australia. If this is established a Canadian or U. S. company will establish a trans-Pacific, and trans-Atlantic service and we will have the world encircled.

Of course all of this is going to take time and money for experiments, surveys, estimates, and many obstacles will have to be overcome, so all we can do is to be patient and when the deal is in shape, then BOOST.

The End.

ORIGINALS AND REPRINTS.

By Donald E. Eastlake.

We hope to see a new Commemorative series of United States stamps in 1926, the year that Philadelphia plans to hold the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition. As the name implies, the Exposition will be in celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Surely a good design for one of the stamps would be an engraving of the State House, our "Shrine of Liberty." Its architectural beauty is worthy of the honor.

It seems to us that a competition for the designs for the series of stamps would be a good thing. At least it would do no harm.

It is recalled that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing has not always succeeded in turning out pleasing designs. They seem to run to "mob scenes," as the movie people say. The number of people and objects they crowd into a small space is truly marvelous, if not desirable.

Stamps that are clean-cut in appearance, such as the one cent Pilgrim, are what we would like. We gave the Bureau the score of one when that happened.

And we always like a few of them well centered. (Bureau of Engraving and Printing please note.)

Everytime we browse through a bunch of Pilgrims, looking for well centered copies, we agree with ourselves that the Bureau doubtless insists upon cross-eyed employes to operate the perforating machines.

We suspicion that Ben Turpin has a night job with them!

Just look atta couple of Pilgrims and see if you don't agree with us. The Pilgrims may have been straightlaced, but that didn't help the stamp perforations.

Oh, Pilgrim Fathers! What crimes the engravers have committed in thy name!

The way of the perforation guesser is hard.

Almost impossible, in fact.

"Ludwig sets", reads an advertisement. Rotten grammar.

"What have you?" asks another advertiser in Mekeel's. Well, we have a Coney Island yearning, a South Sea Island wardrobe, a touch of hook-worm, and enough work work to keep our nose to the grindstone until winter, and no one to even help turn the grindstone.

For the best contribution received by noon of January 17th, 1936, we will give one original Japanese revenue stamp, so neatly mended that the tear is hardly noticeable.

AUSTRIAN P. O. IN THE LEVA

An interesting method of sta lecting is the one which has com cially to the foreground in the l years. This method consists of collecting the stamps of the di countries but also the postmark go with them. It is evident t such a collector an English stam the postmark "Malta", "Bushi "Valparaiso", a French stamp w postmark "Beyrouth" or "Salonik Austrian with the postmark "Be or "Mainz" would have much value than dozens of similar with English, French or Austria marks on them. The guild of s lectors is large everywhere, in fac larger than most philatelists thin the demand for such postmarked is very extensive.

One of the most interesting ter in this respect is old Turkey anc cially the old postmarks of the A Levant post offices which are now the preference among such colle

There are still quite incorrect a views concerning these old A post offices in the Levant. It wou haps be desirable to speak of t this point.

The first Austrian Levant post as far as can be learned, was esta about the middle of the eighteen tury (before 1740) in Constant This was in connection with th trian Diplomatic Mission there, a later was officially designated Diplomatic Mission Post Office.

About the same time around 1 Austrian Post expedition was s Krajova (Small Wallachia) and the end of the eighteenth century followed in Salonika.

These post offices were like much all around especially as the T mail service was very poor (there Turkish post offices at all accord our present day conceptions) an ness men from all countries a consulates of other nations us Austrian Post Offices for safety and promptness of delivery.

Acting on these good results on the one hand and on the general demand and need for orderly mail connections on the other, the Austrian Postal Authorities established post offices also in other important commercial centers of the Levant, so that their number, about the middle of the nineteenth century, was considerable.

In all important parts of the Aegean, Mediterranean and Black Seas, in which the ships of the Austrian Lloyd stopped regularly, they established such Lloyd Agencies, as they were then called, which were agencies for the Company and also took care of the mail service on the Company's own ships. Only much later was mail carried on ships of other foreign nations.

Although Austrian post offices were established only in the ship stations of the Lloyd and in a few cities of the inland, up to the middle of the nineteenth century, the Crimean War, in 1854, having resulted in the Austrian Military Occupation of the Danube provinces, Moldan and Wallachia, the post offices in this then Turkish territory were made considerably more numerous.

"Feldposts" were founded in all the more important localities, important, that is, from a military standpoint, in Bucharest, Jassy, Braila, Galatz, then in Krajova, Ploesti, Pilesti, Slatina, Focsani, Giurgin, Buzen, Tckuci, Berlad, Waslui, Roman, Bakeu, and finally in Folticeni also.

Austrian Consulate post offices existed already in Crajova, Bucharest, Jassv, Giurgevo, Galatz, Braila, Botosani.

The Field Post Offices first took care of the mail service for the troops only; later they also established mail service for the civilian population in places where there were no Consular Post Offices.

The post marks of the "Feldpost" were very variable; some had only the inscription "Feldpost" with a number, some beside the word "Feldpost" the name of the place as Galatz, Pileschti, Ploeschti, is also mentioned.

Later the custom of putting stamps on letters was established and for this purpose the Lombard-Venice issue (soldi stamps) were used in Constantinople, Alexandria, Rustchuk, Czernavoda and Constanza.

In the year of 1854 the Austrian Army of Occupation was withdrawn from the Danube provinces and the Military Post Offices were discontinued. In most places State Civilian Offices were opened which continued their activities in Roumania up to 1869, at which date the Roumanian Government took over the mail service.

The Austrian Post Offices in the other cities of European and Asiatic Turkey remained open longer and their discontinuance was gradual. Only on Sept. 30, 1914, have all foreign post offices, and among them the Austrians, finally stopped their service in Turkey. For some years previously no more new foreign post offices had been allowed to be opened on Turkish soil.

The postmarks of the Austrian Post Offices in the Levant had the most variable forms during the whole period; the names and inscriptions changed repeatedly.

Many of these postmarks on stamps are very rare. This is especially true of the post offices of Port Said, which was open for a short time only, and of the Lloyd Post Office of Corfu.

I have not seen at all the marks of the Consulate Post Offices in Bakeu, Berlad, Piatra, Roman, or Tckutsch.

An especially interesting postmark is "Salonichi Mi", which for a short time before the outbreak of the World War was used by the Austro-Hungarian Consulate General in Mitrovitza for the marking of the letters posted there.—Berliner Briefmarken Zeitung.

THE FORTUNES OF FERRARY.

By FRED J. MELVILLE.

BRITISH GUIANA.

The strength of the collection in the early stamps of this colony is due to certain highly interesting purchases in the 'seventies, and to the acquisition of the Philbrick collection with the rich store of these stamps which had enabled Mr. Philbrick, under the pseudonyms "Damus petimusque vicissim" and "An Amateur" to write the first detailed and precise history of the stamps of British Guiana. A few like the first and most notable item sold in June were of more recent purchase.

In the first circular issue we know that Ferrary had at least five of the rarest, the 2 cents on rose, but we also know that he had two pairs. If five were the sum total, four are accounted for by the two pairs, leaving but one single. As there are only ten copies of the stamp known, Ferrary therefore possessed half of them at the time of his death. Mr. Duveen had a third pair, the British Museum collection contains one, and the other two copies, although we know not their present location, passed through Ferrary's possession, one to Mr. Ridpath in 1878 and the other to the brothers Caillebotte about 1884. No doubt the former was arranged as a swap with Mr. Ridpath for the better copy which still remains in the collection in Paris. Thus, except for a pair and one single, Ferrary at one time or another had the entire supply known to exist of these stamps.

THE £5,250 PAIR.

It was one of his late acquisitions the pair on original letter sold in June for 210,000 francs, which with the tax brought the price paid by M. Burrus, the new owner, to £5250. It is the finest of the three pairs known, and Ferrary must have paid about £1500 for it in 1900 or soon after. His other pair had cost him only £175 in 1890, but it was a very poor pair compared with this one.

Most of these stamps were sent over from the colony by Mr. E. C. Luard. He secured all the three pairs known. The first in 1889 he sold to Pemberton, Wilson & Co., and that is the one they sold to Ferrary for £175.

The second pair, now in the collection left by the late Mr. H. J. Duveen, is the one donated to Christ Church, Demerara, by an old lady. The true history of this extraordinary church offering is this. The incumbent, Ven Archdeacon Josa, was raising funds for the church restoration, and one old lady, unable to give cash, presented an old 4 cents blue stamp of 1852 as her offering. On Easter Monday, 1896, the Archdeacon called to thank the good lady for the stamp which had realised $33.60. He was invited to make a search among the lady's old correspondence when he found the envelope bearing the two 2 cents stamps of 1850. The lady presented the stamps for the Church fund and would not accept any portion of the amount they realised. "Not a penny, sir, these stamps were reserved for my dear old church." They fetched $1005 and the account of the collection in the Parish Magazine shows that the lady's gift was the most generous offering of all received.

It is:

Three used Postage Stamps sold for	$1,038.60
Fifteen $5 cheques	75.00
Two cheques	44.00
Gold	7.20
Silver	197.12
Copper	34.63
Value of plants sold	4.08
	$1400.63

Mr. Luard was the buyer at $1005 (£205); he sold the pair to Gibbons for £600, who sold it to Mr. Duveen.

The third pair, the one M. Burrus has just acquired, was obtained by Mr. Luard in 1897 and sold by him to Gibbons for £650. It then passed through several hands in Germany to a Russian nobleman, who, however, had to give up stamp collecting in 1899 on account of failing eyesight. Paul Kohl of Chemnitz obtained it and sold it back to Messrs. Gibbons who apparently sold it to Ferrary.

FERRARY'S SINGLE 2 CENTS CIRCULAR.

Ferrary's single copy was found in the colony by Mr. Neil M'Kinnon, in 1877;

H. F. COLMAN

SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C.

he sold it to Mr. Ridpath of Liverpool, who appears to have arranged to let Ferrary have this one in October, 1878, and took back the one he had sold to him the previous year, and which was the earliest copy found of this stamp, the existence of which was only a vague tradition prior to 1877. That first copy, eagerly snapped up by Ferrary, was soon followed by three others found in the same year, and which probably came off the same letter, and they were looked upon with scepticism by many as it was known that the lowest ordinary postal rate was four cents. The mystery of what the 2 cents was required for, namely, a charge for local delivery in Georgetown, was not cleared up for some years after. A long interval elapsed before the discovery of any more, the first Ferrary pair found in 1889 being the next. The remaining finds of this stamp after the first four singles were all in pairs, as they were used to prepay the ordinary 4 cents postage in the Colony.

Over 100 Other "Circulars."

Of the other values in this interesting issue, Ferrary possessed a surprising array; Mr. C. J. Phillips, in the London Philatelist puts the total number of specimens of the 4c, 8c and 12 cents at "over 100 stamps, all fine, with several pairs." The information I got in Paris suggests that the total is considerably over the 100, albeit there were but seven of them in the sale last June. Such a quantity in one collection is astounding; they mostly came out of the wonderful "finds" of early Guianas in 1877 and 1878, prior to which time scarcely a dozen copies of all these values were known.

The values in this set are 4 cents black on orange, or on lemon yellow, 8 cents black on green, and 12 cents black on blue; in each case the shade of the paper varies a good deal. A very nice copy of the 4 cents on orange, cut octagonally (they are usually cut round) was bought by M. Burrus for £113. Another copy, but on yellow, and not such an attractive copy, brought £36. The 8 cents on green, a fine clear copy, cut circular but well clear of the impression, fetched £78, and a poor copy of the same stamp brought £31. The 12c on blue, the cheapest of these rare stamps brought £25, but the superb pair of the 12 cents, brought £316, about six times Gibbons 1920 quotation of £25 per used single copy.

The British Guiana "Finds."

I am not one of those who think that a stamp dealer is a charlatan whose one and only business is to take buyer and seller in, and it is pleasant to recall a little incident of the circular Guianas at the time of the big "finds." Those "finds," the story of which must some day be reconstructed in the historic records of our hobby, entirely revolutionised the old collectors' notions of the rarer Guianas. They were all but unknown on the market until those two or three caches of them were unearthed in 1877 and 1878. They were so rare that that early philatelic genius, and one of the finest characters among the "Marchands de timbres poste d'autrefois" having obtained five circulars on thin paper, and believing them to be "impossibles" (a word used to imply that they were to all intents and purposes, unobtainable in any but the richest collections) asked and obtained the fabulous price of £84 for two of them! The sequel came with the "finds"; when they occurred Pemberton, the father of the present chief of that ilk, went to his customer, and in view of the discovery of so many copies, desired to put the transaction upon a proper footing, an example of good faith for which, as Philbrick said, among many other qualities his name is held dear to us.

There is an interesting pair of the 12 cents circular on indigo blue paper in the Tapling collection, one unit of which was formerly in Ferrary's collection. The two stamps which were originally obtained by Pemberton had been irregularly torn apart, but there could be no question that they had been a pair. One was sold to the late W. E. Image and the other to Philbrick in 1878; after Ferrary had bought the Philbrick collection he parted with his copy to Tapling, who bought the Image collection in 1882, and the pair were put together again.

The "Patimus" Issue.

In the next issue, 1851, quaint London-printed stamp with the Latin error "patimus" for "petimus," the choicest item was a remarkable strip of four, probably unique, of the 1 cent black on magenta, used with four postmarks. The Gibbons quotation is £20 per stamp, but this unique piece went to an American collector for £386. A single copy of the 4 cents black on blue of this issue brought £62, while a superb pair secured by the aforementioned American collector brought £208.

Some interesting items in the 1853 issue included the 1c without white line under the oval (3 copies) and three shades of the variety with the white line and a strip of four used on letter. There were also several copies of the 4c. and a very interesting strip of four showing two stamps with and two without the white line.

The "Unique" Stamp.

Coming to the other great rarity issue, the type-set stamps of 1856, the Ferrary copies are of exceptional quality. In their perfect state, according to Mr. Philbrick, these stamps have a margin of considerable width, and the copies in the first portion of the collection demonstrate this to the full as my illustrations show. The unique Ferrarity, the 1 cent of this issue, long known as the rarest of stamps, was not in the sale. In Paris a number of dealers and collectors, for reasons best known to themselves, were arousing doubts as to the genuineness of this unique stamp, as well as certain other items; some openly declared it to be a fake made from a genuine 4 cents. That is only one of a hundred tales which various parties are uttering about items in this collection, for what purpose I will not venture to decide. To me, who has never owned a circular or an oblong type-set Guiana, pedigree counts, and the Ferrarities have all their pedigrees, in the which I have steeped myself; where I cannot have the stamps I can yet have the knowledge of them and their histories, a possession not marketable perhaps, but none the less precious to the philatelic antiquarian. One can know and appreciate stamps one n interview with the "finder of rest stamp in the world," in the Guiana Philatelic Journal, it is have been found by Mr. L. Veraughan in 1873, and sold by him to Mr. N. R. M'Kinnon, in whose on it remained "for near ten years it found a purchaser for £25 in the London merchants." This statement is not strictly correct. 'Kinnon sent his collecion to a ondent, Mr. Wylie Hill, in Glas- sell for him in 1878. The cor- dent offered it to Edward Pem- but through illness or other ac- he did not close with the offer, . Hill then offered it to a number r dealers by the same post. Mr. s Ridpath of Liverpool got his t a quarter to five one day and by hat night was en route for Glas- where he acquired the collection the next day. (It had, I believe, ffered to Pemberton for £110). lection contained Ferrary's single f the 2 cents circular, already ed, and amongst numerous other ly Guianas, the celebrated unique he 1 cent of 1856. It is black on paper.

FINDING OF THE UNIQUE GUIANA.

erton, who saw this One Cent stamp, wrote of it to Philbrick:

"ONE CENT red, 1856!!! as genuine as anything ever was."

And further:

"This one cent, '56, red is queer, no doubt went with the 4c. blue—nothing unlikely in that; it was a dreadfully poor copy."

Pemberton fully believed in it; Philbrick was not so clearly satisfied. "Having examined it myself, I regret I must agree with him that the copy is very poor. The shade of colour is neither full not bright; the appearance is as if it had been washed out; while the value is not clearly legible."

Mr. E. D. Bacon, in the Philatelic Society's work "West Indies" (1891) also affirms his belief in the stamp. He says:

"While in Paris, I had a long-wished-for opportunity of examining the only known copy of the one cent of this issue, of which Herr P. von Ferrary is the fortunate possessor. Doubts have more than once been expressed about the 'face' value of this stamp, but after a most careful inspection I have no hesitation whatever in pronouncing it a thoroughly genuine one cent specimen. The copy is a poor one, dark magenta in colour, but somewhat rubbed."

If and when the stamp comes up for auction it will attract a vast deal of interest, and in spite of the poorness of the copy it will no doubt realise a very fancy figure.

THE FOUR CENTS, 1856.

Of the four cents stamps of this issue Ferrary must have possessed a large number. They exist printed on magenta and on blue surface-coloured papers, and on blue paper coloured right through. The magenta specimens are the more plentiful, and here again there are wide variations in the colour of the paper.

The first of the two copies illustrated is a very fine one, described by M. Gilbert as on carmine. It bears the initials C.A.W. (C. A. Watson, a letter carrier) and as my picture shows has very large margins. Mr. Burrus bought this at £185. The second copy, initialled E.D. W., has ample margins, is nicely postmarked, and was purchased by M. Th. Champion at £151.

The next item, a superb pair of these, with initials E.D.W. and bearing a very early postmark February 22, 1856, was sold to Mr. Caspary for £248.

The stamp on blue paper is much rarer than that on the red, but the dark colour of the paper makes it difficult to present a satisfactory illustration. A fine copy of the 4c on blue, initialled E.D.W. on piece of original, was bought by Mr. Caspary for just £1150. It was a wonderful copy of this stamp. Another copy, with clipped corners, fetched £141. These were but a couple of specimens of the blue stamp out of a score in the collection.

HAWAIIAN MISSIONARIES.

Of the rare "Missionary" stamps of Hawaii, 1851, so called because most of the copies known were found on letters sent home by missionaries to the Sandwich Islands, Ferrary possessed about two score. The late Mr. Tapling possessed a dozen, and the late Mr. Crocker in his fine specialised collection had sixteen. All four stamps are of great rarity, but the 2 cents stands out as one of the rarest stamps in the world, equal to the 2 cents circular Guiana stamp. There are ten copies known, and Ferrary had four of them, two of which are said to be unused.

There are two types of each of the values in this set, and of the 2 cents I believe only three are known of type I; the other seven are type II.

The principal difference between the two types is that in type I the P of "Postage" is further away from the left-hand frame line than in type II, where the "P" is squarely under the "H" of Hawaiian. Ferrary probably did not possess a copy of type I; the only copies I know of these are:

1. Tapling Collection.
2. Crocker Collection.
3. Mirabaud Collection (specimen cut into.)

I do not know whither the Mirabaud copy went; it was a lightly postmarked copy but had half the frame cut away at the S.E. corner.

The seven copies of type II are, or were recently, in the following collections:

4. Ferrary.
7. Burrus (ex Ferrary).
8. Tapling.
9. Worthington (used on cover with 5c.).
10. Reichspostmuseum, Berlin.

A PERFECT COPY OF A GREAT RARITY.

The Ferrary copy of the 2 cents sold in Paris in June was an exceptionally good one; it is used, lightly postmarked in blue, which scarcely shows in the photograph. Mr. Burrus secured this treasure, for which he paid £3900, the highest price yet paid for any single stamp.

Other pretty copies of this issue were the 5c and the two kinds of 13c. "Hawaiian Postage" and "H.I. and U.S."

But one of the most interesting of the Hawaiian items was an example of the scarce manuscript surcharge of 1853, 5c on 13c, used on the original envelope with a 12c U.S. stamp. This is the pen-written surcharge which figures as No. 8 in Gibbons, where it is quoted at £15 unused or used. It is not a particularly tempting item unused, but used as on this letter it attracted some keen bidding and fetched about £185.

MAURITIUS.

At one time or another Ferrary had no fewer than seven copies of the famous "Post Office" Mauritius, of which five or six are still in the collection. Of these he had one of the two known unused copies of the One Penny, and a used one. The synopsis of his copies is as follows:

One Penny, 1 unused, 2 used.
Two Pence, 2 " 2 "

One of the unused "Two Pence" he parted with to Mr. Tapling as already mentioned. Not one of these was offered at the first sale, but there were some exceptional "Post Paids" which fetched record prices. This pretty pair of the Two Pence blue of 1859, showing types 1 and 2 of the plate, fetched £312, and several of the earlier Post Paids brought from £620 to £1550, as will be seen from the priced catalogue appended to this article. And, we are told, Ferrary had several hundred!—Stamp Lover.

E. B. STERLING AT SEVENTY.

NOTED MYCOLOGIST CELEBRATED HIS BIRTHDAY SEPTEMBER 9.

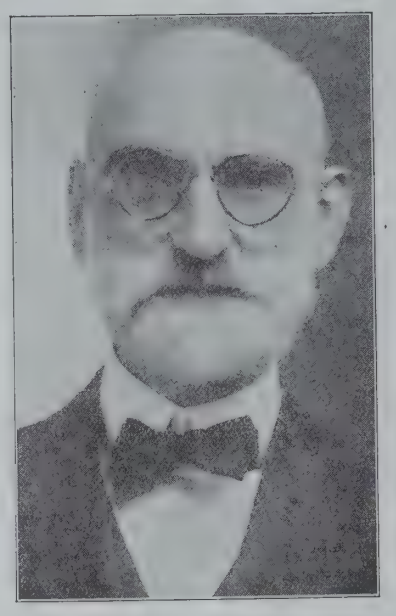
In the household of philately the name of Edward B. Sterling has a secure place, and a host of friends will rejoice at his ability to celebrate his seventieth birthday, feeling as he describes it, "Seventy years young. From twelve to seventeen hours I am full of pep with my daily duties and various hobbies."

The Daily State Gazette of Trenton, N. J., has published an appreciative article, but makes slight reference to philately, which has played a prominent part in Mr. Sterling's hobbies. We quote the following from the Gazette:—

Edward B. Sterling, of 941 Edgewood Avenue, Trenton's mushroom expert, is today celebrating the seventieth anniversary of his birth. An active life, filled with many interests, has made him 70 years young instead of old. He is a man of many hobbies, and after office hours spends much of his time in research work, putting in from 12 to 17 hours daily of work and study and leading a life that would tax the strength and energy of many a younger man.

An authority on mycology, Mr. Sterling has found many rare specimens of mushrooms. At the present time one of his collections, that of edible and non-edible tree fungi, is on exhibition at the New Jersey state museum. He is widely known through his work, and has devoted a great deal of time to the subject.

Among his collections that he values greatly is considerable data on the early history of Trenton. He has old manuscripts, deeds and other documents as well as newspaper clippings that tell many interesting facts concerning old Trenton. Many of his papers concern the Stacy Potts family from 1738 to 1818. Any of his material in this collection is available to the newspaper fraternity, and to others interested in the subject, who wish to verify historical facts or to secure information for historical work. Mr. Sterling is always most generous in sharing his information on these subjects with the public or for the benefit of those who are especially interested.



Edward B. Sterling.

Ever since he was a boy ten years of age Mr. Sterling has been a collector, and has had many interesting hobbies. He is an authority on stamps and coins, and has also been a collector of minerals, shells, antiques and curios. Not only is Mr. Sterling a student, but he possesses literary ability, and is the author of a number of articles on stamps, mushrooms and other subjects.

Mr. Sterling holds a responsible position with the state comptroller, having been connected with the department for the past twelve years. He has full charge of all of the estates filed with the inheritance tax department.

Since 1872 he has been a member of the City Invincibles, acting as corresponding secretary, and historian. He is a member of the National Travel club, and in the past has belonged to many of the societies in connection with his collections.

HIAWATHA'S STAMP COLLECTION.

D. G. CARMICHAEL.

THEN Iagoo, great collector,
He who numbered stamps by thousands
Knew their values, perforations,
Cunning judge of variations,
In the pride of all this knowledge
Made a book for Hiawatha.
From the leaves of trees he made it,
From the birch bark made the cover,
Tied it with the thongs of reindeer.
Then he said to Hiawatha:
"Go my son unto the dealer
Where the best stamps herd together,
Buy for us a Cape three-cornered
And perchance a Blue Mauritius."
Forth into the queue a-waiting Outside Messrs. Stanley Gibbons,
Unattended, Hiawatha
Struggled to a place of vantage.
Thence he gazed with eyes dilated
At the sheets of stamps displayed there,
Saw the stamps of many countries,
Saw the stamps of varied colours.
Then the heart of Hiawatha
Throbbed and shouted and exulted
As he passed within the doorway,
Called for books of all descriptions,
Books of stamps of highest value.
And the dealer smiling blandly
Hailed his coming with much pleasure
Opened books and untied packets,
Laughed, and said between his laughter:
"Let me tempt you Hiawatha." . . .

FACE VALUE NOTES.

Palestine: We hear that one New Issue Service charges the face value of Palestine piastres as 3d. Collectors should note that the value of currency here is the same as in Egypt, at present slightly under 2½d.

Russia: The following is culled from the London Evening Standard:—

Russian Rouble Notes would be dear at any price. It is necessary, we feel, to refer to this subject because of the fact that those Notes are being peddled out up and down the country, and people are buying them in the belief that they are a reasonable speculation. This belief we do not share, and would describe the Notes as a wild gamble, unfit for the great majority. Strictly speaking, there is no market in them, and this being so it must be apparent that their value if any, is questionable.

It is easy enough to buy the Notes, for it is only natural that after what has happened in the country quite a fair quantity must have filtered here over and above the residuum of legitimate trade transactions. To sell them is a different matter, because dealers do not want them, recognising their uselessness.

U. S. A.: The dearness of dollars is in some measure attributed to buying for Indemnity payments, and to that extent made in dollars (against which protests is artificial. So long as payment is are being made) the dollar is likely to become dearer as each instalment falls due, and to re-act accordingly.

Hong Kong: After rising to 2/10 the dollar here has fallen back. It must be borne in mind that dealers who remitted at 2/10 are entitled to charge their customers at this rate when the consignment arrives, even though the rate falls meantime, else they would lose money.

British Honduras: Exchange rates on this British Colony are based on the U. S. A. dollar.

Lettland: Our Libau correspondent writes that the Latvian Government has forbidden the purchase of foreign money, in order to improve the international value of the Lettish Mark. We believe this has also been done in other mid-European countries.—Philatelic Magazine.

COMMUNICATION.

TO THE EDITOR:—

Thinking that it may perhaps be of interest to some of your readers, I venture to write and tell you how I have, at a comparatively small cost, improvised a stamp album which exactly fits my wants.

Let me explain first of all that I specialize in 20th Century U. S.; Great Britain and her colonies. Furthermore, I like to stick to Scott's albums with the spaces marked out and cuts of the stamps. Scott's 20th Century Album contained exactly what I wanted but it was so mixed in with Jugo-Slavia, Varsovy, and goodness knows what other mushroom countries, that the stamps I really cared about were almost submerged.

What I wanted was a loose leaf linen hinged album for the countries I was specializing in. I have accomplished this in the following very simple way: Taking a sample page (Style D) from Scott I interviewed a printer and bookbinder. He very readily caught on to my idea, namely, of removing all the desired pages from my album and having them linen hinged after the manner of Scott's sample page. This was an easy piece of work and the whole 135 pages were soon properly mounted at a cost of only $5.00.

The next thing to be considered was a binder. Having rather a dislike for the spring back variety I decided to have one made with steel posts. These keep the pages firmly in place and can be almost indefinitely extended. I have had one made in imitation red leather with an appropriate lettering in gold letters on the side at a cost of $4.00.

From time to time, as Scott publishes new albums, I shall buy one, remove the pages for new stamps as issued, have them linen hinged and placed in my binder. In the meantime I insert Scott's blank pages, Style "D", and mount the stamps thereon, as in a Ne Plus Ultra Album. In this way I can always keep my book up to date.

In case any of your readers are interested I shall be pleased to refer them to the man who did this work for me. The whole thing was done without removing the stamps from the sheets or in any way injuring the pages.

Trusting that this may be of interest, I remain.

Yours truly,
LAURENCE V. P. SCHWAB,
11 Broadway, New York City.

EDITORIAL.

Open—As we have published our season-opener, the stamp year must be said to have begun, but we know full well that the season will not be in full swing until the air is nippy and the distractions of the first few weeks at school or college are past. Philately has been weathering the adverse trade winds in a way to make one marvel and now that favoring breezes are to be felt, there are many reasons to believe that the good ship will put into port next June laden to the gunwales with prosperity. The disappointments that not a few speculators have experienced with the Neurope lightweights have been forgotten and losses written off and after all the salutary lesson that novelty when not backed by worth soon wears off has been learned at no great cost. The appearance of the catalogue will help things, especially as it has been two years since the coming of a new edition. Let us strive to improve trade conditions by encouraging a better understanding between seller and buyer and to promote modern methods, based on honesty, in our little world.

Late—Here are some notes from Germany that have been awaiting attention for some time. Mr. Leonhardt sends a German Red Cross cancellation on the 20pf and says: "I learn reliably that the German Red Cross was authorized by the German Government Post Office for use only on one day for cards sent to foreign donors to the German Red Cross as an appreciation. Cancellation: 'Charlottenburg, Tankesgriess, Deutsches Rothes Kreuz, 20-10-20 (Oct. 20th, 1920).' These cards went only to individuals and were never sold at the post office." From Dr. Roh we have a pictorial postal card, showing fac-simile of Bavaria No. 1, in celebration of the "Philatelisten-Tag" in July at Nurnburg. The inscription reads: "Nurnburg, 22-25. Juli, 1921. 27. Deutscher Philatelisten-Tag. 19. Tagung des Bundes Deutscher u. Osterreichischer Philatelisten-Vereine."

Tour—Mr. Fred Hagen of Sydney, Australia, is making the grand tour and has been spending some time in America, as he is taking his trip by easy stages. Mr. Hagen is a veteran dealer and stamp-lover whose influence has always been of benefit and he is assured of a hearty welcome everywhere. Mr. Hagen began his collection in the '60's and his reminiscences of well over fifty years should be emblazoned in print.

Rule—A correspondent writes: "I have had a number of northern soldiers' letters of the civil war period but until I acquired recently, a soldier's letter in a southern envelope, I was under the impression, for no reason in particular, that the South did not extend the privilege of the free use of its mails to the soldiers in her army. It is possible that the early appearance of the Confederate local stamps made it unnecessary or inadvisable to give the franchise in question. Is this envelope rare?" We suppose that the envelope is one that originated in one of the southern states and bore no stamp but the inscription "10" in all probability. If the letter was sent before October, 1861, when the general issue of Confederates was placed on sale, it must have had some marking on it to indicate that the postage on the letter was to be collected at its destination. Nor was the delivery of soldiers' letters from the northern forces actually free as our correspondent seems to think. In order to remove any misapprehension from the mind of our reader we reproduce the order from Washington, dated July 30, 1861: "Post Masters, at or near any camp or point occupied by the United States forces will mail without prepayment of postage any letter written by a soldier in the service of the United States, and certified to be such by the Major or Acting Major of the regiment to which the writer is attached. The envelope should have plainly written or stamped on its face this certificate, 'Soldier's Letter,' signed in writing by the Major or acting Major of the regiment describing his regiment by its number and its State. The postage due on such letters will be collected at the office of delivery. Commissioned officers will prepay their letters as heretofore." The beneficence of the postal department, north and south, at this time apparently did not include free letter delivery for the soldiers, although we know that under certain restrictions, letters later were on the free list.

Live—The Pacific Philatelic Society has its own special permit from the Post Office Department for the transmission of mail and we thank Mr. H. B. Phillips for an example of the society's enterprise. However, when it is known that this society has to its credit a term of activities extending over a period of thirty-eight years, it is seen that the vitality of the philatelists on the western coast is bounding. Too, there are three other strong societies, the Berkeley Philatelic Society, the Western Philatelic Society and the San Francisco Philatelic Society. The coast is well encrusted with collectors.

Gone—Wrecked is the Ferrari collection and now we must erase one of the traditions of philately from the slate. It strikes us that we do not venerate the old moralities of philately in the manner that was once our wont. The progress that is being made by collecting raises the dust which settles on the ideals of a by-gone era. Where are the histories of the Brattleboro stamp, the Connell stamp, etc., that were standard subjects for rumination and remark. Who now remembers that "Ballad in ye Old Style," that over forty years ago was one of the prized pieces of philatelic poetry and which began:

"Ye Connelle is a famous stampe,
Or oughte to be, I'm sure,
Since it's gained a notorietie
That's likelie to endure
Longer than manye kindes of fame,—
Such baubles oft are but a name."

After skipping three stanzas, we come to the peroration, so to say, of the poem:

"Collector, you should bend before
That image on your booke,
Just as ye miser does his gold,
In hidden box or nooke,
Remember that ye essaye cost
Ye salrie—oh! 'Lost! lost!! lost!!!'"

Hero—We have received from Mr. E. B. Sterling, Trenton, N. J., A. P. S. 86, a photograph that we prize, showing Mr. Sterling, as it does, on his seventieth birthday. Mr. Sterling was born September 9th, 1851, and to the past generation of philatelists his name was almost a household word, his work for our pursuit having reached its greatest height in 1888 in his revenue c of U. S. issues, general and national and state; and of the hesive stamp period as well. friends will be pleased to know t Sterling is devoted to several hob on them and his daily duties he from 12 to 17 hours a day.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We have received greetings from our well known correspondent Harry E. Huber, from Hamilton, Bermuda, where he is spending a brief vacation season.

—Allen Sears Inc. has published a very neat pricelist printed in colors. It covers a good line of packets, albums and supplies and particularly the Practical Album which the firm has recently placed upon the market.

—I. J. Roth informs us that Cleveland has on sale the 16c and 24c aeroplane stamps.

—Paul S. Masser, State College, Pa., has some back volumes of the WEEKLY that he is willing to dispose of to some stamp club. If interested write Mr. Masser. There will be a slight charge for transportation expense.

—The J. M. Bartels Co. has printed a second edition of their priced check list of "U. S. Envelopes and Wrappers 20th Century Issues Cut Square, also a List of Re-valued Postal Cards." We find no price quoted on this booklet and feel that any interested party can secure a copy on application.

—Charles A. Christensen has removed his business to a suite of offices down town, where he will be able to take better care of local collectors and those who chance to visit Milwaukee. He is now located at 124 Second St.

—If any of our patrons can furnish information as to the whereabouts of Mark H. Manning the same will be greatly appreciated by, and should be sent to G. E. Newlon, Zanesville, Ohio. Who can render assistance?

—A striking advertisement appears elsewhere in this number. A half page is taken by a Berlin firm for the announcing of an auction sale in New York City November 3 to 5. It is certainly enterprise to a high degree for a foreign stamp firm to undertake a sale of this kind. A most beautiful catalog of the sale has been issued, so costly in fact that $1 is charged for a copy. The M. Bartels Co. is the firm's U. S. agent and the outcome of this great sale will be awaited with interest. Rudolf Vegel, the president of the firm, will personally conduct the sale, the contents of which will be exhibited in many of the stamp centers as per schedule published in the advertisement.

—In our recent story of the M. P. A. annual convention we failed to give the names of the new officers. The following were elected:—C. G. Gardner of Jackson, Michigan, President; Col. J. N. Partello, Garrett Park, Md., Vice Pres.; L. J. B. Vertefeuille of Chicago, Ill., Sec.; Otto C. Reymann of Philadelphia, Treas.; Elmer F. Smith of Pontoosuc, Ill., Int. Sec'y; A. W. Dunning of Boston, Mass., Director; L. R. Sours of Minneapolis, Director.

THE MOZIAN CATALOG.

We have received a specimen copy of the illustrated catalog of the current Mozian sale. It is certainly an artistic triumph, from a typographical standpoint, while the contents of the sale will appeal to a host of collectors. There are twelve fine full page groups of stamp illustrations, executed by an engraving process which brings out with remarkable truthfulness all details. The firm is charging fifty cents for the catalog, which amount will be refunded on any auction purchase. Considering the expense involved in the issuing of this book we do not wonder that the firm thus protects itself from mere curiosity seekers.

A NEW JAPAN SET.

By R. YOKOHORI.

I am very glad to inform you that a new set of commemorative stamps is to be issued September 3 to celebrate the arrival of the Crown Prince at the port of Yokohoma after his long trip through Europe. There will be two denominations, 1½ and 3 sen. As regards designs, colors, etc., nothing is known at present, (August 12), but I shall do my best to let you know about them as quickly as possible.

—children, and condition cranks, half price.

We have all enjoyed a recent effusion regarding the 3c scarlet and 3c lake and other rare prints of Uncle Sam's which some of us have longed to obtain, with more or less success, and now learn for the first—(or one hundred and first)—time that these are not really, truly, honest-to-goodness stamps, and therefore they should be thrown, kicked, pushed and dumped out of the standard catalog.

But just a minute, fellows,—here's a suggestion that may not be quite so old as some of the arguments over the correct standing of the above mentioned and aforesaid beautiful and interesting near-stamps:

Over my own John Hancock I hereby suggest that a committee of three (3) be appointed to wait upon the proper authorities at Washington to find out, if possible, whether these maybe-stamps are or are not now receivable for postage. If they are good for postage it is useless to waste any more good breath; if not, the argument is still open. Let's appoint the three goats each according to one of three several viewpoints or beliefs, viz.:—

1—These prints are stamps.

2—They are not stamps.

3—It doesn't make a hurrah's worth of difference whether they are or are not.

And let it be further agreed that the 3rd goat shall not be on speaking terms with either of the other two. Nominations now open!

Getting back to business; probably I can submit a fine selection of your favorite country. What is it?

UNITED STATES "HARD-TO-GETS"

Some time back, the Department had trouble with the stamps, which were perforated 10, tearing when they were separated by the clerks. They desired to overcome this tendency, and in their experiments perforated some of the then current 2c stamps, with what is known as perforation 11. The paper at that time was watermarked, consequently the variety differs from the current. This stamp was issued in Washington only, bears Scott's catalogue No. 388 and is priced at $1.00 each in the new 1922 advance sheet. This stamp should be in every collection and I offer well centered mint copies as follows:

No. 388, single copy .....$ .65
Mint block of 4 ..... 2.25

Further experiments were made a few years later, at which time the Bureau tried out a special perforating machine manufactured by the Rosback Company. This machine perforated 12½ and perforation was applied to one stamp only, namely, 1c surface print. The stamp is Scott's No. 438 and lists 12c in the new catalogue. This machine was unsatisfactory, for the stamps were not perforated in such a way that they were well centered, hence, most copies are slightly off center.

NO. 438, SINGLE COPY .....$ .10
MINT BLOCK OF 4 ..... .40

If blocks of four of each of the above are ordered at the same time, I will include without extra charge a mint block of each of the 1c and 2c rotary print, perforated 11, made from the imperforated coil waste.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address

UNITED STATES.—We quoted last week from a California newspaper remarks regarding a supposed series of postage stamps to exploit the Pacific Highway Exposition. I am now in receipt of official information from Washington stating that the Department is not contemplating such an issue of commemorative stamps and that the newspaper information was not authorized by the Post Office Department.

This advance misinformation will fall into the same category as the information we gleaned from the Philadelphia Public Ledger, of July 16th, wherein we were informed that the Postmaster General had announced an advance in special delivery charges.

A backfire from all over the United States caused by the suggestion of the Secretary of Treasury that first class letter postage rates be increased from two to three cents has caused Administration officials to change their minds in regard to this phase of the tax program.

The Postmaster General is said to have been one of the first to recognise the adverse political effects of such a measure and we are informed by the press during his recent visit to the Treasury Department that this matter was discussed with the Secretary. While such a tax would add seventy million dollars to the Government's receipts it would provoke much criticism and as a result it looks as if the Post Office Department will not be called upon to collect 3c on domestic letters.

Col. R. H. Peck, Mr. Cassius L. C[illegible] and Mr. G. F. Kalb have kindly advised me that they have located the 10c special delivery stamp with a decided pink ba[illegible]

Col. Peck sends a copy for inspection and I would inform our readers that this is the same variety which was located in Philadelphia about a year ago and was chronicled at the time. In fact these stamps must be from the same lot for they are of the same shade.

Mr. A. E. Owen calls attention to the fact that the Bureau made a slight error in their recent list of plate numbers. Numbers 11738 and 11739 which were described as 1c rotary plates of 170 subjects are 400 subject plates while plates number 13194 to 13197 inclusive described as surface printed are engraved.

Quite a few new provisional envelopes have just come to hand through the courtesy of Messrs. J. M. Bartels, R. H. Mason, J. V. Nielsen and A. F. Gamber. Mr. Mason has located another window [illegible] anna—a rupee's worth for either denomination.

Mr. Godinho remarks: "The general opinion of collectors was that in Indian postal art there was nothing to excel the horror depicted over type 5 in Kishengarh. Barwani bids fair to beat this record. Some labels of the second printing are likely to affright the sensitive souls of our connoisseurs."—Stamp Collecting.

BRITISH GUIANA. — The Economist Stamp Co. advise us that they have received 1c and 24c stamps printed on the new watermarked paper.

CHINA.—The Frank P. Brown Co. have submitted to us five values of a new design stamp that are for airplane service. The centre is the same in each

FENNELL'S NEXT BIG AUCTION

All stamps have been classified according to condition. Part I contains thousands of old stamps in fine condition only. When Fennell says "fine", they are fine. If you're a condition crank, here are selected copies only. Your name on your business letterhead will bring a Catalog.

Part II is composed entirely of a large number of lots by countries. Every stamp is perfect. Of interest to dealers—small and large. Get your name on our list.

Every stamp which is damaged in any way, or average condition, is included in a separate part. Some of these are excellent buys, and can be secured at prices that make them still better buys.

CHILE AND CHINA

A very nice lot of stamps for the general collector. Some of the early issues of Chile are very hard to find with margins, and many a lad needs the first big issue of China. We have them in approval books, with some good Shanghai and Treaty Ports. Better look them over during the hot weather.

J. O. MOORE, INC., RHEIMS, N. Y.

value and shows a view of the great wall with an airplane flying over it. These stamps are oblong in shape and of the following values and colors: 15c dark green and grey, 30c scarlet and grey, 45c purple and grey, 60c blue and grey and 90c olive and grey. They were printed by the Chinese Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

COLOMBIA.—The Bulletin Mensuel chronicles the 2c stamp of 1917, surcharged "Retardo 1921" in two lines.

DANZIG.—The Bulletin Mensuel announces the appearance of the 60p of the 1905-20 set of Germany and the 1m of the same series overprinted "Danzig" diagonally, the former value in blue and the latter in red. The 2m also has been surcharged with the same name across the top and at each side also in red.

EGYPT.—We learn that the colours of the 4, 5, 10 and 15 mil. adhesives are to be changed to green, pink, red, and blue, respectively. Possibly these will be the first arrivals in the expected new series with portrait of the Sultan, H. H. Fuad I.—Stamp Collecting.

FALKLAND ISLANDS.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the ½d, 2½d and 1s values printed on the new watermarked paper. We also note the color on the ½d is of a yellow green, in this printing.

FIJI.—Mr. Oswald Marsh reports receipt of a part sheet of the current 4d printed from Plate 8 on chalk-surfaced yellow paper (orange back)—a novelty thus.—Stamp Collecting.

FRANCE (Offices in Egypt).—The Economist Stamp Co. have sent us a copy of the current 10c green stamp with the surcharge "4 Milliemes" in two lines in black.

GAMBIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. submits to us the following values of the current stamps printed on the script watermarked paper: ½d, 1d, 1½d, 2d, 2½d, 5d, 6d, 7½d, 10d.

GOLD COAST.—Mr. R. Roberts advises of the 10sh stamp of bright emerald color on the old watermarked paper. It is printed from plate 8.

GREAT BRITAIN (Offices in the Turkish Empire).—The Nassau Stamp Co. have submitted to us the following new provisionals which we understand were issued about the first of last month: 30 paras on ½d green, 1½ piastres on 1d scarlet, 3¾ piastres on 2½d ultramarine, 4½ piastres on 3d blue-violet, 7½ piastres on 5d brown, 15 piastres on 10d blue, 18¾ piastres on 1sh bistre, 45 piastres on 2s 6d brown; 90 piastres on 5s rose-red and 180 piastres on 10s pale blue. The values through the one shilling are on the ordinary adhesives of Great Britain watermarked GvR and perf. 15x14. The last three values are perf. 11x12.

KEDAH.—The Economist Stamp Co. report the following values of the current set printed on the script watermarked paper: 1c, 3c, 20c, 21c and 25c.

LATVIJA.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us two stamps recently issued for Airplane service, being triangular in shape and of 10R and 20R values. The color of the former is green and the latter blue. The stamps are perf. 11½ and at the top is "LATVIJA" while at the point below is the figures of value. Above is an airplane in motion.

LEEWARD ISLANDS.—The ½d and 1d stamps of the current issue are now printed on the new watermarked paper. The Economist Stamp Co. submit copies for Chronicle.

LOURENZO MARQUES.—The Economist Stamp Co. submit for Chronicle the following provisionals printed on the 2½c of the 1914 issue: "1 Centavo" and "1½ Centavo" in two lines in black. The former value is obliterated by a short bar.

MEMEL.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the following stamps of France surcharged "Memel" with German currency with the added overprint "Flugpost" in blue surcharged diagonally: 80pf on 45c, 1m on 50c, 2mks on 1fr, 3mks on 60c and 4mks on 2frs. The 60pf on 40c has also received the same overprint.

NIGERIA.—Mr. R. Roberts informs us of the appearance of the 10sh stamp in bright emerald color printed from plate 8 on the old watermarked paper.

NEW ZEALAND.—Mr. C. G. Fryer has shown us the 8d stamp of the King George type in a dull blue color. He advises that the impression among stamp dealers and collectors has grown that

"JACK."

By Edwin B. Hill, Ysleta, Texas.

(To G. F. H.)

We had measured the Rio Grande at Fabens,—Jack and I,—and now we sat beneath the shade of an alamo tree, working up the measurement. The current meter notes were complete, and as I added up the last column we looked at the sky, grinned at each other, and lazed hopefully.

"Jack," be it known, drives a flivver, speaks Spanish like a native, and, best of all, he can shoot from the hip with either hand. He has been a ranger, and his experiences are a joy forever to the lover of this free life. Frequently of an afternoon, when we have completed a careful analysis of the notes we have spent the day in compiling, we have cursed 'em out and batted 'em out and all but wept for the free life we had left behind us.

"Sure is hard luck,—this here t. b.," declared Jack. "But think of the fun we've had. I tell you what, those fifteen months I counted cracks in the ceiling made me hate indoors forevermore. I'm off it."

I agreed most heartily. I had had seven years in the woods of Michigan, and thirteen out in this great southwest, and I, too, was off the indoors life forever.

"Tell you what," said Jack, during a pause in the conversation, "if it hadn't been for a chap next bed to me I'd have gone out. He was a nut right. He collected. It didn't make any difference what it was, just so he could collect. First it was cigar bands. Then it was tin-tags. Then he gathered up a fine lot of ancient artillery, which scared those Texas nurses plumb stiff. Some of it was always going off and near shooting up the works. So they took it away from him, and put it in a box which he could always watch. And then one day some one gave him an old collection of stamps."

Jack paused, looked at me quizzically, and then resumed:

"From then on there was the finest collection of nuts in that sanatorium out of captivity. Yes, sir. In three weeks every fool one of us collected. We clamored for stamps. Sundays some of those sisters used to come in to read to us—King's Daughters—mighty fine girls, too. One of 'em said, one day, that if stamps were what we needed, then stamps it was. She had a brother in college, and he sure started things. I have to laugh. I think he organized the college into a stamp factory, like, for in about three weeks he had us fed up. Yes, sir. About four million of those things drifted in. Every mail was what you might call congested. Why we sure were beginning to sit up and forget to swap symptoms. We swapped stamps instead.

"Well, things went on for about a month. Then some one sent in a collection in an old International album. Then another came. And then, sir, sixty-three collections arrived, inside two weeks, in all kinds of albums. Why, we were the most popular outfit you ever see.

"One day, the interne thought he'd see how the lungs were. Hanged if every one of us wasn't showing the finest signs of arrested disease, and some of 'em were ready to be discharged. Then how they yelped,—those discharged ones! The only way the doctors could get 'em out was to make 'em take their collections with 'em. Couple of 'em wept and the nurses wept with them. It sure was a wet season, all round.

"Well, I stayed on, collecting away and North West Pacific Islands.—Mr. R. Roberts advises of the recent appearance of a 2d orange stamp of the King George type on watermarked Crown over A paper. Also the 1sh very pale blue shade of the Kangaroo type on small Crown over A paper.

Silesia.—As fully expected, Silesia's D'Annunzio, Korfanty, has issued his own postage stamps for use in the territory occupied by the insurgents. Five values have appeared—viz. 10, 40, 50, and 60 fenni and 1 mark, with an unpicturesque view of smoking chimney stacks and the inscription "CORNY SLASK" surmounted by a medallion containing the Polish Eagle and year "1921".—Stamp Collecting.

Zanzibar.—The following values of the current set have appeared on the new script watermarked paper: 1c, 3c, 6c, 10c, 12c, 15c, 25c and they also advise that they have received the following additional values on the same paper: 50c, 75c, 1r, 2r, 3r, 4r and 5r.

laying up the foundations for the new life. I sure did hate to leave. But when I went, I gave my collection to a kid who'd just come in. Poor little chap! He was homesick and lonesome and they thought he'd go out. But he didn't, not him. Why, he formed a philatelic association there,—named it 'The Pariahs.' Art and Literature, says he. And collectors. No one barred, especially if you were an outcast. It sure was funny,—the genius that lad had for organizing. He went into the stamp game, had a trading circuit, and formed pools for buying without any money. He'd get a lot of stuff together, study out a place to market it, and then order a raft of things, meantime waiting returns on his first sendings. He was always sure, and he always sold. After a while he got a bunch of money ahead, made more, and then boomed along into as fine a business as you ever saw. And health! Why, there was so much health around there the doctors came out from the East to look things over and try the experiment in their own sanatoria when they went back home. Stamps sure had one large grand boom. They were it.

"Well, I got canned along with a couple other t. b.'s who seemed to be all healed up. Then I joined up with the rangers. About a year or so after that, who should hike into our camp but this same chap—this kid organizer. He was running a fine business back east. Thought he had another touch of 'em, but we sized it up as incipient—more inclined to the free life. He didn't seem to care a rap about anything, about then. But the boys concluded they'd drive a well, and here that chap woke up. He sure wanted to locate the spot, and we let him. Then he sort of took charge, and when we didn't feel like driving—which was most of the time—he'd pound away. In a month or so he began to be hard as nails and full of pep. And then he began to collect again. Honest, he was what you might call the collectingest nut that ever rode a horse. He learned all the by-ways and cow-paths and knew every decent man and every outlaw in that section. He was a whale for work.

"Well, one day some one sent word there was a stolen collection of good things a renegade had brought out of Mexico. Our chap hiked off to look at it. When he came back, he brought a protesting Mexican with him, accompanied by about thirteen of the Mexican's friends. The whole outfit was a sight. I had to laugh. Old Bill hadn't much on besides his B. V. D.'s—his late ones, you might say. And he was bloody. But he was triumphant. He had the collection under one arm.

"Seems Bill had run into a frame-up. Some malo hombres had tried to bush-whack him, but some of his Mexican friends had joined up with Bill, and for about three hours they fought all over the scenery. Funny thing, though, —not a shot was fired. The Mexicans were afraid they'd bring the rangers on 'em, and Bill was too hopping mad to do anything but manhandle them. And he did! They were a horrible sight. But the way they sat around and worshipped Bill beat all.

"The chief looked 'em over. 'Which ones do you want shot, Bill?' he solemnly questioned. And right there Bill blew up. He wanted it distinctly understood that they were his men. He was going to give 'em a meal and turn 'em loose. He'd pay six dollars for the collection, if we'd lend him the six.

"We just lay down and laughed until we were sick. But Bill had his way. We turned the outfit loose, after the meal, and they solemnly kissed Bill's hand, much to his displeasure. Then Bill said he'd quit. He had enough. The well was seventy feet deep, and all the Mexicans were now friendly. He couldn't betray his friends, he said, so he rolled his blanket and hit the trail.

"I had a letter from him the other day. He is back East, in the stamp game, making good.

"Oh, yes. Bill sent back the six, also a new pump with an engine to work it.

"'Let the engine do it,' says Bill. Seems he'd busted the handle on the old one, and the chief said he'd be docked for it—pay-roll deduction. Bill clouded up, but he didn't peep. It was only a 'kid', anyway, but seems Bill took it seriously.

"Bill, after he went East, got married. When we heard of it, we sent him a lot of Indian baskets and Mexican drawn work and serapes and things, and one old Mexican woman insisted on sending the finest lot of embroidery and lace work you ever see. It must have taken her a life-time nearly. But what got old Bill's goat was the gift of a Mexican kid he'd been nice to. The kid sent Bill the knife that renegade outfit had carved him up with, and a note in Spanish asking Bill to come on back and his friends would sure clean up all that was left of Mexico. Wise old Bill. He wrote the kid a fine letter in Spanish, and sent him back a collection of stamps and another knife."

Jack rolled a cigarette and grinned.

"You can form your own conclusions. I haven't adjusted mine yet. I'm like the man who owned a half interest in a barking dog, and wanted to kill his half. I've wondered often if Bill meant the collection to calm the kid, or the knife to go out and collect something besides stamps. Anyway, that kid still collects, and he thinks so much of the knife he refuses to use it. Maybe he keeps it as sort of souvenir, and finds the second-best perfectly reliable."

I laughed,—but Jack was in earnest. Knowing the Mexican character, as he does, I do not dispute. Preferably, I choose to believe the collection off-sets the feverish craze for steel. And some days Jack agrees,—almost.

TESTIMONIAL ADDRESSES.

We have repeatedly called attention to the fact that addresses must be given where testimonials are used in the WEEKLY. The reason for this is self-evident. It is a very easy matter for a dealer to concoct flattering references that are very misleading. A testimonial to be worth anything should have the name and address plainly stated. An advertisement crept into the WEEKLY two weeks ago which is a sufficient reason for a re-statement of our position.

SSAU STAMP CO.

THE "POST OFFICE" MAURITIUS.

Translated by Permission from Messrs. Theodore Champion's Monthly Bulletin and Will Later Be Reprinted in Booklet form.

By C. A. HOWES.

I. Historical.

As long as Philately lives, and it appears to us to possess an unequalled longevity, the "Post Office" stamps of Mauritius will always be the chief joy of a collection. A specialist in France is not satisfied until he possesses the one franc vermilion, and in like manner the owner of one of the really great collections considers his treasures as incomplete unless there are prominently displayed one or two copies of the "Post Office". These stamps have figured in all the celebrated collections, whose echoes have spread their renown broadcast, such as the Ferrary (La Renotière), Rothschild, Mirabaud, Duveen, Legrand, Manus, de L'Argentière, Mors, etc., etc.

There are rarer stamps without doubt, but none of them are more sought for; and when we say "sought for" it is only a figure of speech, since the known copies are all accounted for and it is necessary to await the breaking up of a collection in order to hope to possess these rarities. That is what took place in May, 1920, at the Mors sale conducted by M. Gilbert, M. Théodore Champion, after having secured the 1 penny, heavily cancelled, at a reasonable figure, was forced, in order to obtain the 2 pence, to wage an epic contest with an Amercan at advances of 500 francs. He had the pleasure, upon the last raise, of hearing the hammer upon the auctioneer's desk and the word "sold" ring out, all for the rather excessive sum of 116,912 francs! This was the highest philatelic auction price ever attained.

Although the "Post Office" stamps are not upon the market, it has seemed to us that a somewhat complete study of these two celebrated errors would have an especial interest, both historic and economic, for it will be seen by a table in which we shall sum up the history of the known copies how ridiculous were the prices that they first commanded.

It was during the year 1846 that the authorities of the Island of Mauritius decided to endow the colony with two postal labels for the franking of letters and, by an official document, it is known that on January 13, 1847, a notice announced the preparation of two stamps, one of one penny and one of two pence. This notice was a little premature, but it is valuable for it contains the estimate of the expense of the engraver, Joseph Barnard, for the making of the plates and the cancelling dies.

This shows that the engraving of the plates cost fifty dollars, which was not expensive.

VERY PECULIAR

WE have just run against a most peculiar printing of the 1c, no wmk., perf. 11, surface print in what might be called a very light grass green. This shade is totally unlike anything we have ever seen in this stamp. There may be millions of them for all we know, but the stock we have is small and we cannot replenish it, hence—as long as possible—

MAURITIUS CANCELLATIONS.

Barnard was not a skilful engraver, being a jeweler by trade, but he at least knew how to handle the burin for it was he who engraved the menus and visiting cards for the whole island; nor did he fear competition, for he was the only one of his kind. This artist jeweler-engraver enjoyed an uncontested reputation for blundering, and for long had had even the mildest of the Mauritius inhabitants by the ears; but he has reaped from his failing the celebrity and recognition of philatelists for having placed the STAMP amongst the rarities which have a history. For the secret of the rarity of the "Post Office" stamps lies above all in a blunder, and a mistake can turn out to be of great benefit. If that good Eugene Sue, who has revived the seven capital crimes, were still living, he would leap for joy at the reading of this tale.

We now have our friend Barnard in possession of the order to engrave the Mauritius stamps; the design, which represents a profile of Queen Victoria, has been accepted; there have been given him verbally and in writing the inscriptions to be engraved above, below and at the sides of the stamp; he has tapped his forehead with his fingers as if to say, "I understand". He sets at work and at last, for a jeweler, without saying too much about the engraving, it was as a whole acceptable. The head had been taken care of, he had inscribed above in thick letters "Postage", the value at the bottom of the label, "Mauritius" upon the right side (the left on the plate), and there remained for him only one side to engrave when the work would be completed. But suddenly he was stricken with amnesia; it was in vain that he sought his sketch, that he appealed to his memory; it was impossible to recall the prophetic words that he was to engrave! He took an heroic stand and, knowing well that he would be mercilessly snubbed, he nevertheless set out to find Postmaster Brownrigg to ask him to refresh his memory. He soon arrived at the post office† and as he was about to enter he saw spread out in front of his eyes the words "Post Office"! He thought he remembered that these were the words he was to engrave; quite happy at the circumstance, he rubbed his hands, faced about and without ceremony returned to his work and finally completed the engraving of the famous labels and the greatest and most celebrated error in all philately.

He was so satisfied with his work that he did not trouble himself to take proofs of it to submit for approval. He printed seven hundred labels, three hundred and fifty in red (one penny) and three hundred and fifty in blue (two pence), then carried them all to the residence of the Governor. "Confounded blockhead", involuntarily exclaimed the high commissioner of her Britannic Majesty's government, when he read on the labels "Post Office" instead of "Post Paid"!

†The post office consisted of a wooden shed with one room; it was situated on Government Street, almost opposite the Governor's palace.

What should be done? Assuredly it was not worth making too much trouble about and it would be better to let it pass. The Governor resolved upon this course for, as a matter of fact, he was about to give his annual reception, and he employed the larger part of the printing to frank the invitation cards.

There are indeed some interesting documents on the subject of the date of this occurrence. There is first the letter of the Colonial Postmaster to the Colonial Secretary:

Port Louis, 20th September, 1847.

To the Honourable the Colonial Secretary, &c.

SIR,—With reference to Articles 9 and 10 of Post Office Ordinance No. 13 of 1846, I have the honour to report for His Excellency the Governor's information, that the necessary postage stamps are now ready for issuing, 700 having been struck off. And as the regulations of the service may require the supervision of some other Government officer besides myself to attest to the number of stamps furnished to this office, I respectfully await His Excellency's instructions before having any further number of stamps struck off.

I have, &c.,
(Signed) J. S. BROWNRIGG,
Colonial Postmaster.

And finally some covers bearing the date of the posting of the invitations, as will be seen by some documents which we shall reproduce further on.

It is to be noticed that in the letter of the Colonial Postmaster it is a question of the printing of 700 labels, but others were printed to the number of 300 to complete the printing of the required 1,000.

The engraved plate was sent to the Colonial Secretary who preserved it as an interesting relic of the early postal history of Mauritius; at his death it passed into the hands of his son who placed it in the care of a banker. It was from this latter that Mr. Field of London bought it and exhibited it at his stand at the Jubilee Exhibition of 1912. It may be said that this sensational find made some stir in the world of collectors. To see the stamps themselves had been indeed something; but the plate that had served to print these rarities—that was the height of joy for philatelists!

Reproduction of the Plate with the engravings of the two "Post Office" Mauritius, now in the British Museum.

This plate was bought for a good (125,000 francs, we believe) by Sidney Loder, who had several impressions printed from it; he then gave it to the British Museum, imposing condition as a sine qua non that should there be made any further prints of these extremely rare stamps.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

THE BRITISH WEST INDIES REGIMENT.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

b.— Bahamas Contingent.

Bahamas' first contribution to the Imperial forces took the shape of white contingents separately recruited, and sent to England. These were not large enough to be retained as individual units, and they were simply attached to the Lincolns, and practically disappeared from Colonial view.

A special session of the Legislature, convened 27th September, 1915, voted the sum of £5000, for the purpose of recruiting 100 men to form part of the West Indian contingent. Later in response to the King's appeal for men, the regular session of the House was convened earlier than usual, on 22nd November, 1915, to consider what further action should be taken. The result was that the House announced its willingness to grant funds to keep the strength of the Bahamas contingent up to 200 men during the period of the war.

The first draft of 30 men embarked on 9th September, 1915, for Jamaica, and on November 9th sailed from Kingston, on the steamer Verdala, with the first Jamaican and British Honduras contingents.

A second contingent of 105 left Nassau on Nov. 25th, arrived in Jamaica on December 5th, and proceeded to England on 25th December, 1915. A third draft of 65 men departed on May 10th, 1916—which made up the total of 200 men.

The Islands sent drafts to fill vacancies in the ranks to keep the number up to 200 men and stood the whole cost of transport, separation allowances, pensions, etc. The contingents of course were composed almost entirely of colored men, those of white color having gone earlier in the war, direct to England, or through Canada.

A small volunteer force for local defense was also raised in the islands, under the authority of a proclamation of the Governor.

With the signing of Peace in June, 1919, the Colony prepared to issue a special series of stamps to commemorate the event. It was expected that issue would be made by the end of the year, but delays occurred, and it was not until March 1st, 1920, that sufficient quantity of all values had arrived and made possible issue on that day.

The series consisted of five values, in single colors, printed from line engraved plates, on heavy white paper, with the 1904 type of multiple Crown and CA watermark, sideways (top of Crown to the right), and perforated 14, by a single line machine.

1d carmine.
2d slate gray.
3d chestnut.
1sh myrtle green.

At left of the design, which is treated in a oblong measuring 30½ x 25 mm., is the head of King George on a medallion of horizontal lines, enclosed in an oval, and the whole surmounted by a crown. Flowing ribbons on either side of the crown bear the word "Peace". To the right of the King's head is the badge and motto of the Colony,—an old-time sailing vessel within a buckled garter, which is inscribed "Expulsis Piratis Commercia Restituta". A sheaf of palm leaves separates the badge from the tablet on which the figure of value appears in color. Across the bottom is a ribbon inscribed "Bahamas Postage" in colorless letters.

The plates are of 60 subjects (5 horizontal by 12 vertical), with a double marginal line. In the upper and lower margins, above and below, respectively, the 3rd stamp of the row, there are cross marks for aid in perforating; in the side margins, these cross marks also appear, opposite the line of perforation between the 6th and 7th horizontal rows. The perforation extends through ouly the side margins. Over the 5th stamp of the first horizontal row, the consignment sheet number appears, in black.

The first consignment of 1sh stamps to Nassau consisted of but 500 sheets—30,000 stamps, but later receipts added considerably to the stock.

c.— British Honduras Contingent.

With the outbreak of the war, a volunteer force was called out for defense of the Colony against an expected raid from several fast German cruisers known to be in the Caribbean waters at the time. The raid did not materialise, and in the following year arrangements were completed for dispatching a contingent for active service abroad with the British West Indies Regiment.

The first contingent sailed from Belize, 4th November, 1915, on the str. Verdala, which then proceeded to Kingston, Jamaica, where it took on the first Jamaican, and Bahamas contingents. Leaving Kingston Nov. 9th, they arrived safely at Portsmouth Nov. 25th. The cost of recruiting and transport, as well as separation allowances, was assumed by the Colony.

A second contingent of four officers and 405 men was prepared, and after many delays left Belize on July 15, 1916. With the first contingent, this made a total of 534 men sent from the Colony for service overseas.

The constant and persistent rumors of German intrigues in neighboring Mexico, coupled with the publication of the famous Zimmerman note, caused much anxiety, and led to increasing the Territorial forces, and the erection of additional posts on the northern and western frontiers to guard against raids of Mexican desperadoes in pay of the German Government. The military expenses for 1917 rose to $104,142, as against $85,887 in the previous year.

Rumors of invasion by enemy submarines and bands from Mexico, led to a staff officer being sent out from England to advise on measures to be taken to defend the Colony. The volunteer system of service not producing the number of men required for proper defense, a Compulsory Service Ordinance was passed, and steps were being taken to register all the eligible men in the Colony, and make selection for service, when the news of the signing of the armistice rendered further action unnecessary.

The first intimation of the impending issue of a Peace stamp came in the summer of 1919, when the Colonial authorities asked permission of the Secretary of State for the Colonies to issue a series of Peace stamps. The London authorities did not approve. However, subsequently, the question of a new series of postage stamps was considered, and it was decided that the 2c stamp should be in special design to commemorate the advent of Peace,—the other values to be in the Nyasaland type. The 2c stamp was ordered in May, 1920, and it was expected to have it in issue by September, but delays occurring, it was not until April 28th, 1921, that the stamp went on sale at Belize.

The stamp is copper plate printed, in carmine, in sheets of 60 (5 horizontal by 12 vertical), on heavy white paper with the 1904 type of multiple Crown and CA watermark, sideways, with top of crown to the left. The perforation is single line 14, only the side margins being perforated through.

The design is treated in a transverse oblong, measuring 30 x 25 mm., and resembles that of the Bahamas Peace series, save that the position of the King's head and the arms is reversed. At the right, the King's head in profile, looking to the left, on a horizontally lined ground, is enclosed in a circle, with a pearled frame, surmounting which is a crown and two ribbons lettered "Peace". At the left on a colorless shield are the arms of the Colony, and motto "Sub Umbra Floreo". Laurel branches extend upward on either side of the value tablet, and shield bearing the arms. Across the bottom of the design is "British Honduras" in colorless letters, followed by "Postage & Revenue" in colored caps, below.

A double marginal line surrounds the pane.

April 28th, 1921.—Peace stamp, King George and Arms of Colony. Multiple Crown and CA (1904 type). 2c carmine.

BOOK REVIEW.

B. Gordon Bushnell, 2648 Northwestern Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., publisher of the Standard Precancelled Stamp Catalog, is entitled to the hearty support of every collector of precancelled stamps in his efforts to produce a catalog listing the issues of the United States and Canada. The universal type system and other illustrations are used to interpret the text. A specimen of an advance sheet edition is before us for review and we have only words of praise for the enterprise of the publisher. The book will be published in sections of 32 pages, the price of each section being 30c. It is of a type form the same size as the MEKEEL booklets, with three columns to a page. We cannot too strongly urge every precancel collector to remit for this first section, as it will serve as an excellent sample of what the publishers have in mind.

We have received from Mr. Theodore Champion, Paris, an attractive catalogue entitled, in French, The Historical and Descriptive Catalogue of the Stamps of the Aerial Post, published by the well-known Yvert & Tellier, Amiens. That this beautifully complete little catalogue of seventy pages is fresh from the press is shown by the date it bears, September, 1921. We heartily welcome this book with its historical notes of the establishment of the aerial posts in the different countries and we say that the information conveyed seems accurate and well presented. The list with prices of the aerial stamps ranges from Allemagne to Uruguay; and then space is made for the semi-official issues and finally for those stamps depicting the airplane as a part of the design of the stamp. The illustrations are splendid and we can believe that the work, besides giving an authoritative idea of values, will attract favorable attention to a branch of collecting that probably will develop more rapidly, even than the number of stamps available for collecting will. We may add that Mr. Champion has a special album for aerial stamps in the course of preparation. We are thankful to have this ready reference work on the aerial stamps at hand as it is a pioneer in its field as a priced catalogue of its kind, we believe. Theodore Champion, 13 Rue Drouot, Paris, France. Price: 4 francs, 50 centimes.

JERUSALEM CROSS AND SWASTIKA.

By R. MARTIN BRUNS, M. D.

Anything which throws light upon the origin of the interesting designs, which appear upon our postage stamps, is worth preserving. We are all familiar with the "Jerusalem Cross" and the "Swastika" design, and the checker-board, all of which figure among the curious cancellations employed by old time postmasters, but it was with some degree of interest that I discovered that both of these symbols have been the subject of exhaustive research by archæologists.

Dr. Wilson of the United States National Museum, presented a paper of 220 pages to that body in 1894 in which he has collected a remarkable amount of information in which he showed that the Swastika is the earliest known symbol to have encircled the earth and shows that it was known to the ancients in China, Japan, India, Egypt, Palestine, Europe, Central America, and that portion of North America now known as the United States, and has come to the conclusion that it is the first symbol, having a definite meaning, which, at one time, was universally known all over the earth.

Another archæologist, Frank C. Higgins, in his monograph, "The Cross of the Magi," shows that the Swastika is founded upon facts of a cosmic nature. In ancient days the number 36 was representative of the sun and 28 of the moon. These numbers added give 64, regarded as a Divine number, and this laid out in squares, gives us the ancient Mosaic pavement, chess and checker boards, etc., and is also preserved in many Masonic insignias.

The checker board is too well known to require illustration but I attach drawings of the Swastika and the Jerusalem Cross. The latter stood for, "Jehovah, He that Was, Is and Ever Will Be." There are 36 squares (emblematic of the sun) composing the cross, and 28 (denoting the moon) in the outside field.

In the Swastika 12 of the fields are white, the months of the year. Twelve from 64 gives us the weeks, 52. The sides of the square are 4, the four seasons. Each of the four has seven darkened squares, the days of the week. Four times 7 is 28, the lunar number, and 7 times 52 is 364, the days in the lunar year.

In view of which, what in the world a "Cancellation Hound" needs with a calendar is more than I can see.

EDITORIAL.

Approved—The Associated Press report of the proceedings of the Buenos Aires Pan-American Postal Congress, covers the business of the convention very well on its practical side but in this account, we find nothing said about the proposal to adopt a common postage stamp by all the nations entering into the pact. A step has been made to that end, we have been informed, and we say with the New York Tribune that this is "something that will be deplored by philatelists." However, we are philosophic enough to believe that there are sufficient stamps issued up to the present to meet demands of collectors for many years to come; and while aware of the value of new issues in freshening the interest of the collector, we cannot bewail any tendency to restrict the output of new stamps. However, this editorial entitled "South American Postage" which appeared in the New York Tribune of September 18, 1921, is really interesting and well worth our reading; and we shall try to make room for it elsewhere.

Required—The Third Assistant Postmaster General has asked all postmasters "who re-valued 2-cent postal cards and 3-cent stamped envelopes for other postmasters to submit a report promptly to the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Division of Stamps, showing the name of the post office and the total number of cards and envelopes revalued and returned to each post office during the quarter." The aggregate number of cards and envelopes so treated will prove to be an astoundingly high one, we think, and it will give the chap who likes to tell how far the cards and envelopes would reach, placed end to end and how high they would be piled, something to talk about.

Material—In Putnam's Magazine for November, 1855, there is a readable account of the workings of "The London Post Office", which is five pages in length and which contains some interesting allusions to stamps and cancellations. The reference to "Queen's heads" gives the article a modern touch from the viewpoint of the collector; and we are curious whether this is the first time that the English stamps were so termed. We have a recollection, vague though it is, that the stamps were referred to as "Queen's heads" in a poem written soon after stamps were issued.

Striking—Before 1862, the dealer in stamps as we know him was non-existent; and the first paper devoted to stamp collecting was dated December, 1862. The daddy of that most prolific brood, the stamp papers, was the Monthly Advertiser published by Edward Moore & Co., Liverpool, England, afterwards the Stamp Collectors' Review. This is all well enough but merely forms the background to set forth the announcement as follows from the Freeman's Journal & Philadelphia Mercantile Advertiser, published at No. 20 Chestnut street, dated Monday morning, November 25, 1816, or about one hundred and five years ago. "Stamps At A Great Discount. S. & M. Allen, No. 2, South Third street, Have constantly for sale, a complete assortment of stamps, wholesale or retail. To those who purchase for retailing, a very liberal discount will be made." Here we have an advertisement in two inch space that would seem to be the progenitor of the stamp dealer's ad as it sounds today. So true to the present is the foregoing ad that it causes us to rub our eyes until we realize that the "stamps" referred to as being the objects of this lively traffic are not postage stamps, of course, but the fiscal stamped paper in use when the nation was young. The third issue of the stamped paper of the United States was of August 2, 1813, and embraced twelve values, ranging from five cents to five dollars inclusive. These "stamps" are circular colorless embossings on white and blue paper; the fiscals on plain white paper had the watermark in large letters: "STAMP, U. S." The central design of each denomination was the American eagle and shield. The value was given in words. We thank Mr. G. H. Grinnell for his kindness in sending in the old newspaper with this ad.

Buchanan—One of Baltimore's steadfast collectors, Mr. Wm. C. Schilling, sends for inspection the copy of a postage bill payable in 1847 to Jas. M. Buchanan, the Baltimore postmaster associated with his famous provisionals in the collecting mind. This bill of 1847 is No. 155 and reads: "To Jas. M. Buchanan, P. M. Baltimore, Md., Dr. To Newspaper Postage, one quarter in advance,—from 1st January to 1st April, $2.64." The bill is stamped "Paid" in blue with a stamp similar to that used in cancelling the stamps that made their appearance later in the year at some of the cities. The piece is an interesting postal relic.

Touching—We notice a somewhat dubious reference to "stamp collecting" in the September number of the Smart Set in a novelette, "Eve Damer", by Albert Kinross. Carter, the office boy of Vignolles & Brothers Company, London, who are in the importing business from South and Central America is under examination and it is said that he "ate squashed dates out of a bag or cocoanut chips or cubes of nougat bought off men with barrows—it tasted like paper; and when the strawberries came in he ought to have had a colic." Dost like the picture? Then, for good measure: "He collected and dealt in foreign stamps pinched off the firm's letter." Whether this piece of enterprise is considered as evidence of enterprise or iniquity, we cannot say but we have our suspicions.

Maritime—An interesting "officially sealed" letter has been shown us in the shape of an envelope sent from Austria in 1899 to the U. S., bearing the 10kr blue and two of the ten cent due stamps of this country. The envelope evidently had come open through abrasion or otherwise as it had been resealed with four of the labels inscribed: "(4151.) Officially Sealed—Sea Post Office—New York—Bremen—No.—," in five lines.

Combined—We have found a ten cent stamped envelope on buff, 1861 issue, with one of the regulation Wells, Fargo & Co.'s franks in black with the two additional lines underneath, "Paid Over—Our Mexican Coast and California Express—35 Cts." that was sent from Maysfield, California to Maimas, Sonora. The Mexican postmark is: "Franco en Guaymas". The envelope bears the Mexican 25c blue, 1874-80, and we suppose that there are few of these 1861 envelopes with the express frank an Mexican stamp as well. The Me stamps were used on the later issu envelopes when the rates to Mexico been reduced by the express com The 25 centavos Mexico stamp is celled with a fleur-de-lys in black may add.

THE FRANKFORT MATCH STAMPS.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

Wm. Gates.

3c Black, First Die.

The Boston Book gives the following data:

Die approved, February 28, 1865.
First issued, March, 1865.
Last issued, March, 1876.
20,122,200 issued on old paper.
13,338,054 issued on silk paper.
42 stamps per sheet (3x14).

This is a strip stamp measuring about 5¼ inches long by ⅝ inches high, and in use was wrapped around a package containing 300 matches. The design consists of three irregular panels, in the central one of which is a small portrait of William Gates enclosed in a circle as on Die 1 of the 1c stamp. The larger panels at either side contain the numerals and inscriptions: that at the left in three lines of colorless capitals reads WM. GATES—FRANKFORT, NEW YORK—MATCHES. Similarly at the right U. STATES—INTERNAL REVENUE—THREE CENTS. In either end of these panels are large numerals 3 shaded with pairs of horizontal lines and all four numerals are crossed by the middle lines of the two inscriptions. All three panels are surrounded by a colored line which follows their irregularities and the space between this line and the edge of the panels is shaded with vertical lines arranged in pairs. Small floral ornaments in the depressions of the design complete it.

This stamp is one of the commonest of the strip match stamps and is quite plentiful on silk paper. Although the records show that the issue on old paper was about 50% greater than the number issued on silk paper, the old paper is considerably scarcer, and specimens in acceptable condition are much more difficult to find. This is largely due to the thinness and brittleness of much of the old paper. The silk paper was less likely to tear when folded around the container. Of course a large proportion of the available supply of these stamps consists of specimens falling short of perfection, but with patience satisfactory copies can be obtained.

Probably there were about sixteen plates used for this stamp and nearly all of them, if not all of them, were made by the Carpenter firm in Philadelphia. There may have been a comparatively small printing by the National Bank Note Company between August, 1875, and March, 1876, but the writer has found no definite proof of such printing.

3c Black, Second Die.

The Boston Book gives the following data:

Die approved, March, 1876.
First issued, April, 1876.
Last issued, September, 1877.
10,309,032 issued on silk paper only.
72 stamps per sheet.

This stamp is one of the oddest conceptions to be found in all the realm of philately. It consists of three strip stamps each 4¾ inches long and ⅛ inch high, placed together in a vertical strip of three, with a line of color between them and surrounding them, making a combination stamp 4¾ inches long and ⅜ inch high. There are die proofs in existence of the single stamp and possibly it was originally intended to issue such a single 1c strip stamp, but the difficulty in handling a stamp nearly five inches long and only ⅛ inch wide can well be imagined, and no such variety was ever issued. By combining three of them into one stamp a sticker which could be handled was obtained.

Each stamp consists of colorless letters, numerals and slight ornamentation upon a background of solid color. First, commencing at the left, the numeral 1, then surrounded by a single line of tiny colorless pearls "U. S. Inter. Rev.," next a small colorless scroll followed closely by "Matches" in capitals slanting to the left, then a small shaded maltese cross followed by "One Cent" in straight capitals, then another maltese cross followed by "Wm. Gates" in capitals slanting to the right, another small curlicue followed by "Frankfort, N. Y." enclosed in a single line of tiny colorless pearls, and lastly at the right the numeral 1. Each 3c stamp consists of three of these 1c stamps placed one on top of the other.

This stamp exists only on silk paper and is fairly plentiful. It was engraved and printed by the National Bank Note Company, New York. The arrangement of the plate could have been three rows of 24 or six rows of 12, but which of these arrangements was used the writer cannot say.

6c Black.

The Boston Book gives the following data:

Die approved, July 11, 1864.
First issued, September, 1864.
Last issued, April 11, 1871.
434,433 issued on old paper.
42 stamps per sheet (3x14).

"No stamps from this plate were ordered between July, 1866, and April 11, 1871, but on the latter date 210 were issued."

This stamp is a strip stamp and the design is a replica of the first Wm. Gates 3c stamp, only the numerals and the word three being changed to the higher denomination.

Many of the specimens in existence are unused with original gum, and perhaps they came from the five sheets ordered in 1871. These unused specimens are grayish in shade. Specimens of this denomination in full black, or in undoubted used condition are very rare. It seems strange that after a lapse of five years a new supply in such small quantity should have been ordered, and it is not difficult to believe that these stamps were ordered at the request of a stamp dealer and hence found their way into collections, rather than for the purpose of use on boxes of matches.

This stamp is obtainable today as cheaply as it was twenty-five years ago, and the present catalog quotation of $3.00 has been in effect ever since 1900. Between 1886 and 1898 the price gradually increased from $1.00 to $4.00, and certainly $3.00 is not an excessive price to pay for a nice specimen. All were engraved and printed by Butler & Carpenter in Philadelphia.

—children, and condition cranks, half price.

We have all enjoyed a recent effusion regarding the 3c scarlet and 3c lake and other rare prints of Uncle Sam's which some of us have longed to obtain, with more or less success, and now learn for the first—(or one hundred and first)—time that these are not really, truly, honest-to-goodness stamps, and therefore they should be thrown, kicked, pushed and dumped out of the standard catalog.

But just a minute, fellows,—here's a suggestion that may not be quite so old as some of the arguments over the correct standing of the above mentioned and aforesaid beautiful and interesting near-stamps:

Over my own John Hancock I hereby suggest that a committee of three (3) be appointed to wait upon the proper authorities at Washington to find out, if possible, whether these maybe-stamps are or are not now receivable for postage. If they are good for postage it is useless to waste any more good breath; if not, the argument is still open. Let's appoint the three goats each according to one of three several viewpoints or beliefs, viz.:—

1—These prints are stamps.

2—They are not stamps.

3—It doesn't make a hurrah's worth of difference whether they are or are not.

And let it be further agreed that the 3rd goat shall not be on speaking terms with either of the other two. Nominations now open!

Getting back to business; probably I can submit a fine selection of your favorite country. What is it?

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—I have recently received quite a few letters asking for an explanation as to why the 1c and 2c rotary press stamps have been recently issued perforated 10, perforated 11, perforated 11x10 and in the case of the 1c 10x11. For the benefit of our readers I would state that a couple years back a quantity of waste perforated 10 vertically had accumulated in the Bureau from the stamps printed for the sidewise coils. The Department authorized the Bureau to perforate this waste the other way, which they did, and issued the stamps in sheets of 170, for the coil plates are plates of 170 subjects. In doing this work, they were run through the regular perforating machines the other way, hence gave us the well known compounds perforated 11x10. Quite recently, the Bureau had accumulated a quantity of imperforate waste which they cut up by means of scissors into sheets of 170 and ran them through the regular machines both ways, giving us the recently discovered perf. 11.

Thousands of dollars are saved in printing stamps on the rotary press, and about a year or more back, plates of 400 subjects, not 1600 subjects as stated in a recent publication, were made for use on the rotary press, and stamps from these plates were perforated 10x11 and issued in post office sheets of 100. The Department received considerable complaint from clerks who claimed that the sheets fell apart too readily, and as a result they changed the wheels and perforated them 10 both ways. Although several plates for the 2c denomination have been made, they have never gone to press.

It is interesting to note in connection with these 1c sheets that those who collect entire sheets are enabled to locate three different varieties (1) the horizontal perforations run entirely through the margins of the sheet, (2) similar to one, but with the guide lines between the panes of 100, (3) the horizontal perforations stop at the edges of the stamps, and all of these sheets to my knowledge have the guide lines.

The other compound perforations of which there are four varieties are from the flat plates and occurred at the time the Bureau was changing their perforations from 10 to 11. All of the wheels were not changed at one time, consequently, some sheets were perforated one way on one machine, and the work was finished on another. These early compounds have always been exceedingly scarce.

Mr. R. H. Mason advises that he has located a buff window envelope from Seattle, the second town to overprint this variety. Mr. C. L. Clay as well as Mr. J. M. Bartels sends us some new varieties from New Orleans, while Mr. C. M. Bleeker adds an Atlanta to our recent list. Mr. J. V. Nielsen sends a new reply card as well as overprinted envelope from Charleston.

In a recent Chronicle mention was made of a size 13 die A on blue, wmk. 20 L. B. and was credited to Grand Rapids. This should have been Detroit.

We wish to thank Mr. Glenn F. Smith for bringing our attention to the fact, that a series of the current stamps have been precancelled at Girard, Kansas, and that in addition to the postage varieties, the 1c due has received the same overprint inverted.

BARBADOS.—It will be remembered that on the issue of the Victory stamps the 1916 series was withdrawn, to be again put into circulation when the Victory stamps were exhausted. In the meanwhile the Government decided to introduce a stamp of the smaller size now universally used, the design to be similar to the 1916 series. We now learn from the British Guiana Philatelic Journal that the stock of the 1916 series on hand in Barbados has been again put into issue, concurrently with the Victory stamps. Our informant's correspondent states that the 1d, 2d, 3d, 1s, 2s and 3s denominations of the 1916 series have all been sold out and only the ¼d, ½d, 2½d, 4d and 6d values remain. A consignment of the new small design has already arrived in the island, and still remains packed in the tin-lined cases until the stamps are required for use.

With normal demands the present stock of stamps in Barbados will last until March, 1922. It is unlikely, therefore, that the new series will be issued before next year.—Stamp Collecting.

Mr. J. A. Galbraith has submitted to us a copy of the 1d Peace issue on the Script watermarked paper.

DENMARK.—The Bulletin Mensuel reports the 10o stamp of the 1913-19 issue surcharged "Postfaerge". Also the error "FF" instead of "TF".

FINLAND.—The Economist Stamp Co. report the appearance of the 10p of the type of Scott's 19 in a blue shade.

GUATEMALA.—The Frank P. Brown Co. and the Economist Stamp Co. have submitted to us copies of the following new stamps of this country: 1.50p, 5p and 15p. These are in two colors and each shows a different view in the centre. The first shows a leaning tower and bears the inscription "Monolito de

WE REALLY WANT TO BUY SOME FINE EARLY UNITED STATES STAMPS

We can use single stamps, or specialized collections, or a few nice covers. Anything really fine between 1847 and 1870. Send them along at your own price; the money or the stamps by return mail if requested. Particularly want copies of the

J. O. MOORE, INC., RHEIMS, N. Y.

Quirigua". The colors are blue and orange. The next value shows the monument with the name "Garcia Granados" and the colors are brown and green. The 15p value bears the words "Puente de la Penitenciaria" and is black and orange.

HUNGARY.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us a copy of the 3.50kr in the type of Scott's A10, in a grey blue color. Also a postage due stamp of the last type with "Hivatalos 350" in the centre in two lines in black.

ITALY.—The Dante Centenary commemoratives referred to on page 360 of the July 2nd issue of Stamp Collecting are due for issue this month. The 15c has for design the Italian Eagle bearing aloft an open copy of Dante's "Divine Comedy" inscribed Che sovra gli altri com' aquila vola ("which above all others like an eagle soars") and the words "Centenario Dantesco 1921". The 25c has an allegory of Italy crowning her greatest poet with laurels and is inscribed "Onorate l'Altissimo Poeta". The 40c value has a portrait of Dante with an open book in his hands.—Stamp Collecting.

JAMAICA.—Mr. R. Roberts chronicles the 2½d pictorial stamp on script watermarked paper with the flag on the left hand side corrected.

JOHORE.—In 1918 the change of watermark was made from multiple quatrèfoils to "C A and Crown", and the first supply of 2 cents stamps with the new watermark was printed in the old colours of purple and orange, and despatched from London in February, 1918. A few months later a further supply was sent out, printed in the new colours, purple and green, and were put on sale at once. The 2 cents stamps printed in purple and orange in error were not placed on sale until quite recently, and have now been sold out.—Whitfield King's Monthly List.

NICARAGUA.—The Economist Stamp Co. submit to us copies of the 2c and 3c official stamps of the 1915 issue with the surcharges "Vale medio centavo de cordoba" and "Vale un centavo de cordoba" respectively. The overprint is in three lines and in red. The word "Oficial" is obliterated by two horizontal bars.

The same correspondent also shows us a copy of the 2c of the 1914 issue with the overprint "Vale un centavo de cordoba" in black and three lines.

PALESTINE.—We are informed that a new supply of stamps has been ordered from London, where the overprinting will be done, which will differ considerably from the local overprint, the word "Palestine" being in block letters, the Arabic and Hebrew overprints will also probably differ. The values and colours will be the same as the current issue, except that the 1 piastre will be in a lighter shade of blue. The watermark will be Royal Cypher as before. It is not known when the new stamps will be issued for sale, probably not before the end of the year.—Whitfield King's Monthly List.

NOTES FROM THE ORIENT

By FELIX COHEN.

Palestine.—No definite news is on hand concerning the issue of the promised set with Biblical designs. The trilingual surcharge on E. E. F. stamps is still in use and large quantities can be obtained now. The low values (1, 2, 3, 4, 5 milliemes), appeared lately with a broader Arabic surcharge. Probably the whole set up to 20 piastres, will be surcharged with this new setting. I had recently some letters from U. S. readers who follow these "Notes", expressing their astonishment to see the Jewish surcharge printed at the bottom of a stamp for a country that is intended to be the Jewish National Home. It will be of interest to know that the population of Palestine is mostly Arab of Mohammedan religion and that only 1/6 of the population profess the Jewish faith.

East of Jordan.—I already mentioned that the complete Palestine E. E. F. set of stamps appeared with the Arabic surcharge expressing in English East of Jordan. Quantities issued, just as the tri-lingual surcharge of Palestine, is unknown. This region does not look to be in urgent need of such a complete set of stamps and the best P. O. customers will be philatelists. The "East of the Jordan" is inhabited by Turks, Kurds and Sherifian Arabs (immigrants from Hedjaz). The riches of the country is constituted by excellent horses and huge herds of goats. The chief city is Mateba, with about 10,000 inhabitants. Next to it is Aman, with 4,000 and Es. Salt, with 2,000. These people know very little of our modern civilization. The 9/10th of the "population" is constituted of brigands, it is not yet certified if the remainder is a better class of people. It will be surely a difficult task to find many persons there who are in need of postal communication for life's time. When H. E. The High Commissioner of Palestine, Sir Herbert Samuel, visited the East of Jordan valley he had to be escorted by a squadron of cavalry of the Queen's base. This owing to dangerous brigandry. It is still a bit of luck that collectors can obtain these stamps, without risk of their skin.

Syria. (Aleppo Issue).—The State of Aleppo placed by General Gourand under French protection had as currency, (when the French took over this region abandoned by the Emir Faisul), the piastre "dinar" an old Hedjaz currency. This, also called Aleppo piastre, has a value slightly over the Egyptian, in fact 100 Egyptian piastres are only worth 95 Aleppo's, which renders in British currency £1.1. To avoid misuse of Beyrouth stamps, which are sold in Franco-Syrian currency, the Syrian 5th issue stamps sent for use in the Aleppo district were overprinted once more with a small rosette. This to mean that the stamps were only payable in piastre "dinar". We had two issues, the first printed in black and the second in red.

25 centiemes	125,000	50,000
50 "	100,000	50,000
1 piastre	100,000	40,000
2 "	92,500	12,500
5 "	4,300	3,700
10 "	1,300	2,700
25 "	800	950
100 "	77	63

These stamps are now out of use as from April 1st, 1921, the French authorities enforced the Franco-Syrian piastre currency, also in the State of Aleppo.

Aleppo (Air Mail issue.)—To facilitate postal communications in the interior of Syria an Air Mail Service has been established between Aleppo-Alexandretta and Deir Elzor. The 1, 5 and 10 piastres stamps of the 5th Beyrouth issue have been overprinted "POSTE – PAR—AVION", in three lines.

These stamps are no more in use and ordinary stamps are fixed on letters now. The quantity issued of these Air Mail stamps is reported to be as follows:

2000 copies of 1 piastre.
1000 copies of 5 piastre.
1000 copies of 10 piastre.

APPROVALS

I have an excellent, clean 20th Century approval service for collectors who can give good references and are not afraid to spend a few dollars at a time. A very fine selection of sets in British Colonials, French, German and Portuguese Colonials, War stamps, Neurope, etc. Also approval sheets of King Edward and King George issues of the various British Colonies. For good clean stamps and top value my approval service cannot be excelled. Do not apply, however, unless you furnish good references and agree to purchase a reasonable amount from each selection.

DICTIONARY ADDENDA.

By WILLARD O. WYLIE.

BARWANI.—An Indian Native State for which stamps were first issued in 1921.

BLAGOVEJENSK.—A town in Eastern Siberia where stamps were issued in 1921.

CENTENARIO DEL CULTIVO DEL CAFE.—June 17, 1921, a special stamp was issued by Costa Rica and remained on sale till July 7. It bore the inscription as above meaning, "Centenary of the Coffee Industry".

CENTENARIO DE MITRE.—This inscription on stamps of Argentine commemorates the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Gen. Bartolome Mitre. The respective dates are shown upon the stamps in question as "1821—26 Junio—1921".

CENTRAL LITHUANIA.—Stamps were first issued in 1920 for the Polish occupation forces under Gen. Zeligowski. In 1921 a government was set up by D'Annunzio and as this book goes to press it seems likely that Central Lithuania will become an established fact as governmental entity.

CHITA.—This is a city of 30,000 in what is known as the Far Eastern Republic (carved out of Siberia as a result of the World War). In 1919 stamps of Russia were surcharged for local use, Mongolia and part of the district of Amur.

C. S. A. R.—Transvaal and Orange River Colony stamps may be found with these letters which are an abbreviation for "Central South African Railways". They are not government issues.

DESMIT RUBLI.—These words surcharged on stamps of Lettonia, mean "Ten roubles".

EO. SO.—An abbreviation on certain Colombian Republic stamps representing "Estado Soberano" or "Sovereign State".

FEZ-SEFRO.—Fake stamps were printed presumably for a mail service between these two Morocco cities. They never performed any postal duty.

FREIE STADT DANZIG.—This inscription is found on certain stamps of the former German port of Danzig, "Free City of Danzig".

LUCHTPOST.—This "air post" inscription is found on stamps of the Netherlands used for air mail.

MANDATS.—"Timbres pour Mandats" as chronicled in some quarters are "stamps for Money Orders, indicating the fee paid thereon and having no postal standing." The Netherlands issued a set of these stamps in 1884 ranging from 1 to 10 gulden with large numerals of value as the distinctive feature.

MIRANDA ISSUE.—A name applied to a set of Venezuela stamps issued in 1896 to commemorate General Miranda, who led the unsuccessful revolt against Spain in 1811.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—A city for which a provisional envelope was issued during the Civil War and bearing a circular imprint serving the purpose of a stamp.

MUESTRA.—This word is Spanish for "specimen" and is sometimes found on such stamps emanating from Spanish speaking countries.

MA SLASK 2M.—This inscription on stamps of Central Lithuania means "For Silesia 2 marks". Its purpose was to obtain money to help finance the Upper Silesia plebiscite.

NEC TEMERE NEC TIMIDE.—This motto is found on certain Danzig stamps which picture the Arms of the city. It means "Neither rashly nor timidly".

ON L. F. S.—These letters on stamps of India represent:—"On Local Funds Service". It is one of a number of overprints with no official standing and used to prevent the theft of stamps for private use.

POSTE PAR AVION.—The French Syrian stamps may be found with this inscription for aerial mail between Aleppo and Alexandretta, the overprint meaning "Post by airplane".

REGGENZA ITALIANA DEL CARNARO.—This is a surcharge on certain stamps of Fiume. It was applied Nov., 1920, and means "Italian Regency of Quarnaro", which was the name given by D'Annunzio to the city of Fiume and its environs, then held by this Italian adventurer.

R. T. M.—These letters on the Venezuela, 1900, "Resellada" issue stand for Ramon Tellos Mendoza, Minister of Interior at that time.

The New Brunswick Shilling Stamp is a rare bird. I have three, all slightly damaged, all look good; one, $45; one, $55; one, $60, imperfections hardly noticeable, speak quick, some one will beat you to it if you procrastinate.

I have been hammering away for 3 years trying to convince collectors that old U. S., B. N. A. and early issues of all countries are the ones to invest in. You like to see your stamps increase in value, then get in on the good things while you have the chance, a few years more and no one knows where prices may go to on these scarce old varieties. Sheets of rare old classics, value from $10 to $150 each, always ready to send to live buyers.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We have been shown some curious U. S. provisional cards. They consist of the 2c carmine overprinted in various varieties. We have a "1 CENT" with double overprint, also one with the double overprint far apart, while the third variety consists of the "2" overprint such as is used on the 3c envelopes with a further surcharge of "1 CENT".

—C. S. Watson of the C. S. Watson Co., Inc., has a way of surprising us with the news that he is abroad. We have just received a card from Zurich, where he announces he is making a short stay in attendance upon the International Congress. He writes:—"I am better satisfied with the results of this trip from a business standpoint than any previous one. Your philatelic acquaintances extend best greetings to you through me."

ALABAMA TAX ON SEALS.

By Peter A. Brannon.

During the past eight or ten years, the Alabama Department of Archives and History has been appealed to on a number of occasions for information concerning the Tax-on-Seals Stamps, authorized as a revenue producer after the war between the states.

Mr. Frank L. Applegate, of Medford, Ore., has recently had a very good story about this issue, in the Weekly, but as other information has come to light in the last few days, it occurs to me that possibly revenue stamp collectors will want to know of it.

Investigators apparently overlooked the fact, that the law as created, required the stamps to be placed on commissions going out of the State house, therefore, the Archives of the State, all of which are in the custody of this Department, do not contain records with these stamps affixed, as commissions issued by the officers named in the Act, went to parties either away from the Capitol, or into private hands. It will be readily seen therefore, that this Department would naturally not have any stamps, or documents, showing stamps, in its files. It is only when private papers from estates of former officials or persons having to use the stamps, come into our possession that we have the opportunity of getting copies.

Correspondents of the Department of Archives and History have insisted, at times to the point of annoyance, that the Department should furnish them with references, when with the exception of the Act and two subsequent Acts, there is nothing officially shown on this subject. The writer has made a careful examination of the records of the Auditor and Treasurer during the entire time covered by the use of the stamps, and with the exception of that information given by Mr. Applegate, there are no statistics shown, (with the possible exception of the amount returned by the State Treasurer, on the redemption of the stamps in the hands of officials to which they had been issued.)

The Department has recently come into possession of the private papers of an old family, which papers show quite a variety of these stamps. A commission issued from the Secretary of State's Office on November 17, 1876, to John W. A. Sanford, as Attorney General of State, shows two imperforate stamps, which while cut rather badly, measure 24 millimeters. Other stamps on the papers are of both types listed by Kenyon, 1920; that is, the perforated 12, rough and finely cut, both measuring 24 millimeters, except the outside stamp, which is in several cases 25. These date from '70 to '73.

Two others just added to the writer's collection, from stamps used on insurance documents of the first issue, are of interest. One document dated 1867, shows a stamp perforated 12, in fine condition, width 22 millimeters. A corresponding document dated 1868 shows a stamp perforated 12, in similar like good condition, width 24 millimeters. Both belong to Kenyon's "finely cut" classification.

THE BRITISH WEST INDIES REGIMENT.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

d.— Barbados Contingent.

As long as the German raiders were at large in the Caribbean waters, the local forces in the island were held in readiness to repel any attack which might be made for the purpose of replenishing supplies.

Funds were raised by private enterprise for the formation of a Citizens Contingent whose object it was to send to England all those desiring to enlist direct into British regiments. Several colored contingents were recruited for service overseas in the British West Indies Regiment, the House of Assembly voting money for their transport, outfit, separation allowances, etc.

Following the signing of the armistice, it was suggested to the Island government that the 1d War Tax Stamp be overprinted with the word "Victory". The suggestion was considered, but it was felt that the occasion was worthy of a special design, and in the summer of 1919 the Crown Agents were requested to have prepared suitable designs for a series of Victory stamps.

Two sketches were prepared by De La Rue & Co., and sent out, in September, 1919, "one being an angel with outstretched wings bearing a laurel wreath, and the other with the palm of peace."

The former was in brown, and the latter in green. These designs met with the fullest approval of the authorities, and the former was selected for the ¼d to 6d values, and the latter for the shilling values. Instructions were given the Crown Agents to proceed with manufacture of the plates, and printing of the stamps. It was expected then that the stamps would be in readiness for issue in March or April of 1920, but it was the end of August before all values were received.

Having expected the Victory stamps to be in readiness by the spring of 1920, the stock of the large Seal stamps (1916 series) was not replenished, and by May the 2d and 3d had exhausted. Orders from abroad could not be filled as " . . . it is only by exercising utmost care that the stock in hand will tide us over until August."

In early August supplies of some of the lower values of the Victory series arrived, but issue was withheld until the missing values were to hand, so that the complete series might go on sale at one time. This was also to eliminate extra work in the Post Office in back ordering the accumulation of orders from abroad. The delay in issue so depleted the large Seal type stamps that only the ¼d, ½d, 2½d, 4d and 6d were to be had.

Finally, on August 31st, 1920, the missing 2½d value arrived; the stamps were immediately checked, and work started on filling the orders from collectors and dealers, which had been accumulating for almost a year. The Chief Clerk, seconded by one of the lady assistants, was delegated to do no other work until these orders were cared for.

By Thursday, September 9th, everything was in readiness for dispatch of the filled orders, and the Victory series was placed on sale throughout the island on that day.

The series comprises 11 values, as for the large Seal series of 1916, the stamps measuring 25 mm. x 30 mm. There are two designs, both treated in an upright rectangle, and embodying a winged figure of Victory on a horizontally lined ground. The vignette for all values is in black, save for the 2½d, which is in blue.

The design used for the lower values, ¼d to 6d, has the figure in a circular frame, facing the left, with an outstretched wreath of laurel in her left hand. In the two upper corners is a lion's head, flanking "Barbados", which is in graduated letters conforming to the vignette opening. In the lower corners are squares on which the figures of value are shown, with "Postage" between. Above the value tablets are "Victory" and "1919" at the left and right, respectively. All lettering is in colorless letters, excepting "Victory" and "1919."

For the shilling values, the figure of Victory appears in a rectangular frame,

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS
New Order enclosed. I "cleaned up" on last packet I received from you (1000 variety) already realizing more than I paid after securing 400 varieties for myself.—B. Buchanan, Liverpool, Ohio.
Well satisfied with 2000 packet. Secured 900 stamps for my collection, selling the rest to my friends. Have already cleared over $5.00.—A. Wahlberg, Oakland, Calif.
Very much pleased with 1000 packet. Order enclosed for a 2000. I was greatly surprised at the quality of the stamps in the packet.—F. C. Elmes, Berwick, Pa.
Use bonds sent as payment for 10,000 variety packet. The packet proved highly satisfactory as a basis for a general collection.—F. M. Bigelow, Chicago, Ill.
Received 1000 packet some days ago and have had a fine time looking them over. Secured 250 new stamps for my collection of 3700, traded 43 for other new varieties and replaced 100 that were better specimens than mine. I never saw any stamps in such good condition, not a poor one in the lot. Order for 2000 packet enclosed.—T. Herrick, City Treasurer, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

faces front and stands on a globe.

In her upraised right hand she holds a wreath of laurel, and in her left, the palm branch. At either side is a garland of fruit and flowers. "Barbados" is arranged in a straight line at the top; the other inscriptions are the same as for the lower values.

A series of diagonal lines extend from the edge of the vignette opening towards the center, blending into the horizontal lines of the vignette and eliminating the objectionable features of the 4d and 3sh bi-colored stamps of the large Seal type, issued in 1918.

Save for the five lower values, the Crown Agents' color scheme has not been followed, and even for these, the shades are quite different to those generally used. The 1d in its velmilion and black almost approximates the orange and black of the 6d. While the shilling values are in better design than the pence values, the colors are weak and not up to the standard of the lower values.

De La Rue & Co., Ltd., are the printers, and the stamps are printed on heavy white paper, with the 1904 type of multiple watermark, which is upright for the pence values, and sideways (Crown top to the left) for the shilling values. The former are perforated 14 single line, and the latter, comb.

The pence values are printed in sheets of 60 (12 x 5). Surrounding the pane is a double marginal line in the color of the frame, and in the upper and lower margins, there are cross marks between the 6th and 7th vertical rows of perforation, for aid in perforating, and also for centering the second impression; in the side margins, there are similar marks opposite the 3rd horizontal row.

The shilling values are printed in sheets of 30 (6x5), with marginal markings as for the pence values, save that the cross marks in the upper and lower margins are between the 3rd and 4th vertical rows of perforation.

A difference of opinion exists abroad as to the method of manufacture of these stamps. One writer says they "appear to have been surface printed, but have the quasi-cheap appearance of inferior lithographs", while another inclines to the belief that while "the central vignettes are undoubtedly printed from line engraved plates the colored borders were added by lithography." The majority concurs that they are recess printed at two operations, and this is the information which the printers have given to the Colonial authorities.

Two vignette plates, numbered 1 and 2, are used for the lower values, and two frame plates, 1 and 2, for the ¼d, ½d and 1d. Seldom do the Post Office sheets show the vignette plate number, this being printed outside the marginal lines and usually trimmed off before being dispatched to the Colony. The frame plate numbers, however, are printed inside the marginal lines, at the left of the sheet, opposite the 3rd horizontal row. Frame plates for the values above 1d show no numbering.

Watermark varieties are known as under,—

Sept. 9. 1920.—Victory series, 2 designs (½d to 6d) (1s to 3s), bi-colored, 1904 type of multiple watermark, upright for pence values, sideways (Crown top to the left) for the shilling, perf. 14.

In the first six months orders from abroad for these stamps amounted to over £3000.

The remainders of the large Seal type stamps (¼d, ½d, 2½d, 4d, and 6d) had been withdrawn from sale with the issue of the Victory stamps, but in June, 1921, they were re-issued and sold concurrently with the Victory series.

The stamps of the 1916 series had always been considered much too large for general use, and in the summer of 1920 the Crown Agents were asked to submit a design with the seal reduced in size. By the end of the year, the new design had been approved, and work was in process on the die.

The new stamps (18½ x 22½ mm.) have been copper plate printed at one impression, in the same values and colors as the 1916 series. The new script watermarked paper has been used for the ¼d, ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 6d and 3sh stamps; new yellow with old watermark for the 3d and 4d; new green, with old watermark for the 1sh, while the 2sh is on blue with the new script watermark—the first British West Indian stamp to be printed on this paper. The new series will be in issue by October or November, 1921.

With lowering of the stock of the 1d Victory stamps in May, 1921, a further printing was requisitioned from the Crown Agents. This was made on the new script watermarked paper, and issued on August 22nd, 1921.

e.—St. Lucia.

When H.M.S. "Cape Hope" put in at Castries for bunker coal, en route to South America, in October, 1914, 40 natives engaged as stokers, met death by drowning in the encounter with the German squadron in the Southern Pacific, in the November following.

In the first year of the war St. Lucia contributed £2000 for the purchase of cocoa as a gift to His Majesty's fighting forces. Contingents were raised locally at the Colony's expense, for overseas service in the B.W.I. Regiment, and in other ways the Island contributed to the war and patriotic funds of the Mother country. In 1915 £3719.18.11 was expended on the overseas contingent, and £2028.12.3 for the mobilisation of local forces.

From June 1st, 1916, a war tax of 1d on postal matter was levied, and clause 2 of section 5 of this "Postal War Tax Stamp Ordinance, 1916", (No. 13 of 1916), provided—operation only during the absence from the Colony of the Saint Lucia Contingent serving with the Imperial Forces for the purpose of the present war."

A similar clause was included in the War Tax ordinances of the other Colonies of the Windward group (Grenada and St. Vincent)—the tax was cancelled from July 1st, 1919, when the 1d letter rate with the United States of America became effective.

Following the celebration of Peace in the summer of 1919, the island authorities sought permission of Downing str. to overprint the current 6d Postage and Revenue stamp, for the benefit of the returned men of the local contingent —the stamp to remain on sale for one year. The Colonial Office disapproved, and the remittances which had been accumulating at Castries were returned to the senders in November, 1919.

f.— Turks & Caicos Islands.

At the outbreak of the war, there were many German reservists in the republics of Haiti and Santo Domingo, and it was feared that an armed expedition might descend on Grand Turk with the idea of putting out of commission the cable station of the Direct West India Cable Co., Ltd. Resistance by the small local Constabulary would have been practically useless. Aside from severing the cable connection to the north (Bermuda) and south (Jamaica), little else could have been accomplished. No great food stores are held locally, and the island practically depends upon the fortnightly steamers of the Clyde Line (New York to Santo Domingo) for renewal of supplies. There are no local banks, and the Government reserve fund amounting to some £10,000 odd is invested with the Crown Agents, or on deposit in Jamaican banks.

No less than 21 of the inhabitants of these islands, mostly sponge fishermen from the Caicos group, to the west of the Grand Turk passage, enlisted for war service, either through Jamaica in the B.W.I. Regiment, or with the American forces.

Following the Peace Celebration on the 19th and 21st July, 1919, it was felt that the arrival of Peace should be celebrated philatelically, just as the war was shown by the numerous war tax stamp issues of 1917-1919. The Colonial Office in London was asked for permission to overprint the Georgian series of stamps (¼d to 3sh inclusive) with a Crown and the word "Peace".

As the Dependency receives no Imperial grant-in-aid, and the reserve fund is quite healthy, the desired approval was not given.

During the war contributions to the Imperial War Fund amounted to £2000—£1000 being voted in 1914, £500 in 1915, and a further £500 in 1919.

It is of interest to note that "the uncrowned King" is peculiar to the postage stamp designs of this Dependency, 1909 and 1913 series.

FINIS.

THE BASTINADO FOR BILL.

For a fellow who never had his picture on a stamp, old Bill Hohenzollern certainly has done his bit for philately. Not only do they blame the war on him, but collectors hold him responsible for the overtime now being put in in European stamp factories.

THE NEW JAPAN COMMEMORATIVES.

By R. YOKOHORI.

The history of modern Japan records no such ovation to royalty as was given Sept. 3, to the Crown Prince of Japan, upon his return from foreign lands to the Empire, over which he will one day rule. It was a great popular demonstration of the loyalty of the people to the Imperial House, but at the same time demonstrative of the changing attitude of the nation towards the throne. To the observer from abroad it seemed to indicate that the cold austere veneration of the throne is being replaced by something more warm and more personal. The loyalty is just as sincere and heartfelt as in bygone years, but now more enthusiastic and direct, expressed by cheers rather than the silent bows of former occasions when those close to the throne appeared in state. The trip of the Crown Prince to Europe, though it was short, has brought to us no little reformation of the institutions of the court, which has really been our long desire. So we could welcome His Highness back to the land over which his forefathers have reigned from time immemorial and with brilliant displays of various kinds.

To celebrate the occasion, a new set of commemorative stamps was issued. The denominations and colors are of four kinds, all being off-set printed:— 1½ sen violet, 3 sen dark olive, 4 sen red and 10 sen blue. The design is quite the same for all the stamps and pictures the two battleships "Katori" and "Kashima" that arrived in Yokohama in safety. The "Katori" is His Highness' ship and the "Kashima" is the ship attendant upon the Crown Prince. There is a semi-circle over the ocean view. In the upper center is the usual imperial crest with characters reading "In commemoration of the return of H. R. H. the Crown Prince". On both sides may be found vine patterns.

The stamps are printed in sheets of ten horizontal rows of ten stamps each and are perforated 12½ by comb machine. In view of the short time allowed for the printing of the set, the Department of Communications was obliged to produce these stamps by an off-set machine recently bought in the United States. This was its first trial, and the number issued seems few compared with the last commemorative set. The 4s and 10s values were printed in limited quantities and sold out very quickly at every post office where placed on sale. The exact number issued is not known, but fewer than 400,000 of the 4 sen and 200,000 of the 10 sen appear to have been issued.

On account of the small quantities of the two high values and the restrictions placed upon their sale by the postmasters, only a few copies could be secured by any one person. I believe these two values will surely be scarce and the market price today is 3 yen for a set.

A special cancellation stamp and a set of commemorative picture postcards was also issued. The former was applied to letters posted on September 3 only, while the picture postcards were good for use on that day and the three following days.

UNITED STATES, SERIES OF 1857-60.

By ELLIOTT PERRY.

As explained in the articles on the 5c stamps from plate No. 2, it is exceedingly difficult to state just which part of the design of the 5c stamp is the body of the stamp and just which part is the ornamental projection. One cannot state definitely, exactly where the ornamental projection begins and for this reason it is equally impossible to state just when it is entirely cut away. As a matter of fact, none of the stamps on the plate have the ornament as much cut away at the bottom as do the stamps from the 5th relief have it removed at the top. The writer has seen statements noting the existence of a 5c stamp on which not only was the ornament entirely removed, but the design was further "hollowed out" in the region of the upper or lower ornamental projection. There is no such stamp, and study of the design will show that this idea merely results from an optical illusion, due to the fact that what may be considered the base of the projection is nearer the center of the stamp design than are the extreme tops or bottoms of the curved corners. The "hollowed out" variety has been noted as being rare, but the only genuine stamps from the plate which can at all fit this description are the stamps from the 4th and 5th reliefs. Of these two varieties those from the 5th relief are slightly more cut away at the top and those from the 4th relief are slightly more cut away at the bottom than any others on the plate.

Since each of these two reliefs produced the stamps in two complete horizontal rows entirely across each pane of the plate, i. e., the plate of 200 stamps contains 40 stamps from the 4th relief, being one-fifth of the entire plate, and 40 stamps from the 5th relief, being one-fifth of the plate, obviously none of the stamps from either of these reliefs can be relatively rare, and if both of them are classed as having the design "hollowed out" they comprise just 40% of the entire plate. They are relatively twice as common as the varieties found in the first and second rows and if we consider the stamps found in the 6th row as different from those found in the 10th row, the stamps from the latter two rows are just twice as rare as the stamps from either the 4th or 5th relief, or four times as rare as the so-called "hollowed out" variety from both the 4th and 5th reliefs.

In regard to the 10c stamps, further detailed study of the most painstaking kind by American philatelists has advanced the knowledge of the varieties on both plates No. 1 and No. 2, and it has been shown that the writer was incorrect in supposing all eight of the recut stamps on plate No. 1, came from the same pane. Seven of them are grouped according to his reconstruction in the left pane and the other stamp is the misplaced transfer which occupies the second position in the top row of the right pane, being the recut variety No. 2 of the writer's classification.

The mystery regarding the second plate of the 12c is still a mystery. So far as the writer can learn, there is no knowledge of the existence of any stamps from such a plate.

In conclusion, the writer again wishes to express his sincere thanks to all of the many who have assisted him with material, information or encouragement in the work, and in particular to Judge Emerson of Rhode Island and Mr. Hammatt of Kansas, for loaning him the material which was of so great help in furthering the study of the 10c stamps.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—W. O. Thiede submits a new wrinkle in envelope construction. It is manufactured by the Duplex Envelope Co., Quincy, Ill., and consists of an open end envelope, with a place upon the face in which can be inserted matter for first class postage. It is of unique construction. The inscription "Attach First Class Postage" indicates where the regular postage is to be affixed.

—C. A. Pitkin & Co. are making a leader of what they term the "Gem Packet". Printed matter is at hand showing illustrations of the packet, which is made up each month of different stamps, with some fifteen or twenty in the packet.

—We are publishing this week the adlet of J. H. Germakian of Smyrna, Turkey. We believe the party to be O. K. but if any of our subscribers have had unsatisfactory dealings please inform this office. We shall continue the advertisement if no complaint be entered.

—E. C. Kinsel informs us of the death of Joseph A. Hyde of Seattle, a long-time philatelist and for many years a subscriber to the WEEKLY. We quote from Mr. Kinsel's letter as follows:—"Mr. Hyde has been collecting since the early eighties and his collection is one of the largest and best on the Pacific Coast. It is with sorrow that the collectors of Seattle hear of the passing of this gentleman-philatelist, for he was dearly beloved by all."

—A correspondent wants to know what we are going to do to correct the evil of credit slips. We suggest that our subscribers themselves can remedy the situation. When a dealer sends out a slip of this kind return it at once and inform the firm that refund of the credit is desired and that upon a further offense of this character your patronage will be transferred to another firm. This will accomplish results.

—O. S. Hart and D. R. Heath of the "Rubber City" recently visited Canton, O., and met two prominent collectors of that city, A. S. Marks and W. G. Saxton; when forming a stamp club in Canton was discussed. Any collector or collectors interested in forming a stamp club should get in touch with W. G. Saxton, First National Bank, Canton, Ohio.

—An advertisement of the Prospect Stamp Co., 2398 Silver St., Brooklyn, N. Y., appeared in our issue of Sept. 24 and we desire to correct the mistakes made in two of the offerings. The firm offers 100 diff. Austria and Hungary for 75c, and the packet of Straits Settlements instead of having 75 varieties for 50c should have been given as 25. We regret our errors.

SOUTH AMERICAN POSTAGE.

The recent Pan-American Postal Congress at Buenos Ayres, to facilitate commercial and other intercourse among the countries of the two Americas, limited postal rates on letters to a maximum of five cents—the rate which now prevails between this country and all south of the Isthmus save British Guiana. It is assumed that this will mean in the near future a reduction from five cents to two cents, as it now is not only to Cuba and Mexico but also to all parts of the British Empire. Such a reduction will, of course, bring an increase of profitable commerce which will far more than repay us for the loss in postal revenue.

The Congress also moved toward adopting a common postage stamp, or set of postage stamps, for all the Latin-American countries—something that will be deplored only by philatelists. The United States seems unwilling to merge its stamps into such an international system, but the countries to the south are less tenacious of differentiation. If their stamps, in the various denominations, correspond in value with ours, substantial unity would prevail between them and us.

We may yet hope for a uniform unit of monetary value. A fine example was set years ago by the Latin Union of Europe, in which such uniformity prevailed. Each country had its own design of coinage and its own name—the franc in France, the lira in Italy, the drachma in Greece, the leu in Rumania, the peseta in Spain—but all were exactly the same value. The convenience to traders and travelers was great. It would be equally advantageous in this hemisphere to have all the countries adopt—let us say—the dollar as the standard, as has been done by all the British possessions save Newfoundland—whose dollar is worth a fraction more than ours—and by Colombia, Santo Domingo and Panama—though the last named calls it not a dollar but a balboa. The name does not matter; the value is the thing. The coins might still be called dollar, peso, sol, milreis, boliviano, gourde, bolivar, or what not, but in intrinsic worth there would be a practical equality which would powerfullly make for fraternity among the nations.—New York Tribune.

ANOTHER BIG CONTRACT.

The Marks Stamp Co., always a large user of space in the WEEKLY, has decided to take at least 5,000 lines of space during the coming season. The firm writes:—

"We shall undoubtedly use during the course of the year considerably more space than this, despite our recent curtailment of advertising during the summer months. We look for a very busy season and practically every dealer agrees with this prophecy, although business during the summer has been somewhat dull."

This summary of the business situation bears out our judgment as given in our recent trade symposium. The columns of the WEEKLY are already beginning to reflect a business activity that surpasses any previous October. Besides the Marks Stamp Co., we now have the firms of W. C. Phillips & Co. Scott Stamp & Coin Co., F. E. Hadley and the C. E. Hussman Co., who have contracted for not less than 5,000 lines each. Maxwell Krause has contracted for 3,000 lines.

DESCRIBE IT: "CHARACTERISTIC CANCELLATION."

"Console me. After hunting for Chile No. 62, for five years, I bought one tonight, and then tipped the ink bottle over on it."

EDITORIAL.

Tribute—We are pleased that our fortnightly contemporary, The Philatelic Magazine, London, recognizes in its issue of September 22nd, the "Charm of United States Stamps". The number is devoted in great part to a "symposium" on the subject of our stamps, with other commentaries on them; and we may add that it is Joseph Ward who contributes "The First U. S. Postage Stamp". Sir Nicholas Waterhouse, K. B. E., F. R. P. S. L., London, author of that excellently illustrated work on U. S. stamps in catalogue form; M. Adolphe Lang of Bordeaux, France; Mr. George Monro, London; Mr. J. C. Coltman, Newcastle-on-Tyne and Mr. A. Leon Adutt, J. P., F. R. P. S. L., president of the Thanet Philatelic Society all bear testimony to the inherent collecting attractions of our issues, first to last, with especial emphasis on the earlier productions. Without exception these trained observers extol the beauties of design of our stamps; and it is the consensus of opinion that the stamps embody about all the qualities that should appeal to the thoughtful collector. Too, the historical value of those stamps that depart from the portrait type is stressed. The American Philatelic Society is given commendatory notice and a portrait of the president, Dr. Carroll Chase, loans interest to the text. It is a satisfaction to hear applause from a farther corner of the hall for our stamps, and it will lead us to a deeper realization of the collecting merits of the postage stamps of the U. S. A.

Growing—When we decided that a philatelic dictionary would accelerate the progress of philately and confer a boon on collectors generally, and accordingly undertook to publish the work, we by no means regarded the project as child's play but we certainly did not anticipate that the task would develop to the degree that it has. Using extensive groundwork submitted by Mr. B. W. H. Poole, several stories have been built upon it. Our managing editor has labored unceasingly as a philatelic philologist and he has had the assistance of a coterie of learned philatelists in the prosecution of his work. Sometimes the clues to the meanings of stamp phrases are singularly elusive and one of our collaborators says that he has spent a half-day in his study in trailing a text. Especially to those who may think that an undue lapse of time separates promise from performance, we say that the completed volume will be ample explanation for any delay. It will be found that what practically was new ground has been broken and tilled most advantageously. The Dictionary will mark our high-water publishing achievement.

Process—For about twenty-five years, special postmarks have been used by different cities, on occasion, to advertise various events, celebrations, etc. We do not refer to cancellations, such as, "Centennial, Philadelphia", (1876), and "World's Fair Station, Chicago", (1893), but to those that really tell a story, in advertising phrase, as it were. We have never stopped to consider how the special postmarks originated in a postally legislative way but assumed that they were permitted through the plenitude of power vested in the postmaster general. We find that authorization proceeds from Congress, judging from an extract from the Congressional Record sent us by Mr. A. H. Pike, Buffalo, whose interest in postal markings is well known. The following preliminary action seems to mark the routine course. We quote: "A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. William Tyler Page, its clerk, announced that the House had passed bills and a joint resolution of the following titles, in which it required the concurrence of the Senate:—H. R. 7578. An act providing for 'Visit the Dunes, Michigan City', cancelling stamp to be used by the Michigan City, Ind., post office. H. R. 8365. An act to permit the use in the post office at Cincinnati, Ohio, October 15 to 22, 1921."

Serious—Since having read of the loss of rare stamps whose value represents a sum of magnitude, in New York City, on or about July 16, 1921, we have been hopeful that good news would come telling of the restoration of the stamp treasures. The list of missing stamps is a somewhat formidable one and while no U. S. are on it, there are some very good things in Hawaii, France, German States, Switzerland and Great Britain. Our friend, Mr. H. C. Needham of New York City, is the representative in this country of the unfortunate loser.

Tripped—One of our earliest disappointments in connection with stamp collecting was due to the promise, unfilled by force of circumstances, made by a friend to give us the foreign stamps on a letter that he expected from Monaco, then a new stamp-issuing country. The letter came but it was denuded of its stamps which had been removed en route, unquestionably by some stamp "lover". If the feeling of disappointment could have reached the purloiner, he would not have had much pleasure from his spoils. Since that time, we have encountered irritating instances of theft of stamps in this way and have heard of others even more shameless. A good many years ago, the warning was given in the postal guides that removal of stamps from mail would penalize the taker, perhaps by dismissal from the service. That stamp theft of this kind has never been entirely done away with, some of us well know, but it is necessary to say that in comparison to the frequency of it in days past, the present day losses are small, we should judge. All this is apropos of a clipping from the San Francisco Daily News just received from Mr. J. Rausch: "Jail for Three Stamps. London, Sept. 27.—Ernest A. Hill, 33, postman attached to the Wimpole-st. station was caught taking stamps off three letters. He got four months' imprisonment without hard labor." The item does not say that the stamps were foreign issues but our correspondent infers that they were and we agree that in all probability they were.

Claimed—It is charged that speculators are active in different of the larger stamp centers in buying up many of the finer stamps that are procurable, with the idea ultimately of selling at a profit. The inference is that not a few men with money available see in stamps possibilities of profit that transcend those in more recognized lines of financial theory. In a commercial sense, we welcome this addition of capital in our world but it is pointed out that ultimately the collector will have to pay the increased prices or go without coveted specimens. There may be something in this but it is our belief that the collector who wants the best stamps knows about what he will pay for them; and at a price beyond this he is not interested as a purchaser.

PHILATELIC PUBLICITY.

By FRED A. KUHN, (Advg. Mgr.).

(There is much of merit in the suggestions contained in the following article. We recommend them to the careful consideration of our various associations, and especially the publicity committee of the A.P.S. This committee has it in its power to make thousands of new collectors by developing the suggestions presented by Mr. Kuhn. We are specially impressed with the value of stamp exhibits in local store windows. They always attract the attention of passers-by. The local collector can act as an individual, make up his sheet of stamps and either exhibit them or offer the stamps for sale, so as to make it a source of revenue for both parties. Mr. Kuhn has presented an excellent way to deepen the interest in philately.—W. O. W.)

It seems to be the unanimous desire of stamp dealers and collectors to get new blood interested in philately. This ought not to be a hard task, because of the fact that philately is instructive as well as one of the cleanest hobbies we have. It is also a good investment especially at this time when so many stamps are being replaced by new issues.

From an advertising man's point of view, philatelists have not a very hard proposition but one that should be carefully handled. There are so many ways by which you can present your argument to the non-collector. One important thing to keep in mind is not to scare the uninitiated with high prices. Keep that for later on. There are many persons not collecting stamps for the reason it costs considerable to procure a certain stamp, but are not aware of the fact that a collection started now and kept up would in a short time become valuable. There are many collectors today who, had they started collecting when in school, would now have a small fortune in stamps.

Show the non-collector that in order to start it is not necessary for him to own all the stamps ever issued. He will manage to get the older issues as he gets more enthusiastic.

We are now approaching a season of the year when good results can be obtained, but the work must be taken up immediately if a success is to be made of it. Christmas, the day of all days, will soon be here and on that day many a boy, young and old, will get his first start in collecting stamps. You have your clubs and associations, which, with your co-operation, can put it over.

Advertise—that's the word. There is nothing that works so well as the printed word. Start your propaganda now. The daily newspapers should have reports of stamps clubs and associations. Every time any country issues a series of stamps see that the papers get a write up about them. There are many ways to get philately before the public free of charge, but some money must be spent to make it a success.

Your associations could get out a small booklet which could be placed in the hands of fathers. It should tell him how instructive the collecting of stamps would be for his boy and also the benefits to be derived by the increase in value in later years. Give him some examples of this increase. No doubt if properly put before the fathers, they too will get started on stamps. Advertising will get the book placed where it will serve its purpose.

Another thing that would help a whole lot. Arrange a set of stamps of certain countries on white card boards. This would make a very interesting exhibit to place before the higher grades in the public schools. Arrangements no doubt could be made with the principals of the schools to allow you to show the stamps. You could explain that while the pupils are familiar with the location of the different countries they would be interested in seeing the postage stamps of those countries. If the cards are attractively made up they will win attention.

Another idea—these cards should also be used as exhibits in the store windows of retail merchants in the city. You will find the store keepers over ready to place them because he is always on the lookout for an "added attraction". He too believes in advertising. Use the store windows some time before Christmas and call that week of day either "Stamp Week" or "Stamp Day" or use the term "Philatelists' Week". You will certainly get lots of free advertising that week. This should bring in new recruits and the old collectors will just be at fever heat. Last but not least, don't forget to get your philatelistic magazine in the hands of every recruit. If you cooperate with your magazines, much good can be accomplished. Advertise!

Let's put this over!

THE POSTMASTERS OF HAWAII.

By BRUCE CARTWRIGHT.

In order to thoroughly write up a collection of the stamps of Hawaii it is necessary to be in possession of correct historical data concerning those who held the office of postmaster. I take pleasure in submitting a correct list of the postamasters as furnished me by Mr. R. C. Lydecker, Keeper of the Archives of Hawaii.

Henry M. Whitney (American)—Dec. 22, 1850 to July 1, 1856.

Joseph Jackson (American)—July 1, 1856 to Aug. 27, 1859. (He had as his assistant W. White who signs the last letter for him on Aug. 9, 1859.)

Alva K. Clark (American)—Aug. 27, 1859 to June 30, 1863.

David Kalakaua (Hawaiian)—June 30, 1863 to March 18, 1865. (Was the last King of Hawaii afterwards.)

A. P. Brickwood (Englishman)—March 18, 1865 to July 20, 1881.

John N. Kapena (Hawaiian)—July 20, 1881 to Feb. 13, 1883.

Henry M. Whitney (American)—Feb. 16, 1883 to April 15, 1886. (He was first postmaster and resigned his second appointment on Apr. 15, 1886.)

John L. Kaulukou (Hawaiian)—April 15, 1886 to July 31, 1886. (There is no commission on file for this appointment.)

Luther Aholo (Hawaiian)—July 31, 1886 to Oct. 15, 1886.

Fred Wundenberg (Englishman)—Oct. 15, 1886 to May 2, 1891.

Walter Hill (Englishman)—May 2, 1891 to April 1, 1893.

ATLAS STAMP CO., (P. C. Smith), W.Somerville,44,Mass.

YES, IT WOULD!

It would surely require a full page ad on every page of this issue of the WEEKLY to list the uncommon and rare stamps I am offering to serious buyers. That sounds pretty big, but it isn't as big as the whole truth. I am submitting magnificent selections of favorite countries on inspection and collectors who wish to invest more than a small amount at a time will usually find what they desire here at reasonable prices.

Many early issues in singles, pairs, strips, blocks and on covers await the call of the discriminating buyer. Nice copy of Switzerland No. 2 at just half catalog and lots of other bargains for those to whom price is an object.

Whether you like early Victorias, triangular Capes, Griqualands, U. S., or other classics that are not easy to find in satisfactory condition, this is the place to come.

UNITED STATES.—One of our foremost collectors has just returned from a short trip to Europe and has brought back some wonderful things with him, including such extraordinary items as a 90c, 1857, on cover in combination with two lower values, a single 90c of the same series on the entire cover, a cover with a perfection pair of the 5c, 1851, with sheet margins of about an inch at the bottom, etc. It had been thought that Europe had been pretty well cleaned out of good early United States, but it looks as if there are many fine things on the other side to be had, if one only knows how to pry them loose.

Mr. H. W. Needham informs me that he has recently acquired some wonderful mint blocks of the 90c, 1861, from abroad. These are unusual pieces well worthy of mention. Early blocks are in such great demand at the present time, that it is seldom such unusual pieces come upon the market.

Mr. Everett Van Voorhis has recently sent me a description of a most interesting steamboat cover bearing a copy of the 3c, 1857. We have described in our columns quite a few covers bearing the marks of Mississippi River Packets but this is the first we have seen of the "Ward's Lake Superior Line". The cover is addressed to Point Detona and from there forwarded to Cold Spring, N. Y. In addition to a round steamboat cancellation in red, dated Oct. 12, 1861, and reading "Steamer Sea Bird, Ward's Lake Superior Line", we find circular postmarks of Detroit, dated Oct. 28th and Cold Spring, dated Sept. 10. Two other marks are to be found, namely, a figure "5" in an oval and "Steam Boat" within a ribbon. Much has been written in the philatelic journal regarding the many varieties of the Mississippi River cancellations but we are still awaiting something authoritative regarding the steamers of the Great Lakes. The famous Carroll Buchanan Cox correspondence was rich in Mississippi Packet postmarks and it is possibly this find that gave the incentive for the many articles upon the subject. There is ample room for much original work in connection with other steamship lines.

Rev. Viggo M. Hansen informs me that he has located four new provisional 2c on 3c overprinted envelopes with the Portland surcharge, while Mr. A. F. Gamber has located a new variety from Los Angeles. Mr. George P. Smith has

SELL YOUR COLLECTION IN THE SUDDEN SERVICE CITY

St. Louis is practically the center of the United States. We are the only firm holding regular auction sales here. Forty-seven floor bidders at our last sale, many purchasing well into the hundreds. One local customer alone secured lots to the value of $825.30. And these were bought at prices higher than the best mail bids. At that we distributed 3000 catalogs to a select list! Next sale contains about 2000 lots and we'll mail 3500 catalogs.

Are you considering selling at auction? Are your stamps in truly fine condition? Then this is the place to sell. Our clientele is composed of those discriminating philatelists who demand "perfection" and understand the cost.

Mention has been made several times of the large number of oddities to be found in the 2c surface printed stamps due to the method by which these stamps are produced. As a rule we do not mention these minor oddities for hardly a sheet exists without some imperfection. Mr. H. A. Opalla, however, sends a variety of more than ordinary interest. The stamp is from the bottom of the sheet and shows a heavy line through the right "2" and extending through the ribbon.

We wish to thank Messrs. W. R. King, E. E. Wade, Jr. and C. Bangs, for notes of interest.

AUSTRALIA.—It is becoming increasingly difficult to find two stamps of the current 2d George Heads of exactly the same shade. The latest is a shade almost resembling that of the 5d, quite a brown effect. We have also seen some very dark orange ones. We have also been shown a freak shade of the 5d, the color was a grey brown. The ¼ has, so far, shown up in at least four distinct shades.—Australian Philatelic Record.

AUSTRIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. has shown us the following values in the new postage due set: 3kr, 4kr, 8kr and 20kr.

BRITISH SOLOMONS.—We have received 3d (old wmk.) on the buff paper which is being used at present for the 3d and 4d values of stamps of British Crown Colonies. The 2sh value is also a trifle darker in color.—Australian Philatelic Record.

CONGO.—Mr. Henry Hooreman informs us that the following were the amounts of the 1921 surcharges recently issued: 5 on 40, 109,000; 10 on 5, 365,000; 15 on 50, 320,000; 25 on 15, 307,000; 30 on 10, 292,000; 50 on 25, 278,000; 1fr, 162,000; 3frs, 69,000; 5frs, 41,000; 10frs, 56,000.

GEORGIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. have submitted to us copies of the 2r, 3r, and 5r stamps, with a five-line diagonal surcharge in black. Four of the five lines are in native characters but the middle line is "1920 12, 12".

LUXEMBURG.—Mr. Henry Hooreman advises that he is in receipt of Official news, that the following new stamps will be issued with the likeness of Grand Duchess Charlotte: 2c, 3c, 6c, 10c, (15c change of colors to green), 20c, 25c, 30c, 40c and 50c. Mr. Hooreman adds that these were expected to be placed on sale the 20th of September.

MEXICO.—We are indebted to the Frank P. Brown Co. for submitting to us a copy of a new 10c stamp of oblong shape and with a blue frame and brown centre. At the top are the words "Correos Mexico" while the base has the figures of value in each corner with "Diez Centavos" between. At the right is "1921" and the left "1821". The view in the centre shows the meeting of two military officers and beneath is the inscription "El Aprazo de Acatempan". The stamp bears the following imprint: "Ofigina Imp. de Hagienda—Mexico."

NICARAGUA.—The Economist Stamp Co. have submitted to us the following provisionals of this country. On the 25c and 50c official stamps of the 1915 issue the "Un Centavo" and "Dos Centavos" respectively, with the usual "Vale de cordoba" both surcharges being in black and of three lines. Also the 10c and 25c, of the 1914 issue overprinted "Medio Centavo" and "Un Centavo" respectively, also with the usual "Vale de cordoba". The 3c, 5c and 15c of the current set bear the surcharges of "Un centavo", Medio Centavo" and "Cinco Centavo" respectively, in the same manner as the other values before described. All are in black except the 5c, which is overprinted in red.

NIUE.—The Economist Stamp Co. have advised the appearance of the 6d George stamp of New Zealand overprinted "Niue" in blue.

NORTH WEST PACIFIC.—Mr. McVea has shown us the 4d mauve-violet, overprinted N. W. Pacific Islands and punctured "O. S."—Australian Philatelic Record.

NORTH WEST PACIFIC ISLANDS.—Mr Theo. T. Beke advises that he has received the 2d orange stamp of Australia, overprinted for use in these islands. He noted that they were issued early in July as he has received copies postmarked at Rabaul the 2nd of that month.

NYASALAND.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the ½d and 6d stamps on the new script watermarked paper.

PERU.—Mr. Frederick S. Wist has shown us a copy of a 2c stamp of a new design. The color is green and is a trifle larger in size than the current issue. At the top are "1821" and "1921", in the left and right corner respectively, while at the base is "2 centavos 2". In the centre is the likeness of Mariscal Arenales. Just above the portrait are the words "Republica Peruana".

ROUMANIA.—We are obliged to Mr. George Prechavsky for showing us a copy of the 1 leu stamp of the 1920 issue in a red color.

SAMOA.—A correspondent of the Australian Stamp Journal has been advised by the Postmaster of Samoa that a new issue was contemplated and expected for those islands (Savaii and Upolu) in the near future.—Stamp Collecting.

SEYCHELLES.—Mr. R. Roberts advises of the appearance of the 3c Postage and

A WORD TO THE WISE

"As a matter of fact, the whole trade has been caught napping with this change of watermark which is happening much more quickly than they supposed would be the case, and there are no stocks of this stuff anywhere, so that bigger advances in some stamps will take place than even in the old single C. A. Lines."

This is an extract from a letter from an English correspondent who is in close contact with market conditions in London. My personal experience in trying to pick up some of the Georges with old watermark that are already obsolete bears out his statements. I can still supply practically everything in these old watermark sets. Buy now before the prices go a-kiting.

Revenue stamp on the new script watermarked paper.

Straits Settlements.—The 1c and 1 dollar values, Script wmk., have arrived. —Stamp Collecting.

Syria.—Mr. Chas. A. Hamway advises as follows: "I have a very nice error of the 1 piastre on 5c green of France. O. M. F. Syrie is about 20mm from the bottom of the stamp and the numeral "1" is half shown and "piastre" is on the top. The whole surcharge falling slightly to the right. Also the "O" on One is missing in some surcharges showing only the period back of the "F".

Trengganu.—Eight denominations of the new set, printed on Script CA paper, are chronicled by the Royal Society's Journal—viz., 20c orange and purple, 25c purple and green, 30c black and purple, 50c carmine and green, $5 red and green on yellow, $25 blue and dull purple, $50 orange and green, and $100 red and green.

The 1c, 2c and 4c values of the Straits Settlements set were authorized for use in Trengganu during a recent temporary deficiency of those denominations of the Malay Sultanate, as already referred to in these columns.—Stamp Collecting.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1606 to 1610 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the Weekly will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

DICTIONARY ADDENDA.

By Willard O. Wylie.

AUNUS.—A town in N. W. Russia where in 1919, Finnish stamps were overprinted "Aunus" by the Finnish military forces engaged in fighting the Bolsheviks.

BATUM.—A Russian seaport on the eastern end of the Black Sea, which has had a checkered career. As a consequence of the World War it was occupied at two different times by an Indo-British army. On the second evacuation it was given over to the Georgian Republic. Stamps were issued in 1919.

CILICIA.—This is the old Turkish province of Adana, north of Cyprus. During the World War in 1919, under French Occupation a great variety of surcharged stamps were issued consisting of Turkish stamps with name of country in French "Cilicie".

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA.—A republic, resulting from the World War, consisting of the former Austrian provinces of Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia. It borders on Germany, Austria, Hungary and Poland. Stamps were first issued in 1918.

EESTI VABARIK.—Found on the stamps of Esthonia and means "Esthonian Republic".

EESTIMAA.—Esthonia as expressed in native dialect.

ELEJA.—A name applied to a local set of stamps said to have been used at Eleja, Latvia. The credentials of the set do not warrant a belief in their genuineness. Date of issue is described as Oct., 1919.

MAZAGAN A MAROC.—Local stamps bearing this inscription have little philatelic value. They were issued in the Sultanate of Morocco, Northwest Africa, about 1895, for a mail service between Mazagan (a seaport town of the province) and Morocco, (Marocco). The issue was short lived.

MAZAGAN-MARAKECH.—Local stamps bearing this inscription were issued in Morocco for a mail service between the two cities named. They were short lived and the stamps have fallen into such disrepute as to be no longer catalogued. Their date of issue was about 1895.

MOGADOR A MAROC.—Mogador is a seaport town of Morocco, Africa, with population of about 10,000. Around 1895 local stamps were issued for use on mail between this town and Morocco, the principal city. The use of the stamps was limited to a brief period of time and they possess little if any philatelic value.

SCHERMACK.—A name given to a method of separating stamps employed by the Schermack Vending Machine Company. The perforations are of long rectangular form. The stamps are furnished by the government in imperforate sheets and fitted to vending machines with distinctive method of perforating.

SIROTAM NASICH LEGIONARU.—This inscription on the pictorial set issued by Czecho Slovakia in 1919, means "For Orphans of our Legionaries".

TANGER-FEZ.—Local stamps bearing this inscription were issued about 1895, for postal service between Tangier (Tanger), a seaport town of Morocco, near the Strait of Gibraltar, and Fez, an inland city. The use of the labels was limited and they have practically no philatelic value.

URUQUISA ISSUE.—Nov. 11, 1920, Argentine Republic issued this stamp in commemoration of Gen. Uruquisa.

WASHINGTON ISLAND.—Located in the Southern Pacific Ocean. A post office was opened there Feb. 1, 1921, and the stamps of New Zealand put into use.

AMALGAMATED PHILATELISTS OF AMERICA.

Oskaloosa Convention, September 31, 1921.

By J. G. HOTTINGER.

The 1921 convention of the A. P. A. will be long remembered by those who attended. It was held in the Soakem hotel and the first session was called to order by Pres. Phil. A. Telic at 10.57 A. M. Tuesday morning. Mr. Al Bumm, the leading local collector welcomed the convention to his city.

After the reports of the committees and officers the Hon. O. N. Kuver conducted a brilliant discussion of the 17th century surcharged stamps of Mars. His being manager of The Interplanetary Transportation Service makes him a leading authority on the subject, for, by reason of his position, he has the most complete collection of Martian stamps on this planet.

On the second day the Election Committee reported the election of officers as follows:—

Pres., Phil. A. Telic.
Secretary, R. E. Paired.
Treasurer, Ben Zene.
Sales Mgr., A. P. Roval.
Exchange Mgr., O. N. Kuver.
Attorney, O. Ditty.
Auction Mgr., R. E. Printz.
Vice President, E. R. Orr.

McEel's Weakly was chosen the official organ for yet another year. Ben Zene wondered "why colyums are written in gasps?" "Because more space is used in that form," O. Ditty enlightened him. On hearing the attorney's answer, R. E. Printz remarked, "if they are so pressed for material, I guess I'll send them what our friend A. D. Hesive calls an S. A."

That evening was devoted to a stamp auction conducted by R. E. Printz.

Two distinguished delegates from abroad were present. They were Sir Charges and Count Er'Feit. The latter made an interesting speech which he closed with the remark that "if alcohol had to be used, instead of benzine, to discover watermarks, the philatelists of America would be out-a-luck." To this, A. D. Hesive, our witty philatelic scribe retorted, "But if such were the case and we collectors could induce Congress to pass a law whereby we could get that spirit for use in our hobby, then Philatelia would be in luck for we'd have thousands of new collectors, all watermark specialists."

Dupe Licate, the pioneer stamp dealer of New York, made a speech on the second issue of Atlantis postage dues, giving valuable hints on how to distinguish them from the Aquaranian issue of 1827. Later in the day he related some of the humorous incidents of his business. He exhibited a letter which he received from a youngster who "enclosed a quarter for one of them Watermark Detectives; yours truly, B. Ginner."

The convention was adjourned after the President read the Philatelist's 23rd psalm:—"The stamp is my Hobby. I shall not want another," etc., by N. Tire, of Lavatenia.

FORWARDING OF MAIL.

It is becoming a matter of common practice for advertisers to have their mail sent in care of the WEEKLY. In the future we ask that on advertising of this kind some local address be used rather than have the mail forwarded through this office. We have good and sufficient reasons for requesting that this be done.

Collector — NOTICE — Specialis[t]

We wish to have the name of every specializing collector in the country on [our] files for the coming season. No matter what you collect, special countries, sp[ecial] issues, blocks, covers or general items, we are preparing to serve you. Whether [or] not you have written us before, will you not do so now, stating what your inte[rests] are, and allowing us to submit selections as they come to us. We ask nothing fu[rther] than to have your name on our files—and we will prove our ability to serve you [this] fall and winter. Remember we send no selections unless requested.

Mr. Watson has just returned from the International Stamp Dealers' Congre[ss at] Zurich, where terrible business depression has aided him in receiving unequ[aled] agencies for choice stamps. This, together with the enormous stock we always [have] on hand, is our reason for seeking the privilege of serving you. May we not [have] just a word from you in this regard?

THE "POST OFFICE" MAURITIUS.

Translated by Permission from Messrs. Theodore Champion's Monthly Bulletin and Will Later Be Reprinted in Booklet form.

By C. A. HOWES.

II. Genealogical.

We will now outline the history and vicissitudes of the 25 known copies of the "Post Office" Mauritius, which will be accompanied by illustrations of the majority of the stamps.

We have told about the discovery of the plate and have given an illustration of it. We now illustrate the two copies printed from it before it was placed in the British Museum.

Unused copies of the "Post Office" Mauritius resulting from the reprinting of the Plate before being placed in the British Museum.

The first copies known of the "Post Office" 1 penny and 2 pence (I and II) were bought by Moens in 1865 for 200 francs! They came out of the collection of a young man, who had sold it for 3000 francs, through a Bordeaux merchant, M. Gimet. Moens let Judge Philbrick, of London, have the stamps for 500 francs; then the collection of this rich amateur was sold for 100,000 francs to la Renotière von Ferrary.

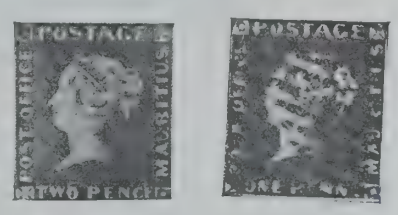
The third copy, an unused 2 pence, was sold in 1866 by Madame Desbois, of Bordeaux, to M. Lalanne. (For further details see numbers XI and XII.)

Copies III and X.

The fourth copy, a cancelled 1 penny, was found by a merchant of Port Louis, Mauritius, a M. Noirel. He really found two of them among a lot of old newspapers, but he unfortunately forgot and left one in a linen vest which he sent to the laundress! The remaining copy was sold to M. Lionnel who resold it in April, 1870, to Moens for 100 francs, and Moens sold it for 500 francs to M. de Rothschild.

The fifth copy, a cancelled 2 pence, came from a M. Rae, who had received it from a friend in 1869. In 1889 he sent his collection to Paris and Roussin bought it for 18,000 francs, found the "Post Office" Mauritius, and sold it to M. Perrissin for 4000 francs. The latter thought this an enormous price and as he did not believe in such excessive rarity for the stamp he let the banker Astruc have it for 3,500 francs, who passed it on for 3750 francs to the late Paul Mirabaud. This copy is upon a piece of cover showing the name of the addressee, a M. Caunter, at Port Louis.

The sixth copy, an unused 2 pence, came from the previously mentioned Madame Desbois, was bought for 100 francs by Moens in 1869 and sold for 250 francs to Dr. Legrand.



Copies VI and VII.

The seventh copy, a cancelled 1 penny, came from the same source as the last, passed also through the hands of Moens who sold it to Dr. Legrand in 1871 for 250 francs. That made a pair, therefore, for the famous "Dr. Magnus", who parted with them in 1897 when M. Lemaire became their possessor to the tune of 30,000 francs. That is a far cry from the 100 francs of Moens!

Gibbons Stamp Circular
This snappy little publication is mailed free for nothing—not even postage—once a month unless the editor goes fishing or yachting. This season of the year therefore is a good time to write for a copy. This circular is not mailed to substitutors, kid collectors, send-em-back-unregistered fiends and such like. Postcards also go straight into the waste paper basket. Serious and interested collectors would do well to send for a copy and get on the list free before we close the offer with the ten thousandth name. [H

UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS

New Order enclosed. I "cleaned up" on last packet I received from you (1000 variety) already realizing more than I paid after securing 400 varieties for myself.—B. Buchanan, Liverpool, Ohio.

Well satisfied with 2000 packet. Secured 900 stamps for my collection, selling the rest to my friends. Have already cleared over $5.00.—A. Wahlberg, Oakland, Calif.

Very much pleased with 1000 packet. Order enclosed for a 2000. I was greatly surprised at the quality of the stamps in the packet.—F. C. Elmes, Berwick, Pa.

Use bonds sent as payment for 10,000 variety packet, The packet proved highly satisfactory as a basis for a general collection.—F. M. Bigelow, Chicago, Ill.

Received 1000 packet some days ago and have had a fine time looking them over. Secured 250 new stamps for my collection of 3700, traded 43 for other new varieties and replaced 100 that were better specimens than mine. I never saw any stamps in such good condition, not a poor one in the lot. Order for 2000 packet enclosed.—T. Herrick, City Treasurer, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Don't Hesitate—Your opportunity is now. Remember the packet must satisfy or we refund your money plus your postage in returning same. Could we be more convincing of these packets' sterling qualities? Try one today—acts like a good tonic.

Copy VIII.

The eighth and ninth copies, a 1 penny and 2 pence, both unused, came from Madame Desbois again and were sold by Moens to Périnelle for 1000 francs; then repurchased by Moens for 3000 francs, to be resold for 5500 francs to la Renotière von Ferrary.

The tenth copy, a 1 penny unused, came from Madame Desbois who sold it to Lalanne. Later Piet Lataudrie became the possessor of the Lalanne collection, which contained four "Post Office" stamps, and was sold through M. Pouget. The history of this copy is bound up with that of number three.

The eleventh and twelfth copies, belonging to Lalanne, were found in his collection as just stated. They are the 1 penny and 2 pence, both used. Piet Lataudrie, being willing to content himself with one pair of the "Post Office", sold copies III and X to Stanley Gibbons for 17,000 francs, who in turn sold them to Avery, who sold them to Peckitt, who turned them over to the late Henry J. Duveen, in whose collection they still remain.

When Piet Lataudrie died his widow sold the pair of "Post Office" to Mors for 42,000 francs. These are the two copies that M. Champion has acquired for the respectable sum of 160,000 francs!

The thirteenth copy, a cancelled 2 pence, found again by Madame Desbois, was sent to Moens in 1872 who paid as usual 100 francs for it and then resold it for 600 francs to M. de Rothschild.

The fourteenth copy, an unused 2 pence, was found in a collection bought by Madame Desbois for 500 francs. It was an unused 2 pence which she sent to M. Moens in 1875 and for which he paid her 300 francs. This copy was slightly defective, one corner being nicked. It was bought by la Renotière von Ferrary, who in 1875 had no "Post Office" stamps in his collection; but he sold it to Tapling for 1000 francs when he obtained, in 1881, the first two copies known, which we have already described as numbers I and II.

The fifteenth copy, a 1 penny on entire cover, was found by the celebrated philatelic writer, Major Evans, who discovered it in Port Louis in 1878. He had bought a small collection in which he found the 1 penny, cancelled, which he valued at 750 francs. He sold it in 1884 to Tapling, the famous collector, for 1825 francs. This copy is on the envelope containing one of the invitations sent out on September 21, 1847, by the Governor for his reception! This rarity now rests in the British Museum.

The sixteenth copy was found in the Schyler collection, bought in 1897 by M. Pouget, of Bordeaux, for 4000 francs. It was a cancelled 1 penny, somewhat damaged, which was estimated to be worth 3000 francs. It was sold for 10,000 francs to Kirchner, but as he was not pleased with it it was sold to Lenz for 8000 francs, who in turn resold it to Kosack for 6000 francs. Thus we have the rare spectacle of a "Post Office" Mauritius dropping in price! Kosack sold it to a collector for 8000 francs, and when the latter died a couple of years later Kosack bought it back at the same figure. Six or seven years afterwards it was sold for 10,000 francs to a collector who did not wish his name divulged.

Copies XVIII and XIX.

The seventeenth copy, a 1 penny on cover, was found in 1898 by the Widow Duvivier, of Mauritius, in looking over some old papers when changing her domicile. It was also an invitation of the Governor's, addressed to her husband. It was bought by Peckitt for 15,000 francs and sold the same year to M. de Kindore, for 25,000 francs.

The eighteenth and nineteenth copies, a pair of 1 penny on cover, were found in Bombay by a Mr. Howard in 1897. He purchased the cover for 1250 francs and sold it to Peckitt in 1898 for 34,500 francs!

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—C. Lat. Wilhelm has withdrawn his resignation as stamp editor of the Baltimore American and his articles are again appearing in that publication. A stamp exhibit will be held at the Academy, November 5.

—If anyone knows the address of Charles J. Corbin, kindly post-card it to J. O. Moore, Rheims, N. Y. The favor will be appreciated.

—The Hawkeye Stamp Co., Cedar Rapids, Iowa, have just issued a new price list of a wonderful assortment of packets. Over 300 low priced sets are also included for the small collector. List will be mailed free on request.

—Charles A. Townsend, noticing our remark concerning the large precancel advertisement that recently appeared in the WEEKLY, calls our attention to the fact that some eighteen years ago he published what is probably the first pricelist of precancels, some 240 items being listed. It appeared in the Weekly Philatelic Era, published in Portland, Me.

—Chas. C. Dargue, Kittanning, Pa., would like the address of Louis D. Cohen, formerly of Baltimore, Md., and 253 W. 38 St., N. Y. City.

—A new advertising cancellation is at hand from Cincinnati. It consists of the following in four lines:—"Public Health—Exposition—Cincinnati, Ohio—October 15 to 22."

—We have been presented with a complete file of the Philatelic Review, published by P. C. Mackey, 354 Senator St., Brooklyn, N. Y. Twenty-eight numbers have thus far been issued and a strong feature of recent issues has been an index to current philatelic periodicals compiled by A. H. Pike. We venture to suggest that our readers send for a sample copy, which will, no doubt, be gladly supplied upon request.

—"You may be interested in the brief article on stamp collecting on page 576 of the Atlantic Monthly for October. It is something of a triumph to have 'broken into' a highbrow magazine like the Atlantic, even though the article in question lightly ridicules the philatelist!" —Benjamin Cadbury.

COSTLY CANCELLATIONS.

Universal penny postage, a dream partially realized, which earned the late Sir J. Henniker Heaton a baronetcy, has been retarded since the war by wide European increases in charges for letters and other matter conveyed by the various Post Offices. In Scandinavia and in Holland and Belgium prices for postage have become almost prohibitive. A British firm, with offices in London, recently received a catalogue of Dutch bulbs, but not directly from Holland. The dispatching firm had sent their British catalogues from the environs of the Zuyder Zee to Vienna, finding it less costly to post them separately in that city for conveyance to the English metropolis. But even British firms, canvassing English buyers, have ascertained it to be more economical to forward their circular letters to the Continent in bulk, and dispatch them separately from the countries where postal charges have not as yet risen to the point of extortion.—Clipping.

1606-7-8-9-10.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1606 to 1610 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

DICTIONARY ADDENDA.

By Willard O. Wylie.

ABSTIMMUNG IN SALZBURG 29 MAI 1921 ("Plebiscite," etc.)—Austrian stamps with this overprint are bogus.

BALBOA TOMANDO POSESION DEL OCIANO PACIFICO.—"Balboa taking possession of the Pacific Ocean" on the Panama 1915, 2c stamp.

BOURCHIER ISSUE.—The name given to a set of stamps issued by Bulgaria in 1921 to honor the memory of J. D. Bouchier, a London Times correspondent. In the World War he won the esteem of the Bulgars by evidences of friendship for the people among whom he lived.

CUSTOMS DUTY.—The Canada stamps bearing this inscription are not postage stamps. They are used in connection with printed matter entering Canada from foreign countries and represent a fiscal tax collected by the postal authorities.

CENTENARIO DEL DESCUBRIMIENTO DEL MAR DEL SUR.—This inscription on Panama 1913, 2½c commemorative means "Centennial of the Discovery of the South Sea". Balboa is shown in the design of this stamp on a hill looking out upon the Pacific Ocean.

EXCLUSAS DE GATUN.—This inscription is found on Panama, 1915, 5c commemorative and means "Gatun Locks". Note that the Spanish spelling of the first word is usually "Esclusas".

HUNGARIAN AMERICAN MESSENGER POSTAGE.—This so-called stamp is a fake pure and simple. It bears pictures of Kossuth and Washington and is of Hungarian origin. The promoters of this "post" had in mind the establishment of a private mail route between Hungary and the U. S. at the time of the Roumanian occupation of the former country.

INGERMANLAND.—See "Ingria."

INGRIA.—A district in Russia where a set of stamps was issued in 1920 of Finnish occupational origin. They differ from the Finnish set in the central design, the Ingria coat of arms.

INKERI.—Ingria, which see.

KARNTEN-ABSTIMMUNG.—A surcharge applied to the Austrian stamps used in the plebiscite zone in Carinthia. The words are German for "Carinthia-Plebiscite".

K. G. C. A.—These letters surcharged on stamps of Jugo Slavia stand for "Koruska Glasoona Cona A" and mean in English "Carinthian Plebiscite, Zone A".

LA SEMEUSE (The Sower).—A name applied to the design of certain French stamps, the work of M. Roty. First used in 1903.

NECESSITY MONEY.—A name applied to postage stamps used for small change in times of financial stress and scarcity of silver and copper. The stamps are often enclosed in cheap frames for protection in wear. See "Encased Postage Stamps".

PARTICULAR.—This word is found overprinted on certain official stamps of Nicaragua on which the word OFICIAL has been barred out. The meaning of the word is "particular" or "special" in English, but its special service has not been indicated and the stamps were used for ordinary postage.

SALTO DE LA CHORRERA.—"Falls of the Chorrera" an inscription on the Panama, 1915, ½c stamp.

INTERNATIONAL POSTMARK SOCIETY.

The International Postmark Society was organized in 1912. Its purpose is to unite in a common cause all those who are in any way interested in collecting postal markings.

The scope of the organization has been broadening and lately much data is being gathered and arranged relative to the standardization, typing, etc., of postal markings.

It offers advantages of exchange and agreeable relations with collectors working on the same problems. Your private collection may not be large, nor your interest wholly consuming, yet you will doubtless be glad to supply whatever information your specimens furnish and we hope you will be pleased to co-operate with us in order that the I. P. S. may have among its members all serious collectors working in this field.

Agreeable to careful expansion, we wish to incorporate to mutual advantage collectors in any field of postal markings. A small but progressive medium, the Philatelic Review, at present acts as our official organ.

WHAT ARE STAMPS GOOD FOR?

The Answer to That Thread-bare Question Our Friends All Ask Us.

By BILL BLOSS.

For many years, the pursuit of the pestive postage stamp has been one of our fondest joys. We have pursued him through school and into the fields of business. We have tracked him to his lair, no matter where it be, and have denied ourselves countless joys that we might invest our hard-earned yen in albums to show him at his best. We have burned the midnight juice and gladdened the heart of the president of the public service corporation, that we might know more of the p. p. s. and his ways. We have fought for him (the last fight we remember was with a kid who pinched three Somali Coast treasures from our album) and we have acknowledged him in the face of our friends, many of whom have, because of our love of him, classed us with the annunciators prevalent in the upper portion of clocks of Swiss origin.

And everybody says: "What are the darn things good for when you get 'em?"

Well, boys, what are they good for?

For many years, this question bothered us, as it bothers many of our associates and accomplices in this "useless" pursuit (?). Being a member of this so-called human race, we desire the respect and admiration of our fellow men. And because this question is so often asked, and upon its answer so often has depended our "classification" by our friends, we have viewed it with great concern.

We have answered it in many ways. At first, we endeavored to explain. Were talk gasoline, the amount we have expended in answering this question would easily have driven a high-powered car to the moon and back. And the more we explained, the more we had to explain. We became adept in trying to bring our brethren to the light, without success.

We have tried other tactics. When the question would be put to us we have given the questioner the fishy eye, and have attempted to shrivel him up with scornful gaze. This method is somewhat more successful, for it often has led the other fellow to feel his ignorance at being uninformed on the merits of so popular a pastime as the pursuit of the p. p. s.

Growing wiser through bitter experience, we have learned to classify our inquisitive friends. To those who show signs of sympathy in our weakness for the tiny engravings, we are tempted to answer in detail. So, leading the victim to a quiet spot, and after selecting a soft seat and one of the victim's cigars (this is important) we lay before him as many of the reasons why we go after the elusive stamp as he will listen to. In only one case have we succeeded in getting the victim to remain until our story was completely told, and in that case we were rewarded by a five dollar bill and instructions to buy him an album, that he might share our joy.

To the hard ones, who would, we feel, ridicule us and consider us as fruit of the almond tree, we maintain an air of secrecy. Saying "Ah, that is a secret we must reveal only to those of proven worth" we dismiss them with a hearty pat on the back, in lieu of stronger and more drastic measures prohibited by law. This method, too, is very successful, as the less you tell 'em, the more they want to know.

To a few whom we know to be mercenarily inclined, we demonstrate ourself as having an eye to profit, by pointing out a few of the big sales of stamps of which most everyone knows, and saying that someday we, too, expect to realize handsomely on our investment, the same as so many others we have known. When we mention the fact that the publishers of the standard catalog can sell two large editions in a single season, at $1.50 of any man's money per book, they are convinced that there must be something in the hobby worth while. When we tell them that in quantity, the sale of this book compares favorably with that of some of the popular novels, we are talking in language they understand.

Then, if they are not convinced, we switch the subject to geography and mention a few places they never heard of, then talk of the history of a few countries they have not heard of since they put their school geographies on the shelf; they realize that perhaps there is more to stamp collecting than pasting stamps in a book. And, of course, the advantage is all ours, for we have on hand a dozen or two stock topics which we know from good experience will get them. So far, none of them have started to question us on the history of the ancients, we are proud to say. For, if philately has made us conversant in modern history and geography, we have paid for it by neglecting our study of other subjects of possibly greater value. They don't know that.

One of our artist friends regarded us a A1 squirrel food for many years, until one evening, he chanced to inspect one of our books, and the very beauty of the design and color schemes so appealed to him that he is now making a collection of unused stamps purely for use as art studies (so he says) though we notice he likes to "'swap" and hunt the hard ones.

Occasionally, we meet a hard-shell whom we want to convince, just for the love of the sport, and so if all other means fail, we probe into his life until we find his hobby. Then he is our meat. Sometimes we find he has a weakness for accumulating baseball box scores, which to our way of thinking, is as useless a waste of time as using boxing gloves to pick fleas off a Mexican's dog. We like a ball game, but we pass on the post mortems.

Once, we found a man who hooted at stamp collecting, but who will cheerfully pay any price for a Chinese snuff box. And the funny part of that is—now he uses them to keep his duplicates in, and puts hinges in his best one.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world, and we never pester the other fellow until he bothers us. We have long since ceased to shy at the old question, for we know that, sometime, sooner or later, our turn will come. Philately is easily proved as sensible as the collection of fishing reels or Navajo blankets or grandfathers' clocks; or the thousand other hobbies indulged in by our brethren.

And, now that you have read our disposition of this question, we ask you: What are stamps good for? Why do you collect them? Tell us.

DEATH OF C. H. MEKEEL

Just as we go to press information is received from E. T. Parker of the death of Charles H. Mekeel of Bethlehem, Pa. Mr. Parker's note reads:—"Charles H. Mekeel died suddenly last night (Oct. 13) at 7.10 P. M."

This information will come as a shock to thousands of philatelists who have known Mr. Mekeel for many years. He was the founder of this publication and has been connected with several publishing enterprises. At the time of his death he was the editor of the Albemarle Stamp Collector. His contributions to philatelic literature have been characterized by a keen philatelic instinct.

PRUSSIA.

Now that the war is over and p reigns between the Great Powers were involved in it, the stamps of erstwhile "enemy countries" are taboo to the extent that prevailed ing the course of the conflict. The sues of the old German States will ways attract many collectors, eve the more modern and common stamps of the Empire are passed Of course Bavaria stands in a clas itself, because, though merged into Empire in 1871, it still managed its postal system and issued its own tinctive stamps, refusing to lose identity in this matter. Wurtem also is in the same class, for it res the postal merger with the Empire til 1902, and even then retained its stamp issues for official and district

The kingdom of Prussia, as largest and leading German state, responsible for the creation of the pire at the close of the Franco-Pru war in 1871. This event caused supersession of the stamps of mo the individual states by those of the pire, with the exception of the tw ready noted in the preceding parag although the stamps of the North man Postal District had already placed the stamps of those States were included in it.

Bavaria was the first of the Ge States to issue stamps, in 1849, Prussia was the next, in the follo year. A general revision of rates was made and put into effe decree of the King on January 1, but the stamps intended to accom the new service were not ready and not issued for use until November following. They consisted of values, 6 pfennig (or ½ silber-chen), 1 groschen, 2 groschen a groschen. They were engraved on and printed in sheets of 150 stam fifteen horizontal rows of ten, and unperforated. The 6 pfennig printed in orange and vermilion on paper, but the other three values printed in black upon colored pa rose, blue and yellow, respectivel was common in German stamp of those days. The stamps were watermarked with two branche laurel in the shape of a wreath. portrait is that of King Fre William IV.

Prussian money of those days w thaler, worth about 72 cents of money, divided into 30 silber-gro and the latter into 12 pfennig The silber-groschen was therefore alent to almost 2½ cents. The which called for the values issued for a single letter weighing 1 (about ½ ounce), 1 silbergroschen 10 German miles (nearly 50 E miles), 2 silbergroschen from 10 German miles, and 3 silbergrosch a greater distance. Of course, these amounts were charged for weight letters, and so on to qua weight letters, but only five rat letters between 4 and 8 loth, a rates for letters weighing between 16 loth. The 6 pfennig stamps we printed matter sent unsealed, an for a delivery fee in places where was a post office, but elsewhere t was 1 silbergroschen. If persons for their letters there was no fee registration rate was 2 silbergrosc

On May 1, 1856, the rate for matter sent unsealed was reduce 6 pfennig to 4 pfennig, and a sta the latter value was issued in green, corresponding in every oth with the rest of the set.

An official notice of Decemb 1856, announced the issue of the groschen stamps in color on wh per, but no dated specimens hav far been noted earlier than June The new stamps were typograp colors corresponding to the color per previously used. The King' trait appears on a solid ground of the lined ground of the first The plates were made up of types, the arrangement being li first issue, but the process beir expensive than the steel plate eng The paper was white and u marked, and the stamps were unperforated. As a safeguard against forgery or cleaning, a colorless impression of a network design (in fact, the same network afterwards used as the background for the so-called "Alsace-Lorraine" stamps) was impressed on the paper before the stamps were printed. Carbonate of lead was used for this work and an exposure of the stamp to the fumes of sulphuretted hydrogen will generally make at least a portion of it visible.

In September, 1858, a change was made in the silbergroschen stamps, by which they were given a lined instead of solid background. The new dies were prepared from the original engraving of the head made on boxwood for the preceding issue. The sheets were printed typographically in the same form as before, from electrotype plates, on white paper which had already received an impression of the invisible network. In 1859 the 4 pfennig stamp was added to the set. There is no need of confusing this stamp with the 4 pfennig of 1856, as the latter is, of course, on watermarked paper. In May, 1860, the 6 pfennig was printed from the original steel plates upon the unwatermarked paper and, of course, can be readily distinguished from the earlier issue by this means.

King Frederick William IV died on January 2, 1861, and was succeeded by King William I, afterwards Emperor of Germany. Instead of the usual change in the stamps of the head of the new ruler, as might be expected, a cabinet order of February 17, 1861, decreed that the Prussian coat-of-arms should be used for the proposed new series. A circular of September 19, 1861, announced the new stamps, but ordered that old stocks should be used up before the new ones were issued. They are not known postmarked earlier than November, 1861. The design was engraved on steel by Herr Schilling, who had engraved the 1857 issue on boxwood, in two designs, one octagonal in form, for the pfennig values, and the other of oval form, for the silbergroschen values. Plates were made from electros in the same form as before and printed from typographically, at the same time slightly embossing the Prussian arms displayed in the center. The paper used was unwatermarked and did not receive the invisible network impression. The stamps were rouletted 11½.

The original issue contained the five values that had been usual, all in the regulation colors except the 3 silbergroschen, which was given the yellow-brown that had been adopted for this value by the German-Austrian Postal Union. On April 1, 1865, a 3 pfennig stamp in lilac was added to the set, conforming in all respects to the other pfennig values. This was due to a new rate of ¾ silbergroschen (9 pfennig) on printed matter sent to Norway. As this rate could not be made up in stamps, a 3 pfennig stamp to be used with the 6 pfennig was the result.

The Prussian parcel post had been operating on a cash payment basis for its fees, but it was decided to try the use of stamps and reduce bookkeeping, so the experiment was made at all railway station post offices from December 15 to 31st of 1866. Two high value stamps of 10 and 30 silbergroschen were prepared for this trial. The experiment was successful and the system was extended to all post offices by a circular of June 2, 1867. It was always specified that the two high value stamps were not to be sold to the public but affixed by the officials in the offices. It seems to have been the idea that counterfeiting or cleaning might be undertaken, and we find the same idea in Wurtemberg, where the 2 mark stamp had printed on its back the word unverkäuflich (unsalable).

These two high value stamps are unique. The dies were engraved by Schiller on copper in "positive" form, that is not reversed like the usual die. Electrotypes were then taken and formed into a printing plate of 100 stamps, ten rows of ten. By reason of the reversal of the usual method, the impression from the plate was reversed, but it was printed on a specially prepared transparent thin paper, coated with a solution of collodion and gelatine, so that the design showed properly through the paper. The gumming was done on the printed side, so that when used the stamp would be correctly placed to have its figures and lettering read properly. The 10 sgr. was printed in rose, and the 30 sgr. in dark blue, and they were rouletted 10. The term "gold-beater's skin" does not properly apply to the paper on which the stamps were printed.

Prussia bought out the postal monopoly of the Princes of Thurn and Taxis in South Germany for three million thaler, and it became necessary to have kreuzer stamps for use in that territory. One kreuzer was equal to 3 3-7 pfennig, and the letter rates were therefore fixed at 3, 6 and 9 kreuzer as being nearest the Prussian rates of 1, 2 and 2 silbergroschen. The 1 kreuzer value approximated the 4 pfennig stamp, and that and the 2 kreuzer were used for printed matter and samples.

The stamps of the new issue, which appeared on July 1, 1867, were produced in the same way as the concurrent Prussian stamps, the same die of the coat-of-arms being used by Schiller in their manufacture. The sheets were of 100 stamps in ten rows of ten, and they were rouletted 16. The 10 and 30 silbergroschen stamps were used without change in the new territory, being reckoned at 35 kreuzer and 1 gulden 45 kreuzer respectively.

On January 1, 1868, Prussia joined the North German Confederation, and the stamps of that Postal District superseded her own, except the 10 and 30 silbergroschen, of which there was such a large stock that they remained in use in the District until the end of February, 1869.

The only other postal issue of Prussia was the set of official stamps issued for the year 1903. These were officially called Zählmarken, or "accounting stamps." It seems there are some 26 administrative departments in Germany which send correspondence under frank, but are required to pay a certain specified sum each year for the privilege to the Post Office Department. These stamps were issued to ascertain the proper amount for Prussia, which was the department numbered 21 on the list. The inscription means "free through redemption"—that is, the stamps were furnished free for accounting purposes, but were "redeemed" by payment of the total amount they represented at the end of the year.—New England Stamp Monthly.

THE JUBILEE STAMP AUCTION.

In view of the great development of the stamp auction business in this country, the announcement that the Junior Philatelic Society, London, is organizing a Jubilee Celebration of the first British Stamp Auction, will attract widespread interest. It was on March 18, 1872, that the first stamp auction was held in this country at Messrs. Sotheby's sale room at 113 Wellington Street, Strand, when 275 lots were offered. The arrangements for the jubilee celebration on March 18th, 1922, are well in hand, and all the philatelic auctioneers have promised their co-operation in the commemoration, of which full particulars will be issued at an early date.

¶ It's the way we run our business!
¶ We pay our bills when presented and expect our advertisers to do the same. We may well be suspicious of one who, knowing our rule, needs to be prodded each month.
¶ Just now advertising is so plentiful that we can afford to be a bit particular.
¶ Moreover, cost of paper and labor compels it.
¶ Nuff sed.

Trust—Several more accounts have come to us of the operations of speculators who are alleged to be buying quantities of desirable early issues or stamps generally, with a future, for the avowed purpose of selling at a decided profit in time to come. A remark made by one of the speculators that a correspondent thinks is portentious was to the effect that certain stamps gave out before the money. In other words, all of the stamps of the kind had been bought up but probably at a price that the speculator made as he may be depended upon not to pursue prices to the top. We cannot see how any objection can be made to the activities of those men who back up their faith in the growth of collecting with long purses. Too, it would seem futile to condemn the practice as the individual is a free agent and may speculate in stamps as well as in any other commodity. In fact, the selection of stamps for speculation is a tribute to them as a substantial asset. So far as the great majority of stamps is concerned, they will not be the victims of any cornering and so the collector as we know him will not suffer any deprivation. We might decry speculation on the count that the speculator may have been a good collector whose pleasure in stamps becomes a sordid interest through speculation and that in consequence, the pure joy of collecting is lost. About the best speculation that we can advise is that made by the collector who buys his stamps carefully for his album one by one.

Quest—Mr. James Logan, General Manager of the United States Envelope Company, Worcester, Mass., is writing a history of the envelope business in this country which he is contributing to the excellent Red Envelope, the publication of the company. As any history of the envelope business necessarily will cross the borderline of philately in its course, we are pleased to help Mr. Logan in his work by sending a few examples of early envelopes. Mr. Logan writes: "Your name and address has been given me by Dr. C. J. West, Washington, D. C., with the suggestion that perhaps you can give me some information about Geo. F. Nesbitt, of New York, who had the first contract with the U. S. government for making stamped envelopes. I have heard that he was a six-foot Virginian but when or where born, I have not yet been able to learn, nor the date of his death, except that it was in 1869, but where? Can you help me?" We cannot give definite information about Mr. Nesbitt and while we are seeking for biographical details, it is possible that some reader may know just where to look for particulars.

Score—In one of the "Memory Tests" series syndicated in hundreds, if not thousands of newspapers throughout the country, no doubt, we find the questions in a decent issue of the Chicago Tribune: "What is a philatelist? A numismatist? A philatelist is one who collects and studies postage stamps. A numismatist collects and studies coins." This gave us an idea of having a test under our own auspices and imitating the Inquiring Reporter, we asked five different men on the street if they knew what a philatelist is. Our method of approach was to ask where the Conway Building was, at the same time showing a card with the name of a mythical Smith, followed by "Philatelist," plainly printed. Five men of agreeable mien were accosted a block away from the building and each one of them knew where the edifice was but in answer to the "philatelist" query, the results were about as follows: One.—"Search me," cheerfully, and after taking a few steps on, he turned back and hazarded: "He must be some kind of an artist." Two.—Here we struck oil. "A philatelist" (his rendition of the word was not exactly by the book) "is a fancier of foreign stamps." The definition was pat and we asked if he collected stamps. "Not now, but I have some of the World's Fair stamps," the Columbians of 1893. Three.—"Ask the elevator starter." Four.—"That's one on me; may be he's a Christian Science healer." Five.—"Yes, I think I know him; he teaches French and other languages." Write your own thesis but an average of twenty per cent among business men is not bad.

Helps—At different times, the need of new maps showing the philatelic countries of recent origin has been spoken of in the columns of the WEEKLY and at intervals correspondents, among whom we may mention Messrs. Jerrems, Ragatz, Timmons, Skeene and Waterman, have acquainted us with the maps that the Literary Digest has published and also those of the Geographical Magazine, Asia and other publications. All these readers are thanked for their evidences of co-operation and usually in some form or other the information that they gave was available. We heard some time ago of the philatelic maps published in Germany that were said to present in compact, yet thorough way, the physical limits of the new countries and the obscurer ones as well of those already given place in the stamp albums. Through the offices of a friend we have received the third edition of Lucke's Atlas der Briefmarken-Geographie which contains thirty-four pages of maps, six countries to each folio. We may say that this work is deserving of popularity as it is indexed for easy reference and withal seems authoritative in its contents. It is our understanding that this Leipsig publication will be sold in this country in a short time.

Trade—From Mr. Wm. C. Schilling, of Baltimore, we have received a copy of a circular issued in 1869 to the "Stamp Trade" by Anthony Fischer, of Baltimore. On the back page of this four-page price-list is the advertisement of the fourteenth edition of the Illustrated Stamp Album and Catalogue, by G. Bauschke, "translated into English from the German." Three qualities of ing, ranging in price from one to dollars are offered. Needless t that the price quotations on the s are such as to make one wonder w the next fifty years will effect so an advance in prices. We notic statement written in ink on the b of a page: "Egypt is all gone. supply every month."

Taboo—The following notice fr third assistant postmaster genera issued several weeks ago: "It has to attention that when affixing s to mail matter, particularly o fourth class (parcel post), in paym postage thereon, it is the practi some persons and concerns to cov face of the stamps with mucila other paste used in attaching s and labels to the matter. This permissible, as the stamps cannot erly be defaced and loss of revenu result through the possible reuse stamps." This warning makes us of the days when the "glazing" of age stamps was one of the min dustries that was plied with much z the unscrupulous who removed th cellation from the stamps wit "sizing." We are glad that the g ment is after the despoilers of p specimens for the collection.

FAKED 30 ON 20ø, 1877, SWEDEN.

Translated from Svensk Filatelistisk Tidskrift by SWEN GORANSON.

No. 1. November, 1903.

"A very clever counterfeit of the error 30/20 ore has lately been offered for sale to collectors.

The size of the design corresponds perfectly with the original, so it has, most likely, been produced through some photographic process. It seems that the negative has been underexposed, as the background is very faint, which makes the stamp appear lighter, in spite of the fact that the color of the counterfeit is more red brown than on the original. The outer line surrounding the design is narrower and the white squares in the corners (a la greque) are larger than on the original. On all originals the lower edge of the red circle containing the figures '20' appear ragged, but not so on the counterfeit.

The paper is thicker than in the original. The perforation is a failure; it is 13 as on the original stamp, but the holes are smaller and farther apart, also, the originals were perforated the whole sheet at once, whereas on the counterfeit the perforations have been made first horizontally and then vertically or vice versa. Hence the four corners are not uniform, that is, have the 'arrow-tail' shape that all the genuine stamps have, but may have the tails in one or two corners and the others pointed".

"Since the above was written we have been able to secure more information in regard to this counterfeit.

It appears that the party offering it for sale is a certain Emilio Neri, Florence, Italy, who had sent 12 unused and uncancelled copies to a collector requesting Swedish stamps in trade, to the value of 112 marks. He also enclosed a 'proof' the same as the other stamps, but cancelled with a small unreadable postmark in violet ink. This stamp is also larger, 25x23 mm. instead of 24½x22 mm. and perforated 14, which shows that the counterfeiter has access to different types of perforating machines and, perhaps, also other paraphernalia for the manufacture of counterfeit stamps. His letter is written on old, bleached, bluish paper, out of the market long ago, but well adapted for the making of oldish looking Italian letters."

No. 2. November, 1907.

"In our issue of Nov., 1903, we had occasion to reveal a counterfeit of the error 30/20 ore, 1877. Again we have a chance to describe another, but we are not able to reveal the source of the same.

At a visit with Mr. Phillips of the firm of Stanley Gibbons, Ltd., London, a few months ago, the writer found this specimen in the firm's counterfeit collection. The stamp had been found by them in a collection some time before.

The design is not so well made as on the original, the whole print looks rather 'musty' and besides the details differ considerably. The 'stars' on each side of '20' are very clumsy and uneven, and the narrow parts of figure '2' are thicker than on the original. The word 'SVERIGE' is poorly executed and not distinct enough. The brown line on the lower part of the inner circle (which is so characteristic of all originals) does not appear at all. The outer frame is not as clear and the dots over 'ö' form a circle and the ö itself is broken at the top, whereas on the original it is perfect. The perforation differs from the original, 13½ instead of 13."

No. 3. October, 1908.

"Another counterfeit of the error 30/20 ore, 1877, has been discovered in an approval selection by our member, Mr. B. Michalski, London. The copy was found by him in an old collection. A thorough investigation of its source was immediately started but without result. The counterfeit does not, however, belong to the dangerous kind, because at a mere glance it shows very great differences from the original.

The Size: While the genuine stamp measures 24½x22 mm. this one measures only 23x22 mm., hence, 1½ mm. shorter than the original. The printing looks very much like the original but at a closer examination of the figures '20' are lots smaller than on the genuine.

The paper is a trifle glazed, is grayish in color and considerably thicker than in the original. Perforation short and blunt. 12 instead of 13. A cancellation like the one on this counterfeit has never existed."

No. 4. May, 1910.—By Hilmer Djurling.

"Some time ago, a stamp firm in Brussels, Belgium, sent me for examination a copy of the error 30/20 ore, 1877.

The specimen told me from its appearance that I had to deal with a counterfeit, although at the first glance no particular difference from the original could be discovered, except that the familiar brown line at the bottom of the inner circle, on the original, was missing. In examining and measuring the stamp very minutely, I found that in no place did the design differ from the original, except that the white space between the design proper and the outer frame was a trifle wider. The paper appeared somewhat 'uncleaner' than on the original. The perforation as it should be: 13.

This stamp did not differ in any way from the original, with the exception that the brown line was missing, hence it should be classed among the dangerous counterfeits of this error. Collectors should be on the lookout in buying this stamp and especially look for the brown line mentioned above, and be positive that it exists, as it denotes the marks left after the mending of the printing plate which caused the transposition of the letters and consequently gave us this error."

No. 5. September, 1912.

"Still another counterfeit of the error 30/20 ore, 1877, has been discovered making its rounds of the market. This time we will not describe the differences existing, but only wish to admonish prospective buyers of this rarity to have some expert examine every copy that is offered for sale before it is purchased and placed in the collection.

We will however state that the stamp is printed on the original paper. Here, then, we have before us a case where the printing on the ordinary 20 ore of the same issue has, by some chemical process, been obliterated and again printed with the error showing."

ATLAS STAMP CO. (P. C. Smith), W.Somerville,44.Mass.

50c ON THE $

U. S. collection of about 1,111 stamps—(each pair counted as two stamps, etc.)—the total catalog value of which is in the neighborhood of $2,250 for sale at just half that amount. The duplicates are mostly shades, cancellations, etc., and all covers, pairs, strips and blocks are figured at catalog, although many of these items are the kind for which specialists pay much higher prices.

Used stamps predominate, but the face value of unused, which are perfectly good for postage, exceeds $30.00, and some of these would be cheap at a hundred times face value. 85% of the value is in postage, departments, etc., the balance being mostly revenues, and better grade than would be expected.

The 5c 1851 (Scott No. 34) is a beauty that would be mighty cheap at full catalog, but it isn't any finer than many of the other desirable stamps in the lot.

The buyer could donate a considerable part of this collection to the home for "Aged and Indignant" stamp collectors and still have left splendid value for his money. Rarely do I have such a lot as this to offer, so I would suggest that whoever wants it be prompt. First check for $1,125.00 received takes the whole shebang—other checks promptly returned. No other proposition entertained—life is too short.

UNITED STATES.—I had occasion quite recently to refer to some of the priced auction catalogues in my philatelic library and in doing so my attention was called to a priced copy of the famous Seybold Sale, possibly the finest lot of covers ever sold at one time. To glance at just a few of the prices brought by some of the early United States covers is the best answer I can give as to whether stamps are a good investment. Remember that this sale was held early in 1910, a little over eleven years ago and the prices were then thought to be the last word. A block of six and a pair on the same cover of the 5c 1847 sold at $25.50. A strip of six of the 10c described as wonderful with red Mobile cancellation was passed on at $81. A strip of six of the 10c 1851, very fine, changed owners at $12.25, while a block of twelve of the same stamp on cover brought $21. Then to think that two strips of three and a single on one cover of the 5c 1851, were knocked down for $35.50. This would not buy a pair today. Fifteen copies of the 12c described as nearly all fine, including a horizontal strip of five, cancelled in blue on a cover from Cincinnati to Carlsruhe sold for $20.50.

A 15c and 24c 1869, in very fine condition on cover from New York to Paris found a new resting place at $7.50 while another fine 24c along with a pair of 2c brown 1870 on cover from Baltimore to Barcelona brought the unheard of price of $8.00. Allowing for the depreciation of the dollar there is not an item mentioned that would not bring today from five to twenty times the price of 1910. In ten years from now when we refer to the prices of today in the case of fine United States we will be wondering why we let some items pass.

In the Chronicle of a few months' back mention was made of the finding of a horizontal pair, imperforated between of the 5c unwatermarked, perforated 11 which Scott will mention in the new catalogue as No. 413a. At the time this was thought to be unique but your editor has recently acquired a second pair of this variety.

Rev. E. M. Gearhart has just sent for inspection further denominations of the current documentry stamps with the new type of "STOCK TRANSFER" overprint. This includes the 20c, 50c, $1 and $2 and there is little doubt but what the entire series will be found in this shape. When the Bureau was appealed to sometime back relative to this overprint they advised that no record was kept as to the applying of this surcharge, consequently they could not inform us as to what had been issued. Mr. Gearhart also shows me the $1 and $2 with the first type of surcharge reading down instead of up. The $1, by the way, is the red surcharge variety. In addition he has located the 2c, 4c and 10c with double or rather shifted surcharge.

New provisional envelopes are still coming but they have almost reached the end of the line and it is doubtful if many more new varieties will be found. Of course there are quite a few yet to be recorded which have been put aside by the collectors and have not as yet come to light. Mr. J. V. Neilsen sends a new variety from Charleston, Mr. W. A. Beach a new one from Chicago, while Mr. E. J. Newcomer has found an unrecorded copy from San Francisco.

Numerous letters have been received from time to time asking as to where a list of the provisional overprinted "Narcotics" could be obtained. I have never seen such a list issued but for the benefit of our readers would advise that the following varieties, locally surcharged, are known. If there are any others we would like to be advised of the fact.

Saint Louis, 5c.
Seattle, 1c (on Proprietary) 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 10, 25, 50, 80c.

This list does not include the known doubles and inverts nor does it take into consideration that certain cities used whatever ink pad was handy, such as black, violet and red. A New Jersey dealer also distributed a 1, 2, 4, 8 and 10c but I have not learned as to what city issued these.

ARGENTINE.—Mr. Arthur Chubb reports the appearance of a 5c blue with the inscription "Primer Congress Postal Panamericano" at the top and large "5" in each bottom corner and inscription, "Buenos Aires Agosto de 1921" in lower panel. Design is erect female figure with outstretched arms holding an envelope in each hand. The background pictures the globe showing the American hemisphere.

BELGIUM.—Mr. T. H. Goodspeed calls our attention to a copy of the 50c stamp that has a cancellation "Dover-Ostend the quickest way to the Continent 2

SELL YOUR COLLECTION IN THE SUDDEN SERVICE CITY

St. Louis is practically the center of the United States. We are the only firm holding regular auction sales here. Forty-seven floor bidders at our last sale, many purchasing well into the hundreds. One local customer alone secured lots to the value of $825.30. And these were bought at prices higher than the best mail bids. At that we distributed 3000 catalogs to a select list! Next sale contains about 2000 lots and we'll mail 3500 catalogs.

Are you considering selling at auction? Are your stamps in truly fine condition? Then this is the place to sell. Our clientele is composed of those discriminating philatelists who demand "perfection" and understand the cost.

8,000, 5 marks, 2,000; and 10 marks, 1,111.

The second set was issued in far greater numbers than the first and printed in a larger size. These stamps represent allegorical pictures. The set is quite common here with the exception of the 10 marks. At the end of 1920 the Bolsheviks occupied Ingermanland and the stamps ceased to be used. For this reason there is a far greater number of uncancelled than used stamps in circulation.

The set of stamps called the AUNUS issue was issued by the "Whites in the Province of Olonets, Russia, in August, 1919. This set was printed in Helsingfors—i. e., a number of the current Finnish issue was surcharged with the word AUNUS right across the stamp. This set is very rare, (of the 10 marks specimens less than 1,000 were printed) the prices are high and going higher."

JAPAN.—We are indebted to the Frank P. Brown Co., Fred H. Takagi and Walter Long for submitting to us copies of the 1½s and 3s stamps issued in commemoration of the Crown Prince who returned from a trip abroad last September. There are also the 4s and 10s but these are only sold one to a person at the Post Office. The stamps show the likeness of a warship in the centre and the value is in the lower left corner. The colors are as follows: 1½s purple, 3s grey green, 4s rose red, and 10s dark blue.

LITHUANIA.—A 2 auksinai value, blue and red, has been added to the set with portrait of Prince Keistut.

We gather from the Amiens Echo that the denominations and colours of the three aerial mail adhesives are:—

1 auksinas green and red.
2 auksinai brown and blue.
5 auksinai grey and bistre.

The previous reference to a 3 auksinai aerial stamp was apparently erroneous. —Stamp Collecting.

LUXEMBURG.—Mr. Henry Hooreman and Mr. A. Brun give us the following information regarding the additional values of the set with the picture of the Grand Duchess in an oval; "The stamps are printed in sheets of 25 and are of the following shades, 3c sage green, 6c violet, 10c yellow green, 15c, grey olive, 25c deep blue green, 30c carmine, 40c red orange and 50c blue." There is also a 2c brown, which is printed in sheets of 100 stamps.

MADAGASCAR.—Mr. A. Brun informs us that the following are the number of surcharges recently issued: 0.25 on 40c brown and black, type 1908, 190,000; 0.25 on 45c green and black, 60,000; 0.25 on 35c red and black, and 0.25 on 35c red and black, together 40,000. All have black surcharges except one printing of 0.25 on 35c which is surcharged in red.

MEXICO.—Up to the time of going to press the Centenary series, foreshadowed in our August 13th issue, has not arrived. It is stated, however, that the eleven values enumerated were placed on sale at the Mexican post offices on September 1st. As to what the precise significance (if any) of this date is, we are at the moment ignorant. Mexican independence was proclaimed for the first time in 1813, but guerilla warfare continued until February 24th, 1821, on which date the "Liberator" Iturbide declared the absolute autonomy of the country. Iturbide became Emperor of Mexico, but was subsequently exiled and withdrew to London; on his return to Mexico, in 1824, he was shot.

We are informed that a representation of the Emperor Iturbide entering the capital at the head of his staff on September 27th, 1821, appears on the new 10 pesos commemorative stamp, and that the meeting between Iturbide and Guerrero (who afterwards became one of the numerous candidates for the Presidency) is depicted on the 10 centavos value. —Stamp Collecting.

NICARAGUA.—The Economist Stamp Co. has shown us the 2c stamp of the 1914 issue surcharged "Vale un centavo de cordoba" in a larger overprint than formerly and in three lines in black. Also the 2c official stamp of the 1915 issue overprinted "Vale medio centavos de cordoba" and the 3c of the current official set surcharged "Vale un centavo de cordoba." Both surcharges are in red and of three lines.

PERU.—Appended is a full list of the Centenary commemoratives, foreshadowed in this (and in no other) journal:—

Issued July 28th, 1921, (available only from that date until August 15th), to commemorate Centenary of Peruvian Independence. Inscribed "1821-1921." Perf. 12.

SUBSCRIPTION DISCONTINUANCES.

We have no desire to offend any subscribers and especially those who have for years been taking the WEEKLY.

The fact is that under our new system all subscriptions in arrears are discontinued automatically and it is impossible for the Managing Editor to go over the list of discontinuances in order to select names to whom our rule should not apply.

We venture this explanation because occasionally a subscriber shows a bit of resentment that his name has been taken from the list after having been a long-time subscriber.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

YOU ARE READING MY AD

but you don't know till you try, what I can furnish, I have an abundance of good things in U. S. postage, on and off covers, 1847, 5c, 10c used or unused, or on covers. Also pairs of 5c. Everything in U. S. used or unused, excepting rarities. Everything in British North America excepting the very rare ones, and I have some of them occasionally.

I would like to hear from any serious collector who knows good stamps and does not expect me to supply them for nothing.

For those who cannot afford the best, I have arranged a remarkable line of slightly damaged U. S. and B. N. A. at low net prices. State exactly what you are looking for in first letter.

Large stock of Den Curios on hand, which I am closing out. If interested in this line, I can show you a fine lot of material at attractive prices.

WHO COLLECTS STAMPS?

Some Facts concerning the Followers of the King of Hobbies.

Stamp-collecting as a hobby, whether scientific or purely recreative, is very wide in its appeal to all classes. It is capable of interesting development on the most modest lines and with every limited expenditure; it is no less capable of expansion on a comprehensive basis à grands frais. The purpose of the present article is not to laud philately as a hobby de luxe, but to illustrate the interest which the pursuit has aroused amongst all classes, from the "first gentleman in Europe" to the humblest of his subjects. Incidentally we shall see how men of rank, of wealth, of acknowledged ability in all intellectual, artistic and commercial walks of life, find relaxation and enjoyment in the collection and study of postage-stamps. We may see, too, how men who understand the value of money are not loath to invest considerable sums in their philatelic treasures; how secure those investments are is instanced in a number of cases, where great collections have for some reason or another changed hands, being sold either in their entirety or broken up in the auction room or through the agency of the dealer, but almost invariably at a considerable advance on the amount invested in the collection by the orignial owner.

Starting at the ladder's top rung, the active interest which His Majesty King George V. takes in stamps is well known. His Majesty has been a collector from his boyhood, at first on general lines, but afterwards devoting his attention to a purely British Imperial collection. He now possesses collections of the specialized class of many of the British Colonies, and others are in the process of formation. The broad dominions over which the King rules have a number of delightful associations for His Majesty, associations of personal visits in most cases. And it is from this point of view that his specialised stamp collections have now their chief attraction for our sovereign. Within the compass of his albums, under one roof, indeed in one room, he is able to review his Empire in parvo, as it were, all the overseas dominions being represented in his philatelic treasures.

Starting with the Home Country, the royal collection is replete with rare and in many cases unique items, e. g., the original rough sketch in black and in blue of the first adhesive postage-stamps, sent by Rowland Hill to the Chancellor of the Exchequer; an original pencil sketch by Wm. Mulready, R. A., for the celebrated envelope; and many essays and proofs which are scarcely known in other collections of the stamps of Great Britain.

In the Mauritius collection are the two "Post Office" stamps of 1847 which have attained a position in philately like that of the Raphael in art. To possess copies of these valuable stamps is one of the ambitions of all collectors, but one which can be indulged in by few. Their market value at this day for the pair (1d and 2d) is rather over £3,500. The King has another remarkable item in a block of five of the 2d "Post Paid" Mauritius including the error inscribed "PENOE" instead of "PENCE".

British Guiana is another of the countries which is extremely difficult for the philatelist, on account of the rarity of the early issues. The King has a fine collection, chiefly strong in the issues since 1860; the issues prior to that date include those evasive rarities the circular 2 cents rose of 1851, and the rectangular 1 cent of 1856—the latter being known in only one copy, which was in the possession of the late M. Philippe la Rénotiére Von Ferrary, who owned the largest collection in the world.

Other collections which have been brought to a more or less completed stage, and have been exhibited at various times by His Majesty, are those of Barbados, Bermude, Fiji, Hong Kong, Grenada, Heligoland, Nevis, Trinidad and Turks Islands.

The late Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha was another Royal stamp-collector, and to his interest in stamps his present Majesty's enthusiasm for the hobby may in some measure be due. The King of Spain has also interested himself in stamps, chiefly of the issues of his own country and of Portugal. The ex-King Manuel, himself something of a collector, presented a complete set of the Portuguese reprints called "The King of Spain Reprints" (having been prepared to comply with a request from the Spanish monarch) to the Royal Philatelic Society, London. An interested collector is the present King of Siam, who was well known to the London stamp-shops, when as Crown Prince he was in this country. Other royal collectors include H. M. the Queen of Italy, H. H. the Sultan of Egypt, Prince Hiroyasu of Japan, Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden, and the late Prince Doria Pamphilj of Italy. Russia had a very talented young collector in the person of the late Grand Duke Michaelovitch, whose early death was a grievous loss to Russian philately and indeed to the study of philately generally.

The collections formed by the late Earl of Crawford, chiefly those of Great Britain and the United States stamps, introduced a higher and more scientific and historical basis for specialized philatelic studies. The American collection was contained in upwards of forty volumes, and formed the most elaborate illustrated record of the development of the postage stamp in the United States. The English collection was on much the same lines. The late Earl formed the finest library of books on philately ever brought together, and this has been bequeathed to the nation and is now housed at the British Museum.

The late Earl of Kingston, the late Duke of Leinster, the Earl of Kintore, Lord Ranfurly, the Duke of Argyll, Viscount Acheson, Lady Leconfield, General Sir William Birdwood, Admiral Bruce, Sir Frederick Hodgson, Lady Egerton, le Comte Durrieu, Baron Alphonse Rothschild, and many other persons of rank have associated themselves with stamp-collecting as a hobby. My present purpose, however, is to briefly indicate in what varied spheres of activity we find among the celebrities of their professions some enthusiastic philatelists.

My friend, the late Mr. Wilmot Corfield, who was for many years associated with the Philatelic Society of India, recalls an amusing incident that happened during his term of office as hon. secretary. "One day," he says, "I received a letter from Henry M'Callum at an apparently private address in Ceylon, intimating his intention to become no less than a Life Member. I wrote back to 'H. M. M'Callum, Esq.,' very politely and in correct secretarial terms, asked for the names of his proposer and seconder and referring him to Rule Dash, Section Dot, and he replied somewhat stiffly:

"'I conceive that my position as Governor of the Colony is a sufficient guarantee of my respectability.'

"Sir Henry was at once enrolled and I broke the rules on the only occasion in my life during a long and exacting period of office."

Lady Egerton, the wife of the Governor of British Guiana, has taken a very active interest in the Philatelic Society of that Colony. Her ladyship recently gave an "At Home" to philatelists at Government House, where she displayed a fine collection of the stamps of the Straits Settlements, with Bangkok, Johore, Negri Sembilan, Pahang, Perak, Selangor, Sungei Ujong and the Federated Malay States.

There is in nearly all the colonies a coterie of enthusiasts in philately, and it provides an interest in which ladies participate largely, as well as men.

The first Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, the late Sir Daniel Cooper, Bart., F. R. G. S., was a stamp collector as early as 1861, and was one of the founders and the first President of the Philatelic Society. His collection was sold in 1878 for £3000.

The recently-retired Director-General of Posts and Telegraphs of India, Sir C. Stewart-Wilson, K. C. I. E., has long been one of the leading students of

DECLARATION

We have seen in the philatelic press a number of complaints directed against American stamp dealers in general. These complaints were made by European stamp dealers who sent wholesale approval selections to stamp dealers in the United States and are unable to obtain either payment or the return of their stamps.

We hereby declare that the AMERICAN STAMP DEALERS' ASSOCIATION, INC., is open to every honest stamp dealer of legal age, and no one is permitted to retain his membership if known to be dishonest.

Many of the losses suffered by European stamp dealers are due to their ignorance of American laws. It is our desire to assist these dealers and therefore call their attention to the following:

(a) Do Not Send Approval Selections Unsolicited. This is against American business ethics.

(b) When you receive a request for approval selections file not only the letter on which the request was written But Also The Envelope Which Carried The Request. It is necessary to produce this envelope when making a complaint to the post office inspector. Without this envelope the United States postal authorities will not act, for, practically, It Is The Only Evidence That The Letter Was Sent Thru The Mails. United States postal authorities will take your case and will act on your complaint without any charge if it Is Supported by the Original Request and the Envelope (or Post-card) Containing Such Request. Without this no attention will be paid to your complaint, other than acknowledging its receipt, and your only redress will be to enter a civil suit thru a lawyer, who will charge you his regular fee and whose efforts may culminate in failure.

(c) The United States law forbids sending a statement, or asking for the return of your stamps, By Post-card. These must be sent in Sealed Envelopes. Some unscrupulous dealers when receiving such requests by post-card turn them over to a post office inspector, or their consul in the city where the victimized stamp dealer resides, and complain that the law has been violated. This frequently intimidates the foreign stamp dealer who does not understand why he is being reprimanded in addition to his having to suffer a loss.

philately in India, and is the Honorary President of the Philatelic Society of India. He has contributed several important works to the literature of Indian philately.

In Parliament we know but few who can be claimed as enthusiasts, but the late Member for the Harborough Division of Leicester, Mr. T. K. Tapling, M. P., formed the greatest collection of stamps and postal stationery ever brought together in this country, which collection he bequeathed to the nation. It is housed in the King's Library at the British Museum, and represents a present value of upwards of £200,000.

Among scholars and scientists the names of the late Dr. Sir James Murray, of the Oxford English Dictionary, and Dr. James, the famous "Head" of Rugby, may be mentioned as philatelists owning important collections. The late Dr. John Edward Gray, F. L. S., F. Z. S., etc., of the British Museum, was an early devotee and was the compiler of one of the earliest catalogues of postage-stamps for collectors (1862).

The literary world includes amongst other stamp-collectors the late Mr. S. R. Crockett, whose novel, Me and Myn, is a kind of philatelic phantasy, and Mr. G. B. Burgin. The late Mr. Harold Frederic used to write the stamp articles in the "The Million." To quote Mr. Frederic: "There are many charming and profitable diversions which working men find rest in, and I myself have tested and am interested in a number of them, but of them all there is none I would relinquish so unwillingly as the collecting of stamps."

Sir Alfred East is understood to have been interested in the pursuit, and acclaimed the postage-stamp as "an emblem of a great civilization, and of the concord of nations." Mr. Dendy Sadler is another artist-philatelist, but probably neither Sir Alfred East nor Mr. Sadler has taken so deep an interest in collecting as Mr. Mortimer Menpes, who records in his "War Impressions": "I was now quite an authority on stamps and a rabid collector. Nothing happened in connection with the stamps without my being on the spot. All my thoughts were of stamps, all my joys were connected with stamps; they were food and drink to me."

The name of His Honour the late Judge Philbrick, K. C., will always stand out pre-eminently in the annals of philately as the chief philatelist from the legal profession. Judge Philbrick was a collector from the earliest days of the pursuit, certainly in the early 'sixties; his writings are to be numbered not merely among the "authorities" but among the "classics" of philatelic literature. His general collection, sold in 1882 for the then record price of £8,000, would be worth £50,000 or more today. He continued to collect British stamps, parting with his collection of these in 1894 for £1,500. His death in December, 1910, removed the last of the original founders of the (now Royal) Philatelic Society, of which he was for some years President.

Mr. John Kerr Tiffany, a prominent lawyer of St. Louis, Missouri, was the founder of the late Lord Crawford's extensive library of philatelic works, and a President of the American Philatelic Association (now Society).

The late Mr. W. Hughes-Hughes, of the Inner Temple, was careful to keep an account of his expenses on stamps. In all he spent the sum of £69 on his stamp collection between the years 1859 and 1874. He sold it for £3000 in 1896.

In the medical profession there have been many devotees of philately. The late Dr. Legrand, of Paris, took a great share in the early development of the hobby on scientific lines; he invented the method of the "odontometer" or perforation gauge, by which we distinguish the variations in perforations and roulettes; and in the course of some early and able papers emphasized the importance and interest of studying watermarks.

Dr. Astley Levin, R. N. O., R. V. O., etc., of the Central Institute, Stockholm, formed the finest specialized collection of Swedish stamps known until recently. Since its sale by Dr. Levin, Baron Erik Leijonhufvud, well known in both London and Stockholm philatelic circles, has formed a still finer.

In the Church the number of collectors of stamps is very high. In the earliest philatelic days of which we have record, the lead was taken by the Rev. F. J. Stainforth, perpetual curate of All Hallows, Staining, at whose rectory many of the collectors used to meet and discuss stamps as early as 1861. The Rev. R. B. Earée, of Cirencester, is one of the leading experts on the subject of forged stamps and the author of "Album Weeds", the standard reference book on that subject. The stamp collection on view in the Royal Scottish Museum, Edinburgh, was bequeathed to the Scottish nation by the Rev. J. A. Dunbar-Dunbar, of Sea Park and Kinloss.

In the Navy, Admiral H. H. Bruse, Captain Glossop of H. M. A. S. Sydney, Lieut. F. H. Napier, and in the Army, Major Edward B. Evans, R. A., have distinguished themselves in the philatelic world. But in both services stamp-collecting is wonderfully popular; the officers in the Navy have their interest stimulated by visiting divers lands; and officers in the Army, especially those on colonial stations, find an excellent source of recreation in stamp-collecting. Dolf Wylarde introduces the subject in "Uriah the Hittite", a story which gives a remarkable picture of life among forty British men and women of military and official circles at "Key Island," a small British possession in the Mozambique Channel. Mrs. B. M. Croker, too, has a general who collects stamps in her novel, "A Third Person".

Among business magnates we may find many more notable examples of great stamp collectors. The collection formed by Sir William Avery, Bart., of the great scales-making firm, was sold after his death for £24,500. The late Mr. Henry J. Duveen, of the famous Bond Street firm of art connoisseurs, owned one of the finest private collections in England; and the late millionaire banker, M. Paul Mirabaud, of Paris, formed a collection which realized £30,000 at his death; he collaborated with Baron A. de Reuterskiöld on a sumptuous and authoritative volume published in three languages on the Stamps of Switzerland. The late Mr. Henry J. Crocker, director of several of the largest corporations in San Francisco, had a wonderful collection, the best-known portion of which was that comprising the extremely rare "Missionary" stamps of the Sandwich Islands.

The collection is to be permanently placed in a public institution at San Francisco. Another American business magnate, happily still with us, is Mr. George H. Worthington, whose collection, the finest in America, was recently sold. Yet another series of great specialized collections of stamps has been formed by a well-known "lumber king," Mr. Charles Lathrop Pack, a President of the National Conservation Congress of America. Colonel Green, son of the wealthy "Hetty Green," is also the owner of a rich collection.

In practically every walk of life we find that there are prominent witnesses to the interest of philately. In journalism there are many, but probably the exigencies of an arduous profession prevent many of them from indulging the pursuit to a great extent. Perhaps the same applies to the stage, though it is well known that Mr. George Robey is ever on the qui vive to add to his interesting collection. But sufficient has been written to show that the stamp-collecting of to-day is by no means only the sport of the schoolboy, but that it has a very real interest for the hard-worked adult as a rest and recreation from his daily toil. In concluding this article we may fittingly quote the dictum of an eminent physician, Sir Lauder Brunton, on philately:

"There are a great many people who die in this world from the very simple malady of having nothing whatever to do. They pass their lives in accumulating money, with no relaxation, and then when they retire from active they die of ennui. They come to n complain of so many things, an they have nothing to do. I tell to collect; it will add ten years t lives. The wise men do so; oth not; and the wise men live on. T the use of collecting stamps at t of life."—Postage Stamp.

"DATES."

So far our stamp dates have been few and far between and, were it not for the 1902 issue of the United States, the 18th century would be poorly represented. The early years of the 19th century, however, bring us many date-bearing stamps, for this was the period when the fruit of the French Revolution was being gathered and revolutions and declarations of independence were as plentiful as they have been during the past few years.

It is curious to note how, as long-past events are "used up" by the makers of commemorative stamps the interval between event and stamp issue grows ever shorter. The early-commemoratives celebrated 700th, 500th, and 400th anniversaries, but in my list this month the intervals are rarely more than a hundred years, and as we go on we shall see them dwindling to fifty and twenty-five years, while to-day a year's delay is quite sufficient and Fiume has beaten even that record with a series commemorating an event which took place only two hundred days before.

I would ask readers of this article not to be disappointed if it seems a little "dry" if read straight through. It is intended more for the collector who will read it with album or catalogue open beside him, who will add his own knowledge of history to the bare notes I am able to give, and will associate with the stamps mentioned in my lists those others which illustrate the same subjects though they do not bear dates.

(Each pair of dates in the first paragraph which follows, stands for the birth and death of the person named. All stamps in this paragraph are of the 1902 series of U. S. A. unless otherwise stated).

1706-1790. (1c) Benjamin Franklin, editor, scientist, and statesman. 1732-1799. (2c, and 2c, 1903.) George Washington, first president of U. S. A. 1732-1802. (8c.) Martha Washington, wife of above. 1743-1826. (50c and 2c, "St. Louis," 1904.) Thomas Jefferson, U. S. president, 1801-9. His policy resulted in the acquisition of Louisiana from the French by purchase, which event is commemorated by the "St. Louis" series of 1904. 1746-1813. (1c, "St. Louis.") Robert R. Livingston, American statesman and jurist. Negotiated the Louisiana Purchase. 1751-1836. ($2.) James Madison, fourth president of U. S. A., 1809-17. 1755-1835. ($5.) John Marshall, Chief Justice of U. S. Supreme Court, 1801-1835. 1758-1831. (3c, "St. Louis".) James Monroe, fifth president of U. S., 1817-1825. Enunciator of the "Monroe Doctrine." 1767-1845. (3c) Andrew Jackson, seventh president of U. S. A., 1829-1837. 1777-1852. (15c) Henry Clay, orator and statesman. 1782-1852. (10c) Daniel Webster, orator, statesman, and jurist.

1797-1897. (German Empire, 3m, 1900 to date.) Centenary of birth of William I, King of Prussia and first Emperor of Germany.

1801-1870. (U. S. A., $1, 1902.) D. G. Farragut, first Admiral of U. S. Navy.

1803. (U. S. A., 10c, 1904.) On map showing territory acquired by the purchase of Louisiana from the French.

1803. (N. S. W. and Queensland, 9d, 1903.) Annexation of Tasmania.

1804-1904. (Hayti, overprint, 1904.) Centenary of Independence of French rule. Dessalines (or James I) whose portrait appears on the 7c of the series was the first "Emperor."

(Serbia, 1904 series.) Centenary of Karageorgevic dynasty. This series includes the famous "death-mask" stamps, which show a concealed portrait of the king whose assassination restored the Karageorgevic dynasty to the throne.

(31 July.) (Ecuador, 1904 issue.) Centenary of Captain Calderon.

1805-1905. (Barbados, 1906 issue.) Centenary of the death of Nelson.

1808-1908. (Brazil, 100r, 1908.) Commemorative of the time of the French invasion of Portugal when the Portuguese royal family took refuge in Brazil, and of the opening of Brazil to foreign trade.

1809-1865. (U. S. A., 5c, 1902.) Abraham Lincoln, president of the U. S. before and during the American Civil War.

(Bolivia, July, 1919 issue.) Centenary of revolution of July, 1809, which resulted in the War of Independence.

1809-1825. (Bolivia, 1909 issue.) Commemorative of the War of Independence. The portraits on these stamps are those of patriots who took part in the freeing of Bolivia, but my available reference books do not enable me to say to what events the other dates (ranging from 1809 to 1817) which they bear, refer.

29 Sept., 1809-1909. (Guatemala, 6c, 1909.) Centenary of Miguel Garcia Granados.

1810-1910. (Argentina, 1910 issue.) Centenary of Declaration of Independence. The 50c depicts the scene on the day of the setting up of the provisional junta, 25 May, 1909.

(Chili, 1910 issue.) Centenary of the first Declaration of Independence. The designs show scenes from Chilian history, etc., some of later date than 1810.

(Colombia, 1910 issue.) Centenary of Declaration of Independence and commencement of War of Liberation.

(Uruguay, 1910, 2c and 5c) Centenary of the outbreak of the War of Independence, the revolt being led by General Artigas whose statue and portrait appear on several stamps of the country.

(Venezuela, 25c, 1910.) Centenary of outbreak of revolt against Spain. The dates on S. G., Type 44, are those of this outbreak and of the formal declaration of independence in the following year.

By Christopher West.

William Gates' Sons.

1c Black.

The Boston Book gives the following data:

Die approved, September 4, 1877.
First issued, September, 1877.
Last issued, February 26, 1883.
6,472,944 issued on silk paper.
107,248,555 issued on pink and wmk'd paper.

This stamp has the same design as Die 2 of the 1c Wm. Gates. The firm name now reads "William Gates' Sons" in small block capitals. The earlier plates were made by the National Bank Note Company and all the stamps on silk and pink paper and the first printings on watermarked paper were made by that concern. Later printings on watermarked paper were made by the American Bank Note Company and by the Bureau, and specimens bearing the second type of Bureau imprint and the Bureau guide lines have been noted, and there is no doubt that of the ten or dozen plates which probably were made for this stamp, several were made at the Bureau.

The watermarked variety is one of the commonest match stamps and no doubt always will be very common. With over a hundred million issued, even though 99% of them have been destroyed, there still remains a supply sufficient to last for a thousand years. The pink paper is also fairly common and it has been priced at 15c to 30c ever since 1886. The silk paper is much scarcer but not as scarce as most of the catalog quotations would indicate. Sterling priced it at 5c in 1888, and certainly he was not aware of its true scarcity. It first appeared in the Scott catalog in 1898 and was priced $5.00; in 1900 the quotation was reduced to $2.50, in 1903 raised to $4.00, where it remained until 1920. The new quotation of $3.00 is ample for a fine copy and brings it better into line with the values placed on other match stamps. The watermarked variety is cataloged rouletted and ever since 1898 has been priced $35.00. In 1898 catalog the price was placed in the silk paper column, which, of course, was a mistake, as none of the genuine roulettes occur on silk paper. 90% of the rouletted specimens seen by the writer were certainly faked, and some of the others were of doubtful genuineness. The writer does not recall even one copy which he would consider unquestionably genuine. As this stamp is so common perforated on watermarked paper and as copies with abnormally wide margins can be found, the temptation to make a nickel stamp into a $35.00 rarity by the use of a jack-knife and four minutes' time, is fairly strong. If there are any genuine roulettes of this stamp they certainly are worth $35.00 apiece, and it is not at all impossible that the Bureau did roulette some of them.

3c Black.

The Boston Book gives the following data:

Die approved, September 3, 1877.
First issued, September, 1877.
Last issued, Prior to October 1, 1880.
21,858,000 issued on silk, pink and wmk'd paper.
72 stamps per sheet.

This stamp was made by altering the second 3c die of Wm. Gates a firm name is changed on each three segments of that combinat sign to read "William Gates' S slanting upper and lower case letters. The first plate for this was made by the National Ban Company and bears the second National imprint. If the date issue given in the Boston Book is there was no printing by the Bur there may or may not have been ing by the American Bank Not pany. Evidently the first printi very large because within a few the pink and watermarked pape into use and unless the number on silk paper was more than on naturally expect, the silk pape would be much scarcer than it is ling priced it at 15c. The followi shows the changes in prices since

DANTE CENTENARY STAMPS.

From Il Giornale d'Italia, September 15th, 1921, kindly forwarded to us by our esteemed colleague, Dr. Emilio Diena, we get our first glimpse of the designs for the stamps issued to commemorate the Sixth Centenary of the death of Dante Alighieri, Italy's greatest poet, and the exalted creator of the "Commedia" to which the world has added the "Divina" in token of its sublime grandeur.

"To-day," states Il Giornale, "the Ministry of Posts issue the new stamps dedicated to the Dante Centenary. It is the first time that the Italian government has interposed such an issue among its postage stamps, but Dante is worthy of such an exception.

"The series comprises three stamps, 15, 25 and 40 centesimi. All three are examples of the beautiful work of the gifted artist of Rome, Guiseppe Cellini. One was engraved by Proia, and the others owing to the death of Proia, by Grimaldi. They were printed at the establishment of Petiti in Rome.

"The 15 centesimi shows the eagle, bearing the open book of the 'Commedia', and around the verse Che sopra gli altri com' aquila vola—(He who is above others as the eagle flies).

"The second, 25 centesimi, depicts Italy seated on a throne, crowned with a laurel wreath, holding up in one arm the sacred poem. Motto: Onorate l'altissimo poeta—(Honoured be the most exalted poet).

"The third stamp, 40 centesimi has a picture of the poet to the middle of the bust, within a pulpit in the act of expounding his own book. Motto: Mostrò cio che potea la lingua nostra—(He shows that of which our tongue is capable).

"All bear the initials S.N.D.A. (Società Nazionale Dante Alighieri) for the issue is made for the benefit of that patriotic and deserving society for the protection and guardianship of the Italian abroad and at home. Thus it was petitioned at the Congress at Trieste, and so it will be followed by the Congress at Trente on September 17th.

"The stamps are valuable works of art and the stamps are evidently sought after by philatelists.

"For a short period they will be sold for the regular franking of correspondence. And the few that remain unsold will be sought after by the collectors now so numerous throughout the world."
—Stamp Collectors Fortnightly.

This snappy little publication is mailed free for nothing—not even postage—once a month unless the editor goes fishing or yachting. This season of the year therefore is a good time to write for a copy. This circular is not mailed to substitutors, kid collectors, send-em-back-unregistered fiends and such like. Postcards also go straight into the waste paper basket. SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Written for Mekeel's Weekly.

NOTES FROM THE ORIENT.

By Felix Cohen.

(Much of interest will be gleaned from this letter. We are using it just as written by Mr. Cohen. If some of the expressions used are not quite in accord with the idioms of the English language, it will serve the purpose of illustrating some of the difficulties that a person has to contend with in wrestling with English.—W. O. W.)

Alexandrian Provisionals.—Alexandria, the second greatest town in Egypt, has, it will be known, together with Port-Said on the Suez Canal, an old French Post Office which exists on capitulation rights and accepts correspondence to every country of the World except Egypt, which remains a monopoly of the Egyptian P. O. Since the establishments of these French P. O. in Egypt, the denomination of their stamps has been expressed in French currency and could be bought with French paper money. Up to the Great War and a couple of years after when the French exchange rate did not present an overwhelming difference with the British and consequently Egyptian currency (to be remembered that the Egyptian rate of exchange follows the British on a fixed base of £1 6s to the Egyptian pound equal to 100 piastres or 1000 milliemes) both French P. O. in Egypt were in deficit, as the well organized Egyptian P. O. was clearing the bulk of postal transactions in this country. A couple of years back up to the present date, the French rate of exchange began to fall and sometimes reached a quotation of under 60% of their normal peace time value. This fact was practically unobserved here for a long time and only philatelists nearly had knowledge of the enormous postage dues difference between the Egyptian and French P. O. and, of course, philatelists were using freely of the later P. O., which service is as good as the Egyptian. Only recently great banks and business houses observed, at last, also the advantage of using the French P. O. for the big mail they were sending to foreign countries and a great part of correspondence usually posted at the Egyptian P. O. was sent lately to the French P. O., which in Alexandria has a staff of 8 clerks against a couple of hundreds at the Egyptian P. O. These 8 clerks began soon to be very active after years of idleness and the contrary happened at the Egyptian P. O. This fact, probably, did not escape H. E. Borton Pacha, director of Post in Egypt, the highest postal official in this country as a Minister of Post does not exist here. Against the French competition H. E. went on the first days of April, 1921, to the French Alexandrian P. O. director and an agreement has been taken in order that the French Alexandrian stps. must be sold and surcharged in local Egyptian currency, this to avoid a strange competition on Egyptian soil. Anyhow, the demand to introduce the Egyptian currency in surcharge on French Alexandrian stamps must have been energetic as the local French P. O. Director at once picked up all his stock of stamps and went to a printer in order to have them surcharged. As usual, in French oriental P. O., the P. O. was not abundantly provided of stamps. There has never been a great stock of stamps in the two French P. O. in Egypt. Personally, I often remember to have seen Port-Said stamps on sale at the Alexandria P. O. and also French Levant stamps, and finally ordinary French stamps. On the contrary in Port-Said I saw some values of Rouad stamps in use for some time. Possibly in Rouad, Mauretanian or Madagascar stamps must have been obtainable.

The local French provisionals have been printed in the greatest mystery. The director and sub-director alone knew of the philatelic surprise they were preparing to the collectors' world. For some time even the printer's shop was a secret to everybody here. Postal employes (the six that remained out of the philatelic conspiration) knew even less than the ordinary public about the pending surcharge on their depreciated stamps that were giving so much work to them. I am informed that on the evening of April 6th, 1921, the director asked every clerk to remit the quantity of unsold stamps, consisting chiefly of low denominations, and on the following morning, April 7th, to the astonishment of the clerks, they received a quantity of surcharged stamps for sale. The general public, well accustomed to buy their stamps in heavily depreciated currency, showed a meagre sign of content and rather a disagreeable surprise when asked to pay in Egyptian currency. The local philatelists, of course, besieged the P. O. The first confrère to be served had five complete sets. Other philatellists soon knew the unexpected and everyone wanted a possible complete stock of what was issued. At that time only 225 copies of the 150 milliemes on 5 francs were found to be surcharged. There couldn't be supply large enough for the increased demand, so the director thought of selling a set to every customer, but the quantity of 150 milliemes stamps began to lower and on the 3rd day of issue none more could be obtained. On or about the 6th day of issue, the 60 milliemes stamp on 2 Francs continued the retreat and later on other values disappeared from the P. O. Of course speculative influence had also a part on these strategic moves, but this happens everywhere a provisional issue is noted.

The second week's main feature was that no more stamps could be sold to the public and letters were handed to the postal clerks and they stuck the stamp on. If this step was not taken, the P. O. could have sold anything else but stamps.

After the first days of confusion wires were sent to Paris in order to supply stamps to the consumptive stock of Alexandria. Paris must have promised help and probably gave order to resist to the attacks of philatelists as well as those of the ordinary public who wanted to send their letters through the French P. O. The French director and subdirector, two well-known non-philatelists, were amazed at the interest showed to their stamps. They could not understand what sort of a tropical fever was invading citizens of all ranks of this city. Everybody seemed to have a single watch-word "to obtain as many complete sets as possible." HALF UNITED STATES

Nearly one-half of the lots in our next sale will probably be United States stamps. There will also be a good representation of old issues Colombian Republic and Mexico of particular interest to specialists. Are you on our Mailing List?

P. M. WOLSIEFFER, Sole Owner PHILADELPHIA STAMP CO.
Member Am. Stamp Dealers' Assn. 22 SO. 18TH ST., PHILA., PA.

the French P. O. Director. Soon after the new began to ignore borders and orders came in quantity from France, England, Syria, Palestine, etc. There must never have been such a prosperous correspondence in the once so peaceful P. O. where clerks were more accustomed to yawn than to serve clients.

But Paris was watching. Help to the nearly exhausted stock of French local provisionals came with the old French Messageries Maritimes liner the "Dumbea" of the Madagascar line who "enroute" calls at Port-Said half a day. This steamer brought again an unsurcharged stock of usual French Alexandrian stamps and among a quantity of lower value stamps there was two more sheets of 75 stamps each of the rare 5 Francs stamp. They all were surcharged again and brought the scarce 150 milliemes surcharge on 5 Francs to 375 copies and consequently sets this being the scarcest stamp of the set. It is rumoured that H. H. The Sultan of Egypt obtained 75 complete sets.

All the values had a typographical print. Some of great current use were lithographed on account of urgency. Errors to be mentioned are few for a work pushed with such an activity. There was a sheet of 150 ordinary 2 centimes French Port-Said stamps (probably left from a former emergency stock) that received the surcharge of 15 milliemes in Alexandria. Then, the stamp printed in greatest quantity, the 25 centimes with overprint 10 milliemes, is known to exist inverted and double. A printer's error the 1 Franc stamp overprinted 15 milliemes (error easily possible on account of the reddish colour of the stamp which, by night-work, can be taken as an ordinary 40 centimes which received regularly the 15 milliemes overprint). This 1 Franc stamp overprinted by error 15 milliemes in a sheet of 25 copies, does no more exist, as all copies have been destroyed by the French P. O. Director.

No other error is known nor is likely to exist. This to prove the very limited philatelic activity or better said total ignorance on philatelic matters of the local French P. O. staff.

Varieties known are the thick figures on surcharge of the "3", "6", "8" and "60" milliemes, which are of a very marked different typographical type. The scarcest is the "60" milliemes on 2 Francs, as this variety happened thrice on each sheet of 25 stamps. Anyhow, there is a contradiction if this error exists twice or thrice in each sheet, as nobody of philatelic experience could control a complete sheet, as this stamp, like all high values, was sold singly by the postal selling clerks. The staff of the P. O., in their philatelic ignorance, did of course pay no attention to these varieties. In order to move their apathy the thick "60" ought to have been inverted and present "90 milliemes". Then, probably, they would have sold these stamps separately at 90 milliemes, a value that does postally not exist here.

Hereunder is the correct number of the totality of local surcharged French Alexandrian stamps:

2 milliemes on 5 centimes	31.500
3 milliemes on 3 centimes	7.350
4 milliemes on 10 centimes	24.900
5 milliemes on 1 centime	9.000
5 milliemes on 4 centimes	5.550
6 milliemes on 15 centimes	22.950
8 milliemes on 20 centimes	18.750
10 milliemes on 25 centimes	46.500
12 milliemes on 30 centimes	6.300
15 milliemes on 40 centimes	4.725
15 milliemes on 50 centimes	12.900
15 milliemes on 2 centimes	7.200
30 milliemes on 1 franc	1.200
60 milliemes on 2 francs	725
150 milliemes on 5 francs	375

As already mentioned, all these stamps exist in typographical print but the 2m/5c, 4m/10c, 5m/1c, 6m/15c, 8m/20c, 10m/25c, 12m/30c and 15m/50c exist also lithographed.

The stamps now in use are French Alexandrian with Parisian surcharge in full letters "milliemes". The local surcharge only bears figure and "Mill." as abbreviation of milliemes in surcharge. The sale of the new Parisian surcharged stamps is unrestricted.

I had not long ago a chat with a P. O. official, who explained to me his troubles concerning the Alex. local provisionals. Well to be remembered that this person, incredible as it may be for a colonial P. O. official, has no idea that stamp collectors exist in the world. Relating to me these busy days, he said:

"I had a tremendous work all these days and was continually annoyed by peoples who wanted sets of these provisionals stamps "well centered". Can you explain me what a well centered stamp is?"

"It's a well centered stamp".

"Merci".

". . . or let me explain you better, it's a stamp that has the impression just in the middle of the square piece of paper".

"But what importance is therein? Other wanted blocks of 4 with millesimes or control numbers. What importance do they attach to this? Other again wanted horizontal or diagonal pairs. Other again simple blocks of 4 and when they had a block of 4 they wanted right the same stamps again in pairs and single sets. Why did they not ask me to have them cut in triangle or octagonals, by the way? If there is a fly-speck on a stamp does the stamp obtain an extra value?"

I was disarmed by this crassy philatelic ignorance and did not even try to reply. I only remarked:

"Do you know, Monsieur, that sets of these provisionals fetch now high prices locally and outside of Egypt?"

"I know".

"And how many sets have you kept personally for you?"

"None. Bonjour, Monsieur".

And there seemed to be a regret in the voice. And it was also the first time in my life that I believed a postal official of an oriental P. O. that issued a limited provisional set of stamps.

WILMINGTON PARLOR MATCH CO.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

The Boston Book states, "This Company seems to have consisted of B. James, who was succeeded by Connor & Walley."

Bradley James appears in the Directories of Wilmington, Delaware, continuously from 1866 to 1871, but in none of these years is his occupation stated. The Directory for 1871-2 lists Mr. James with the occupation of "matches" at 9th and Church Streets, but in the edition for 1873-4 the only reference to him is in connection with the Clayton Hotel, of which he was one of the firm of Walton & James, proprietors. The present writer has found no trace of the firm of Connor & Walley in Wilmington.

The stamp is an upright rectangle of the usual 1c size, in the center of which is a view of the western hemisphere as on a globe. A narrow circular band surrounding the globe, except for a space at either side, where it is replaced by seven small pearls, is inscribed "U. S. Inter. Revenue" above and "Wilmington Parlor Match Co." below. Near the corners of the design are four small circular disks, each bearing a colorless numeral 1, while at the top and bottom are straight marginal labels, the upper inscribed "One Cent" and the lower reading "Wilmington, Del." All the inscriptions are in colorless characters. The remaining portions of the background are filled in with rather heavy lines of shading, forming rectangular and triangular figures. The lack of color on the circular globe is in strong contrast to the depth of color on the remainder of the design.

The general appearance of the stamp is distinctly different from any other adhesive of the series. It was one of the later Carpenter productions and the entire issue was probably printed from one plate made in Philadelphia.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, July 29, 1869.
First issued, October, 1869.
Last issued, April, 1872.
1,841,650 issued on old paper.
141,000 issued on silk paper.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).

This Wilmington stamp is found on want lists much more frequently than in collections, and one may well doubt if it has ever been even fairly common. For thirty-five years the catalog quotation on the old paper was $2.00 except for three or four years in the late '90's, when it soared to $2.50, and for a year or two about 1900, when it was reduced 40%, to $1.50. If it were possible to purchase all the copies known to exist at the highest price that has ever been quoted for them, probably $200.00 or $300.00 would be ample to effect a complete corner.

But if the old paper variety is a regular attendant on want lists, the silk paper is unfailing. It is almost quite unbelievable that during the last thirty years there has been a dealer who is known, or suspected of having a supply of match stamps who has not received an order, or an inquiry, for the Wilmington on silk paper. Every year a certain number of inquiries for this mysterious variety are sent and just as regularly the recipients can truthfully state that they have not the stamp in stock, that they never had it, and that they never expect to have it! Truly an odd state of affairs. Yet the above but little exaggerates the cold truth, which is simply that for many years there is a record of only one copy of this stamp. If any other copies were rescued or saved from the fate that nearly all match stamps met, no record of them can now be found.

The single specimen referred to has been seen by the writer and appears to be all that it should be. For a long time it remained in a collection which had been willed, or which the owner intended to will, to the United States Government, desiring that the stamps it contained might have a secure and final resting place where their historical interest and historical value might be most carefully preserved against the accidents of time, for the benefit of future generations. A noble thought worthy of a great and generous mind. The collection, however, has been broken up.

In the Boston Book the Wilmington stamp is listed on thin paper, thick paper and experimental silk paper, but is not listed on the full silk paper of the second issue, and it would appear that when the Boston Book was written the writers were unable to find a copy on the full silk paper. The record of copies issued on silk paper — 141,000 — agrees fairly well with the dates during which the stamp was in use. Among the balance of obsolete stamps on hand July 19, 1875, which were turned over to the Government by Mr. Carpenter August 31, 1875, were 147,710 of the Wilmington stamps, and this fact agrees with the theory that during the period subsequent to the summer of 1871, the production of matches and therefore the use of the stamps was at a much lower rate than during the period preceding that time.

A goodly proportion of the Wilmington stamps now in existence are on experimental silk paper and a large majority of the copies seen by the writer were on paper having the thickness and other characteristics of the experimental silk paper, excepting only that the tiny specks of silk fibre were not discernible on more than half of the stamps.

In 1888 Sterling priced the silk paper at $6.00. In 1894 and 1895 the Scott price was $10.00. This was raised to $12.00 in 1896 and the edition for 1900, which showed stiff cuts in the quotations on many other stamps, raised this variety to $15.00. It was still $15.00 in 1920. However, let us not criticise the catalog makers too harshly. Granted that the Wilmington stamp on full silk is just as rare as British Guiana, No. 13, what great harm has been done by quoting it at $15.00? As long as it appeared to be obtainable, collectors who wanted it $15.00 worth could have all the fun of trying to get it, whereas had they known the true state of affairs they might have given up the chase without a single try, and, after all, who knows? Some quaint little town in Delaware may even today shelter an old grocery store, in the cellar or attic of which there may be several ancient packing boxes full to the brim with Wilmington Parlor Match Co. brimstone matches, and stuck on the end of each of those match boxes there may be a Wilmington stamp printed on the full silk paper.

The color of this interesting sticker is a deep, solemn black. Pairs, strips or blocks have not been noted.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—We have received Vol. 1, No. 1, of a house organ published by W. W. Betts, Clearfield, Pa. It will appear monthly for gratuitous circulation.

—A. H. Pike, 80 Grant St., Buffalo, N. Y., is engaged in the preparation of a series of handbooks dealing with postmarks and cancellations. Prospectus with full information can be obtained from Mr. Pike.

—Howard Starr Dickey is proving himself to be a prolific song writer. His tenth composition is entitled "I Want to Take Your Hand Again and Go Where the Daisies Grow". The words and music are both by Mr. Dickey and the price of the song is 60c.

—We are now able to confirm the rumors of a change in one of Boston's stamp concerns with the definite announcement that Frank P. Brown has disposed of all his interest (as of September 15), in the Frank P. Brown Company to O. F. Pollitz, who will continue the business of the corporation as heretofore. Mr. Brown will remain with the Company for the present but will probably retire from general stamp business some time next year.

—We are indebted to Herman W. Boers for the information that John Kay of Detroit, well known to stamp collectors, recently sold his magnificent collection of 1847-51 covers. There are many rare cancellations in this collection, and the accumulation took many years to gather. Mr. Kay's philatelic possessions have been the admiration of hundreds of visitors to Detroit.

—Alfred E. Newman, secretary of the Waterbury (Conn.) Stamp Club sends us a clipping from the local daily announcing the death of John W. Hill, the man whose eccentric work with a pocket knife made possible the famous old "Waterbury cancellations" so much sought for in recent years. Mr. Hill died at the age of eighty-seven.

—The Apollo Stamp Co., giving address as 1446 48 St., Brooklyn, N. Y., in applying for stamps on approval offered for reference a local business firm. The following report was received:—"We have never sold these people any goods." Further comment is unnecessary.

—In connection with the J. H. Germakian News Gleaning published a few weeks ago one complaint has been received, from the firm of H. E. Harris & Co. We desire to know whether any other collectors have had any trouble with this dealer, whose address is Smyrna, Turkey.

—Kansas City Stamp Club will see that all members of the American Legion who report at the Club Rooms located at 507 Kemper Bldg., 720 Delaware Av., are given comfortable quarters while in the city attending the third annual convention of the American Legion. Those who comtemplate being present and who have not been assigned rooms will communicate at once with Allen Sears at the Kemper building.

—"News from Esthonia is that artists have been asked to submit competitive designs for a new series to consist of the following values: 50p, 1, 2, 2½ 5 & 10m all in one color, 20, 50 & 100m in two colors. Designs to be handed in by Sept. 1st, 1921."—Fred S. Martin.

THE NEWSPAPER SLANT.

Seven hundred and fifty dollars for a stamp! That is the fancy price that Allen Logan, president of the Logan Brothers Grain Company of Kansas City, paid for each of a block of four stamps he bought at the American Philatelic convention at Milwaukee recently. Mr. Logan's total outlay for the stamps was $3,000.

The stamps were inverted airplane ones, issued in 1916, with a face value of 24 cents each. They were designed for use in the opening of the airplane mail service in this country and Eugene Klein, a Philadelphia stamp broker, discovered by accident that the airplane on each stamp was inverted. Acting as agent for Col. Edward Green, son of the late Hetty Green, Mr. Klein bought up the ninety-nine stamps known to be in existence for $20,000. Colonel Green selected the ones he wanted for his own collection and put the rest on the market.

Mr. Logan was in Milwaukee on business at the time of the philatelic convention and learned that Mr. Klein had a block of four of the stamps for sale Mr. Logan put in his $3,000 offer for them and the deal was consummated quickly. Before the evening was over Mr. Logan had an opportunity to sell the stamps at a large profit.

Mr. Logan started a stamp collection when he was a boy 12 years old, and now has more than twenty thousand stamps in it. Many of them are very rare, among them a Baltimore, Md., 5-cent stamp which was last valued at $800 and which stamp catalogues do not list now, as it is regarded as practically priceless.

"I bought the airplane stamps at Milwaukee as an investment," Mr. Logan says. "Figures in recent years show that there is a better market for stamps of rare issue than there is for standard stocks and bonds. Their average increase in value is 10 per cent a year."—Kansas City Star.

PHILATELIC POETRY.

Our book "Range Tales" has proven so acceptable to many of our subscribers that we feel like complying with numerous other subscribers' wishes in the matter of publishing a booklet of verse. In the past years many meritorious productions have appeared in the Weekly and other stamp papers. Who of our subscribers are interested enough to send in clippings for use in our columns?

We confess that we have been rather particular as to the quality of the verse that we have published, and we have been compelled to decline with thanks considerable poetry that has been submitted for our consideration.

As you come across specimens of philatelic verse in the future, clip them for our use, and we shall be very glad to reprint things that have appeared in recent years in our own publication. Who will be the first to respond to our call? Look over your back numbers of the Weekly and give us the dates of use of meritorious verse. Better still, send in poems and we will give you credit as used.

PREPARATION OF ADV. COPY.

Write your copy in ink.

Use one side of the paper only.

If there be any word for the editor use a separate piece of paper.

Sign your name and address to each piece of copy.

If you can use a typewriter, so much the better.

Take plenty of space.

Make prices and abbreviations plain.

In other words, take pains in the preparation of your advertising copy. It is a foolish expenditure of money to do otherwise. Follow the above suggestions and you will bring joy to the heart of the compositor.

¶ We expect our advertisers to pay their bills on presentation. If not paid according to our rule, we may well hesitate as to extension of credit.

THE MANAGING EDITOR

EDITORIAL.

Death—The news of the passing on of Charles Haviland Mekeel at Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, on the evening of October thirteenth, will create a profound impression on philatelists the world over. For almost forty years the name of this brilliant, forceful man has been in the minds of philatelists and though for some years past he may have found it advisable to husband his energies, yet the strong will of the man who had that innate love for stamps that is essential for greatness in our world was working to the last. Bold, resourceful and sanguine, Charles H Mekeel was a most arresting figure in American philately. Though in his eventful career of nearly sixty years he was interested in various other enterprises, his name never became dissociated from philately to which he was attached by permanent bonds. Since 1893, we have had the personal acquaintance of Mr. Mekeel and perhaps we knew him so well that some of the complexities of his nature escaped us. His occasional letters were intensely human in tone, and in them he discussed frankly his intentions and ambitions that were to have their fruition in the years to come "Out of the dusk and out of the dawn,

Ever and ever the rune runs on,
Early or late be the task begun,
None survives till his work is done."

Works—Charles Haviland Mekeel, who was proud of his French and Quaker ancestry, was first heard of as a boy in Chicago where he published a monthly stamp journal called the Stamp Collectors' Bureau in 1881, which was continued in 1882 as the Collectors' Bureau by "C. H. Mekeel and Co." At the time he conducted a school-boy stamp business and when his studies were finished for the time being, Mr. Mekeel sold subscription sets of books throughout the adjacent states. Soon afterward he was located in St. Louis in the employ of a railroad. He launched into the stamp business and acquired the Carson Philatelist and it was not long before the Carson Stamp Company was a factor in the commercial field. The excellent Philatelic Journal of America was started in 1885 and lasted until 1895. In 1901 the C. H. Mekeel Stamp and Publishing Company, a reorganization of the old company, began the monthly known as Mekeel's Stamp Collector, whose issue was suspended in 1905. The acute vision of Mr. Mekeel saw the great possibilities in the stamp business and in 1890 he incorporated the C. H. Mekeel Stamp & Publishing Company for $100,000, the stock having been distributed among a number of outside investors as well as among the Mekeel brothers, Charles H., George D., and Isaac A. Then came a golden period and the company thrived and became a power through advertising and aggressive business methods. January 7, 1891, MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS was started with I. A. Mekeel as editor. Other publications were issued and the name of Mekeel became a philatelic household word. Catalogues were published and some special volumes; and business coups were accomplished. With relations cultivated in Mexico, Mr. Mekeel became headquarters for the stamps of Mexico, which were exploited to a degree. The great Louisville find of St. Louis bear stamps was acquired and handled profitably. Sales of rarities to wealthy amateurs were made and the discovery of Confederate and other varieties all added to the reputation of the company. Everything was at high tide The Daily Stamp Item was published in 1896 and 285 numbers of this daily newspaper appeared, completing the year. This advertising sortie was in advance of the times but it was good publicity. Then the lean period of 1897 came and many concerns that could not readily curtail expenses bit the dust, and among them was the C. H. Mekeel Stamp & Publishing Company. Individually, Mr. I. A. Mekeel bought the WEEKLY and it became an independent newspaper, never to miss an issue to this day.

Again—Later, Mr. C. H. Mekeel reorganized the C H. Mekeel Stamp & Publishing Company, but it did not appear to have his undivided attention as other enterprises seemed to have a share of his time. However, with Mekeel's Stamp Collector, Mr. Mekeel regained his old position of eminence to some extent; and that his journalistic talents had swing until the last is shown by the receipt of a copy of the Albemarle Collector a few days before his death. When Mr. Mekeel removed to Virginia, he continued his stamp work, but perhaps not so intensively as he did once, as he looked forward to devoting much time to study in fields in which he was interested. Comparatively recently, Mr. Mekeel removed to Bethlehem, Pa., where his son, Charles Haviland Mekeel, Jr., is engaged in important work, and there passed on.

Talks—The personality of Mr. Mekeel was commanding and almost irresistible. Of superb physical endowments, his able mind had a fitting sanctuary. Acute and far-seeing, he could not find scope for his ambitions in the routine of the average man, let us say. In conversation he could entrance his auditors, and his stories and his anecdotes were table-talk of sheer delight. His humor softened the sharper details and his version of a controversy in which he may have been involved left one with the belief that there was another side to the story. Mr. Mekeel was a lover of books and appreciative of the artistic sides of life. As a business man his mental sweep was most comprehensive and he hewed to the line of success, letting the chips fall where they might. He had an inherent liking for the publishing business and as an editor he was a most sapient purveyor of news. He could analyze on paper in a way to awaken the interest of the reader. He could impale with his pen, if need be; and his long experience in stamps gave him an extraordinary sense of journalistic values. He was not inclined to take the course of least resistance but sought out unfamiliar avenues of approach, if he deemed it worth while to do so. Consequently he was not accustomed to conform to accepted ideas, and while, for instance, he was one of the workers at the organization meeting of the American Philatelic Society in New York in 1886, for some time past he ignored its existence in a way. For generations to come Charles Haviland Mekeel will be remembered as having placed the stamp business in America on a dollar rather than a penny basis; as having established publishing records and as having been the pioneer advertiser of stamps and the stamp business on a scale of magnitude in this country. For other reasons, too, he will be kept in mind; his personal qualities could not be described by any of the ordinary standards It was often said that if Mr. Mekeel had devoted himself to some more sounding or pretentious profession than that of philatelist, he would have attained a celebrity of flattering kind, but the fact that Mr. Mekeel could not desert stamps is a tribute to the strength of their fascinating chains.

STAMPS OF HAITI.

American Occupation.

By G. A. BISSET.

September 30, 1921.

Few, if any, collectors realize the unusual situation as regards the late Haitian surcharges beginning at Scott's No. 235 and continuing up to new issue beginning with No. 310. These stamps are known as American Occupation Stamps and were issued under the supervision of an American Postmaster General in Haiti The stamps, therefore, have all the prestige of the United States stamps, while, on account of the small number issued. they are far scarcer than any current United States Stamps. It is almost impossible, for instance, to conceive of a U. S. stamp with a face value of 1c being worth within a year or two after its issue, $3.00. A number of Haitian stamps are worth even more than that although they were issued in 1916 and later. Most of the rare surcharges in fact were issued in 1917 and later. Of stamp No. 305, which Scott lists at $5.00, only 1600 were issued, the face value being 5c Gourde or 1c of our money. Of stamp No. 285, new catalog number being 280, only 10,000 were issued, so all in all, these Haitian stamps of the American Occupation are gems for the Collector Backed by the prestige of the American Government it is difficult to understand why these stamps should not rapidly become among the highest priced in the catalog.

Perhaps a little of the history of these stamps would be of interest. The American Postmaster General found that among the many things wrong with the Haitian Government was the fact that there were no stamps in the Post-office of the denominations required. There were plenty of stamps running from $1.00 down to 3c, but there was little demand for any stamps except 1c, 2c, 3c, and 5c Gourde, a Gourde being only 1/5 of a cent. The stamps on hand therefore were surcharged with the Gourde values thereby being made available for postage. In this way almost all the stamps on hand were used up, even the postage due stamps being surcharged and made available for use as postage stamps.

Many of the stamps surcharged with the new values had already been surcharged Gl O. Z. 7 Fev. 1914 in honor of the President, General O Zamor, who was elected on that date. Stamps so surcharged were used in place of the issue of 1915 which was apparently gotten out for O. Zamor's administration. These stamps are Scott's old numbers, 219 to 234 and 243 and 244. A large quantity was stolen between the engraver and the Haitian Government. The Haitian Government thereupon never placed the stamps on sale and never authorized their use for postage. In fact all that reached the Haitian Government were ordered to be burned.

The current issue of Haitian stamps contains the following varieties: 3c Gourde, 5c, 10c, 15c and 25c. It seems, therefore, that there is no possibility of additional issues of the surcharges which would naturally have the effect of decreasing the value of those already issued. Collectors of these stamps therefore need not have any anxiety of their decrease in value, as happened to the Falkland Island one shilling war stamp. which, due to a re-issue, has decreased in catalog price from $10.00 to 75c.

A NEW COMMEMORATIVE ISSUE.

We are indebted to Gerald D. Bliss and Emil J. Rall for the information that new commemorative stamps are about to be issued upon the Isthmus. Panama will have a set ranging from ½c to 50c, to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the independence of Panama from Spanish rule. The stamps will also be overprinted "Canal Zone" but there will be no ½c and 2½c values as in the other set. We are informed that the 12c and $1 values will be excluded from both sets. C. H. Calhoun, Director of Posts, announces that a year's supply will be available. The new stamps are slated to appear on or about Nov. 15. They will be very handsome in design.

BARTELS' "FIRST GERMAN AUCTION SALE."

We have received an attractively gotten up catalog of "The German Sale, No. 1" to be held in New York City on Nov. 1, 2, 3, 1921, by the J. M. Bartels Co., acting as agents for the "Marken & Ganzsachenhaus Co." of Berlin, Germany. This firm, who has been doing a great auction business in Berlin, as those who have been so fortunate as to receive their de luxe auction catalogs are aware, have shown considerable enterprise in thus invading this country with a very fine collection of U. S., including a splendid assortment of Locals on covers, a fine line of rarities of North and South America, many being on cover or piece of cover, and a strong selection of imperforates.

Mr. Rudolf Siegel, the president of the company, is accompanying the collection and will exhibit it personally in New York, Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Washington. The catalog is superbly illustrated with 40 plates of the finest things in the sale. and those interested are advised to write at once to the J. M. Bartels Co., 116 Nassau St., New York City, if they have not already received a catalog.

Early Imperforates

What a "grand and glorious feeling" it is when you pick up the new cat by the scruff of "her" neck and upon examining her insides you discover that the stamps you paid good money for are still good property and have gone up in value and not down. A good way to avoid unpleasant surprises is to buy stamps that have stood the test of time.

Spain, Nos. 1 to 7, inclusive.
Spain, Nos. 9 to 30, inclusive.
Spain, Nos. 33 and 34.
Spain, Nos. 36 to 73, inclusive.

Lightly cancelled singles, nearly all with margins on all four sides,—also some pairs, strips and blocks, and a fine lot of the perf. issues now ready to submit to responsible collectors at substantial discounts from current catalog prices. This is only a tiny sample of what I can supply in nearly every country in the world—U. S. included.

REAL CHOICE FOREIGN PICKINGS

Choice pickings from a number of collections and selected because of their attractive condition. Used copies are lightly cancelled, but unused have gum only where mentioned. Some of the early stamps you will recall were issued without gum. Picked out for the condition crank and but one copy of each on hand. Do not be afraid to send your check, however, for if the stamp is gone, your money, not a credit slip, will be returned.

United States.—At an auction sale held this week in Philadelphia prices on fine United States ruled strong and there was every indication to lead one to believe that they are still on the way up. I doubt if we will ever reach what we might call the peak of prices, for it seems that one hardly accustoms himself to the price on a variety until along comes an auction and up it goes. It is only about ten years ago that very fine copies of the 10c 1847 could be bought for $3.50 and on the covers at that. Then it climbed into the $5 class and it was not long before $10 and even $15 were paid for choice specimens. Within the last couple of years it has become a $25 to $30 variety and the end is not in sight. I only mention this as an illustration, for the same remarks apply to practically all the other early standard varieties of United States.

At the auction mentioned a very fine pair of the 10c 1851 in combination with the 1c type IV on cover brought $51.25 and three pairs of the 12c 1857 on one cover sold for $47.00. These two covers, by the way, cost the owner exactly $39.00 about three months back. A 3c 1851 on cover with Wilmington & Raleigh Railroad cancellation sold for $11.70 while a similar Boston & Albany changed hands at $5.80. Several N. York & Phila were sold at prices ranging from $1.35 to $3.20 each. A cover with a fine block of four of the 3c 1851, ordinary cancellation, brought $57.50, not a bit unreasonable when you consider its rarity on cover. A fine mint copy of the 24c aeroplane with inverted center, truly a standard rarity, brought the high figure of the day, $710.

Mr. Chas. C. Dargue has sent quite an interesting circular, form 469, distributed by the Civil Service Commission announcing the examination which is to be held on November 16th, throughout the country, for a philatelist to take charge of the government collection housed at the National Museum in Washington. The position will pay $1500 a year and appointees whose services are satisfactory may be allowed an increase of $20 per month.

In the classification of applicants, education, training and experience will count 40, practical questions relating to the methods of preserving, listing and cataloguing specimens 20, questions regarding postal issues of various countries 15, while an essay of at least 400 words testing the applicant's knowledge of museum methods in connection with philately will count 25.

Applicants must have graduated from a four years' high school course and in addition must have had at least two years of practical philatelic work of a similar nature to that required by the duties of the position. Experience as an amateur collector will not be considered qualifying.

Mr. H. D. Watkins kindly sends us a sample of the new Atlanta overprinted double reply card and informs us that only about 1000 received this overprint.

Mr. Erwin Strasser kindly favors us with a sight of the 2c blue foreign reply card wherein one part of the card received the two impressions leaving the other half of the card blank. The "message" part is in the correct place with the "reply" on the other side of the same half.

Mr. A. C. Roessler tells us in his News that the Washington Post Office has again made arrangements to have a special clerk to look out for the wants of the collector. We sincerely trust that this information is correct for we have sadly missed the services of the former occupant.

Argentine.—The Bulletin Mensuel chronicles the appearance of four commemorative stamps perforated 13 and bearing the words "Primer Congreso Postal Panamericano"; 3c pale violet, 5c blue, 10c lilac brown and 12c red.

Belgium.—Mr. Henry Hooreman has sent to us a copy of the 50c stamp of the same type as the one issued for the Brussells Philatelic Congress but in a shade of grey blue. Those issued first were printed in sheets of 25 while the recent one is issued in sheets of 150, being 15 wide and 10 high. So far control numbers 12 and 13 have been observed.

Danzig.—The Bulletin Mensuel announces the 1921 issue of Service stamps surcharged "D M "in values 5p to 3m inclusive.

Denmark.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 30o of the 1913-15 type in an orange shade. Also the 5o of the type of Scott's A10 in a dark brown color.

Germany.—We note the information of a 5m brown orange, 10m carmine and 20m blue and green in the last issue of the Bulletin Mensuel. The first two values are oblong in shape and have the figure of value in the centre while the 20m shows a farmer in the act of plowing a field.

The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 50pf in the figure type in a magenta shade.

Honduras.—The Economist Stamp Co. advise us of the appearance of the 1c, 2c and 5c of the 1919 set overprinted OFICIAL in black.

Liberia.—The Bulletin Mensuel chronicles the issuing of a new set of pictorial stamps for this country in values

SELL YOUR COLLECTION IN THE SUDDEN SERVICE CITY

St. Louis is practically the center of the United States. We are the only firm holding regular auction sales here. Forty-seven floor bidders at our last sale, many purchasing well into the hundreds. One local customer alone secured lots to the value of $825.30. And these were bought at prices higher than the best mail bids. At that we distributed 3000 catalogs to a select list! Next sale contains about 2000 lots and we'll mail 3500 catalogs.

Are you considering selling at auction? Are your stamps in truly fine condition? Then this is the place to sell. Our clientele is composed of those discriminating philatelists who demand "perfection" and understand the cost.

from 1c to $5. The stamps are oblong in shape and of eleven different types, each showing a different view.

NEW ZEALAND.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the appearance of the 8d King George stamp watermarked N. Z. and star.

We learn from a recent issue of the Philatelic Courier that the new 8d stamp recently issued was first placed on sale the latter part of June and the 4½d and 7½d have been withdrawn.

NYASSALAND.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the ½d and 6d of the current type printed on the watermarked script CA paper.

PORT SAID.—The Economist Stamp Co. have submitted the 25c stamp with the surcharge "10 Milliemes" in black and in two lines.

SEYCHELLES.—The Economist Stamp Co. have sent to us a copy of the ½d stamp of the King George type printed on the script CA paper.

SYRIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. have submitted to us for chronicle several values of Turkish stamps of 1920 issue with the surcharge "O.M.F. Syrie" with the values 25 centiemes, 50 centiemes, 1 piastre and 5 piastres respectively. The overprints are black, of four lines and of the same type on each. At the same time they also advise of the issue of the 2pia, 3pia, 10pia in black and the 1pia in red surcharged in like manner on other value.

NEW ISSUE NOTES.

By CHARLES S. THOMPSON.

CONGO.—The last value of the surcharged 1910 issue has at last appeared. This is the 5c on 40c, green and black. The stamp has already been cornered by speculators, and has been offered at fifteen times face value—when it has been obtainable at all.

DANZIG.—More Danzigs, evidently the wind-up of the coat-of-arms set, so we may be prepared for another entirely new issue in a short time.

These latest patience-teasers are the 5M, black, red, and green; 10M, black, red, and blue; 20M, black, red, and black. Design, coat-of-arms with 2 crosses and crown, with lion supporters. "Freie Stadt Danzig" below, and 5 Marks above. The arms are printed in the third color, on a red ground outlined in black.

LATVIJA.—Two new aerial post stamps have appeared, triangular in shape, a là Fiume. These have "Latvija" at top, "Rublu 10" en point, and picture a monoplane. The question naturally arises, "Are there really any planes in operable condition in Latvija, or are these aero stamps simply another effort to raise the wind?"

10 Rubles green.
20 Rubles blue.

LUXEMBOURG.—It may be interesting to philatelists to know what scenes are depicted on the Luxembourg "timbre du souvenir" issue. The 10c pictures the Abbey of St. Maurice at Clairvaux, a Benedictine establishment, one of the small number remaining to the order, which in the 14th century is said to have had no less than 37,000 monasteries. The 15c shows the village of Pfaffenthal, a suburb of Luxembourg, and the 25c depicts the "Promenade of the Three Acorns" in the city of Luxembourg.

Some months ago the writer was informed that the color of the 15c Charlotte was to be changed from carmine-rose to green. Evidently this color change will be made eventually as a result of recent Postal Union rules, while other values in this beautiful design may be expected.

Lybia.—The Italians have at last realized that beauty is one of the essentials of a colonial issue, but they have yet to learn that this pulchritude must not be marred by faulty perforating, of which the less profanity we use, the better. The stamps themselves are of beautiful design and execution, the subjects chosen being particularly appropriate. All are bicolors, engraved in taille-douce with extreme care, and even with the perfectly abominable perforating, they are of great charm.

Lybia was once a Roman province, and this is typified by the first design, the head of a Roman legionary, holding aloft his sword. The name "Libia" appears above, "Colonie Italiane Poste" below, with the value in Italian in the lower left corner, in Arabic in the lower right. This disposal of the value is the same in all the designs. At the sides of the first design are decorations which appear to be conventionalized palm trunks, emblems of plenty.

The second design depicts the Goddess of Abundance, that Diana of the Ephesians with forty breasts, in the midst of the desert. The reunification of Lybia with Italy is typified by the ornaments of palm branches and the Roman gladii or broadswords at the sides. "Colonie Italiane" above, "Poste Libia" below.

The third design presents the prow of a Roman galley carrying Libyan grain to Italy. The decorations are purely conventional. Inscriptions as in the first design.

The fourth design exhibits the invincible winged Nike, the Goddess of Victory, holding aloft the royal crown of Italy. The decorations are stalks of wheat. Inscriptions as in first design.

The whole series is emblematic of the victory of Italy over the Turks, the annexation of Lybia, and the hope that Lybia may again become the granary of Italy as it was in the days of the Caesars:—

1c brown and grey; 2c red-brown and grey; 5c green and grey; 10c rose and black; 15c red and black-brown; 25c blue and ultra; 30c brown and black; 50c olive and black; 55c lilac and black; L1 light brown and dark brown; L5 blue and black and L10 blue and olive.

A special delivery stamp is included in the issue. It is of the usual size and shape, shows a wreathed head in a circle, below which, in a panel, is "Espresso." Other inscriptions as in type two. Decorations, palm branches, 50c brown and carmine.

FORWARDING OF MAIL.

It is becoming a matter of common practice for advertisers to have their mail sent in care of the Weekly. In the future we ask that on advertising of this kind some local address be used rather than have the mail forwarded through this office. We have good and sufficient reasons for requesting that this be done.

The Managing Editor.

A NEW REPUBLIC.

(The following clipping from John H. Feeman presents a situation rich in philatelic possibilities. It certainly means that the stamps of the three nations Honduras, Guatemala and Salvador will pass out of existence and a new set of stamps will result. The entire article will be of more than ordinary interest to the philatelist.—W. O. W.)

Tegucigalpa, October 9.—A new nation, having an approximate area of 100,000 square miles and a population of 4,000,000, will come into existence tomorrow when the governments of Honduras, Guatemala and Salvador will cease to function and the Provisional Federal Council of the Central American Federation, composed of those countries, will take charge.

The new republic lies between Mexico and Nicaragua, with Tegucigalpa as its capital.

The pact of the union was signed early in January of this year at San Jose, Costa Rica, by the three mentioned states and Costa Rica, whose National Assembly rejected it later by a vote of 19 to 20.

Nicaragua refused to sign the pact on account of differences with its neighbor states about the interpretation of the Bryan-Chamorro treaty, which gave to the United States special right for the construction of a new inter-oceanic canal through its territory.

May Extend Down to Panama.

Similar considerations apparently prevailed in Costa Rica, but in both countries the public opinion is divided and a Unionist party is endeavoring to bring about, some time, the union of Nicaragua and Costa Rica to the federation. If this comes to a fulfillment, the population of the new nation would be increased by 1,000,000 inhabitants and would extend its boundary down to Panama.

The union of these sister republics has been a national aspiration since eighty years ago, when political troubles destroyed the Federal Republic of Central America, which, as a whole, liberated itself from the Spanish power in 1821 and maintained its unity until the 40's. They speak the same language, Spanish, have the same religion, Roman Catholic, and are of the same race, predominantly Indian, except in Costa Rica, where the white race prevails. Since the Spanish conquest they have had identical legislation and the same culture.

The text of the treaty of union provides for a government modeled on the lines of the Constitution of the United States, with three separated branches, the executive, legislative and judicial, although the executive is modeled more on the Swiss system. A constitution embodying these provisions was finally approved by the Constituent Assembly which met in September at Tegucigalpa.

HELIGOLAND ASKS FOR FREEDOM.

A commission of sixty-two members working for the independence of Heligoland today issued a memorial in which it was charged that the "bureaucratic German-Prussian régime failed to learn the lesson which the maladministration of Alsace, Schleswig, Silesia and Posen should have taught."

The memorial asserted that its signers are tired of sending deputations to Berlin "to sit with some Minister in an audience room catching flies while Prussian officials refuse to listen, or having heard, fail to understand Heligoland's case."

The memorial concludes that the island's future demands an independent administration to see that "there is no further misunderstanding and mistreatment at the hands of a régime which perpetuates the old Prussian principles of government."—Newspaper.

VOL XXIII The Filatelic Filibuster No. 13

Idiotorial Cell.

In again presenting our indispensable organ to the public, it is necessary that we make some announcements.

To begin with, our motto is, as always, Filtered Filately, and our favorite flower is the grape-vine. This is the least longest wire in the world, and it supplies us with all the latest news, guaranteed to be at least a month old, the same as all the big daily publications, like Willie Wiener Wurst's Yellow Yelp, and other choice novels by the Dutchest.

Having announced our motto, it will be well to say something about our staff. The last idiotorial staff consisted of a couple of poor sticks, but this staff is a genuine Malacca, imported from the Federated Malay States, and hence of interest to all filatelists, as it has the newest watermark for canes of that kind. Our idioter-in-chief is Mister Fillmore Fuller, an able space filler, though like all of that type, he is a bit thin in some places, and has been hit in the effigy rather hard once or twice. Our business manager is Mister Fullabunk Addis, and as long as he keeps the paper running, the less said about his missionary mixture activities, the better.

This magazine is published every February 29, on alternate saltatorial annums. Lest this statement be rather heavily cancelled for some readers, we hasten to explain. The Latin word saltator means a jumper, or one who leaps, while the Latin annum is freely translated as year. Hence we have a paper which happens once every eight years, the reason being that we desire to keep filatelists on edge for a considerable length of time between issues, as since June 30, 1918, it has been increasingly difficult to get an edge and hold it.

New Stamp Issuing Countries.

From a recent auction catalogue, promulgated by one P. G. Doom, we learn of a number of countries whose existence we had not previously noted.

These are the Canceroons, (cf. p. 12, S. No. 142), undoubtedly a province located in the surgical zone: Candenamarca, either a confectionery country, or a preserving plant (p. 15, ib.): Renmon, (p. 31), a country whose name is derived from the German word rein, meaning clean, and the clipped English word money, hence "clean money." We should say, right off the reel, that this country has no existence, for there isn't any such a thing any more.

On page 33 we hear about Surre Leon, evidently one of those old rounders who used to ramble about in a galvanized-iron bathrobe, while he left his pants at the blacksmith shop to have a patch riveted on the seat.

St. Perrie is a new saint who is mentioned on p. 32. He must be some relation to Oliver Perry, who sent the first special delivery letter across the Straits of Magellan to Burleson, in which he announced the arrival in 1921 of a letter posted by old Chris Columbus away back in 1066, when Bill Konkeror discovered home brew in Britain.

Later, p. 37, La Ginta and Sr. T. bust right out into print. This La Ginta is a relative of the late Dan McGinty, who went to the bottom of the sea, and it is a very appropriate name for a navigation company. Sr. T. must be a male relative, as it is always necessary to have a male in the letter business.

We learn some startling things about old issues in several places. For instance, look up that Mubready envelope. Must be a uni-cue item.

Then we are informed that some Pistol Fisials are sold "As Is". All shot to pieces, no doubt!

The last glad news relates to some Civil Revs., "some only punched". It takes more than a punch or two to make most of them civil!

PRECANCEL NOTES.

By J. D. COOKE.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received but should be sent to Mr. Cooke direct. Ed.

Have recently picked up the following current issues inverted; Dayton, O. 8c and 12c and Scranton, Pa., 10c.

Two new thirteen centers in my collection are Southbridge, Mass. and Binghamton, N.Y.

The only new Pilgrim that I have found this summer is the two cent Chicago.

The following are a few of the better 1c perf. 10x11 that I have acquired lately: Binghamton, Garden City, Albany, and Ogdensburg, N. Y.; Covington, Ky.; Springfield, Mass.; Nashville, Tenn., and Wash., D. C., latest type.

I have the 2c and 10c current issue from Jacksonville, Fla. Another good invert is the 7c Memphis, Tenn. Nashville, Tenn., has also given the fan recently the following offsets inverted 1c, 2c, and 3c; also the 5c inverted. Another good invert is Syracuse 2c invert.

I have made this summer considerable progress in building up a complete set of the current Syracuse, N. Y., with the periods in the three different positions chronicled by me some time since.

Clinton, Iowa, is precancelling the current issue with U-14 type.

Garrison, N. Y., is a newcomer for the fan and is using the popular U-14 type.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., is another New York city to enter the list using precancels. The type is U-8. The best one that I have is a 3c double.

Northampton, Pa., is a new Pennsylvania town. The overprint is similar to U-11 but smaller.

Honesdale, Pa., is another Pennsylvania town precancelling the current issue. The type is a rubber roller similar to U-8.

Marshall, Mich., 6c and 7c are a couple of good ones recently acquired.

Several cities are now using a 1c stamp perforated 10 on all 4 sides. I have recently taken copies from mail addressed to me as follows: Boston, type X, normal and inverted. Detroit, Mich., and New York City, type X, normal. Would like reports of any others.

Just found a current Cleveland 1c double.

Albany, N. Y., is precancelling the current issue in type similar to U-12 but somewhat larger, using purple ink. I have taken the 5c and 6c from covers. —Phizzletelic Phizzle.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1606 to 1610 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

CONDITION AS AFFECTING VALUE.

By TRACY W. SIMPSON, 91 New Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal.

A strange thing from the collector's viewpoint is the variance of opinion on the subject of condition and the startling difference in value occasioned by some slight defect when appraised by some and the relative unimportance of the defect when viewed by others. Perfection is, of course, our goal, but the question is how many of us can afford perfection and how much should we pay for good or average copies if we cannot pay the perfection price. Then, too, perfection copies are not sufficiently numerous to go around, so many of us must be content with slightly off-graded copies, but we should like to feel a little more certain as to how much we must scale down the value of our treasures if they possess minute defects.

Stability in the value of stamps is a splendid thing especially to those of us who are putting our money into stamps with the idea that they may not prove a bad investment after all. Nothing is more disheartening than to find a good sound stamp well centered, lightly cancelled and of good color but with a corner perf. torn off (what are perfs. anyway if not to be torn?) referred to by a dealer in his purchasing room as "too bad it's damaged—I might get a third catalog and can offer you a fifth"; and in the sales-room later the stamp is rated as "superb appearing, well centered, fine margins, slight nicked perf. in corner—easily worth three quarters catalog, etc."

If we grant that once a man is a collector he will always be one, and that the collector who is now forced to sell may later be in the market to buy, then it would appear the wise thing not to shake his faith in the game by "bearing" the value of his offerings by over-zealously pointing out and exaggerating the defects.

Condition is referred to as mint, superb, fine, good, fair, average, ordinary, poor, etc., according to a few rough definitions that leave a great deal to the imagination, but actually the rating seems to depend upon whether one is buying or selling. True enough, nobody can expect to replace the spirit of barter from the stamp field but the writer maintains that this barter should be one of price and not of grading of the specimen. It ought to be easier than it is to grade a stamp and to know what effect on the price may be reasonably expected by its appraised condition.

Condition enters into the market value of many commodities. A set of rules is established by committees of those in the industry and the committee continues to act as a permanent body to decide disputes that arise in their application. These rules merely establish the grade and there is still room for the free flow of trade and exchange in setting the price for each grade. In most cases it is found that before an industry establishes such grading rules conditions are demoralized and there is lack of confidence and retrogression. Afterwards, things rapidly become stabilized and the ethics jump to a higher plane.

Appraisal rules for stamps should be no more difficult to establish than rules of similar nature in other arts. The work could well be delegated to the Philatelic societies and the effort would form a pleasing outlet for the energies of ardent students. A standing committee would promulgate from time to time such revisions as experience dictates and it would also act as a court of last resort in settling disputes arising from the interpretation of the rules.

To start this work and by way of suggestion, the writer gives his idea of such a set of rules not with the idea that they are authoritative but rather a suggestion as to form than substance. The point or percentage plan seems to adapt itself nicely for stamp appraisal. Certain things about a stamp should put it in a premium class and other things should penalize it. Such a scheme has the advantage that the splendid features of a stamp may offset its bad features, whereas nowadays, about all that one hears is the defective side prominently emphasized.

Standards of condition would have to be modified to conform to peculiarities of stamps issue. Old U. S. cannot be penalized as heavily for cannot be penalized as heavily for can-

JONES SWAPPED!
Yes, quite a number of the Jones family mentioned in this space about two months ago needed money and swapped some fine stamps for it. I still want anything fine in United States that catalogues $1.00 up to $1000.00.
My stock, always large but considerably augmented by the Jones purchases, is now available to collectors, who want fine things. Don't ask for general selections of early issues—"there ain't no such animal" any more.

cellation. Even different stamps of one issue may have a special note added to the appraisal rules on account of some peculiar feature of their use. For instance, in current U. S. $2 and $5 values the postal clerks seem to smear on the cancellation and it is not right to grade such stamps as strictly on cancellation as lower values.

In the following set of rules it will be found that a superb stamp may grade as high as 220 per cent and a poor stamp will go down to minus 150%. All of us have paid 220 per cent of catalog for a superb specimen of an old stamp, but what to do with stamps that grade minus 150%, is determined when it is realized that the grading percentages or points are not to have any relation to catalog price. For instance, a dealer may say that stamps that grade on this scale at minus 100 points or worse will be sold at one tenth catalog price and purchased at one twentieth catalog price.

GRADING RULES FOR SINGLE ADHESIVE STAMPS.

Points variation from standard of 100

(1) Margins on imperforate stamps.

(a) Where edge does not cut the design.

For each margin over 1 mm. (or if portion of next stamp shows), +20
For each margin 0.5 mm. to 1.0 mm., +10
For each margin 0.2 mm. to 0.5 mm., 0
For each margin 0.2 mm. to close but sufficient to clear the design, —10

(b) Where edge cuts into the design.

For each side having design cut a trace to 0.2 mm., —20
Ditto, 0.2 mm. to 0.5 mm., —25
Ditto, 0.5 mm. to 1.0 mm., —30
Ditto, over 1.0 mm., —40

Margins clipped at an angle will be considered as the average width of the margin, except when the design is cut, in which case the stamp is to be considered as if the edge that cuts into the design possesses the average indentation into the design neglecting the off-setting feature that a portion of the margin may be very wide. That is to say, the cut into the design is to be considered the controlling feature.

(c) Modification of (a) and (b) to cover case of a trimmed perforated stamp.

In case the stamp is one which was also issued perforated and consequently less valuable as such, there is a suspicion that it is a trimmed perforate and therefore it must be penalized more severely for small margins than an unquestioned imperf. So in case there is no year dated cancellation, piece of cover, portion of next stamp, paper or color indication, or several other wide margins to definitely prove it a genuine imperf., the following schedule applies:

If margin has width 0.2 mm. to 0.5 mm, penalize for each margin, —15
If margin is so close as to be a trace to 0.2 mm., —20

(2) Nicks in imperforate and perforate stamps.

A nick is a triangular tear that actually removes some of the body of the stamp. A clipped-off corner is to be regarded the same as a nick.

(a) Nick in margin but not in design.

For each nick 0.5 x 0.5 mm. average area, —10
For each nick 1.0 x 1.0 mm. average area, —25
For each nick 1.5 x 1.5 mm. average area, —35

(b) Nick in design.

Estimate the area of nick in margin and then penalize as above; then add as following additional penalty:

For each nick in design 0.5 x 0.5 mm., —20
For each nick in design 1.0 x 1.0 mm., —35

(3) Scissors snips in imperforate stamps.

This defect is caused by the scissors that cut the stamps apart making an incision by mistake. It is obviously a far less serious defect than is a tear in an imperforate stamp or a snip in a perforated stamp.

(a) For each mm. length of snip in margin only, —2.5
For each mm. length of snip in design only, —5

(4) Tears in imperforate or perforate stamps.

This schedule covers cases of tears in which no portion of stamp is removed making it possible by a repair to have the stamp resemble a perfect copy.

(a) For first mm. length of tear in margin, —10
For each add'nl mm. tear in margin, —5
(b) For first mm. length of tear in design, —20
For each add'nl mm. tear in design, —10

(5) "Off-Center" in perforate stamps.

The following applies to perforated stamps of normal size. Stamps with extra margin on one side and normal margin on opposite side due to error in setting size of perforating machine or from edge of sheet as in early Great Britain surface printed stamps, cannot be penalized as off-center. Stamps will be found off-center either vertically, horizontally or both in combination.

(a) "Off-Center" is not so serious as to cause touching of design by throat of perfs.

For center displaced less than .02 mm. from true center horizontally, +20
For center displaced 0.2 to 0.5 mm. from true center horizontally, 0
For center displaced 0.5 to 1.0 mm. from true center horizontally, —10

For vertical displacements, penalize at same schedule as above for horizontal.

(b) "Off-center" causes perfs. to cut into the design.

For each margin that the perfs. cut into use schedule as below and neglect the schedule (a) above.

Perfs. cut one side a trace to 0.2 mm., —15
Perfs. cut one side 0.2 to 0.5 mm., —20
Perfs. cut one side 0.5 to 1.0 mm., —30

In many old stamps the design is well centered, but the perfs. touch or cut into the design due to insufficient distance between stamps. In such cases the penalty for cut-into-design cannot be as severe as in case 5b above and the following schedule applies to the entire stamp.

Why Not Precancels?

You can add copies to your collection right along by keeping your eyes open. Precancels are around you every day on packages. Do you see them? Often you can pick off some that are worth real money. Let us sell you the ones you can't find yourslf.

Here are some you won't find because they are of an ancient vintage.

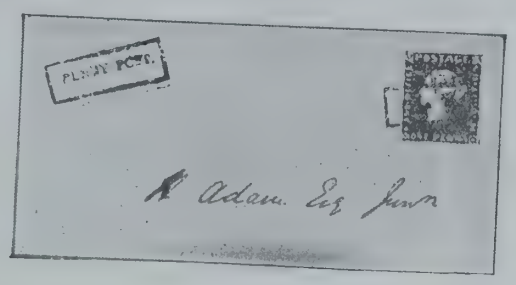
THE "POST OFFICE" MAURITIUS.

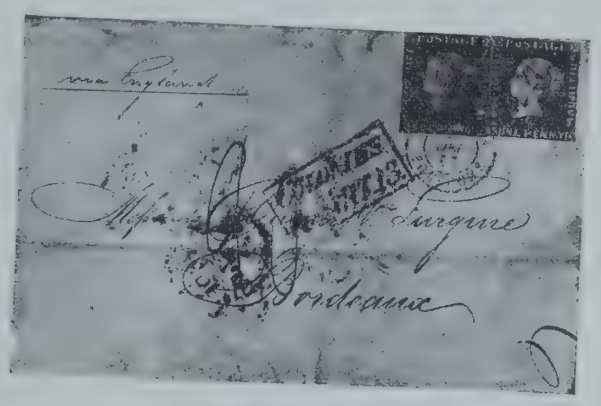
Translated by Permission from Messrs. Theodore Champion's Monthly Bulletin and Will Later Be Reprinted in Booklet form.

By C. A. Howes



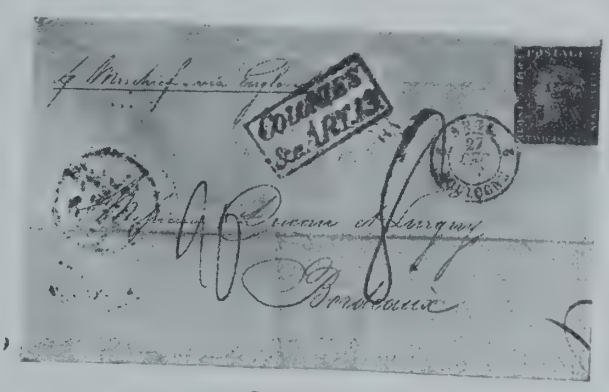
Copy XX.

The twentieth copy saw the light through M. Lemaire, who purchased it for 17,000 francs and sold it to Peckitt for 20,000 francs. It was also a 1 penny on cover.



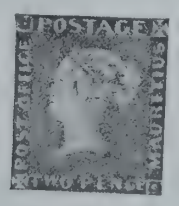
Copies XXI and XXII.

The twenty-first and twenty-second copies, a 1 penny and 2 pence together on cover, were found by M. Lemaire who paid 40,000 francs for them and sold them for 45,000 to M. Brunet de l'Argentière.



Copy XXIII.

The twenty-third copy, also found by M. Lemaire, was bought for 40,000 francs. It was sold to Kosack for the same price who in turn sold it to the Berlin Museum for 40,000 francs again.



Copy XXIV.

The twenty-fourth copy, an unused 2 pence, was found in the school-boy collection of Mr. James Bonar, in 1903. It was put up at auction and was bought on the Prince of Wales' order for 42,250 francs after an epic contest with a German agent who wanted to obtain it for the Berlin Museum.

The twenty-fifth copy, a cancelled 2 pence, offered to Mr. Lemaire, in 1917, was found in an old box where stamps had been thrown pell-mell. It was in poor condition but was sold the following year to a collector who wishes to keep his treasure without divulging its ownership.

Following this brief history of the known copies of the "Post Office" Mauritius, we are going to give the pedigree of each copy with its recorded selling prices. The difficulty of making up such a list should be understood, particularly if one realizes how hard it is to get precise information from those who have handled them, as the names of sellers and purchasers are often jealously guarded. We believe, therefore, that in presenting this information we must make it understood that the list is the most accurate that it is possible to publish, and that we are disposed to welcome any justified correction with eagerness.

BOOK REVIEW.

vert & Tellier—Champion Catalog—have received the 26th edition of Yvert & Tellier-Champion catalog 1922 and find it attractive and in- ting as usual. The first thing we e is apparently a somewhat better e of paper which enables the cuts to up somewhat clearer—and the is profusely illustrated, not only e stamp illustrations, but also by of surcharge, enlargements of die plate varieties, and watermarks, e the latter are special for the coun- lescribed. This latter feature we ciate, for where we find in Scott's lard Catalog no illustration what- of the various "Crown A" water- s of Australia, for instance, we find here with the stamps they ac- any. The "G. R." watermarks of Britain, also, which Scott has yet illustrated, are here shown the British stamp lists to which belong. The work is fully an- d with information which the or will appreciate, and the text is and well arranged. The listing is etical, except for Indian Native and the Colombian States which their respective countries in a , but are cross indexed in their alphabetical places. This is the n now in most catalogs and makes sy reference.

find there are but 38 more pages last year's edition, and this in a f a thousand does not seem very but perhaps the flood of new is- especially from "Neurope", has ated our brain a little and we may xaggerated the additions of the ar—we hope so.

catalog has had increasing pop- with American collectors during st few years and well merits it eading French catalog. Collectors nce and Colonies especially value there are many of them in this . It does not take a great dge of French to be able to use as for the prices, the present ex- rate makes it quite favorable in ases, though it would seem as if d been taken into consideration, cases at least. The volume is in ndy "long" pocket size and is vely bound in maroon and gold. sure that there will, as usual, arge American demand for it. ice is 18 francs of Yvert and 37 Rue des Jacobins, Amiens, or Th. ALLEN SEARS, STAMP DEALER.

We are pleased to present herewith the features of a dealer whose advertising is found regularly in the columns of the WEEKLY. As a stamp collector he became interested in United States and has specialized in these stamps for a number of years. Three years ago he started in the stamp business in Little Rock, Ark., and later moved to Washington, D. C.

He commenced business as the Stamp Shoppe and it was continued under this name while in Washington. Subsequently he sold his interest and organized the Allen Sears Inc. at Kansas City, Mo., with a capital of $10,000.

He is secretary and treasurer of the Kansas City Stamp Club, and a member of the A. P. S., S. P. A., M. P. A. and A. S. D. A.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The Times Picayune (New Orleans) under date of October 16, contained a very nice article exploiting philately. It was written by I. A. Angelo of that city, finely illustrated, and makes extended reference to the activities of the local collectors. An article such as this can readily be inserted in any daily paper, and our readers are urged to try out this form of publicity.

—We recently asked for information concerning J. H. Germakian of Smyrna, Turkey. The word that we have received causes us to warn our subscribers not to make first sendings on his exchange proposition. This warning is given upon the strength of a case presented by a correspondent, and we have discontinued the Germakian adlet.

—We have received from Chas. P. Skinner a page clipping which appeared in the magazine Business entitled "Exit the Postage Stamp". It deals with the new electrically driven machine which has been authorized by the government for metering and printing first class postage. The article states that the machines were put into use in August in a number of the larger New York stores, (including John Wanamaker's,) the New York Telephone Co., the National City Bank and the New York Times. These machines can seal, count, stamp, postmark, cancel and stack envelopes at the rate of 250 per minute.

—A copy of the Kensington Philatelist, issued by C. Fox & Co., Arcade Chambers, South Kensington Station, London, England, has recently been received. It is a substantial magazine of twenty pages and the issue before us contains an article by Alexander Holland, well and favorably known by U. S. philatelists. A copy of the magazine can no doubt be obtained upon request.

—Iole Dione, Bellevue, Wash., would like the present address of Billings Booth, formerly Muskogee, Okla. At the time last heard from he was connected with the Barbour's Booking Exchange, of the Metropolitan Building.

—R. Kenneth Milne, 132 Charles St., East Lansing, Mich., would like to hear from collectors living in or near Lansing. A stamp club will be organized if sufficient interest is shown in the matter.

WHOLESALE!

For years we have made a specialty of approval consignments—for dealers—and have built up a clientele running into the hundreds without the help of price-lists, circulars, or other advertising schemes. In other words, the quality of our offerings and the prompt services rendered have been our salesmen. The best proof of our success lies in the fact that during the past two years we have almost doubled our list of satisfied approval customers, while sales have increased over 25%, notwithstanding the depression which is said to have existed in American industry and business.

In anticipation of a further increase during the coming season, we have added the services of several clerks to our staff and take this opportunity of soliciting your patronage. A request for a trial consignment is not binding in any way, and we are positive that we can please you. References and a statement of your requirements will be an aid to quick and efficient service.

Special Offer!

The following combination offer is not made with the hope of any profit, but we believe that the exceptional opportunity offered will bring us many new clients. We have prepared fifty lots and a quick order is therefore advisable:

—For the benefit of stamp dealers we desire to state on definite information at hand that Mego, Hiordan and Warner are one and the same person. This party resides at Buenos Ayres and has proven a source of annoyance and pecuniary loss in many quarters. We do not know anything about the responsibility of the last named party.

—The A. S. D. A. is planning to distribute packets of stamps to shut-ins this coming Christmas. If any of our readers know of any worthy cases please inform the secretary, W. F. Slusser, Fort Washington, Md. Names should be submitted early in order that qualifications may be investigated.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Born—Beginning with the first of the coming year, a new member of the sisterhood of countries of the western hemisphere will be welcomed. The Republic of Central America, a consolidation of Honduras, Guatemala and Salvador will come into being on January 1, 1922, although under a working agreement, the federation has been functioning for some months. In the new republic, the component parts will bow to national sovereignty even though they have the latitude of the states in the American union. A reader who is interested in the new democracy tells us that the pact will be much to the advantage of Honduras and Salvador, in particular, and that politically the step is one of significance. Stamp collectors remember that while about twenty-five years ago, vide the 1897 issue of Salvador, a combination of republics was attempted, the movement met with no enduring results; and so it may be just as well to wait before attempting to weigh the philatelic consequences of the new alignment.

Cost—In sending us a description of a letter sent from New Orleans to Cincinnati, April 22, 1854, Dr. A. W. Bruce mentions that the 3c, 1851, on the envelope, is canceled at Cincinnati, May 2. There is a blue "Steam" on the cover and a red ellipsis with star in center and "Star Line" above and "Steamer Duke" below. While Dr. Bruce wanders a bit from the field of philately to that of pork, we shall follow him: (Quoting from the letter under notice). "Bacon has been selling freely at a range of 6⅝ and 7c for sides; 4¾ and 5¼ for shoulders; 6 and 7½c for plain hams and 9½ and 10½c, sugar-cured hams." Prime beef was 10¾c.

Mail—We have to thank Mr. George B. Sloane, New York, for sample impressions of "metered mail" and some interesting particulars of these permits incorporated in a pamphlet issued by The Postage Meter Company. We learn that the Pitney-Bowes Postage Meter Machine is the first one authorized by the department as conforming to the special rules issued December 28, 1920, designating the use of a "device having a detachable printing and recording mechanism to be set by the Postmaster and which automatically locks when impressions paid for are exhausted."

Open—A civil service examination for the selection of a Philatelist to care for the National Museum stamp collection, Washington, is announced for November 16, 1921, which may be taken at any one of the branches of the civil service commission throughout the country. In this connection, the recent death of Mr. J. B. Leavy, who was the curator of the national collection, is recalled and we all hope that the work so successfully instituted by our friend, now departed, will be continued by a competent successor. We quote from the circular: "A vacancy in the National Museum, Washington, D. C., at $1,500 a year, and vacancies in positions requiring similar qualifications, at this or higher or lower entrance salaries, will be filled from this examination, unless it is found in the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by re-instatement, transfer, or promotion." This honorary position is one that any of us may well aspire to but it must be admitted that the emoluments of office are not exactly princely. However, the philatelist who is in a position to snap his fingers in the face of the dollar no doubt would find the berth a most comfortable and congenial one.

Gone—Apropos of a recent editorial telling of the sentence of a carrier who denuded foreign letters of their stamps, Jas. Lewis Howe of the Washington and Lee University, Virginia, writes: "This reminds me that in my early collecting days of about fifty years ago, a friend who was professor in Roberts College, Constantinople, had the students there, who came from all the surrounding countries, gather a lot of stamps for me. At the time, several hundred stamps were mailed me in two envelopes. The envelopes arrived all right but they were completely emptied of their contents en route. I did not then appreciate as I do now, the loss of a mass of stamps of the near-east of that date." By-the-way, U. S. stamps of the 1870 issue were used from Constantinople, and they have been seen with the Constantinople postmark on them on cover, making interesting examples of foreign cancellations. From reports that have come to us, a spurt in the malign activities of the foreign letter strippers is noticeable latterly, and it is time that some of this gentry here should be scotched.

Said—Ben Hecht, who has set the stands a-going with his first hit, "Erik Dorn," does not have much to say about stamp collecting in his book it is true, but then he does not utterly ignore us. The light-hearted and light-headed Eddie collects pictures and he says: "Pictures mean nothing to me. Never did. Particularly the kind I pick up. But it's a habit that keeps me cheerful. Better than collecting stamps." That's all right, Eddie, but do not go out in a hailstorm without your hat.

Seen—Taking pen in hand, Mr. F. R. Demmerly, Indianapolis, indites: "From a philatelic viewpoint, can you equal the enclosed cover from Stamps, Arkansas? This town must be the home of Ad. Hesive." We like the look of "Stamps" on the postmark, and if there is a collector there, we want him to ask for the next convention of the American Philatelic Society. Speaking of the A.P.S., we may say that Mr. P. M. Wolsieffer has been suggested as a candidate for the presidency next year by his friends. While appreciative of the honor that they have in mind, Mr. Wolsieffer positively will not accept the office for reasons that to himself are good and sufficient. Mr. Wolsieffer, who will continue his activities on behalf of the society, really feels that there are better men than h deserve the office. In this conn we cannot let the opportunity pass that we, too, have been asked to a nomination for president, bu with a due and proper realization high honors to be attained by th cessful candidate, we must fore fling. Messrs. Wolsieffer and think that by announcing their t able decision thus early, they w further and involved explanatio

Fast—We understand that ir way or other the "news" has be lished that it is the intention of t office department to issue a set of in commemoration of the 150th a sary, 1926, of the signing of the tion of independence, and that id designs that will be appropriate vited. It is needless to say that port is a canard, pure and simp that its circulation will add to th of the department, all to no go pose. It is a far cry from 1921 and while the subject of a cel set will in due time be on the ta too early to talk about it official

THE NEW NYASSA SET.

Here Are Three Designs of the Four Employed in Making the 1921 Set.

HENNING & BONHACK.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

1c Blue.

Practically nothing is known about this concern. The factory was located in what is now called Jersey City Heights and is part of Jersey City, N. J., the old name of the locality being Hudson City. The business was probably in existence less than two years and the only reference found in regard to it was in the New York City Directory for 1869-9, wherein David E. Gregory, matches, is listed at 36 Dey Street.

The Boston Book states as follows:—

Die approved, May 18, 1868.
First issued, July, 1868.
Last issued, November 9, 1869.
2,582,500 issued on old paper.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).

The design forms an upright rectangle of the usual 1c size and has the frame identical with the Brown & Durling stamps which were last issued in the summer of 1867. It is quite possible that this stamp was made by altering the Brown & Durling die. The central oval containing Mr. Brown's portrait and the firm name and address adjacent to it, have been removed, leaving an irregular space upon which is engraved in colored capitals with a few curved shade lines "Henning and Bonhack—Manufacturers,—Hudson City, N. J.—D. E. Gregory—Sole Agent,—New York." The result of crowding all this wording into the largest and most prominent part of the stamp is to render the whole design anything but beautiful, and it is difficult to find words capable of adequately expressing how unattractive this stamp is. Perhaps Mr. Henning and Mr. Bonhack were unable to agree as to which of their portraits should adorn their stamp and instead of compromising by putting them both on they compromised by leaving them both off, with most unfortunate results.

This is one of the last match stamps engraved by Butler & Carpenter before the death of John M. Butler, and all of them were printed in Philadelphia. In addition to being homely in the extreme, the stamp justly deserves its notorious reputation for coming in poor condition. The centering usually runs from poor to worse, and the number of really fine copies in existence could probably be counted on the fingers of one hand.

It has never been at all plentiful and catalog quotations on it have never reflected undue enthusiasm. Sterling quoted $8 in 1888, the Scott quotations were $5 in 1886; $7 in 1895 and $10 since 1896, except for the few years from 1900 to 1904, when the figure was $8. It is found only on thin old paper—which accounts for the cracks and tears with which it is frequently afflicted—and comes usually in the dull shade commonly noted on the blue Philadelphia printed private die stamps. For several years the stamp was listed in ultramarine and occasionally a specimen in a pale tint is found. It is barely possible that the stamp exists in a true ultramarine but the writer has not seen any copy which satisfied him. Probably all of the Henning & Bonhack stamps were printed before the ultramarine ink was used, and this ink was in use such a short time on private die stamps there is small chance that it was used on this variety.

Perhaps it is only a coincidence that the firm of Henning & Bonhack appears to have gone out of existence within a short time after the discovery of counterfeit 1c proprietary stamps of the first general issue. So far as the present writer can learn no evidence was ever produced to show that they were aware of the true character of the labels it is stated they used. However, it does seem rather peculiar that they should have bought general issue stamps when they were using private die stamps, and that they appeared to have been the only firm that used the counterfeits.

In 1891 Robert S. Hatcher wrote as follows:—"John Rippon, a steel and copper plate printer was captured October 31st, 1869, at Prince's Bay Richmond County, N. Y., with a plate containing 210 stamp transfers. * * * * All the counterfeit stamps of this issue were printed by the above mentioned John Rippon."

The above quotation agrees closely with the newspaper accounts of the arrest and trial of Pearce, Carpenter, Rippon, and others, which occurred about three months after the Snake Hill gang of counterfeiters was rounded up in July, 1869. The counterfeit plate referred to is apparently the plate from which the counterfeit impressions mentioned were printed.

Early Imperforates

What a "grand and glorious feeling" it is when you pick up the new cat by the scruff of "her" neck and upon examining her insides you discover that the stamps you paid good money for are still good property and have gone up in value and not down. A good way to avoid unpleasant surprises is to buy stamps that have stood the test of time.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

United States.—A business show is being held in New York at which there is being demonstrated several types of "Postage Meters" manufactured by different firms. Messrs. Kelton & Sloane, George E. Hoeft and Max Hirshfield kindly send circulars and sample impressions, being distributed. We described at great length in an earlier chronicle the merits and working of this invention and brought to the attention of our readers the fact that it had been approved by the Post Office Department for use under certain conditions. Such a machine will never take the place of stamps for the smaller user but if it is generally adopted it will cut a mighty hole in the quantity of coil stamps required.

Mr. Sloane informs us that while the price of a machine is $750, they are not sold but are rented for $10 per month. Letters are sealed, stamped and counted at the rate of 250 per minute and consequently is a great labor saver for those sending out large mails. So far we know of the 1c, 2c, 3c, 4c, 5c and 10c turned out by this method but have heard of no other values, although others doubtless exist.

Mr. E. W. Murray sends for inspection the first new private coil stamp that has come to our attention for some time, namely a Chambers 1916 2c unwatermarked, coiled sidewise. It will be recalled that there are two kinds of Chambers perforations, this variety being the 4 x 4 holes with a 2½ mm. spacing between. We have seen no other Chambers since the 1912 series and if any others are known on the unwatermarked paper we would like information regarding same. Your editor is bringing his coil article now appearing in our numbers to a close, insofar as official government issues are concerned and as he will next cover the private coils he would like to receive any new unpublished information available regarding them.

While in Washington recently I learned from Mr. H. F. Colman that he had been informed that a sheet of the 2c Pilgrim stamp existed imperf. He has not seen the sheet and a call at the Stamp Division produced the information that the department had not authorized the delivery of this variety. We simply give this information for what it might be worth for as yet, no one upon whom we may depend has seen the sheet, and its actual existence is doubted.

We have this week quite a few new varieties of the overprinted provisional 2c on 3c envelopes to list for which we wish to thank Messrs. E. C. Brown, W. L. LeCron, H. Clay Reed, Erwin Strasser and George P. Smith. Mr. R. F. Molitor also favors us with a surcharged Cleveland reply card wherein the message card only has received the overprint.

DA.— R. F. Robinson, Winnipeg, bmits what appears to be a red 10c special delivery. There are fferences, the re-engraved showneral cleanup of the background tamp and many of the lines of This is especially noticeable ection with the "10" on either l in the band upon which occurs ls CANADA POSTAGE. The submitted seems to clearly in- re-engraved stamp.

VERDE.—As in the case of Anl as foreshadowed in our June ue, the Postage Dues of this se possession (1904 type) are g with the denominations exn centavos instead of reis. The , 10c, 13c, 20c and 50c are now thus.—Stamp Collecting.

RICA.—This Central American has joined the army of war uing countries. During the reap" with the neighbouring Re- Panama, the town and bay of e, on the North Caribbean side sthmus, was occupied by the cans. True to their reputation essiveness, the invaders promptl a provisional postage stamp ed ALMIRANTE—OCCUP—COSTARRIC NSE. to mark their temporary sway.

The stamp so "honoured" was the 5 centimos blue of Panama.—Stamp Collecting.

ITALY.—The Milan correspondent of The Times reports:—

"The special stamps commemorating the centenary of Dante will be issued in a few days by the Ministry of Posts and Telegraphs. They will be sold and used as State stamps.

Enlarged illustrations and some particulars of these stamps appear in "Il Giornale d'Italia" for September 15th, which constituted a special Dante number.

The 15 cent. stamp bears an eagle which carries the motto Che sovra gli altri com' aquila vola. The 25 cent. stamp represents Italy enthroned, surrounded by laurels, and holding up the Divina Commedia, with the motto Onorate l'altissimo poeta. The 40 cent. stamp bears the picture of Dante himself, seated on a fourteenth century chair, in the act of showing his volume. The motto is Mostrò ciò che poeta la lingua nostra.

The first of these mottoes (as explained in The Times for September 20th) is Dante's description of ancient poetry, typified by Homer, Horace, Ovid, and Lucan in Inferno IV, 96. The second is the ancient poet's greeting to Virgil, line 80 of the same canto. The third is from Sordello's greeting to Virgil, Purgatory VII, 17.

A 15 centesimi red-lilac stamp has been issued for the Pneumatic Service; it is in the type and format of the 10c. brown of 1913.

We are informed that, during a temporary deficiency of the 5c value, the equivalent denomination of the Postage Due series was recently allowed to do duty as a regular adhesive at the office of Klobenstein, in the Trentino.— Stamp Collecting.

KENYA COLONY.—The following extracts from a correspondent in this Colony will be read with interest. "I have not been able to procure any of the 75c stamps on emerald surfaced paper. There are none in the local post offices and I have only one used specimen, I have not been able to procure an unused one for my own collection. The new currency notes, 5 and 10 florins and £1 have been issued and rupees are no longer legal tender. The new stamps were laid on the table of the Legislative Council last year and approved by members, the only remarks made, however, were that 'the stamps were of pleasing design.' I have not been able to ascertain anything further about them."—Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

LIECHTENSTEIN.—Two new values have appeared in this Gilbertian State, which depends on stamp dealers for a large part of its revenue:—20 rappen purple and black (Chapel of St. Mamertus) and 30 rappen blue-green and black (Bendern).—Stamp Collecting.

NETHERLANDS.—Mr. J. L. Riedel has submitted to us for chronicle a copy of a 20c stamp of a type similar to the A10 noted in Scott's catalog, but the size of type in the centre is somewhat of a different style and the word below is "Cent" and does not have the figure of value. The color is light blue.

DICTIONARY ADDENDA.

By WILLARD O. WYLIE.

ARBE.—This surcharge on the "Regency" stamps of Fiume was to indicate their use in the island of Arbe, in the gulf of Quarnero, which was occupied by the Legionaries of D'Annunzio.

ALZAMIENTO DE ENRIQUILLO.—This inscription is found on the 2c value of a set of stamps issued in 1899 by the Dominican Republic to procure funds for a mausoleum for the remains of Columbus. It means "Rebellion of Enriquillo".

B. C.—These letters on stamps of the Indian native state of Charkhari are an abbreviation of "Bundelkhand Central", a great region of central India made of some thirty of the native states and one of which is Charkhari.

B. L. P. (Buste Lettere Postali).—These letters on stamps of Italy stand for "Postal Letter Envelopes." The stamps are supplied at a discount from face value to charitable organizations that are aiding the war wounded, and are used exclusively on special envelopes furnished by these organizations and containing advertising matter.

BOURCHIER ISSUE.—A set of stamps issued by Bulgaria in 1921 was called the Bourchier commemorative issue. It honored the memory of James David Bourchier who had been a Balkan correspondent of the London Times for many years and died in 1920. His service during the world war caused him to be greatly loved by the Bulgarian people. Two portrait designs of Mr. Bourchier are shown on the stamps. Another stamp shows the Rilo Monastery where he was buried.

CAMINHO DE FERRO.—This inscription is found on the 15c, 1918, of the Mozambique Company, the design of which is a stationary railroad train. The words mean simply "railroad", in Portuguese.

CASA DA MOEDA.—A watermark in the paper used for Brazil stamps since 1919. It is Portuguese for the "Mint", where the stamps are manufactured.

CENTENARIO DANTES A. D. MCMXXI.—September 15, 1921, Italy issued a set of three stamps to commemorate the sixth centenary of the death of Italy's greatest poet, Dante Alighieri. The values are 15, 25 and 40c and they bear the above inscription.

STERN STAMP CO., 308 LEFLANG BUILDING, OMAHA, NEBR.

gain I had to listen to the Evils owing Away Money. Would it ell to stop squandering my hard- cash on mere scraps of paper, s of paper, indeed! Was not ip one of the great rarities? And is a gem procured in Alaska. Not an ordinary one-cent stamp as the family would have it, but one which had been sent all the way from Washington by rail, steamer, and pack, to the gold-fields, there to lie until I should stumble across it. Useless to explain that it was a variety unknown until I found this specimen.

And this little engraving, worth many times its weight in gold, was found in a country post-office, where the postmaster refused to show me his stock one Saturday afternoon because he kept his stock upstairs in the safe, "and", he explained, "some of the women are up there taking a bath." No romance in stamps? Why, here was romance to saturation!

Useless to try to explain why sane men with national-bank letter-heads and big-corporation stationery forgot their stenographers and scrawled me letters telling me of their finds. No, it was a childish pastime. Foolish, frivolous, and fruitless.

One fine day a strange chap walked into my office and asked whether I would sell my collection. I would. I would convince that family of mine there was something in that album.

Things moved rapidly. I took the stranger home, showed him the treasures, took his check, and sent him down the road with my Alaska find, my bathroom stamps—my hobby. (There is no climax to this tale—the check was O.K. Philatelists habitually trust one another.)

Now, I would show in one-syllable words what I had parted with. With the proceeds I bought a car, and every time the family admired the flitting scenery I reminded them that they rode on postage-stamps.

But my victory fell flat. I had lost my hobby. No longer could I turn to my album for solace after an off day at the office. No pages to turn long winter evenings into hours of pleasure. I felt lost.

Once a collector, always a collector. I became interested in old maps. The romance of old charts with their sea serpents, mermaids, and Terra Incognita fascinated me. I began gathering old books of travel, with their quaint cartographical insets; old folio atlases, with their handpainted pages. The void would be filled! I would make a collection that would be a pleasure and a joy forever.

"Dear, your balance is running low."

Our correspondent is conservative. Another stamp-collector of our acquaintance sometimes receives from his banker a letter that reads, in substance, "Dear, your balance is overdrawn."

THE C. E. HUSSMAN STAMP CO., 2600a Olive St., St. Louis, M

THE NEW ISSUE OF LUXEMBOURG.

By C. S. Thompson.

At last the Charlotte issue has been placed on sale, the date of issue according to official advices, being Sept. 20. The sheets contain 25 stamps, in some cases, in others 100. The details are as follows:

Value.	Color.	No. in Sheet.	Plate No.
2c	light sepia	100	1
3c	dark olive	25	1, 2
6c	purple	25	1, 2
10c	yellow-green	100	3
15c	brown-olive	100
25c	Russian green	100
30c	carmine	100	1
40c	Mars' orange	100

When the plate number is not indicated, I have received sheets from which it has been removed.

The pictorial franc values are printed in sheets of 50, apparently, but all my sheets are fragmentary, and only one bears a plate number. This is the 2-franc, "Usine Terre Rouge," which bears the number 3. In addition, the sheets generally have the perforated initials "C C" in the margin, and some have a keystone-shaped punch. All bear consecutive numbers, most of mine being between 3 and 32, but usually from 3 to 7.

The "Timbres du Souvenir" come in sheets of 50, similarly numbered and controlled. They are good for postage throughout the postal union.

Of all current issues this Charlotte set of Luxembourg is the most strikingly handsome. Simplicity of design, beautiful workmanship, faultless execution, and a handsome subject, have been combined to produce a set of stamps which have few equals and no superiors.

ADDENDUM TO JOSEPH WARD'S "TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR MAIL."

In the evening papers of July 12th there appeared the following Associated Press dispatch:

"London, July 12—Harry G. Hawker, the famous aviator, was killed on the Hendon Flying Field today. His machine burst into flames as it alighted on the field."

The dispatch was, of course, accompanied by a sketch of the daring trans-Atlantic flight of 1919.

From the columns of the Manchester Guardian (Manchester, England,) issue of July 13th, we learn that his machine came down on the Hale Farm, Edgware, and his body was found 200 yards from the spot where the plane crashed. Among the first to reach the burning plane, were members of the Hendon Fire Brigade, led by F. W. Adams, chief officer, who noticed the burning plane before it fell, but could not say whether Hawker jumped or fell from the burning Nieuport.

The Guardian observes:

"Hawker, like too many of the world's greatest airmen, has been killed while engaged simply in his normal pursuit of flying. No 'stunt' was attempted, no record-breaking aimed at when the end came. Doubtless the fact that his machine burst into flames while in air was in part due to the extreme heat of the day.

"The loss of him will set many thinking of the stimulus to hopes of quick progress in air traffic that his indomitable spirit gave when two years ago he tried in vain the Atlantic flight."

VOL XIII The Filatelic Filibuster No. 24

"Our Motto, "Full-fashioned, Filtered, Farraginous Filately."

Iditorial Cubicle.

Since the appearance of our last number, some unkind person has addressed a scurrilous communication to this office, objecting to the name "Filatelic Filibuster." He suggests that we call our indispensable publication the "Collectors' Custodian." How such a person can expect to rate high in our estimation we cannot understand, but if it relieved his feelings, we are glad he got it off his chest.

Mr. Doom, whose auction cataloupe we reviewed in our last edition, has written this office, stating that he will do better in the near future. This is an extremely ambiguous statement. If the typography and spelling are better, we have lost our job; if he betters the variations in the last specimen, we are secure for the winter. We hope he does better, anyway.

Mr. B. S. Whoosis, the popular auctioneer of Chicago, has sent us a copy of his latest hymn. We notice that a certain lot is described as "Liberally cancelled." This is not the sort of diction to use in connection with such a specimen, original face value two shillings. He should have said "Munificently obliterated" or Magnificently marred," or "Elegantly eradicated." Pulchreous orthography is always to be desired, especially in auction catalogs.

We notice also that a certain stamp is described as having an "immaterial thin spot." On consulting our Undersoquelbridge Dictionary, we discover that "immaterial" means "not consisting of matter," consequently non-existent. Why the redundancy, B. S.?

Our Recent Exploring Trip.

A word of explanation is perhaps due our readers regarding our last number. This was written after we had been on an archaeological-exploration expedition into the Auction Cat country.

As all filatelists who have visited this country know, the auction cat is the most dangerous of all the large felines, Felis leo and Felis tigris not excepted. The auction cat does not belong to the same genus as the other members of the group, its considerable structural differences having earned generic recognition. It is now classified as Feclus fercash. After an encounter with one of these cats, the filatelist is invariably injured, generally on the hip.

Another insulting innuendo insinuates that our claim to the least longest wire is false, and that our actual appelation should be longest least liar. The longest we venture to keep it up is about two colyumes, which is about the least we can do. As for the other part of it, if we told the truth about some of the recent issues of stamps they'd say we were that, anyway, so why argue about a lower-case "l", anyway?

The last of the advance sheets of the new scootalog has arrived, and we are moved to lachrymosity by some of the contents of this populous piece of philatelic ponderosity. That's right, brothers. It makes us ponder a lot, believe us. We notice the watermark illustrations in the back of the book, as usual, where they don't do any good, instead of being placed with the rest of the cuts where the stamps are listed. We also notice that the illustrations of Hawaii No. 1 and Crete No. 1 are made from counterfeits, as usual. What's the difference when no one ever sees the real articles?

Sets - Short and Complete - 19th & 20th - Set

We appreciate the fact that most collectors desire buying their stamps in sets as complete as they can afford. It is naturally the better way with so many new i appearing, and represents without doubt a considerably smaller outlay. In most cases, we are ready to help the man who needs one or two stamps to fill in, but this is especially devoted to the collector desiring to avoid empty spaces.

We present what we believe to be one of the most representative lots ever offered in old and new sets. Three-quarters of this list are stock items, but the balanc only as they have accumulated, so we bespeak an early order. Your want list is welcome for sets in whole or in part not mentioned here.

SAU STAMP CO.
Nassau St. New York N.Y.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

JAMAICAN PICTORIALS, 1921.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

3s Statue of Sir Charles Metcalfe.—The impending issue of a 3s stamp, a value new to Jamaica's postage stamp series, was announced in the Jamaica Gazette of December 9, 1920, in the following terms:—

"STAMP OFFICE, KINGSTON,
6th December, 1920.

The following is a description of a three shilling stamp to be used for Postage and Revenue purposes.

This stamp will be put into circulation on Friday, 10th December, 1920.

The design of the stamp is represented by a statue of Sir Charles Metcalfe, a Governor of Jamaica.

The denomination "3s" is shown on labels at the top and at each corner at the bottom.

At the top of the design, above the denomination are the words:—

Postage Revenue
JAMAICA

JAMAICA being printed between the denomination.

At the bottom of the design, and between the denomination are the words and figures:—

Sir Charles Metcalfe,
Governor of Jamaica,
1839-1842.

To the left of the design are two palms, as also at the right.

The border of the stamp is orange and the center purple.

Sgd. C. C. MANTON,
Deputy Stamp Commissioner."

The stamp is printed from copper engraved plates, in orange and purple blue, on white paper watermarked multiple Crown and C A in the 1904 design. The watermark is in upright position, and the perforation is by means of comb gauging 14. The design, which is an upright rectangle in shape, measures 25x30 mm. Shields in all four corners contain the value, which is expressed as "3s", in color, on a plain ground. "Postage—Revenue" and "Sir Charles Metcalfe—Governor of Jamaica—1839-1842" appear at the top and bottom, respectively, of the design, in small uncolored caps. "JAMAICA", in large caps, at the top, conforms to the curved opening of the vignette—a statue of Sir Charles Metcalfe. A series of horizontal lines (in the color of the frame), extends from the side of the frame, towards the center, forming a background for the statue. Two palms on either side of the vignette complete the frame design.

The stamps are printed in sheets of 30 stamps (6 horizontal by 5 vertical), and a double marginal line, and the usual cross marks for aid in proper centering of the two impressions, are the only marginal markings.

Near the water side, in Kingston, is the statue which is represented on this 3s stamp. Sir Charles Metcalfe arrived in Jamaica in September, 1839, and so successful was he in reconciling the strained relations between the planters and the then recently emancipated slaves, that when he left, on May 21st, 1842, the House of Assembly voted £3,000 for the erection of a statue in his memory. It was first erected at Spanish Town; subsequently it was placed at the top of King Street in Kingston, but was removed to its present site in 1898, to make room for a statue of Queen Victoria. It now stands on a pedestal, which for some years supported Bacon's statue of Rodney, now at Spanish Town. Sir Charles Metcalfe, who was one of Jamaica's most popular Governors, is represented bareheaded, and wearing the insignia of the Bath. On the original pedestal is the following inscription:—

is erected in honor of The Rt. Hon. Sir Charles Theophilus
Metcalfe, Bart. K. C. B.
now Baron Metcalfe
By the Grateful Inhabitants of Jamaica in commemoration of the benefits derived from his wise, just and beneficial administration of the Government of the Island.
A. D. 1845.

On the lower pedestal, erected to receive Rodney's statue, is an earthenware tablet, which was put up by the Institute of Jamaica in 1892, to record the following:—

Some Early French Stamps, Used

H. F. COLMAN

SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING. WASHINGTON, D. C.

12 feet west of the centre of this pedestal, Commander Green, U. S. N., in 1875, erected the Longitude station of Kingston, and found it to be 5h., 7m., 10.65s. (76° 47' 39.8") west of Greenwich.

The stamp as issued December 10, 1920, had a very short life, for on September 1st, 1921 (or perhaps a day or two earlier), the 3s appeared on multiple watermarked paper of the script type. Supplies of this stamp, with the ½d, 2d, 2½d, 3d, 4d, 1s, 2s, and 10s on the new script watermarked paper, were dispatched by the Crown Agents previous to June 30th but are withheld from issue pending exhaustion of earlier consignments on the 1904 type watermarked paper.

1½d Contingent Embarking.—This stamp which was issued July 3, 1919, on the 1904 type of multiple watermarked paper, was printed from five plates, one being unnumbered, and 1, 2, 3 and 4. On February 10th, 1921 (or earlier), it appeared on paper with the new script type of watermark from plates 1, 2, 3 and 4. Recently, additional plates have been made for this value, numbered from 5 to 12, inclusive, and supplies from all plates are now in the island, though not all have yet been issued. Sheets bearing plate numbers 9 and 11 have been seen —on these the plate number is in the lower margin, under the 3rd stamp of the 8th horizontal row. On plates 1, 2 and 3, the number is in the lower right corner of the sheet, inside the marginal lines, while on plate 4, it is outside the marginal lines, in the left margin, opposite the first stamp of the 4th horizontal row.

1d. Arawak Making Cassava.—Pending exhaustion of the large supplies of the 1d George stamp, this value in the new series was withheld from issue for almost a year. Specimen copies were sent out from Berne early in 1921, but not until October 3rd, 1921, was it issued at Kingston.

Like the ½d, it is printed from typographic plates, in two colors—orange and dark red—on white paper with the 1904 type of multiple watermark, positioned sideways, with top of Crown to the left. The perforation is by comb gauging 14. The border plate, which is printed in orange, is numbered 1, and this control appears in the margin, together with the double marginal line—the outer one being in the color of the vignette, and the inner in the color of the frame.

The design is treated in an upright rectangle, measuring 22x28½ mm. In the upper corners are shields with the value "1d", in colored figures, with "Jamaica" between, in colorless letters. At the sides and at the foot are pictured specimens of Arawak handiwork, etc. The vignette is lettered (in the color of the frame) "Arawak Making Cassava"—the native being shown at work in his hut. What is presumably an error is the absence of the lettering "Postage & Revenue", which appears on all other values of the series. It was reported a day or two following the issue of the stamp, that the Government was considering withdrawing it from sale, but there was no other 1d stamp to use while a corrected printing was being made. In all probability, the next printing will be from a corrected plate.

When the West Indies were first discovered, the Greater Antilles were inhabited by the Arawaks, a gentle and timid race of Indians. Conservative historians estimate their numbers at 3 million (Las Casas gives it as 6 million), and these in the 15 years following the discovery of the islands, the Spaniards, by their brutal treatment in forcing them to work on plantations and in the mines of Cuba and Hispaniola, reduced to 60,000. The warlike Caribs of the Lesser Antilles were not so easily subdued, and for years they gave trouble by repeated uprisings, which were only suppressed at the cost of many lives and much money. In British Guiana there are still many aboriginal Indians, among them being Arawaks.

6d. Abolition of Slavery.—The consignment of 6d sent out to the Colony some months ago has been destroyed by burning. The official explanation is the "execrable coloring", but since the Crown Agents have been instructed to have another design prepared for this value, the real reason cannot be other than the unfortunate choice of subject—that of "Abolition of Slavery", which would not appeal to the majority population of Jamaica.

As the stock of 6d George stamps had exhausted, and some delay would be occasioned by the manufacture of new plates embodying a new subject, a further printing equal to 18 months' needs, was requisitioned in the King George design. For this printing, the new script type watermarked paper was used, and issue was made at Kingston, on October 21st, 1921. As before, it comes in sheets of 120 stamps, 2 panes of 60 each, side by side, and the watermark is upright in position.

2½d. Return of a Contingent.—The 2½d has been recently "printed from a new plate in which the Union Jack has been properly engraved", according to the Crown Agents' advice. The stamp has not yet been issued in the Colony, pending exhausting of the supplies on the old type of watermarked paper, but London dealers have been able to secure their requirements direct from the Crown Agents. The new printing is on the script type watermarked paper, and while the most noticeable error in the Union Jack has been corrected, the lower part of the flag has not been altered. Whether the authorities in Jamaica will insist upon a further re-engraving of the design, remains to be seen.

In the first printing of the 2½d, the 11th and 21st stamps on some sheets show portions doubly printed—on stamp 11, "Postage", "Revenue" and "Return of a Contingent, 1919", are duplicated, while on stamp 21, the denomination "2½d" in the upper corners, is doubly printed.

Colonial Stamps on Sale in London.—The practice of supplying British Colonial stamps to dealers in England, by the Crown Agents, at face value, has been

HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW ABOUT PRECANCELS?

Perhaps you are one of those who, when they hear precancels mentioned, arch their eyebrows deprecatingly and say, "Oh, precancels, I understand, of course, but old top, what could anyone want with the silly things? What good are they? Well, isn't that the argument most of your friends give you when you tell them you are a collector of postage stamps? You are merely used to thinking of precancels with a sort of tolerant amusement because you do not, to put it bluntly, know any better. Investigate the precancel branch of philately. We will help you. We are still sending a copy of the Precancel Gazette for the asking. How about a selection on approval?

LIBIA AND ITS NEW SET.

By Frank L. Coes.

There has in the past been printed in stamp papers, more or less caustic criticism of the pros and cons of commemorative issue collecting. In fact some have counseled the total ignoring of anything that even has the odor of such an issue.

We have now for these gentlemen one of the neatest evasions, or one of the cleverest attempts at eye-closing ever printed. The last issue of Libia: twelve values, in four designs, and an odd express delivery. Wonderfully executed, tastefully colored, perfectly printed, and a credit to everyone connected with their issue from the P. M. G. of Italy to the printers devil. But —if we can prove it a commemorative issue a lot of the acid stomached fraternity will applaud (?) and they won't buy the set so the price will drop on account of no demand.

The London Graphic of October 8, 1921, has a page article on the excavations by Italy at Leptis Magna, one of the three famous Roman towns of Tripoliania (note the word. No English space writer would have written Libia, because that is too obviously the Italian title of the territory.)

Leptis Magna has been dug out enough for them to discover a statue (or copy of the original) of Diana of Ephesus. Shown in detail on the 10, 15, 25 cent this lady appears with a star background as halo.

Because of Diana's discovery and the evident connection, this places Leptis Magna as a sharer in the issue. The Graphic article baldly states that the occupied territory is held with difficulty and is of small area, but includes two other sites, the others being Oea (Tripoli city) and Sabrata.

The low values (3) seem to have an Italian Legionaire sapper on them. This opinion we change when we see the "fasces" this time of spears and the Wolf head headdress. This nervously organized profile must be intended for a Roman soldier.

The 30c, 50c and 55c have the bow (or stern ?) of a Roman Trireme or galley. The Graphic article minutely illustrates the wharves with "pierced" stones for tying up galleys and ships. Evidently the P. O. put on all they knew of Leptis Magna.

History tells us that Lucius Septimus Severus, emperor of Rome 193-211 A. D. was born in or near Leptis Magna in 146 A. D. This gentleman died in (York) Eboracum in Britain in 211 having been there about three years. He built the wall of Severus between the Tyne and Solway, on the line of Hadrians forts (119-131 A. D.) to hold the Picts and Scots back from Roman Britain.

These inter-related facts cannot be accidental. The issue must be Commemorative.

The Express stamp bears a female head, with acorns and so forth as a tiara. Diana again, because her necklace was acorns and the Zodiac sign of the crab (indicating the overflowing of the Nile) is in evidence.

How clever of the G. P. O. of Italy. A new set. Wonderful in finish, unusual in design and wholly commemorative in the common values (the Lire values are a conundrum) is issued as a plain postage stamp. No one is notified to the contrary. Everyone is satisfied. It almost verges on a joke. One of our local anti-Commemorative boys has a set of which he is justly proud. When he reads this will he keep it or discard it? Three to one he keeps it. Whaddya say?

GUATEMALA'S NEW PICTURE STAMP.

By C. S. T.

Three new bi-colors of the usual form, shape, and elegant appearance, were recently issued. These are $1.50 blue and orange, $5 brown and yellow-green, and $15 black and red-orange.

The $1.50 is especially interesting, as it shows a picture of the leaning obelisk or monolith of Quirigua. Quirigua is a dead city in the Guatemalan jungles, deserted for many hundred years. When the conquistadores came to America it was as silent as now, and the natives had no knowledge of its former inhabitants, Mayas of fifteen hundred years agone. Quirigua is considered one of the three finest ruins in existence by American archæologists, who cleared away the jungle from its twenty acres of ceremonial structures, a few years ago.

Of the stelæ or obelisks there are thirteen, twelve of which are upright, but the thirteenth, supposed to weigh about eighty tons, leans at an angle of about 30° from the perpendicular. These stelæ are as high as twenty-six feet, and are elaborately carved with representations of priests and priestesses, with symbolic devices, and hieroglyphics. The monuments were erected at regular intervals. as deciphered dates show. These date glyphs are the only characters which have as yet yielded their secrets to the translator, but it is hoped that it will be possible to read others in the near future. Members of the Masonic, fraternity are always especially interested in these sculptures, as they show signs of relationship to some of the mysteries of that Order.

The $5 stamp depicts the Granados Monument. Granados became President of Guatemala in 1871, after the defeat and flight of the tyrant Cerna, thus Granados was really the first President of the Republic, previous rulers having been dictators. Granados was succeeded by Barrios, his friend and intimate.

The $15 stamp shows the Penitentiary Bridge, a large stone structure with the wide, flat arches apparently so much in favor in Hispano-American countries, the most conspicuous example of which is the "Arco de Santo Domingo" in the old cathedral of Panama Antigua, shown on the 20c stamp of Panama, 1915.

A WORLD WAR VETERAN.

To the Editor:—

I believe the last issue of your interesting paper I saw was in the spring of 1918, just before I left for Overseas Service. Now I am back again in God's Country, having served Uncle Sam, as well as the Foreign Legion, and while not in position at present to jump back into philately as strong as before, I wish you would send me a recent copy of Mekeel's Weekly Stamp News. This will give me the desired information for the present, also will permit me to get a line on your best subscription offer. During my absence some of the dealers may have sent me approvals, which I had given orders to return, but in order to be sure that no one has anything marked up against me, please make mention in your personal column about my return.

I found, when we first arrived in Germany in November, 1918, that collections could be bought cheaply, but soon the prices were boosted and by Christmas of that year they had advanced nearly double. I picked up one of 9,000 varieties, but it was lost with some of my baggage on the way back to Paris in February, 1919. I found the Germans very ardent collectors, even during the war you would run across some prisoners, who in their plundering of French homes, would have stamps of the rarer kinds in their pockets. Many fine collections of stamps changed hands during the invasion and later forwarded into Germany for sale.

The sale of stamps in France surprised me, nearly every little bazaar, book store and school supplies store has approvals on display, in some cases a window full. Nearly every school boy and girl at some time collected stamps, not only as a hobby, but for profit.

Then again every other mail carrier has this hobby also, even sometimes waiting for the concierge to ask the receiver of the letter for the stamp.

On the outskirts or rather just beyond the walls of Paris, near the Porte of Montmartre, every Sunday and Monday a large public sale takes place. It is out on the open ground, with the sky for a roof. You can find any object you desire here and while a price is given you by the seller, it is your privilege to pay what you see fit and most always you get the article. Here also you can find approvals and collections. I was very much surprised at this at first, as the sellers were well posted on the stamps, but later found out that they were connected with the large dealers. Of course you also found the school boy dealer, who would sell or exchange and also the second-hand book lovers, who in their purchases sometimes ran onto a collection and would ask prices all out of reason. It was with these that I had my fun. Starting at a price of 5,000 francs, sometimes you would be able to buy for 500 francs.

Seems to me the Old World is more imbibed with the philatelic bug than we are. In England, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland I found plenty of collectors and while not in position to buy stamps of the rarer kinds, they all felt proud to show their collections. We Americans are the most particular as to the condition, center and cancellation of stamps than all others. Of course we do not fuss around over a purchase as much as they do, for the reason we have the habit of always finding everything natural and nothing unusual.

I also did a little collecting that does not come under the head of philately. I brought back three little war orphans with me, a boy and two girls, aged 9, 7 and 2 years, respectively. The boy already has taken to the hobby of his American Daddy and I hope he will have the same success and pleasure I found and will continue to find in this work.

Trusting that I have given a little view of philately as I found it during my three-year stay over there and also thanking you in advance for the copy of the News, I remain,

Andrew J. Gering,

MORE ALBANIAN DUBIOSITIES.

By C. S. T.

The writer just received two complete sets of stamps, and two more of postage dues, alleged to be Albanian issues, but first-hand information from that region has not revealed any such emission, and as these labels have been produced by surcharging a fake Epirote issue, it is evident that they are of the same odoriferous strain.

It is now about two years since this suppositious issue of Epirus was pl the market, and this has given suffi interval for a new attempt to be mac the collector's purse! These Ep crudities are third-rate lithographs turing Nike, the Goddess of Vic HIIEIPOS at top, and value, as AEIITA 25", at foot, perf. 12 hor tally, and pin perf. about 12 vertically spite of the fact that the series tains a 1 lep. value, the 50 l. has surcharged 1 lepton and a heavy bar the former value.

The whole lot has been converte to Albanians by the simple expedie overprinting a double-headed Alba eagle, "SHQIPENIA" at top, and value in "qint" or "francs" at foot, l on all except the 2fr, which has a eagle, and the 5fr, whose overpri blue. The postage dues of this s have the eagle in red with a large "T" a l'estomac, all surcharged on 5d printed in olive.

The second series has the valu centimes and francs, but the 2fr an are in changed colors, and the dues on the 2d, printed in grey.

W. T. WILSON begs to announce the important purchase of the : :
SUPERB GENERAL COLLECTION
(IN 20 VOLUMES)
Formed by the late C. J. TYAS, Esq., F.R.P.S.L., of Scarborough

THE collection contains all the countries of the world and it includes most of the Standard Rarities of the British Empire, Europe and Foreign Countries. Generally speaking, it stops at 1900, but in the case of the sound old stamp issuing countries of Europe, it has been continued up to date. The late owner was upwards of 30 years forming the collection and it was constantly being improved, so that the whole forms a general collection of the World's Postage Stamps, such as there are probably but few in the United Kingdom to-day.

The collection is being priced up separately and I shall be glad to hear from collectors and specialists wishing to have an early look at individual countries.

No serious advanced collector should fail to inspect this superb lot of stamps.

Want lists will have careful personal attention.

The collection was exhibited in the London Philatelic Exhibition of 1906, and it obtained a bronze medal, in a class in which there was exceptionally keen competition.

An Illustrated Catalogue of the Collection, with 14 pages of photographic plates of the rare stamps and prices of same, is now ready. Price 35 cents post free, which amount will be credited on the first purchase.

STATISTICAL FACTS ABOUT LATVIA.

By GEO. H. JAGER.

Different special magazines are treating our country haughtily. They sneer at the great number of emissions and imagine that those issues are only manufactured for earning money from the collectors. One of these U. S. skeptics asked me to give him some information about the area of Latvia and the number of the inhabitants. As I am not in a position to give in "The Correspondence" a satisfactory answer to all these questions, I give here some figures.

Latvia has an area of more than 64,000 sq. kilom., whilst Belguim has only 29,455 sq. kilom.; Holland, 34,185; Denmark, 38,969; Switzerland, 41,298; Serbia, 48,303, and only Greece, having an area of 75,870 sq. kilom., has nearly the same area. The stamp country Bavaria surpasses but little Latvia, "which is so small". My American friend believes that Latvia is as small as Luxemburg or Alsace-Lorraine (14,522).

Now something about the population: Latvia has 2,552,000 inhabitants, therefore more than Norway (2,357,790). Latvia has been admitted into the League of Nations, therefore nobody will have the possibility of confounding Latvia with Liechtenstein or San Marino. Our annual budget surpasses three millions, and compared with this financial state, the receipts got by the sale of postage stamps, are very small indeed. But wise people believe that Latvia lives from the emission of stamps. I got the official figures of the budget year 1920-21 from the General Post Administration. According to these figures, the amount of the receipts of the Post is Rbl. 22,502,606, and the receipts are gotten by the sale of postage stamps.

According to the opinion of wise people we do not need any post communication, as we do not write letters, and the stamps are only manufactured for foreign dealers and collectors, and especially for Berlin, Leipzig, etc. According to these official figures, the Latvian Post has 148 general post offices, 158 branches, total 305; with 1,773 officials. 14,650,323 inland mails have been forwarded during the year 1920-21 and 5,883,200 foreign mails, therefore together far more than 20 million.

I hope that these figures will sufficiently inform the philatelistic scribblers about our country. I wonder what they will say, after getting these figures?

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Birmingham, Ala., has been using a special postmark cancellation. It consists of the following in four lines:—"Semi Centennial—Exposition—Birmingham—October 24-29, 1921."

—An interesting postal cancellation comes to us from Omaha, Nebr. It reads in four lines as follows:—"Come to the—International Aero—Congress Omaha, Nebr.—November 3 to 5, 1921". This will be a "rare" postmark, due to its short life.

—Frank H. Trafton, who has been using Adlets for several months, wishes us to state that all mail matter sent him (whether it be printed matter or not) be sent sealed so that it may be safely forwarded. Mr. Trafton is constantly on the road and printed matter sent as third class is something more than a mere thorn in the flesh to him.

—The boys of the Forest Park District, Springfield, Mass., have organized a stamp club to be known as the Springfield Junior Philatelic Society and the Secretary, Maxham Metcalf, 14 Continental St., would like to receive correspondence from other junior stamp clubs.

—The Newark Star Eagle has a stamp department that is given prominent space. Joseph Wehrle sending in the clipping writes us that it should be easy for stamp collectors in different localities to secure the insertion of stamp matter in local papers. We think so too.

—In a recent number of the Mentor, a magazine devoted to art, literature, science and history, there appeared an interesting article on some stamp rarities. It is written by Richard Dean and nicely illustrated. Clipping from the Caswin Stamp Co.

—At last we have a philatelic film. Stamp Collecting is authority for the statement that philately is to be advertised in the cinema houses of Great Britain by means of a "stirring story" entitled "David and Johnathan". It deals with the adventures of two young men "whose lifelong friendship was signed and sealed over a stamp album". Stamp Collecting then gives a list of some seventy picture houses where the film will be shown during October, November and December.

—"We have received from a correspondent a supply of Nepal, 1887-99 issue, ½, 1, 2 and 4 annas. On examination we came to the opinion that they were not originals, and on showing them to Mr. B. Gordon Jones he concurred in this opinion. They are cleverly done, but are printed from a single die, whereas in the originals each stamp in the sheet varies slightly. They are all on thin native wove paper, and the ½ and 4 anna are slightly different in size to the originals."—BRIGHT & SON.

EUROPE--WHAT DO YOU NEED

Below we offer you a partial list of European stamps and if you do not see what you want, send us a list of wants. We have practically everything except the rarities, and even some of those. Now that the new 1922 catalog is out, you can see what you need and have something to go by...Cat. prices are in many cases awa but we can supply the majority at half list, less in some cases. Remember, we hold a stock of all stamps of the world, at least three-quarters complete at all times, can do things to the average want list. Few dealers desire want lists these days, there being too many stamps, but we would like to see yours.

APPROVA l are also our specialty, "Jumbo" books, mounted collections, books by countries, etc., etc., selections for all classes and kinds of collectors. believe we have the best series of approvals for the average collector to be found anywhere. IMPORTANT We have listed only such items as we think we have enough of to meet ordinary demands, but items will go faster than expected someti Would appreciate a small supplementary order to be usedonly in case a first choice item is sold out. OUR BOOK REVIEW.

By C. A. Howes.

mark—Another of those "hand-" which have become so popular the past decade is just off the and ready for the Mekeel's clientele. The subject of er Thirty-seven" is Denmark, has been written up in B. W. H. s usual thorough style and, having ublished in the more or less tran- columns of the weekly paper, is printed in more permanent, handy asily referred to form. The 32 of text contain the gist of the lic knowledge at present obtainable ning the interesting issues of this y little kingdom—of that the name . Poole leaves us in no doubt. tions of stamps, watermarks, etc., entifully supplied. Mr. Wylie's "dressing up" these booklets as ppear, is again shown in the of brown art paper bearing an d reproduction in color of the 5 stamp, which shows the Central Office in Copenhagen, the single "Denmark" being added above in ettering and making a simple, yet cover. A frontispiece with views of the waterfront and the City f Copenhagen adds to the at- ness inside, and a tourist's ap- on of the country on the title ith a particular apotheosis of the f Fredericia, partly expressed in t poetry, shows that Mr. Wylie nsiderably more than a mere ic interest in Denmark.

SCHMITT & SCHMITTDIEL.

By Christopher West.

1c Vermilion.

The firm of Schmitt and Schmittdiel was composed of Henry Schmitt and Andrew Henry Schmittdiel. Their factory is listed in the Detroit Directory for 1877, at the corner of 8th and Leverette Streets. Later Directories do not mention this firm until 1881, when their business is given as brick manufacturers. They appear to have gone out of the match business sometime between these two dates, and it is probable that the later printings of their 1c stamp were used by the Diamond Match Company.

Mekeel's Weekly Stamp News for July 1, 1916, contained a notice from a Detroit correspondent regarding the death of A. Henry Schmittdiel, "who once owned the Michigan Match Company, later sold to the Diamond Match Company".

The 1c stamp used by this firm is an upright rectangle of the standard 1c size, bearing in the center an oval containing a three-quarter portrait of Mr. Schmitt. A double curved label across the top is inscribed "Schmitt &—Schmittdiel" in two lines and at the bottom we find "Detroit, Mich.—U. S. Inter. Rev." also in two lines; marginal labels at the sides read "Friction" at the left and "Matches" at the right and between these labels and the portrait oval at either side is a curved colorless scroll, that at the left reading "One" and at the right reading "Cent". The latter two words are in colored capitals, while all the other inscriptions, including the numeral 1 in an irregular panel in each upper corner, are in colorless characters. The irregular spaces remaining between these parts of the design are occupied with shaded figures.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, November 23, 1871.
First issued, August, 1872.
Last issued, February 14, 1881.
14,714,275 issued on silk paper.
17,766,320 issued on pink and wmkd. paper.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).

The number of stamps issued indicates three plates, the first of which was made by Carpenter in Philadelphia, and at least half of the stamps on silk paper were probably printed by the Philadelphia firm. Later printings were made by the National Bank Note Company on silk paper and by the Bureau on watermarked paper, and it is quite likely there were also one or more printings by the National Bank Note Company and by the American Bank Note Company on watermarked paper, although at the present time some of these printings cannot certainly be identified.

Specimens on watermarked paper bearing the first type of National imprint have been noted and these show that one or the other, or both, of the two Bank Note Companies were printing the stamp during the time the watermarked paper was in use. Stamps showing the Bureau guide line are in rosy vermilion instead of the orange vermilion of the earlier printings, and it is reasonably certain that all the rosy stamps on watermarked paper were printed by the Bureau. In most cases the Bureau printings of stamps that had previously been printed in vermilion, are in a marked rosy hue and it is at least possible that none of the orange vermilion M. & M. stamps, including the Schmitt & Schmittdiel 1c on watermarked paper, were Bureau printings. Stamps on pink paper were, of course, printed by the National Bank Note Company.

The pink paper variety has always been much scarcer than either the silk or the watermarked, and the watermarked stamp is usually twice as difficult to find as the silk paper. From the quantities issued one would expect the watermarked stamp to be fully as common as the silk paper and we can only explain the apparent contradiction by assuming that such a small proportion of the entire issue of both varieties is now available for collectors that it just happened fewer of the watermarked stamps were saved. Probably the silk paper will always be common, the watermarked paper will be scarcer and the pink paper will never be very easy to find.

Although multiples of this stamp are not common, a few pairs, strips and blocks are known to exist, and there is some reason for believing that occasionally it was used in strips of three in place of the 3c value.

3c Blue.

This stamp is exactly like the 1c denomination in everything except the color and value. The denomination now reads "Three" and in each upper corner is a numeral 3 placed diagonally. This variety and the 3c denomination used by the Park City Match Company at Kenosha, Wisconsin, are the only 3c match stamps engraved and printed in the size and shape that was standard for the 1c denomination.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, October 25, 1871.
First issued, August, 1872.
Last issued, prior to 1878.
1,860,689 issued on silk paper.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).

When the total number of this denomination issued is compared with the number of 1c stamps used by the same firm, it seems odd that the 3c stamp should not be much scarcer than it is, but it has never been as scarce as the comparatively small quantity issued might indicate, and until 1910, had never been priced more than 25c. Quite likely it has been somewhat under-rated and a really fine copy should be a good buy at the price which prevailed for the ten years after 1910, viz., 40c.

Probably there was only one plate, which was made by the Carpenter firm in Philadelphia and most of the stamps were printed there. Possibly all the 3c were from Philadelphia printings as the writer has been unable to find any of them bearing the National imprint and there is no record of a copy printed on anything but silk paper. There are two shades that might interest a specialist, although they are not different enough to appeal to the general collector. Possibly these may represent New York (N. B. N. Co.) and Philadelphia (Carpenter) printings.

The 3c Schmitt and Schmittdiel is rarely found otherwise than in single specimens. A block or two and a few pairs are the only multiples that have been noted.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Plenty—There is a wealth of new issues to enthrall the collector who likes to see the stamp garden grow; and for variety and significance, the novelties are commanding attention. The Salvador centennial set with their graphic historical features and the Peru set to celebrate the centennial, issued in August and sold out, according to report, in nine days, are large and striking engravings; and the centennial issues printed by the American Bank Note Company for Nicaragua and Colombian Republic are awaited. Panama is booked to issue a set from ½c to 50c, inclusive, with a special 2c commemorative, with the bust of Hurtado; and the Canal Zone is to have a set, 1c to 50c, inclusive. At last, we have what are represented to be an issue from Soviet Russia; at least, the stamps on their protective safety paper have prepaid the postage from Russia to this country. Jamaica, Zanzibar and other British colonies are adding to the beauty of the album pages and it is easy to see that there is no dullness in the stamp world.

Across—We have seen a good many Pony Express covers in the aggregate, but we do not remember having found one that was sent abroad. We have come into possession of one bearing the Pony Express and the Overland Express markings, in addition to the ten cent 1857, with California and other postmarks, addressed to Glasgow, Scotland. In its prolificy of markings, the envelope can match the Caribou envelopes referred to recently.

* * *

Cheers—With utmost satisfaction, we record the verdict of a reader on the case of the Neurope stamps, the prices on some of which have dropped like a plummet. Having heard so much of the bottom having fallen out of the certain class of stamps, he was curious enough to add up the cost of all the varieties that he had bought; and found that he has paid but a little over 70% of catalogue, based on the new edition. On some of the sets, he paid too much, it proves, but for others, the prices were bargain rates. This testimony while general in its nature, we admit, is confirmatory of the statement that those who did not speculate in Neurope issues have no reason to feel that they have been victimized.

Timely—The new catalogue is out betimes and we are glad to see it. The book was awaited anxiously as it was sorely needed and already it has acted as a spur to business. The publishers inform us that the advertised date of appearance was anticipated because of the possibility of a railroad strike, now happily averted, however. The new edition is a good piece of book making and the familiar features of the past are retained, while some improvements are noticed. The substantial character of the book is indicated by the fact that 1,250 pages are required for stamp description. Even the outsider will say that it is a mighty good book, though "it is hard to follow the story". For the first time since 1908, we think, the Scott catalogue comes in green covers.

Critic—Of course, there is criticism for some of the prices as given in the catalogue and as the cataloguers do not claim infallibility, they know what to say to the free-born critic. We believe that the cataloguers are actuated by the best of motives in their appraisals and that the results of their judgment are entitled to respect. It is impossible for the catalogue to be mobile enough to reflect sudden fluctuations but the stamps that are standardized are priced fairly, as a whole. Here and there will be found prices that are hard to justify from the individual point of view, but we know that the catalogue makers have all warrant for their findings, in their own opinion. We have been asked: Why are not the recent playing card stamps priced? and why is not type I imperforate catalogued? and other questions. To all those who feel that they have criticism of constructive kind to make on the new catalogue we ask that they write to the publishers of the work and not to us.

Roasts—We notice that a correspondent takes exception good-naturedly to a reference to stamp collecting in the home paper that was rather unflattering; and we suspect that he quite overwhelms the perturbed editor by marshaling an array of facts that makes a strong brief for us. We are a friend to newspaper editors, who, as a rule, are glad to make the amende honorable for any unwitting slight to philately. No collector should allow misrepresentations in print to remain unchallenged, as a refutation in mannerly tone is apt to receive attention from the most cold-blooded editor. Some of the organizations that depend for their progress to some extent on proper publicity have "publication committees" to rectify mistakes made by uninformed writers in the public prints and they do telling work. The American Philatelic Society might consider this idea some time but meantime, we must depend on volunteers to see that our record is kept clean.

Joking—"What, my fleshy friend, is 'our little world' of which you speak so often and where is it? I cannot find it on the new maps," writes a jocose doctor. You tell them, Skeleton, you articulate. Our little world is one in which philately is the chief concern. Where the minds of the people dwell mostly on stamps and their suggestions; and where philatelic comradeship is most cherished. Where we have our press, our politics, our reforms and our scandals, all on the foundation of the postage stamp. Where stamps are seen in their perfection and where auction sales, stamp clubs and stamp talk are popular. Where the inhabitants are of all the different classes and conditions and where they are one in their appreciation of the postage stamp. Where there are a few sinners among the mass of the regenerate and a few crooks in the host of good folk; and where the nervously ailing may take it easy and the tired mind restored. Where the clash of ambition and pomp of circumstance are forgotten the magnetism of the postage stamp.

Search—A collector found difficulty handling his stamp tongs; and explained that he had got his thumbs sore examining thirty-six hundred of the different booklets, smaller size, for tops on the outer strips. It was a task working on the flesh to hold each book tween the thumbs and forefinger bend back the leaves to find a line. The results of his industry were eighteen lines in the one cent booklets and top lines in the two cent booklets. A single plate-number was found in a batch of 3,600 booklets.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP JOSEPH V. K. WELLS, Manager. BURNT HILLS, N. Y.

NEW PICTORIAL ISSUE OF LIBERIA.

By C. S. T.

In 1914, two new Liberian stamps, Nos. 134 and 135 appeared, but on account of the war, the remainder of the issue was not delivered, though it was reported that a shipment of stamps, purporting to be of this emission, was destroyed in the sinking of a German vessel. At any rate the remainder of the issue has now been delivered, having been produced in Germany, as the Wurtemberg paper, watermarked crosses and rings indicates. The stamps are of the same fine type of production, and picture some interesting scenery, animals and plants.

The 5c and 10c are rectangles, the others oblong, the colors and subjects being as follows:—

POSTAGE.

1c yellow-green, evidently the Mesurado promontory.

5c blue and black, Ex-President Daniel E. Howard.

10c red and blue, coat-of-arms.

15c violet and green, long-snouted crocodile.

20c carmine and green, flowering shrub, probably Barteria.

25c orange and black, the Golden Cat.

30c green and violet, scenery.

50c yellow and blue, scenery.

75c red and brown, scenery.

$1 red and black, the Bongo antelope.

$2 yellow and violet, the White-crested Hornbill.

$5 violet and rose, the African Elephant.

REGISTRATION.

10c carmine and black, Buchanan.
10c red and black, Grenville.
10c blue and black, Harper.
10c orange and black, Monrovia.
10c green and black, Robertsport.
All triangular, design a coiled viper.

is shown on the 5c stamp. President Howard was the first President of Liberia who ever invited the native chieftains to participate in the inauguration ceremonies, an act which has produced most important results, especially as Mr. Howard is an unusual linguistic scholar, and knows the philology of the African languages well, so that he is able to converse with the various tribes in their own dialects instead of the official English of the country.

The 15c stamp shows a remarkable reptile, the long-snouted crocodile, Crocodilus cataphractes, a creature whose closest relative is a South American form. The long-snouted "croc" has the ventral scales produced into bony plates, thus resembling his long-extinct ancestors of the Jurassic period.

The plant shown on the 20c is likely one of the Barterias, perhaps nigritiana, a handsome common West African shrub, but not being sufficiently acquainted with the botany of this region, I am not certain of this identification.

The Golden Cat, Felis celidogaster, pictured on the 25c stamp, is one of the most untamable and bloodthirsty of the felines. It is largely arboreal in habit, and I identify the picture as this cat rather than as a leopard, as it is shown in a tree.

The Bongo antelope, the subject of the $1 stamp, is one of the most remarkable of the group. Boocercus euryceros is the most important and attractive hoofed mammal found in Liberia. It is striped, like a koodoo, with eight or nine snow-white stripes, the ground-color being rich golden-red. The animal is somewhat smaller than the eland, thus it weighs probably 1,200 to 1,500 pounds, as a large eland will weigh a ton or more. The Bongo inhabits the densest forest, but the artist has shown the animal cavorting over a stony plain.

Orthalophus albocristatus, the white-crested hornbill, decorates (?) the $2 stamp. He is one of that peculiar group of lugubrious-appearing birds which wall up their females during the nesting season. The female thus imprisoned in the trunk of a tree, whose hollow has been walled up with mud and excrement, is allowed only a small orifice as communication with the outside world. Through this aperture the male feeds her, and the young when hatched, so that the incubating female, and after its appearance the nestling, become extremely fat, and are regarded as ultra-delicacies by the African gourmets. The male, on the contrary, becomes exceedingly thin, and this perhaps accounts for the mournful expression which all hornbills seem to wear. The huge beak is not solid, but is filled with large cavities, and is extremely light. The use of the prominent knobs, excrescences, and bosses on the beaks of the various species is matterly unknown.

The African Elephant, Elephas africanus, on the $5 stamp, is the largest existing species, the Indian elephant being the other, but it is declared on excellent authority that there is still a third, and perhaps a fourth species in Liberia. The natives persistently report varieties which have not been seen by white men. This is not strange, as the interior of the country is totally unexplored, and beyond a fringe of a few miles along the coast is practically unknown.

The wrtier is sitting in a room only a short distance from a building which contains the remains of the largest elephants known to have inhabited the earth. These skeletons of Elephas imperialis, the Imperial Elephant, are of such stupendous size that recital of the dimensions is likely to create only incredulity. The skeleton is about 16 feet high, the immense curving tusks 18 feet long, so that the largest existing elephant could be cradled in their curve. E. imperialis was a fairly common animal in California, 100,000 years ago, considerably before postage stamps, and his remains have been found in quantity in the Brea oil pits; not fossils, but the actual bones, perfectly preserved.

The registration stamps picture one of the Liberian poisonous snakes, probably a "mamba", one of the largest and most pugnacious venomous serpents. Due to liberties taken with facts, it does not seem possible to name the species without exact information as to what the designer intended. However, there are several immense members of the genus Bitis in Liberia, as well as a number of species of cobras and adders, all of decidedly mean disposition, and as deadly as any reptiles, not even excepting the immense South American "bushmaster", the largest-known venomous snake.

The cent values of the issue all have the value in both words and figures, the higher values show words only. They are inscribed "Liberia" in some values, "Republic Liberia" in others. All are perforated 14.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—In a recent issue mention was made of a lot of very wonderful covers acquired by one of our American collectors while recently abroad. Lt. Col. F. V. S. Chamberlain noticed the remarks and kindly writes to inform us that he has just run across an unusual cover, showing a block of four of the 24c 1861, on a letter from Omaha to Manchester. While the stamps have a bar cancellation the cover is postmarked "Omaha City, Neb.—May 3, 1862" within concentric circles, in addition to a small circular Manchester postmark falling partly on the stamps and partly on cover. Col. Chamberlain has been most fortunate in his finds, for I recall that not so long ago he discovered an old correspondence in which were such items as a 10c St. Louis bear, a number of 1851 and others of the like. We are always pleased to be advised of any new discoveries or finds in the way of early United States for it seems that at the present time there is no limit in the interest being taken in early covers.

While speaking of good things being found abroad it may be of interest to mention that the Associated Press recently carried an article dated London, October 22nd, calling attention to the fact that a number of American collectors were in Europe spending freely for early United States stamps. The article mentioned several stamps that were of especial interest, such as the issue of 1847 and 1869. We wish to thank Mr. Frank Gumm for sending the clipping from the Denver Rocky Mountain News, giving this information.

Scott's Monthly Journal for October chronicles the 50c postage due, perforate 11, unwatermarked. All denominations have now been issued with the exception of the 30c.

ABYSSINIA.—Four provisional stamps have been issued, 1 guerche on ¼ guerche, 2 guerches on 4 dollars, 2½ guerches on ½ guerche and 4 guerches on 2 guerches; all overprinted on the current issue.—Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

BULGARIA.—"The Near East" gives the following particulars of the series foreshadowed on pages 407 and 413 of the July 16th number of Stamp Collecting, issued in honour of the distinguished pro-Bulgarian journalist, the late J. D. Bourchier.

"Five of the series are portraits, three reproducing, no doubt faithfully enough, an early photograph, but they are hardly reminiscent of the kindly and vivacious personality which was the charm to all who knew him. The two depicting 'J. D. B.' in the costume of a Bulgarian peasant have had to sacrifice likeness for general effect. The other four stamps show Rilo Monastery, 'Bourchier's Resting Place.' The issue constitutes a unique tribute on the part of a country to a foreigner,"

The set is as follows:—

JAMAICA.—Mr. J. A. Galbraith has shown us the 1d stamp of the new commemorative set. The frame of the stamp is orange color with a carmine centre with "1d Jamaica 1d" at the top and the likeness of a native woman making cassava in the centre, just below is the inscription "Arawak making cassava". The stamp is oblong in shape and watermarked multiple CA and perforated as the others of the set.

However, you will that this set is the same as their set (I believe the 1910 set) but you verify as I have no catalog. SMYRNA.—The Continental catalogues list and price (very highly) a set of Greek stamps overprinted E. T. SMIRNE in Greek characters. Concerning these, our Smyrna correspondent, who has been a resident there for many years, writes us as follows:—

"I saw the Postmaster in Smyrna of the Greek Post Office, which is the former Turkish one, and he assured me that there never has been any Greek stamps surcharged for use here, nor as far as he is aware is there any present intention to issue any. The stamps you mention as having been issued with a special surcharge for use here would therefore be bogus ones if they do exist. Ever since the Turkish Post Office was taken over, Greek stamps have been used without any distinguishing surcharge."—Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

TRANS-JORDANIA.—Our correspondent at El Salt writes us as follows:—

"One should beware of inverted 1 millieme Trans-Jordania stamps, as the issue of these was never authorised, although the overprint is entirely genuine."—Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

THE WHY AND WHAT OF PRECANCELS.

By V. W. ROTNEM.

A precancel is a postage stamp canceled before its use as postal duty by ordinary printing methods. Whole sheets at a time are run thru ordinary printing presses so that in one operation each stamp of the entire sheet receives the impression desired. This impression is the name of the city and state in which it is to be postal duty. For instance:

the above will be set up 100 times so that each respective stamp in the sheet placed in the press is canceled at once. Invariably this work is done locally, but the contract by the local postmaster with the local printer has to be certified by the First Assistant Postmaster General. The national department then issues an electroplate; this is obtained thru requisition to the Fourth Assistant who is in charge of the division of equipment and supplies. If the quantity of stamps to be precanceled is not sufficiently large to justify the use of the electroplate a special rubber roller is furnished for the purpose. The fact that the electroplates and rubber rollers are furnished by the department, together with the requirement that the local post offices keep record of the numbers of issued precancels prevent fraudulent usage. A permit of use must be obtained by any persons or concerns who desire the use of precancels.

This method of pre-cancellation saves a great deal of time for postal clerks. The time consumed in "swatting" package after package, with their respective sizes, shapes and bulks varying greatly, is considerable. Large mail order houses prefer using the precancels because it insures prompter delivery. It takes considerable time for the station where the catalogs of Sears-Roebuck or Montgomery-Ward and Company are mailed to stamp each respective catalog; necessity was the mother of invention and the long hand method of stamp cancellation was improved.

The Christmas rush is another time of tiring days for the post office help. Precancels ease the situation immensely. At Parcel Post windows or at times when help is short precancels save needless hours of stamp swatting. If the precancel hadn't been invented, Postmaster General Hays, would no doubt have caused it to be under some such name as an efficiency label.

Practically every United States denomination has been precanceled within the last ten years. Canada is a large user of precancels. Belgium and Luxembourg also make use of them to some extent.

The use of these stamps is permitted on the following postal classes: second class mail, such as newspapers in large bundles, magazines, pamphlets, etc., third class mail, printed matter, such as circulars, fourth class mail or parcels. Their use is not permitted on first class or sealed mail, nor on registered pieces. third class.

LIBRARY GOSSIP.

"The Middle Temple Murder", by J. S. Fletcher, was published in 1919, but was new to me when I picked it up the other day. This is another mystery story in which a stamp clue figures, but the author does not go very much into detail. The only stamp dealer in the story is introduced as being on the eve of retirement. As though any stamp dealer could retire, nowadays. It is the collector-investor who keeps the big bank balance today.

"In Denikin's Russia," by C. E. Bechhofer, gives a good picture of the chaotic conditions in South Russia, Armenia, Georgia and Batum in 1919-20, conditions which are well reflected in the stamp issues of this part of the world. The keynote of life in Batum, under the British Occupation was, according to the writer, speculation of all kinds, so it is not surprising that postage stamps were pressed into service as well as foodstuffs and other commodities. After reading the book one feels surprised, not so much by the number of stamps which have come from this part of the world, but by the comparative moderation shown under conditions which gave opportunity for every sort of chicanery. The author does not deal with his experiences in Constantinople or we might have had some interesting sidelights on some of the rubbish that is arriving from that neighbourhood nowadays. This is a book for stamp collectors, though it contains not a word about stamps.

Multi-lingual journals. Good evidence of the international fellowship, which is the outcome of our hobby, is furnished by the numerous journals which are now published in two or more languages. Het Philatelistisch Maandblad, a leading Dutch philatelic journal, now announces that it will, in future, publish items of importance relating to the stamps of Holland and Colonies, in English, French and German, in addition to that Dutch which is, alas! double-Dutch to the majority of collectors in this country.

The Harrogate Philatelic Congress. Those who were fortunate enough to be present at the Congress this year, or who, like myself, should have been present but could not raise the train fare, have been the recipients of the latest work of Mr. Holney Catch, the well-known philatelic humorist, who describes the Congress from the point of view of one who was pressingly detained at New Southgate and so was able to get a bird's-eye view of the functions. I quite forgot to live up to my name when perusing Mr. Hatch's account of the Congress. My laughter detached the back from our only sound chair and brought down large chunks of plaster from the ceiling and walls of my 1921-vintage Addisonette, but still I roared on. It is not likely that copies of this immortal work will be available for those who rely on mere pelf to secure them their heart's desire, so my advice to all who like a good laugh is to make friends immediately with a Congress delegate and beg, borrow or steal his copy. All who have received the work are greatly indebted to Mr. Holney Catch, but I feel sure the doubt will creep into many minds whether, under the guise of a work of humour, he has not given us more of the real truth about the Congress than was contained in the official report.

"The New Stamp Monthly" of Johannesburg is a new stamp journal on distinctly novel lines. Less than half its space is devoted to the hobby from which it takes its title, the remainder dealing with sports, plus a section which is filled with "sob" stories for the girls, and a yarn of the "Eric" variety for the boys. Perhaps, in adopting this plan the Editor has found the way to get people to read about stamps. I must get the Editor to try it in the M. C. A story by Ethel M. Dell would be a pleasant change from "Topical Notes", while our office sportsman's "selections" (not approval) for the week's racing, would certainly find more favour than "Library Gossip". Possibly a page or two might be found for stamp matters, but so long as we got a good philatelic title for the mag. the contents might be anything. Anyway, here's luck to the New Stamp Monthly. May it insert the thin end of the philatelic wedge in South Africa.

Mr. Fred J. Melville has now taken Mr. A. B. Creeke's place as Editor of the Stamp Collector's Fortnightly. So far as I know, Mr. Melville now edits the S. C. F., The Postage Stamp, Stamp Lover, the stamp columns of the Daily Telegraph and Wide World Magazine, and probably many others. He ought to be called the "multiple editor".

A new Air Stamp Catalogue. M. Th. Champion sends me his first Aero Catalogue, which is of considerable interest in view of the enthusiastic study which Air Stamps are receiving today. In a neatly produced and well-illustrated little volume the early history of the air post is traced, many interesting covers and cancellations are depicted, and this section is followed by an exhaustive catalogue of the officially issued air stamps, a list of the most interesting air "labels", and a section devoted to stamps having reference, either by design or inscription, to the aerial posts, but not used in connection with them. Altogether a most useful handbook to this ultra-modern stamp group. The bogus "Raynham-Martynsides" might well have been omitted, however. — Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Circular.

ORIGINALS AND REPRINTS.

By DONALD E. EASTLAKE.

In describing the neatly mended Japanese Prize Revenue stamp, which we have referred to several times, of late, we neglected to state that same is an unused copy.

Upon examining the said stamp more closely, we also note that it does not have O. G. and there are several pulled perforations on the side, just below the straight edge at the top.

In addition to the above mentioned minor imperfection, there is also what appears to be an old gum crack which extends from the stain at the left to a hardly noticeable thin spot at the right.

Myrtle calls our attention to the fact that the gum crack is crossed in the center by a crease that extends from the top to the bottom of the stamp, running directly through the three pin-holes.

Outside of the few exceptions given above, it is certainly a grand prize, and it will no doubt result in a keen contest. An extinguished dealer, after viewing the proffered prize, was heard to murmur. "An unusual piece for any collection!"

Myrtle says that she will not try for the prize as she is not very much interested in revenue stamps, only specializing in those of Mexico.

We did not argue with her because it is not polite to argue with one of the gentle sex, and, from experience, we know it is far from being safe.

A dealer while cleaning the cellar,
Found a stamp that got duller and duller,
He thought off the bat,
If it keeps up like that,
It will soon be an error in color.

A customer, a collector of the younger set, had been listening, in the office of a well known dealer, to a dicussion pertaining to the weakness of the stamp business during the summer months. During a lull in the conversation, the K K. (Kid Kollector, not Ku Klux) in all seriousness, ventured to inquire, "Do the countries in Europe stop issuing stamps in the Summer?"

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has semmingly locked the vaults and is refusing to lend any more money to European nations. Just when our left hand was shaking our right, thinking that the flood of New Issue Junk was over, his action will probably mean a new and more furious outburst. The poor countries have to get cash in some way.

SAN JOSE, Oct. 18.—From obscu and oblivion to the heights of wealth romance in the period of a day was scintillating career of a worn, bedrag scrap book of 500 foreign stamps yesterday, and today John A. H local realty dealer, is speculating a the exact status of his own wealth.

Yesterday morning the little old b thumb-marked, grimy and thick dust, lay long forgotten in the botto an equally time-worn trunk in the h ment of the Hicks home at Los G west of here.

Tonight the same scrap book, gone and shining with a new l reposes safely and pompously in the fines of a safe deposit vault in a bank.

Its reputed value tonight, by va estimates, is more than $100,000.

Around the unearthing of the scrap book, once the boyish whi John Hicks when one of the first dents of St. Ignatius College in Francisco, is wound a romantic tale is bound, it is believed, to become fa

Yesterday John Hicks perused columns of a daily paper, seeking ing other than the myriad tales world's passing day.

His eyes chanced on a Paris dat and there, chronicled at length, wa story of the sale in Paris of certain assuming little stamps for fab sums.

The story told particularly of the of a "little square on blue paper Hawaii, with a figure 2, dated 1851" of another, "a blue indigo 2-pence s of Mauritius." The former sold 156,000 francs and the latter for 9 francs.

Hicks' casual glance at the co brought a flashing memory of da years ago, when, as a boyish stude St. Ignatius, he had spent his le hours in collecting stamps from quarter of the world.

His collecting of stamps had not by bargaining. He had obtained the fathers of St. Ignatius the nam missionaries throughout the world written them and received replie which were the stamps that found way into his album.

Gently, almost fearfully, John turned the dusty pages. Before his past in review the myriad of stamps his joy—every stamp more than 55 of age.

Suddenly his eyes gleamed anew. obstrusively staring at him fro pages of the book was "a little s of blue paper from Hawaii, with a 2, dated 1851", and "a blue indi pence stamp of Mauritius."

Nothing But Bargains

Every so often I meet a new customer who breaks the conversational ice by saying how many years he has been reading my ads and follows up his flattering remarks by suggesting that unless I am the greatest long distance hot air enthusiast now at large in New Jersey I should put less "jolly" and more real sales-talk into my advertising.

Well, folks, we can't please everybody all the time, but just to please the fellows who like to write fat, juicy checks, knowing that they'll get exactly what they ask for, I'll depart this once from my usual modest way of soliciting orders.

Frankly, I haven't a dozen of everything offered, so the first order will get the best copy all along the line. No credit slips unless you expressly ask for them! You get the goods you order or your remittance back. Where I say fine I mean fine and, therefore, the artists who ask for "good" copies and return them because they are not superlatively wonderful are invited to stay home and play in their own back yard.

Items marked "CDK" are recommended to those keen eyes who can identify a fly-speck half a mile away without a telescope. Old man Krank—(Con D. Krank)—himself couldn't make 'em any better. Some of these stamps haven't been advertised for a long, long time. Some aren't likely to be offered in this way for years to come. Get them while the getting's good!

Terms:—cash—(check, draft, postal order or currency)—with order. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented.

Remember: These special prices apply only to orders from this ad on the terms specified. They are subject to change after November 30th.

THE ROMANCE OF STAMP COLLECTING.

The First of a Series of Interesting and Instructive Articles.

The beginning of stamp collecting is as obscure as if it had taken place in a much more remote time than it did. A number of quaint fairy tales have arisen concerning the origin of the pastime. These possess an interest chiefly in that they point out the lack of scientific method in the earliest instances of the hobby. Certainly stamp collecting did not commence as a Spanish gentleman would have us believe. His version of the origin of gathering stamps savours of the romantic. A grandee offered a wedding portion to a fair senorita if she would collect a sufficient number of stamps with which to cover the walls of a gallery in his palace. A party of the girl's friends formed themselves into a "sociedad" in order to assist the maiden in her gigantic task, and with this aid the girl succeeded in obtaining the required number. During the course of this work many were smitten by the collecting fever and went on accumulating stamps on their own account.

Although stamp collecting commenced much earlier in Great Britain and in France, it is certain that the hobby had spread largely in Spain in 1862. According to one Dr. Thebussem, "carterio honorario," or "honorary postman" of Spain, a decree was issued in that country on May 27th, 1862, forbidding the circulation through the post of packets containing stamps.

Another of philately's early romances is based upon the geographical value of the stamp album. In the early 'sixties, it is said, a pedagogue in Paris encouraged his pupils to procure as many foreign stamps as possible. These he recommended should be utilised to adorn and give added interest to their geography primers and atlases. The stamps were accordingly placed in the pages devoted to the countries issuing them. This may have been the first form of classification of postage stamps in a collection. By this means the worthy schoolmaster is supposed to have inculcated in his boys a love for the study of geography. After a time the stamps were withdrawn from the atlases and transferred to a special receptacle invented for them—the stamp album.

But it is very plain that stamp collecting in some form or another has been in existence practically as long as the stamp itself. Scarcely had the penny and twopenny stamps of 1840 been issued than there were signs of the wholesale accumulation of them. Dr. Gray, of the British Museum, says he started collecting stamps soon after the introduction of them. He was led to do this by the interest he took in the scheme, having himself conceived a similar idea previous to the adoption of that of Rowland Hill. Mr. P. J. Anderson, a Scottish librarian, has discovered an advertisement in the columns of the Times as early as 1841, which shows that stamps were being collected, after a fashion, at that early period:

"A young lady, being desirous of covering her dressing-room with cancelled postage stamps, has been so far encouraged in her wish by private friends as to have succeeded in collecting 16,000. These, however, being insufficient, she will be greatly obliged if any good-natured persons who may have these (otherwise useless) little articles at their disposal, would assist her whimsical project.—Address E. D., Mr. Butts', Glover, Leadenhall Street; or Mr Marshall's, Jeweller, Hackney."

In the following year it is understood that a philanthropist offered a large sum to a Roman Catholic charity provided that the nuns would collect a million stamps within a given time, presumably as a test of their zeal in the cause for which they worked. The nuns advertised for old stamps, and ultimately reached the aggregate required; whereupon—it is said—they received the promised reward of their labours. This incident probably gave rise to a notion that is very widespread, namely, that if one collects a million stamps, he can secure the right of entry for an orphan into a home, or for a person advanced in years into an asylum for the aged. The total value of a million of the commonest used stamps would scarcely be worth a sovereign, and the idea of such an accumulation being an "open sesame" to a philanthropic institution is altogether ludicrous. Yet, as a philatelic writer has aptly put it, "time has not killed this story, nor has long custom staled its infinite variety."

In 1842, also, Punch, then in its second volume, noted that "the ladies of England have been indefatigable in their endeavours to collect old penny stamps. In fact, they betray more anxiety to treasure up Queen's Heads than King Henry VIII. did to get rid of them."

In the issue of the Family Herald for June 1st, 1850, is a letter referring to a "gentleman who has undertaken to collect one million postage stamps which have passed through the Post Office, in the space of three months." The writer of the letter goes on to give some statistics of the value of a million stamps if unused, also the total weight and other details "for the amusement of the curious." In the same periodical in the following year — March 22nd, 1851 — an advertisement asking for old stamps appears. These were apparently required for decorative purposes by the advertiser, whose address was "T. H. S., Smith's Library, 20 Brewer Street, Golden Square." In a footnote, T. H. S. says: "The Ceiling of the Library is decorated with 80,000 Postage Stamps, in various Devices, and admitted to be the most novel Ceiling in England."

This form of collecting could in no wise be considered as helpful; and it is only referred to here as the most primitive and crude form of stamp collecting. "I must confess," wrote Addison, "I think it below reasonable Creatures to be altogether conversant in such Diversions as are merely innocent, and have nothing else to recommend them, but that there is no hurt in them." The mere accumulation of quantities of stamps may not be harmful, but, as a diversion or recreation, it is certainly below reasonable creatures to devote their attention to such an unprofitable and insipid fancy.

Philately, or the study of postage stamps, aims at something far removed from the collecting fads of the Spanish maiden, the Roman Catholic nuns, or the "ladies of England" in 1842. It consists in the study of everything pertaining to stamps, their history, their use, their distinguishing features, and their composite parts.

"Order is Heaven's first law," and it is this law applied to stamp accumulating that constitutes the science of philately. The pursuit of it requires observation, the gathering together of the results of the observation and inferences which may be deduced therefrom. Collecting must be accompanied by classification in proper chronological and class order. The philatelist must not merely collect; he must understand what he collects. By intelligent watchfulness, the minutiæ of philately are discovered—the niceties of paper, perforation, the shade of colour, and distinctive outline. Not one variation in any of the component parts of a stamp is unworthy of the student's attention. Thus, in philately, we have stamp collecting promoted from a rough, indefinite, unsatisfactory (and consequently passing) fancy, into a species of systematic knowledge of intrinsic value, which is in every sense a concrete science.

This form of stamp collecting was not much in vogue until the 'sixties. In Notes and Queries, a valuable store house of information on many abstruse subjects, for June 23rd, 1860, the following communication appeared:—

"Postage Stamps.—A boy in my form one day showed me a collection of from 300 to 400 different postage stamps, English and foreign, and at the same time stated that Sir Rowland Hill told him that at that time there might be about 500 varieties on the whole. This seems a cheap, instructive, and portable museum for young persons to carry; and yet I have seen no notices of catalogues or specimens for sale, such as there are of coins, eggs, prints, plants, etc., and no articles in periodicals. A cheap facsimile catalogue with nothing but names of respective States, periods of use, values, etc., would meet with attention. If there be a London shop where stamps or lists of them could be procured, its address would be acceptable to me and to a score young friends.

"S. F. Cresswell,

"The School, Tonbridge."

In July, 1861, Dr. Brown, author of Horæ Subsecivæ, wrote on "Education through the Senses" in the Museum. In this article he said:—"The immense activity in the Post Office stamp line of business among our youngsters has been of use in many ways, besides being a recreation and an interest. I myself came to a knowledge of Queensland, and a great deal more, through its blue twopenny."

Mr. E. S. Gibbons, founder of the firm of Stanley Gibbons, Ltd., claimed to have started collecting in 1853, when at school. Monsieur J. B. Moens, a Belgian philatelist and dealer, commenced in 1855, since which time he has been the most authoritative writer on philatelic subjects.

Messrs. Hardy and Bacon, in their Stamp Collector, give a long list of gentlemen who started to collect either before or soon after 1860, and whose names have been and are still honoured in the philatelic world.

By 1860, French collectors were much in advance of their British brethren. In that year there were stamp dealers in Paris, and in the following year (1861) was started a literature which has been surprisingly prolific. The commencement was made by the publication of a catalogue of the known stamps that had been issued up to that time. The collectionneurs of Paris were the first to take into consideration the value of studying stamps and of classifying them. Instead of neatly trimming the perforated edges from the stamps, they measured the size of them by means of a gauge. They scrutinised minutely every portion of the design, discovering here and there instances of the plates from which the plates were printed having been "retouched." Watermarks, too, received their attention; and the very texture of the paper was carefully noted. The stamps of each country were kept separate, and those of a distinct emission of one country were no longer jumbled together with the specimens belonging to another issue. How suitable were the methods adopted by these French enthusiasts may be judged by the almost universal adoption of those systems by stamp collectors who have continued the pursuit of the hobby beyond the stage of the schoolboy collector.

This class of collecting got its early stimulus in Great Britain by the publication of the first English catalogue issued in 1862, since which date the pursuit has been steadily increasing in public favour.

It is when stamp collecting is considered in a scientific light, and when, in the pursuit of it, the student exerts his powers of observation, that the title Philately may properly be applied to it. The term was first given to the subject by Monsieur Herpin, a Parisian collector. He invented the description from two Greek words. The first of these is "philos" (fond of), and the second "atelia," which means "immunity from tax." The latter word was probably chosen as being the best word rendering the idea of "franking" in the Greek tongue. The duty of a postage stamp on a letter is to frank it, and when the postage is thus prepaid, the addressee is not chargeable. The term philately therefore means "a liking for franks" or "the love of postage stamps."

When philately had secured some hold on the public taste, its votaries busied themselves to extend the knowledge of the science. Societies were formed on the Continent, in Great Britain, and in America for the furtherance of the pursuit. A literature was started that has been, perhaps, more extensive than that devoted to any other collecting hobby.

It is said that a Scotchwoman, hearing that a distinguished artist made his living by painting pictures, said contemplatively: "Aye, there's mony a shift." It is difficult to imagine what she would have thought of men not only making livings, but fortunes, by trading in trifles like postage stamps. The opportunities offered for the investment of capital quickly drew the attention of smart business men. They saw that their most profitable course was to facilitate the procuring of old stamps and also new ones as they were issued. New issues were few and far between in those early days, though now

"Thick and fast they come at last,
And more, and more, and more."

To-day there is a commercial service that secures an extensive importation of every new stamp issued, no matter in how remote a part of the globe or how limited the issue. The collectors of stamps to-day in Great Britain, on the Continent, in America, and the Colonies—and, indeed, under the flag of every civilised country—are more numerous than the heroes of Agamemnon's army and more scattered on the face of the earth than the twelve tribes of Judah. —Postage Stamp.

PERU 1921 COMMEMORATIVE.

By C. S. THOMPSON.

To celebrate the centenary of Peruvian independence a very beautiful issue of stamps was recently made, in accordance with the following decree of President Leguia. The translation is rather free, in order to conform to our idiom:—

LIMA, January 27, 1921.

It being evident that postage stamps are among the principal means of commemorating the culminating events of national history, and in consideration of the approaching celebration of the first centenary of the independence of the Republic, it has been resolved.

1. To authorize the General Director of Posts and Telegraphs to order a new issue of commemorative postage stamps, to celebrate the first centennial of National Independence, these stamps to conform to the designs accompanying this decree: The stamps of this emission to be of the types and quantities as hereafter indicated:

1 centavo, sepia-brown and chestnut, bust of San Martin, 450,000.

2 centavos, clear green, bust of Marshal Arenales, 400,000.

4 centavos, carmine, bust of Marshal Las Heras, 100,000.

7 centavos, violet, bust of Lord Cochrane, 1,500,000.

5 centavos, brown, the Declaration of Independence, 1,500,000.

10 centavos, ultramarine, bust of Admiral Guisse, 100,000.

12 centavos, grey and blue, bust of General Vidal, 100,000.

20 centavos, carmine and black, bust of President Leguia, 50,000.

50 centavos, lilac and violet, monument of San Martin, 50,000.

1 peso, carmine and green, monument of San Martin and Leguia, 50,000.

2. These stamps are to be put on sale throughout the Republic on July 28, 1921, and are to continue in use only until August 15 of the same year, during which time the sale of the issue in current use is to be totally suspended, but will be resumed as soon as the commemoratives are exhausted.

3. The expense of producing the new issue of stamps will be met under expense account number 1,945 of the general budget at present in force.

The exceedingly handsome stamps of this issue, with the exception of the 7c have been produced by the American Bank Note Co., and are engravings of the finest kind. The 7-centavos, violet, is a product of the Fabri lithographing establishment in Lima. The stamps are of the general appearance of the current issue, though larger, 20 x 24 mm. instead of 18 x 22 mm. for the smaller stamps, and 38 x 25 mm. instead of 30 x 21.5 mm. for the larger types. The 7c Lord Cochrane is 24 x 30 mm.

The smaller stamps have the dates 1821—1921 in the upper spandrels, top centre U.P.U. in a wreath, below which is "Republica Peruana". The value at foot is expressed in both figures and words, as "2 CENTAVOS 2." The medallions are rather small, only 9.5 mm. in diameter, and hence much too small in proportion to the entire area. The 7c has the coat-of-arms of Peru in the upper left spandrel, U. P. U. on a shield of similar size in the opposite corner, "Peru" above a rising sun at top centre. The portrait is in a large oval, with the dates 1821-1921 at sides, and "Lord Cochrane" below it. The value is expressed with large figure 7, and the word "Centavos" in colorless letters. The imprint of the manufacturer, "Lit. C. Fabri Lima", appears in tiny letters below the frame. This 7c stamp is for the purpose of prepaying letters to he United States, Central America, Mexico, and Spain.

The 5c and 1 sol (not peso, as in the decree) are oblongs with highly ornate frames, 1821—1921 at top, U. P. U. between, palm branch, "Ayacucho" in scroll and 1824 in circle at left, allegorical female figure, seated, holding shield, at right. The shield bears a circular ornament, which I believe to represent a medal to be mentioned later, and the word "Peru". The value "5 Centavos" or "1 Sol" appears at bottom, left, in colorless letters. The medallion of the 5c is too small for the frame, and depicts the Declaration of Independence with all the figures facing the back of the stage! By means of a lens the faces of the audience may be distinguished, but the view of the back of San Martin, the principal figure, is especially fine! Instead of showing a monument, as stated in the decree, the 1 sol shows the busts of San Martin and

SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Leguia. The 50c I have not yet seen, but the other values conform to the decree. The 50c will probably show one of the more conspicuous monuments to San Martin, which are to be found everywhere in South America. One is shown on the Chilian $1 of 1910. The stamps have undoubtedly been on sale for more than the stipulated time, as they have been arriving on mail up to the present date, Oct. 25, and for two months previous.

Only the larger stamps bear the word "Ayacucho", an Indian word which means "Corner of Death". Ayacucho was the battle which assured the independence of Peru; it resulted in the complete triumph of General Sucre over the Spaniards, December 9, 1824.

San Martin, the subject of the 1c stamp, is familiar to philatelists as he is portrayed on more than 70 varieties of the issues of Argentine. Born in that country in 1778, José de San Martin, while still a small child, was sent to Spain to be educated. He later entered military life, served with great distinction against the French, and attained the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. In 1811, he resigned and returned to Buenos Aires. He soon joined the patriots of the Argentine and in 1813 he decisively defeated the Spanish Viceroy at San Lorenzo. In 1814 he was placed in command of the army in Peru, where he conceived the plan of attacking Spanish power in Chile and then overrunning Peru. In 1817, the Spaniards were defeated at Chacabuco, the subject of the 2c Chile, 1910. April 5, 1818, San Martin ended Spanish dominion in Chile. In August, 1820, he sailed with his army for Peru. July, 1821, he proclaimed Peruvian independence, hence his connection with the present issue. San Martin died at Boulogne, France, August 17, 1850. "His life was one of devoted patriotism, marred neither by vain glory, factional hatred, nor personal interest." Truly a fitting tribute to one of the greatest patriots of all history.

Marshal Arenales, whose effigy adorns the 2c stamp, was sent in 1820 with an "army" of 1,000, from Pisco to Lima, on a sort of "Sherman's March to the Sea" adventure. This was most successfully accomplished and he completely defeated a Spanish army at Cerro de Pasco, one of the most conspicuous "knots" of high mountain peaks in the Andes, a short distance northwest of Lima.

Marshal Las Heras, shown on the 4c stamp, was one of three generals who led divisions of troops across the Andes into Chile. The soldiers of Las Heras traversed the Uspallata, probably the most dangerous pass in the world; in comparison with the famous Khyber hardly known to English-speaking peoples, but certainly a thousand times more perilous. Robertson, in speaking of this march says, "Altho San Martin's army was much smaller than Napoleon's army, which surmounted the Alps in 1800, yet it is hardly too much to say that the passage of the Andes had a more abiding influence upon history. The march of San Martin prepared the way for the independence of Chile and Peru. This heroic march was San Martin's greatest achievement." Three weeks after the expedition started, the soldiers of Soler, O'Higgins and Las Heras, the three commanders of San Martin, were far down on the Chilean plains! Within another three weeks the Royalists had been beaten, as noted above, at the battle of Chacabuco.

On July 28, 1821, San Martin unfurled for the first time the flag of Independent Peru in the great square of Lima. He said, it is alleged, "From this moment Peru is free and independent, by the general wish of her people and by the justice of her cause, which may God defend. Viva la patria! Viva la libertad! Viva la independencia!" Silver medals which bear on one side the inscription "Lima being liberated, avowed its independence on July 28, 1821" and on the other "Under the protection of the liberating army of Peru, commanded by San Martin" were distributed in the square, and it is perhaps the intention of the engraver to depict this medal on the shield held by the figure representing the Republic on the 5c and 1 sol stamps.

Lord Cochrane, pictured on the 7c stamp, has already been shown on the splendid 10 peso stamp of the 1910 Chile series. While San Martin was working for the cause of independence in Buenos Aires, the Chileans were constructing a navy, which soon after captured a Spanish man-of-war. This, I believe, was the "Maria Isabel", 12c Chile, 1910. Soon after this, Condarco, a Chilean agent in London, induced Lord Cochrane to enlist in the cause of South American independence. Thomas Cochrane, though a man of great ability and infinite resource, had fallen into disgrace in England through no fault of his own, but owing to the machinations of political corruptionists, who opposed his efforts in Parliament at naval reform.

As a British Admiral, Cochrane's exploits were marked by the greatest daring, and in most cases were highly spectacular. At one time, when in command of a brig of 150 tons, carrying a crew of only 54, he overwhelmed and captured a Spanish frigate of 600 tons and 319 men. Another time he sailed into Plymouth harbor, after a successful French raid, with more enemy vessels than he had in his own fleet, his mastheads decorated with three solid gold candlesticks, each five feet high!

Cochrane was made "Almirante" of the Chilean navy, and attacked Callao unsuccessfully but in February, 1820, he captured Valdivia, cutting out the frigate "Esmeralda" from the remainder of the Spanish fleet, under the 300 guns of the fortresses. On account of his absolute fearlessness he was called "El Diablo"—"The Devil", by the Spaniards.

Admiral Guisse or Guise, whose effigy appears on the 10c stamp, was one of Cochrane's Captains. In the Valdivia attack, which took place at midnight, Cochrane was the first to board the enemy vessel, the "Esmeralda", by the main chains on the port side, while Guisse ascended by the forechains on the starboard side. Their crews immediately followed and a hand-to-hand fight ensued in which the attackers lost eleven killed and thirty wounded. No less than three hundred and thirty of the crew of the "Esmeralda" were killed and wounded and the raid ended with the capture of this vessel and several others, which were taken out of the harbor under the fire of hundreds of

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

THEY BULLED THE MARKET.

By BILL BLOSS.

"Cook," said McCook, "how in the universe do you ever expect to cash in on that bunch of Bolivar wholesale we bought in the Schwartz lot? It's high time we got our money out of that junk."

Casey Cook, whose name graced the stationery of the firm of Cook & McCook, "Postage Stamps of Quality," as President and General Manager, grinned.

"Are you still fretting about those Bolivars, Marty? Holy hinges, that's all I've heard since we bought Schwartz' stuff is those Bolivars. You'd think we hadn't cleaned up on the balance of the stuff to hear you talk."

"'S'all right, Casey, old kid, but like the baker, we need the dough. It's going to take a hundred years to shed that junk and it's time you started."

"Time I started? What do you mean, I started? Don't you sell things for this company, too?"

"Sure, but when you insisted on buying the Bolivars at the same rate as the other lots, I figured you wanted to sell them. I don't want the job," Martin McCook said, as he gazed mournfully at a Seebeck which had just fluttered out the open window.

"All right, I'll sell them. But you may have to help. It is time we moved them, and I know who'll buy them—Burton, of the B. & S. Co. in Milwaukee."

"Yes, he will. You know Burton is as tight as the skin on a green apple, and after that time he lost on Brown's collection, he wouldn't buy from you, anyway."

But they hadn't named Cook Casey for nothing. His Irish was up, for he knew he had bought a bad one in the Bolivars and wanted to redeem himself before his partner.

"Just to make it more interesting, I'll sell the Bolivars to Burton. Make him like them. That's the stuff. Watch me." said Casey.

* * * * * *

In Ben Burton's next morning's mail was a letter from J. Wallace Martin, written on the stationery of the Brownstone Hotel, Chicago, inquiring whether he knew where certain Bolivar stamps could be obtained in quantity, suitable for plating. He particularly desired sheets, blocks and errors of this interesting country, and offered a substantial price for any Burton had.

Now, the stamps of Bolivar are nice, but compared with many others, are not the quickest sellers in the world, and few dealers carry more than a very small stock. Burton was no exception—but he did like to meet these chaps who would pay substantial prices for slow movers.

* * * * * *

Two days later, Casey Cook went up to Milwaukee, and called on his business rival, Ben Burton.

"How's chances to sell you a few Bolivars, Ben?" he asked, as he pulled half a sheet from his portfolio.

"After the way you beat me on Brown's lot, don't know as I want any from you," Burton replied, somewhat sullenly. Then he thought of the letter on the stationery of the Brownstone. Why not?

"How many you got, and how much are they? Maybe I can sell them, if you don't want too much."

"Here's half a sheet of 28b, listing $50. each. Take some at $5. I want to move them, and here's ten sets of the 1880 series at the same rate, catalog $2.40 for 25 cents a set," Cook replied.

"Give me the ten sets, and if I sell those, maybe I can use the others," said Burton, as he took $2.50 from the cash box.

"Thanks. If you need more, I have them. I am breaking up a specialized collection, worth about a thousand, net, so I have plenty."

* * * * * *

The next day, J. Wallace Martin received an approval selection from Ben Burton, of ten sets of 1880 Bolivars at $1.50 a set, and a quotation of $35. each on 28b in a large block.

And the following day, Ben Burton received $50. for the ten sets, a single 28b and a request to send the block on approval. He hunted up Cook, and bought the single, with a block of four, and some other sets. These he sent to Martin, who bought the sets, but returned the block, saying he would visit Milwaukee shortly, and would buy it then.

* * * * * *

After Casey Cook offered Ben Burton a little mixed lot of Bolivars on Tuesday for $25. and Burton received a check from Martin for $100. on Wednesday, almost anyone could have sold Burton Bolivars.

* * * * * *

J. Wallace Martin called on Ben Burton the last of the week, and bought another $100. worth of Bolivars. He was a nice fellow, and Burton liked him—and his bankroll. He tried to remember where he had seen him, for he looked familiar, but he couldn't place him.

"Say, Mr. Martin, I know where you can buy a wonderful specialized collection of Bolivars for $3,500. It catalogs $6,000. and has sheets and sheets of everything. Would you be interested?"

Yes, Martin would. In fact, he had only that day heard that a fellow named Cook—

"Look out for that man Cook, he's pretty cute and he'll skin you if you don't watch him. He's a bad egg," Burton confidentially informed him.

"Well, get the Bolivars and let me see them. I may want them," J. Wallace Martin said, as he passed out a fifty cent cigar.

Burton saw Cook at once, only to learn that the Bolivars had gone up from $1,250. to $1,500. because of an offer Cook had had. But Cook let him take them.

When J. Wallace Martin saw them, he nearly went crazy. They were beautiful. Such shades. Such blocks. And all the rare ones, and errors, and proofs—lots of proofs—and reprints, a few—all scarce, so Burton said.

And while he was looking at them, the phone rang. Cook broke the news that he had just been offered $1,750. for the lot, and Burton must act quickly if he wanted them.

And Martin looked at them again, and bought $150. of Bolivars from Burton's stock, which had cost him $25.

"Gee, I'd like to buy that bunch, but $3,500. is a lot of money. Still, I just cleaned up $20,000. and maybe—I'll think about it. Here's $350. for an option on the lot for five days, Burton."

IT'S DIFFERENT
ALLEN SEARS INC SUITE 508 KEMPER BLDG. KANSAS CITY, MO.

That afternoon Cook called for the Bolivars. "Guess they'll have to go to the other fellow. He hasn't seen them, but he is in town and wrote me that if they were all I said they were, he'd take them. And he sent me a check for an option on them."

Burton thought. $1,500, profit within reach, and slipping. He did not want the Bolivars, but if Martin ever saw Cook, good night! Should he take a chance? Martin must want them, to pay him $350. option.

Martin opened the door. Burton grew fussed, then made up his mind. He would take the chance. He excused himself, and motioned Cook into the hall. "Give you $1,800. cash", he said.

"No, make it $2,000. flat and they are yours," Cook answered. Burton argued, then deliberated. He must act quickly.

"All right, I'm a fool, but come in and get your check."

* * * * * *

"Well, Martin, I've just bought the Bolivars for you. Will you take them with you?" Burton said, after Cook left.

"Sorry, old man, but I just came in to tell you I'd have to forfeit the option, for I don't think I can afford to buy them."

Ben Burton grabbed the phone, and called his bank, only to learn that Casey Cook had just cashed the check. Oh, how sick he felt.

* * * * * *

The firm of Cook & McCook held a partner's meeting.

"Guess we don't need to worry about the Bolivars, J. Wallace Martin McCook. $2,000 for the lot, which cost us $500 plus $700. expenses to stamps bought from Burton, makes $800 of which $300 is our just profit, and—"

"You mean $800." said J. W. M. McCook.

"Oh, no. The other $500 is the fine we impose on Burton for the way he tried to cheat Brown's widow, and for implying that I was an over-ripe henfruit, and also as an object lesson to Burton for selling us back the Bolivars at six times cost. And that $500. we'll send to little Mrs. Brown, who needs it more than we do."

A RARE STAMP WITHIN YOUR REACH.

By G. A. Hunt.

How many copies have you of Scott's U. S. No. 391, the common 3c purple, perf. 10, without watermark?

Scott's latest catalogue lists him at 25c new, 2c used. The sub varieties, Nos. 391a, 391b and 391c, are common and can be picked up anywhere, but the straight variety, No. 391, is not as plentiful as one would imagine. I have gone over thousands of cancelled 3c and the number I found can be counted on the fingers of one hand. Hundreds of 3c perf. 10, will be found, but the benzine cup will always show them up as No. 371 and not the elusive No. 391.

The "pink back" 3c, which is an easily spotted stamp, is always the watermarked type, and by the way, why does the catalogue ignore this chap? Scott's latest does not mention or list him and E. B. Power in his last word on all 20th Century U. S. overlooks him entirely. However, most collectors have this chap, the "pink back three", and want to know more about him. Why will not someone who has the dope open up and tell us? It is as worthy of a place in the catalogues as some of the shade varieties now listed.

However, to go back to No. 391. Let everybody get busy and see how many hundred they can get, or how many dozen. If the real number of this stamp printed were known, I'll wager it will not go up to a very high figure. How many 3c, perf. 10, on unwatermarked paper were issued? This is a question for Mr. Ward to look up. In the meantime get busy and be sure of your copy.

A CRETE COUNTERFEIT.

By C. S. T.

A recent auction lot, alleged to contain Crete, No. 63, has just been received. This stamp has a forged "ΠΡΟΣΩΝ ON" overprint, and has had an "X E T" overprint removed. "X E T", I have been informed, stands for "Chartosimeisprachtheis telon" indicating some form of a tax on university degrees, so that stamps with the "X E T" overprint are revenues.

In order to cover up the impositi very smeary forged XANIA post has also been added, but the large revenue cancellation with crown in c immediately attracts attention, and "X E T" shows plainly on the rever

It is just as well to add many of these overprints, cially the red ones, are forgeries, care should be exercised in purch these stamps, a guarantee being obt in every case. The counterfeit red charges have been made with an i entirely different chemical compo than that of the genuine, but forger the black overprint are much dangerous, and require micros examination.

At the meeting of the Justices and Vestry, at George Town, Grand Cayman on February 25, 1921, there was introduced and passed the following bill:—

"Be it enacted by the Assembly of Justices and Vestry of the Cayman Islands, as follows:—

2.—This Law shall come into operation on a day to be fixed by the Commissioner by Government Notice.

3.—The Schedule of Postages to the Post Office Law 1900 shall be and the same is hereby repealed, and in lieu thereof shall be substituted the Schedule to this Law.

H. H. Hutchings,
Commissioner and President.

Passed by the Assembly of Justices and Vestry this 25th day of February, 1921.

A. E. Panton,
Clerk of the Vestry,
Cayman Islands."

The Cayman Islands form a Dependency of Jamaica and the government is administered by a Commissioner, resident at George Town, Grand Cayman. The present incumbent is H. H. Hutchings, formerly Asst. Commissioner at Grand Turk, who was sworn into office on June 5th, 1919. Local affairs are controlled by a legislative body styled the "Justices and Vestry", whose enactments become law when assented to by the Governor of Jamaica. This body consists of 15 nominated and 28 elected members—the representation is roughly, one for every 143 inhabitants.

The above quoted bill, on approval by Leslie Probyn, Governor of Jamaica, on 21st April, 1921, became Law 1/1921, and effective June 1st, 1921, "the day fixed by the Commissioner by Government Notice."

"Cayman Islands—Government Notice.
Commissioner's Office,
No. 18. George Town, 1st June, 1921.

Whereas the Governor of Jamaica has given his consent to the following Law passed by the Assembly of the Justices and Vestry:

Law 1 of 1921—A Law to amend the Post Office Law 1900 (No. 9 of 1900);

And whereas section 2 of Law 1 of 1921 provides that the said Law shall come into operation on a day to be fixed by the Commissioner by Government Notice:

Now therefore do I fix this 1st day of June, 1921, for the coming into operation of the said Law;

And I do proclaim His Excellency's consent to the said Law and declare the same to be in full force and effect.

H. H. Hutchings,
Commissioner."

The four values (1½d, 3d, 1s and 5s) of Cayman's new series of postage and revenue stamps, placed on sale at George Town, Grand Cayman, April 4, 1921, are from line engraved plates of 120 subjects, (12 horizontal by 10 vertical), not divided into panes. A separate plate is required for each denomination, and therefore, no plate numbers are used. The only marginal markings are a double marginal line (15 mm. from the stamp subjects at top and bottom, and from 11 to 12 mm. at the sides), and the usual cross marks in all four margins for aid in perforating. The 1½d, 3d and 5s are comb perforated 14, and the perforation extends through only the upper margin. The 1s however, is single line perforated 14 and the lines of perforation extend through all four margins.

In the first consignment of stamps of the new series sent out to Grand Cayman, there were two very distinct varieties in the 3d and 5s denominations. The major portion of the 3d printing was in purple brown on orange paper, but according to the Postmaster at George Town, 7 panes (420 stamps) were found on lemon yellow paper.

On authority of the Commissioner, who is also Treasurer of the Dependency and in charge of the surplus stocks of postage stamps stored in the Treasury vaults, there were two panes of the 5s in blue green on lemon yellow paper, instead of the normal yellow green on lemon yellow. These "two panes . . . . . went mostly to small purchasers abroad." English dealers are asking 40s each for this variety.

The first consignment of the 5s exhausted in July, 1921, and a fresh printing is expected momentarily, along with a supply of the 10s in the new type. Delay has been encountered in making up the plate for the 10s denomination, and while requisition was forwarded to London in July, the stamp has not yet (November 1st) been made available to the English dealers through the Crown Agents in London.

The Cayman Islands have taken advantage of the scheme recommended by the Crown Agents, for supplying English will hold an auction sale of stamps at the regular Christmas Meeting on December 20, 1921, and invites you to send for a catalog—if you are not a member—and send your bids on any lots that tempt you. Write to the undersigned and the catalog will be forthcoming.

AN INVITATION
THE BOSTON PHILATELIC SOCIETY

WM. C. POLK, 41 Irving Place, Quincy, Mass.

dealers with their requirements, at face value. As supplies are received from the printers, quantities are taken out sufficient to fill orders in hand. These stamps are not turned over until after sufficient time has elapsed to allow of their receipt and issue in the Colony. The first four values of the new line engraved series were in the hands of London dealers, April 7th, three days after issue in Grand Cayman. American dealers are debarred from participating in this scheme, and must as heretofore, remit direct to the Colony.

In caring for the requirements of English stamp dealers, through the Crown Agents, the local Post Office staff is relieved of the filling of these orders, and preparing them for dispatch. Too, it guards against a possible shortage if the local authorities do not correctly estimate the overseas demand.

If a small quantity of a certain value is requisitioned, and the Crown Agents have in hand orders which will take the greater part of the supply, it will be possible for them to increase the quantity to be printed, so that the requisitioned quantity may be sent out for local demands.

The Lesser Caymans, which comprise Cayman Brac and Little Cayman (nearly equal in size, being 10 miles long and 1½ miles wide, and lying about 7 miles apart) are separated from Grand Cayman by some 60 miles of sea. The population at last census (April 25, 1921) was 1,308.

The only Post Office in the Lesser Caymans is at Stakes Bay, Cayman Brac, which was opened in 1898, and prior to the issue of separate postage stamps for the Cayman Islands, Jamaican stamps were on sale, and used.

Communication between the two groups is very infrequent and irregular, and the exchange of mails is generally via Kingston, Jamaica. Considerable delay is experienced in securing stamp supplies from Grand Cayman, and due to this fact, in April, 1921, the Stakes Bay office ran out of the ¼d, ½d, 1d and 2½d stamps, 1½d wars and 2d stamps were available, but the demand was for the lower values. The emergency was met by cutting the impressed stamps from the ½d newspaper wrappers and the 1d post cards. On April 26th a boat arrived from Jamaica with stamp supplies, and in the lot were the four values of the new line engraved series.

PRECANCELLED STAMP ALBUM.

If you are a collector of precancels or are thinking of starting a collection send your opinion upon the following propositions to B. Gordon Bushnell, 2648 Northwestern Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.:

Would you have an album printed to provide spaces for everything listed in the Standard Catalog or for major varieties alone, including the different perforations, or for the major varieties which do not include the different perforations?

Here are three choices, which one do you prefer?

NEWS GLEANINGS

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited, as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—An interesting cover comes to us from Frederick W. Allen. It consists of the 2c copper red Trans-Mississippi with the familiar scene "Farming in the West." Under the stamp is printed this inscription "The picture on this stamp is from a photograph taken on one of our farms at Amenia, N. D." What makes the cover more interesting is the fact that it bears the Amenia postmark and in the upper lefthand corner the address of the "Amenia and Sharon Land Co." the owner of the farm pictured.

—H. S. R.—We answer your question publicly as being of general interest. The booklet on M. & M. stamps cannot be issued until the series has been concluded in the WEEKLY. Due notice will be given in our columns.

—R. Yokohori, our Tokyo correspondent, informs us that a special cancellation stamp was used by the Department of Communications in Japan to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the inauguration of the railway service in that country. The cancellation was used only on letters posted Oct. 14 and on picture post cards for the three days following.

—The October number of the Precancel Gazette was excellent in every respect. It consists of 12 pages and is published monthly at the rate of 75c per year. It is the official organ of the Precancel Club of America and no collector of these stamps can afford to be without this publication. Address, St. Anthony Falls Sta., Minneapolis, Minn.

—Washington, D. C., has just put into use a new cancellation. It is a Christmas cancellation in four lines:—"Mail—Early—For—Christmas".

—The New York Morning Telegraph of Sunday, October 31, contained a story on "Old Union Square in Process of Passing", giving the particulars of the demolishing of one of New York's historic theatres. The philatelic interest in the article revolves around W. W. Randall whose name is indissolubly connected with this old landmark. The article is accompanied by a picture of Mr. Randall "as he looked in 1890".

—Owing to continued ill health and inability to give personal attention to his new issues service of British Colonial stamps, Hugo Griebert announces that his last distribution will take place about the middle of November. A large number of new issue philatelists will hear this news with profound regret.

—W. L. W.—We shall answer both of your questions pro bono publico. Our "Philatelic Dictionary" will be published within two or three months. When material for the Addenda is exhausted you will understand that the book is about to appear. We maintain no "Question Bureau" for the reason that sufficient material does not accu-

—We regret to learn of the death of Nai Teng Chiyong, a talented Siamese philatelist, who for years has been a subscriber to the WEEKLY. We are indebted to him for various courtesies extended us and his death will come as a distinct blow to a wide circle of correspondents. He resided in Bangkok, Siam.

—The Bridgeport (Conn.) Philatelic Club meets on the first and third Thursdays at 311 Meigs Bldg. Collectors nearby desiring information should write R. S. Foster, 1604 Laurel Ave.

—The Latvian air post to Germany, Esthonia, Lithuania, has been temporarily suspended because the contract with the foreign airplane company has expired. George H. Jaeger informs us that the concession will be transferred to a Latvian aeroplane company.

—The Wifco Stamp Service is a new one, located at 918 E. 10 St., Davenport, Iowa. The firm has just purchased the entire stock of Harry Ioor and is arranging to take space in our paper.

—In the past years we have had an occasional query as to the whereabouts of J. F. Dodge, formerly of Hanover, Pa., and a very active publisher and dealer late in the '90s. He is located at Winsted-Salem, N. C., and an adlet in this number will give any of his old friends a chance to renew acquaintance with him.

—Francis Wheeler calls our attention to a rather self-evident error which occurred in our Hayti article October 29. The value of the gourde was given as one-fifth of a cent when it should have read dollar.

—Through the courtesy of F. W. Reid we have been shown specimens of some sketches by H. A. Grout, of Denver, Colo. If any of our advertisers need some drawings with which to embellish their copy we can recommend the talent of Mr. Grout, who is an active philatelist.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Report—In view of our recent request that brother editors forbear to publish references to any proposed new isues to celebrate coming events of varikinds in this country, particularly the 150th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence in 1926, we add, with the wish to save the heads of the post office department some little bother, that publishers secure confirmation of any news of the kind from the postal authorities before publishing it.

Mentor—We are particularly pleased to find that The Mentor, the monthly dedicated to instruction in its most interesting phases, has included philately in its curriculum. To the November issue, Mr. Richard Dean contributes a two-page article beautifully illustrated, which is based on the recent sale of the Ferrari collection. The informing narrative is headed, "$19,000 for 2 Two-Cent Stamps" and is certain to make the casual reader think that indeed "there is something in stamps."

* * *

Barred—From Mr. Wm. F. Goerner we have received an interesting cover bearing the postmark, "Philadelphia, Dec. 17, 1863, Pa.", and the three cent stamp of the 1857-60 issue, duly cancelled. The further impressions on the face of the envelope are interesting and read: "Old Stamp—Not Recognized" and "Due 6". The marking embodies a bit of postal history with which we are all familiar and that is, the demonetization of the 1857-60 issue upon the appearance of the 1861 set. On a cover enclosing a circular and mailed from New Orleans some years after the war, with a one cent of the 1857-60 issue was stamped: "Not valid for postage".

Medium—From a notice that has appeared in the newspaper press of England, we learn that it is proposed to capitalize the reverse side of the postage stamps as sold at the post office and sell it for advertising, in the manner made known by New Zealand years ago. We suppose that this concession will be valued most highly. We notice that the postmaster-general "does not bind himself to accept the highest or any tender".

* * *

Deaths—A number of deaths have deprived philately of men who have left an impress on philately. It is now several months since Seymour Morris, a prominent factor in Chicago's civic and financial circles passed away. Mr. Morris, who was the busiest of men, gave as much time as he possibly could to his collection of United States, that in some respects was among the best in the country; and we speak advisedly, having seen his albums some months before his death. Charles Doty, who was a member of the Engineers' Corps during the Spanish-American War, was retained in Cuba for some years as topographical photographer for the government. In 1904, he was ordered to Manila where he served four years before being recalled to Washington. In 1911, Mr. Doty was again sent to the Philippines, where he has been continuously, having left Manila only a year ago in search of health; and he died in Berkeley, California. Mr. Doty was an ardent philatelist and he was particularly interested in the issues of the Philippines; and in this connection, we wish to say that he was engaged in compiling from records to which he had access, authoritative information that he informed us would render insecure the position that some of the "special" issues Philippines now enjoy. From Mr. E. B. Sterling we learn of the death of Julius Adenaw of New York, an old collector, whose studies in revenue stamps are remembered by the readers of the stamp journals of twenty-five years ago. Mr. Adenaw was an early member of the American Philatelic Society and entered into the philatelic life of New York City in the days of his activity.

Change—One may as well admit as not that it is becoming almost impossible to follow closely the fluctuations in the market prices of early United States stamps, so sweeping and in a sense, sudden, are they. Already the prices in the new catalogue seem obsolete, we are told, by experts who follow keenly the market trend on these favorite stamps. As the revision of prices is constantly upward, we must assume that there is an irresistible demand that brooks no interference made by higher prices. We suspect that increased values are not effective in bringing out any considerable quantity of these early things, simply for the reason that there are no hidden stores of the stamps to be available. We hear some criticism about the "untoward" prices asked for prime early U. S. and one or two readers write as if we were to blame for the condition. Personally, we do not look upon a rapid rise with enthusiasm, even though we may have a paper profit in consequence. The dealers are not to be blamed for the jumps in prices of these stamps as they had no stocks of the stamps in question to exploit. When their holdings were exhausted, they had to pay correspondingly high prices to restock the stamps. Most of our thoughts on philately are in terms of the greatest good for the greatest number and under this consideration, price boosts, sharp and sudden, get no applause from us.

Orient—We have been receiving some interesting news from the east. The resumption of the sale of the U. S. stamps with the Shanghai surcharge at the American post office in Shanghai has been commented upon by several of the Chinese newspapers. With favorable exchange rates, the stamps will be continued on sale but with a drop in exchange, the stamps will be withdrawn again. The Japanese issue of four stamps in commemoration of the return to Japan of the Crown Prince from his recent trip to Europe has already occasioned heartburnings and again criticism is heard about how some of the values of recent sets of commemorative stamps of Japan have been manipulated t disadvantage of the collector. No interest will attach to the issue of stamps to celebrate the twenty-fifth iversary of the establishment of Chinese Imperial Post. The centra sign will be that of the presider China.

Starts—The philatelic literature lectors' society, concerning the desi ity of the organization of which we had much to say at different tim the past will soon be launched unde administration of Mr. A. H. Pik Buffalo, who never seems to wear well-doing in a philatelic sense. W glad that the urgings of Hill and of the other sentimentalists are recognized; and the support of all who have a corner in their regar the printed annals of collecting s help the society to make a name f self.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP JOSEPH V. K. WELLS, Manager. BURNT HILLS, N. Y.

A LAY OF THE PEELABLE HINGE.

I trill this lay—'tis new, I ween,
How Percy found the Penny Green;
Corralled the prize he'd chased so long
Amid the haunts where dealers throng.
For weary months his queries vain
Had met with nought but "Come again."
Some dubbed him fey—"Loose tile," one said—
Or wished him far, not overhead.
But Percy steered an even keel,
Like Dreadnought stout bedight in steel.
There came a day—we've heard him tell
(A halo did become him well!)—
How in the folds of Booklet Three
He spied the gem, full mint, O. G.
At least the wight who owned the Lot
Averred it so—terms cash and spot.
Blithe Percy then—his surname Jones—
Did chant "Pip, pip," in dulcet tones,
And hornpipes flung he, pas de seul,
But hush! don't tell tales out of school.
That rhyme's not sound, I do declare,
Nor this one, too, but c'est la guerre.
However—
He peeped above, he peeped below—
Condition good did surface show.
Pink gum, full perfs, chalk coating, too,
(A fish-knife proved the last-named true).
With tweezers cold he gave a tweeze,
A tug, a heave—crescendo, please—
A mighty jerk, a tearing sound—
It gave, and Jones span round and round,
Bearing the prize aloft, unbent,
But, sad to say, with fearsome rent.
And riven page showed fierce—Great Scott!
Best "peelers" they? Certainly not.
Sad Percy next the "split" o'erturned,
On it the gaze of Cheavin* burned,
The serried humps of hinges three
Spread their full inch—oh, agony!
The limpet's grasp—no, not in it—
Best "peelers" beat him every minute.
The problem now was to replace
The gem, and eke to save his face.
But Percy saw with bated breath
And cheeks whose hue resembled death
The legend stern—or was it flu?—
"All stamps removed . . It's up to you."
My story ends. Remember this,
An A-1 stamp's a thing of bliss.
Note this, all ye whose ways are slack:
That every front must have a back.

THE CHINESE POSTAL SERVICE COMMEMORATIVES.

By E. G. YOUNG.

There was put on sale October 10th (which is the Chinese "Fourth of July") a very interesting little set of commemorative stamps in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the Chinese postal service. In point of fact, the stamps were due some months ago, but the reason for the delay is due to uncertainties concerning one of the portraits appearing as a part of the design. In fact, it has been believed that the stamps would never be issued for this reason. The issue consists of four values of the same shape and size as the familiar revolutionary commemoratives of 1912. The values are 1c (orange), 3c (blue green), 6c (gray), 10c (dark blue), the colors corresponding to the same denominations of the regular issue. One cent is the local letter rate, three cents the general domestic rate, six cents the double rate, and ten cents the foreign rate. The reason for issuing the six is that under the famine surcharge, the registry fee is six cents, though normally five cents. It is noteworthy in this connection that the Chinese stamps use postal union colors to correspond with the denomination rather than the rate.

The three portraits are those of the President Hsu Shih Chang, fifth president of the republic, who took office in 1918: Chin Yung Peng, the Premier and formerly concurrently Minister of War and Yeh Kung Chow. Mr. Yeh was Minister of Communications when the issue was planned, but resigned his position in May of this year. He made a fine record for constructive achievement during his brief tenure of the position, and though not in office yet remains one of the most influential political figures in the country, and a forerunner of better things in Chinese politics.

It has been generally understood that the number issued of these stamps would be sufficient to go around "and then some", the shortage of certain values at some offices early gave rise to suspicion that the Japanese plan was being followed. I had to go to three offices today to get a full set, but the main office had plenty, even though it was almost a riot inside—with speculators buying them in ten and twenty sheet lots.

The design shows three portraits of equal size, that of Yeh Kung Chow being tangent to the left and lower edges of the design, that of the Premier tangent to the right and lower edges, and that of the President between and above the other two, with the denomination below it in figures in "cent" or "cents". The denomination in Chinese characters is in circular tablets in the upper corners reading "one cent", "three cents", "six cents" and "one dime". An arched label above the president's head bears the Chinese characters reading (in Mandarin) "Chung Hua Yu Cheng Kai Pan Ehr-shih-wu nien chi-tze nien"—that is "China Postal Service Foundation Twenty-five Years Anniversary" to make the translation as literal as possible.

It will be recalled that the old imperial government celebrated the taking over of the postal service from the customs by surcharging all of the stamps of former issues in sight (with denominations in candareens) with new values in cents. The postal service has consistently improved under a series of capable foreign Postal Commissioners, until today it is efficient, far-reaching, reasonably rapid as speed in this part of the world goes, and cheap. The Chinese postman in his slouchy green padded clothes is a far cry from our grey-coat at home, but you get your mail, and that is the main thing. In fact, while we foreigners would hate to have them abolished, still the foreign postal agencies no longer belong here, for their need is a thing of the past.

UNITED STATES.—While I realize that much has been written regarding the grills on the United States issues from 1867 to 1873 there is much more known to some few that should be made available to the large number of interested collectors. Even experts are in doubt at times as to the genuineness of certain grills. These remarks are occasioned by the fact that I recently was talking to Mr. John A. Klemann on the subject and he brought out one of the volumes from the Crawford collection showing impressions from three of the four known grill rollers.

It seems that at the time the engravers were experimenting with this method of preventing the cleaning of postage stamps, as covered by the Steel patent, four rollers were made. The first one resembled the roller on the old fashioned music box and, by the way, it was from the music box that Steel got his idea. This roller perforated the entire stamp by little pin punches arranged without any great regularity. Stamps from this roll were never placed in use as far as we know although the variety is available as an essay. This roller as well as the other three were made to grill the sheet all over. We have no way of telling the order in which the other three rollers were made and consequently it is not to be assumed that the order in which I describe them is correct.

The second roller which like the first was made to grill a sheet of 100 stamps at the time. This roller when impressed shows the points of the grill as small faint squares not cutting the paper and is what is known as the essay roller. Many of the 3c grilled all over unused now in collections have this grill and they are nothing more than essays which should rank with the music box grill, for a used copy has never been found. It was this very roller that was later cut down and used to make the experimental grills on the Continental stamps of 1873.

The third roll which grilled 200 stamps at a time was the only roller ever used to grill stamps all over. Copies of the 3c, 5c and 30c exist grilled all over the back from this roll. After this had been used for a while it was later cut down to 13 x 16 and then to 11 x 13. The stamps grilled all over were printed after the paper had received the grilling, hence the shades always vary from the ungrilled variety. It is, therefore, difficult or, in fact, impossible, to fake a grilled all over stamp that will pass inspection.

In the case of the fourth roll, this was cut down before it was used to emboss sheets all over and consequently stamps are not known grilled all over with this impression either in the form of an essay or the issued stamp. The first cutting was to 18 x 15 and later to 12 x 14.

The last two rolls were then cut to 9 x 13, the common grill of the series. Some of the grills vary in size giving us what appear to be other sizes but these are due to slight variations of the 200 grills upon the roller or to the fact that when they began to wear they were not always properly impressed. The grill points from one roller, Mr. Klemann pointed out were so cut in trimming it down that the impression on two stamps forming a vertical pair were connected by points that had not been entirely cleaned away and consequently a stamp from this portion of the sheet would appear to have a grill differing in size from any of the others.

It would well pay someone to start where Stevenson left off and with this new material on grills available give us a reference work that would set us all straight. This can be done at this time, a couple years hence, and the material may not be available.

The Nassau Stamp Company also call my attention to the fact that the dandy roll being used in connection with the current revenue stamps has a defective letter upon it resulting in one of the letters "R" printing as an "I". As a result a strip of the current series may be obtained watermarked "U S I I" instead of "U S I R." The sheet which was shown me was the 1c blue proprietary, the northwest pane from plate No. 6778 and the variety occurred in but one place.

1921 Wmk. "U S I I"

1c blue, Proprietary.

Mr. F. R. Demmerly writes to inform me that mail being received from many of the large centers of the country bear the 2c engraved stamps. Readers have possibly noticed from the recent published lists of plate numbers that the Bureau is fast making headway in engraving new 2c plates and it seems only a question of a short time now before they will be able to discontinue the surface printing.

Mr. Benj. Cadbury has shown me a letter received by his firm mailed from Bellefont, Pa., and showing a rubber stamp mark consisting of a winged concentric circle in which we find "Via U S Air Mail". This is the first I have seen of such a mark but cannot say if it is official or not.

A few more provisional 2c on 3c envelopes to add to our growing list which is fast reaching 1500 varieties. We wish to thank Messrs. R. H. Mason, E. C. Brown and C. L. Young for the following.

COURTESY AT THE STAMP WINDOW.

By H. I. Phillips.

(The Postmaster General, urging more courtesy by postal clerks, cites letters from several citizens, including one from a New York man, lauding a stamp clerk for saying "Thank you" to him.—News Item.)

Postal clerks have gotta be more polite. That's all there is to it. It's the two-cent-stamp-salesman-with-the-smile who wins.

Much of the depression in this country today, much of the sadness in the home, two-thirds of the grouchiness in business is due to the failure of the stamp clerks to be kind and gentle to the cash customers.

* * *

The ideal post office clerk should smile broadly, show at least three gold teeth (any clerk not having three gold teeth should notify the government at once), rub his hands together as the customer approaches, and greet him with a cheery, "Ah, good morning, sir! What an altogether delightful morning it is, in point of fact. One of nature's best efforts, eh, what?"

* * *

A few moments should be allowed here for the cordiality to sink in. Then the clerk should take his choice of the following follow-up lines:

1. "You're looking extremely well sir."
2. "By George, but you've a ruddy glow this morning."
3. "Well, how did the outcome of the World's Series suit you?"

* * *

Do not allow the customer at the stamp window to state his business before you have warmed him up properly. Few things depress a man more when he is bent upon purchasing two "twos" than an abrupt getting down to business.

* * *

Show a little salesmanship here. The clerk should by this time have the customer ripe for a killing. Just how to launch into the delicate matter of a sale is a matter of judgment, but promotion experts recommend these lines to all stamp clerks:

1. "Can't I show you our new line of two-cent stamps?"
2. "I've just got in our full line of postal cards."
3. "Would you be interested in some real bargains in special delivery stamps?"

* * *

By this time the customer should have reached a stage where he is quite overcome by the show of courteous attention. In fact, he should be inclined to spend the day in the gracious atmosphere of the stamp window rather than go to business at all. Then is the time to invite him inside or offer him a comfortable chair at the stamp window.

* * *

Certainly the customer should now have decided how many stamps he desires. The clerk should wrap them up carefully and inquire if he wants to take them with him or have them sent. Upon ascertaining this he should ask if he desires coupons, explaining that with every 10,000 coupons the government gives four manila envelopes.

* * *

The customer should not feel snubbed if the clerk passes on to the next patrol at this point. As he turns to leave the window, however, the clerk would do well to suddenly ask: "Oh, just a minute! Will you have a cigar?"

* * *

This is where the catch comes in. If the customer says, "No, thank you", all will be well. If, however, he should say, "I don't care if I do," it will be up to the clerk to make good.

* * *

In case the clerk has no cigars he should assure the customer that word of his willingness to accept a cigar will be forwarded to Washington. Congress will distribute the cigar with the spring allotment of free seeds.

(Note.—The customer may smoke the cigar or the seeds, as he prefers.)—Philada. Enquirer.

DISCONTINUED.

Dear Sir:

Owing to my continued ill health, I regret to inform you that I am compelled to relinquish my New Issue Service of British Colonial stamps, and that the last distribution will take place about the middle of November. After this distribution any credit balance due to subscribers will be returned immediately.

I also wish to take this opportunity to thank all my clients for the esteemed patronage extended to me for a great number of years and trust that the closing of my New Issue Service will not put them to any great inconvenience.

I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,
Hugo Griebert.

CHARM OF UNITED STATES STAMPS.

SYMPOSIUM.

Appreciation of the charm of United States stamps is world-wide. At the invitation of the Philatelic Magazine some of the foremost U. S. specialists this side of the Atlantic have set down the reasons which cause them to favour these stamps above all others.

The views they express will, we believe, be read with interest and endorsed to the full by every lover of the postage stamps of the United States.—EDITOR P. M.

Sir Nicholas Waterhouse, K.B.E., F.R.P.S.L. (London), Author of "A Comprehensive Catalogue of the Postage Stamps of U.S.A.", etc.

There may, of course, be many countries whose stamps provide as fascinating a field for specialisation as those of the United States of America, but, though for many years a general collector, I have always found the stamps of that country appealed to me more than the whole of the rest of my collection.

In the first place, there is much to be said from the artistic point of view. Other countries, especially in their early issues, have certainly produced stamps that are most pleasing in design, execution and colour, and perhaps in these respects the first 1d and 2d stamps of Great Britain may still claim to hold the field against all comers. I think, however, that most collectors will admit that, for artistic quality and general excellence of production, the whole series of the issues of the United States of America stand in a class of their own, while certain individual items, such as the 24c of 1857 and the 5c of 1861, have evoked unqualified admiration even outside the ranks of collectors.

Then again, the study of the stamps of the United States of America covers every branch of Philately. To form a collection of the general issues, complete with Premiere Gravures, special printings and errors, is a feat that but few, if any, have achieved, and, with the Postmaster Stamps, Carriers and Locals, the task is colossal even for the multi-millionaire

The fact, however, that some of the very scarce minor varieties, re-entries and special printings may still be "picked up" acts as a strong incentive to those who consider the financial aspect of their hobby, and, with a certain amount of luck, renders it possible for collectors of moderate means to make a showing that compares favourably with that of the philatelist to whom money is no object.

As to the collection of stamps on original covers, and of scarce postmarks, the United States of America, with its official and semi-official carrier systems, its steam-boat and railway cancellations, to say nothing of its postal disorganisation during the Civil War, affords an almost unlimited field for the enthusiast in this branch of Philately.

In conclusion, for those advanced specialists who not only desire single copies, but pairs, strips and blocks, also, there is an opportunity for "plating" such as is afforded perhaps by no other country. For instance, even among the Postmaster Stamps the sheet of 12 Providence may be reconstructed with but little trouble or serious expense, as may also the black "Horseman" of the carrier issues. The popular 5c New York is somewhat more elusive, and it requires a long purse to complete St. Louis in the various stages of its plates. I have also heard that the plating of the Brattleboro stamp is an interesting and amusing study, though with copies now at about £300 a piece it may be rather uphill work for the average collector! On the other hand there is plenty of material available for studying the plate varieties of some of the early general issues of which pairs and strips though daily becoming scarcer, are still obtainable.

N. WATERHOUSE

M. Adolphe Lang (Bordeaux), leading specialist in United States issues in France. Discoverer of New York Postmaster Stamp with "Paid" cancellation.

As an ardent collector and lover of postage stamps of the classical type, I have specialised for the past twenty years in a few countries, both of the Old and New World, amongst which the stamps of the United States have played a most prominent part. In glancing through a few pages of classical issues prior to 1870, it would be difficult to discover a field which provides such an immense scope of detail and beauty, as is to be found in the stamps of the United States of America

The exquisitely engraved heads of Franklin, Washington and Jefferson, appeal to the philatelic mind as the beautiful work of one of the famous old masters, and some of the engravings executed by Rawdon, Wright Hatch & Edson, of New York, and other prominent firms in Boston, Cincinnati and Philadelphia are indeed well worthy of being styled works of art.

In fact the collector of these stamps has an unlimited scope for specializing, either by commencing with the issues subsequent to the promulgation of the law of March, 1847, or the local and Postmasters' stamps prior to that date. The work of research, particularly of the issue of these stamps up to 1870 is so extensive, that a well laid-out specialized collection may easily absorb many years of patient labour and scientific collecting to satisfy the ambitions of the Specialist. The United States in later years have made a feature of contributing to the historical side of collecting by the issue of beautifully designed specimens representing the commemoration of events, such as the issue of 1893 embodying the history of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, or the issue of the Panama-American Exhibition in Buffalo in May, 1901, the Trans-Mississippi Exhibition of 1898, etc., and last but not least, the well-designed memorial stamp in commemoration of the discovery of the Hudson, by H. Hudson, in 1609, and its first use for steam navigation by R Fulton, in 1807. In my opinion, therefore, the United States have contributed to the Philatelic World, not only stamps of beauty in themselves, but have embodied the historical part in such a manner as must appeal not only to philatelists, but also to all lovers of art.

A. LANG.

Mr. George Monro (London), owner of the celebrated "Monro" collection of United States stamps.

Commencing as a general collector thirty years ago, and later wishing to specialize only in a few countries, I unhesitatingly chose the stamps of the United States as one, the reason being that I have always found the great variety of design and the beautiful shades of colouring, in addition to the various plates, papers, and printings, make them at all times most interesting. The secret markings, and finally the vast array of distinctive postmarks, give the collecting of these stamps a great fascination right from the "beginner" stage through to that of the ultra-specialist.

GEO. MONRO.

Mr. J. Coltman (Newcastle-on-Tyne), a Vice-President of the North of England Philatelic Society, whose collection of U.S.A. was a feature of the Newcastle Stamp Exhibition 1920.

My reason for favouring the stamps of U.S. are chiefly their beauty (till recently) of design, their fine workmanship from the engraving point of view, and their beautiful colouring. Also the scope they offer for either moderate or advanced specialization, and the great difficulty there is in getting really superb, well-centred copies of even the commoner stamps in used condition.

I like something that has a bit of difficulty attached to it for collecting, and they are worse than English stamps in this respect, especially in the centering.

JAMES COLTMAN.

Mr. A. Leon Adutt, J.P., F.R.P.S.L. (Margate), President Thanet Philatelic Society and owner of fine specialised collection of U.S.A. and Confederate States.

The reason that I favour the stamps of the U.S.A. and specialise in the same, is because in the first place, the engraving is of such a handsome nature, and the many designs so artistic and interesting, combined with the vast field that is still open for research work, that I consider it in advance of many other countries.

The varieties in the different issues and denominations present an attractive feature that strongly appeals to me, and undoubtedly possesses a charm over most countries, where the issues frequently repeat the same head or design.

A. LEON ADUTT.

LOST AND FOUND

The 1914 issue of Liberia en route to Monrovia, Liberia, on a German steamer, reported sunk by the British, has been found and is now in use. Captured December, 1914, just before reaching Monrovia, it was interned in Freetown, Sierra Leone, and held by the British until March, 1921.

Due to present negotiations between the United States and Liberia and the predicted outcome of same. Liberian stamps manifestly will be of greater interest to American collectors. We are advised that the European custom of "cancelling to order" (which has been done by the printers against the wishes of the Liberian Government) has been discontinued.

These novel designs and unique color schemes far surpass anything issued in many years.

I offer the following, mint and fine:

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH.

For many years the "Island Continent" of Australia was represented in our albums by the numerous issues of its five separate colonies. Settlement had been begun with a penal colony at Botany Bay, not far from the present city of Sydney, about 1788, followed by others along the eastern coast. Afterwards the territory was thrown open to settlement by free men, so that it grew gradually to colonial proportions. The eastern section of the continent had been named "New South Wales" by Captain Cook in 1770, and was known by this name until it was restricted by setting off Victoria as a separate colony in 1851, and Queensland likewise in 1859. South and West Australia never had any early political connection with New South Wales.

Philatelic history, of course, began with the issue of the embossed letter sheet for the city of Sydney in 1838, but adhesive stamps were not issued until 1850, when both New South Wales and Victoria began to use them. West Australia followed in 1854, South Australia in 1855, and Queensland in 1860.

It was but natural, as time went on, that these colonies of a common origin, race and interests, should consider combining for mutual advancement and political advantage but no definite movement for their union was made until 1891, when a National Convention assembled at Sydney to formulate plans for a Commonwealth. It was not until 1897, however, that a Constitutional Convention met and actually drew up an instrument which should serve as a basis for the united colonies, to which the island colony of Tasmania was added. The constitution was submitted to the several colonies, was ratified by them and approved by the Imperial Parliament in London, and was formally promulgated on January 1, 1901, when the Commonwealth of Australia was born.

Among the powers reserved to the Federal Government was naturally that of operating the posts, telegraphs and telephones of the country, and it was expected that a unified series of postage stamps would immediately take the place of the separate State issues. But with the procrastination that has seemed to enter so much into the working of the new nation, the Commonwealth stamps became a veritable "will-o'-the-wisp," and the separate State issues continued their usual course. Only in 1903 was a half-hearted attempt made to start a "Commonwealth" design by the issue of a 9 pence stamp bearing this legend, but with the names of New South Wales and Queensland inserted for these two States respectively, since each State was keeping its own postal accounts. The other four States did not use the design.

But although no Federal postage stamps were forthcoming, it was decided that all the States of the Commonwealth should collect postage due by means of stamps. Only two of the States, New South Wales and Victoria, were using this system. Victoria's postage due stamps were bi-colored and had the name prominently displayed; New South Wales', on the other hand, were of one color and had only the initials "N. S. W." rather inconspicuously at the bottom. The latter were therefore taken, the initials erased, and lo, the first issue of the Australian Commonwealth in the shape of makeshift postage due stamps! These appeared in 1902 and were used in all the States except Victoria, which continued to employ its own design. Eight of the ten values of the New South Wales set were issued with the blank space at the bottom where the initials had been erased, viz.: ½, 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 8 pence and 5 shillings. New dies were soon made, however, in which the blank space was filled in with lined groundwork to match the rest of the design, 5 and 10 pence stamps, as well as 1, 2, 10 and 20 shilling values were added, and the whole set was completed by 1904.

Up to 1906 these postage due stamps bore the regular New South Wales watermark of a large crown and the letters "N S W," as they were manufactured at the Government Printing Office in Sydney. In 1905, however, a further step toward Federal postage stamps was taken by introducing a common watermark for all State issues. Thus we find the postage due stamps appearing in 1906 with a crown and single lined "A" for a watermark, the ½, 1, 2, 3, 4 and 6 pence being so issued; but in 1907 another form, being a large crown with a doubled-lined "A," took the place of the previous type and the ½, 1, 2, 4 and 6 pence were issued on this new watermark, which was the type used at Melbourne to print the Victoria stamps upon and was borrowed by Sydney because of a shortage of paper. The 3, 5, 8 and 10 pence stamps were dropped. In 1909 the 1, 2, 5, 10 and 20 shilling stamps appeared with the 1906 watermark, doubtless explained by their having been printed at the same time the pence values were, but not issued until the shilling values of the 1902-4 series had run out. They were not in use for long, however, as the design of the Victoria postage due stamp, with the name at the bottom changed to "Australia," was adopted for the entire Commonwealth, including Victoria, in 1909, and the full set, watermark with the large crown and double-lined "A," has been in use since that time, this set being printed at Melbourne, where all the Commonwealth stamp printing has since been done.

Meanwhile some progress had been made toward a Federal issue of regular postage stamps, and it was finally announced that on January 1, 1911, with the end of the ten year "bookkeeping" period during which the several States had kept separate postal accounts since the formation of the Commonwealth, the current issues of the States would be overprinted "Australia" and become interchangeable and valid for the prepayment of postal charges in any part of the Commonwealth. The idea of the overprint was given up, however, but it was announced in the Federal House of Representatives on October 13, 1910, that the stamps of any State were thenceforth good for postal or telegraph charges indiscriminately within the Commonwealth. This really made of all the stamps then in current use in the six States the first Commonwealth issue.

Local postage in Australia had been two-pence for single rate letters, and agitation had aimed at "penny postage" for a long time. At last this boom was granted on May 1, 1911, from which date a letter weighing not over half an ounce could be sent throughout Australia, to Great Britain, or to any of the British colonies included within the "Imperial Penny Postage" scheme for one penny. This caused the surcharging down to "ONE PENNY" of large remaining stocks of 2 pence stamps in Victoria, West Australia and Tasmania in 1912.

Meanwhile the authorities had instituted a contest for designs for a proposed uniform series of Federal stamps. Some four hundred designs were submitted, and £150 of prize money was distributed, but the Postmaster-General, Mr. Frazer, was evidently a hard man to please, and he had a Melbourne artist, Mr. Blamire Young, prepare a series of designs. On April 1, 1912, (mark the day!) Mr. Frazer announced that he had selected the design for the Federal stamps, which was understood to be of his own making. Unmitigated ridicule was heaped upon the poverty-stricken design when it was made public, but this did not alter the Postmaster-General's intentions, and the map and kangaroo stamp was issued to the Australian public on January 2, 1913 (New Year's Day being a public holiday). Only the 1 penny stamp appeared at first, on account of delay in receiving the watermarked paper from England. The other values soon followed, however.

But the Labor Party, to which Mr. Frazer belonged, was turned out of power; the Liberals came in and made only 1,200,000 were stated to have been printed from the engraved plates. They were perforated 11 by a single-line machine, as the comb machine of 12 gauge for the "kangaroo" stamps did not fit the new ones. It is stated, that on account of the limited issue only six copies were sold to a person; but a second lot of the same number was printed and put on sale in February, 1914.

Meanwhile, plates for printing the stamp typographically, because cheaper, were being prepared, and the Stamp in this new form was issued in June, 1914, perforated 14. About the first of September, 1914, the second engraved stamp of the proposed new series was issued, being the 6 pence with a picture of the "kookaburra" or "laughing jackass" upon a branch. It was perforated 11, like the engraved 1 penny, and is stated to have been issued to the number of 1,200,000. On January 6, 1915, a 4 pence, surface printed, in the design of the 1 penny, appeared unheralded; and the ½ penny and 5 pence appeared on February 23d and 24th respectively. In November, 1918, a 1½ penny was issued, and in 1920 a 2 pence and a 1 shilling and 4 pence likewise appeared in the King's head design.

The above King's head stamps were printed on a paper watermarked with a "wide crown and narrow A." and during 1915 some of the kangaroo stamps were printed on this paper because of scarcity of the watermarked paper that fitted them, owing to war conditions. New paper for the kangaroo stamps was finally provided, but the watermark had been altered a little and is known as the "narrow crown and narrow A." This latter is the paper that the kangaroo stamps are now printed on, except that the 3 pence as well as the ½, 1 and 1½ penny King's head stamps have recently been printed on a multiple "wide crown and narrow A" watermark, which we suppose will eventually be used for the whole series.—New England Stamp Monthly.

SOVIET SAVINGS STAMPS.

A local banking house doing a large foreign business just received a letter from a Petrograd correspondent— the first received from Russia in several months. The letter bore five Russian postal savings stamps, each of the denomination of one kopec, which is the hundredth part of a ruble.

Now, there is no more security behind the Soviet savings stamps than there is behind the paper rubles, but ordinary postage stamps having become exhausted and no more available, the savings stamps have been made valid for postage.

As the transportation of a letter in a country such as Russia is today a valuable service, this gives the savings stamps a worth for postage that they do not possess as a security, which they were originally intended to be.

Thus, the correspondent states in his letter that he paid 1,000 paper rubles, or 100,000 paper kopecs, for each of the one kopec postal savings stamps.—Wall Street Journal.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1606 to 1610 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

BRITISH HONDURAS, 1902-1921.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

CHAPTER I.

Historical.

British Honduras, on the coast of Central America, has an area of 8598 square miles, and a population of 43,368, only three-fifths of whom speak English. Its coast line of some 180 miles, extends from Yucatan on the north to Guatemala on the south. Belize, on the river of the same name, is the capital and chief town, with 12,000 inhabitants. The notorious buccaneer, Wallis, was the first Englishman to settle on the Belize river, to which he gave his name. The Spaniards called the river Walis, which the corrupting influence of time has softened to Belize.

On May 10, 1497, a fleet of four caravels sailed from Cadiz, Spain, with Pinzon and Solis as captain and pilot respectively, and Vespucius as astronomer. Their landfall was near Cape Honduras on the northern coast of Honduras (near the present town of Trujillo), in late June, 1497. Sailing to the west, they skirted the coast of British Honduras, rounded Yucatan, and following the coast line of the Gulf, passed between Florida and Cuba. In June, 1498, they reached the Chesapeake Bay, where the boats were beached and repaired. The Indians whom they found here were very friendly, and sought their aid. From time to time, cannibals who lived some leagues out at sea, descended on the coast in canoes, and carried off captives. The fleet set sail for Spain in August, 1498, and guided by some of these friendly Indians, they stopped at the Bermudas, where the cannibals were attacked, and many killed and taken prisoners. A score or more were carried captive back to Spain, and sold as slaves.

Columbus was the next visitor to the northern coast of Honduras, but it is doubtful if he ever was on the coast of British Honduras. He set out on his fourth voyage on May 11, 1502, and his landfall was at practically the same spot as the earlier expedition,—i.e., near Cape Honduras. From here he sailed to the east, and rounding Cape Gracias a Dios, kept on to the south to Darien.

About 1638, adventurers from Jamaica, attracted by the logwood and mahogany in the country, settled at St. George's Cay. The Spaniards in Yucatan nearby made many attempts to drive them out, the last being in 1798, when General O'Neill, Governor of Yucatan, in command of a fleet and 2000 men, attacked the settlers at St. George's Cay. After a desperate fight the Spaniards were defeated on September 10, 1798, a day which is still celebrated throughout the Colony. Following this, forts were built, and the settlers were never again molested.

Until 1786 the settlers managed their own affairs, electing yearly one of their number to act as magistrate. Subsequently, however, a Superintendent appointed by the Home Government, administered affairs, and these were regularly appointed until the settlement was declared a Colony, and a Lieutenant-Governor subordinate to the Governor of Jamaica, appointed in 1862. In 1870, at the request of the Legislative Assembly, the Colony was made a Crown Colony, and in 1884 its connection with Jamaica, which had been purely nominal for some years, ceased. Since then Governors have been appointed by the Colonial Office, the present appointee being Eyre Hutson, formerly Colonial Secretary of Fiji Islands.

CHAPTER II.

King Edward VII, Single Watermark, 1902-1904.

When Queen Victoria died in January, 1901, there were in Belize large stocks of postage stamps of all values save the 10c. A supply of this denomination was needed, and as the new plates embodying the head of King Edward VII were not yet in readiness, it was necessary to make a printing from the Victorian keyplate, Postage and Revenue, numbered 3. This stamp was issued in October, 1901.

The 5c from the Victorian keyplate number 3, which had been issued in October, 1900, began to run low early in 1902, and a further quantity was requisitioned. For this printing the new King Edward keyplate was used, and the 5c gray black and blue on blue, was issued at Belize in October, 1902. In the following month, the 2c appeared, printed in purple and black on red. No further varieties were added until April, 1902, when the 1c gray green and green, and the 20c dull and bright purple, made appearance. All four values were comb perforated 14, and printed on Crown and C A watermarked paper.

SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D. C.

The four values of this series were printed from the De La Rue stock keyplate numbered 1, which consisted of 120 subjects, 2 panes of 60 each (ten rows of six each), side by side, with a narrow gutter between. The plate number, which is a large uncolored figure 1 on a solid circle of color enclosed by a thin colored circle, appears four times to the sheet, above the 2nd and 5th stamps of the left and right panes respectively, and under the corresponding stamps in the lower row. Around each pane is a continuous Jubilee marginal line, which, with the plate number, is a part of the keyplate, and of course printed in the color of the keyplate.

For the 1c, 2c and 5c stamps the same duty plates were used as for the Queen's head series (consisting of colored numerals on a plain ground), but for the 20c, a new value to the series, a new duty plate was made,, in which the value appeared in colorless figures on a horizontally lined tablet.

In the 5c denomination an interesting variety occurs. On the 4th stamp of the first horizontal row of each pane (showing that the overprint plate was of but 60 subjects, and therefore that two applications were necessary to complete a sheet of 120 stamps) there is a larger and thinner "C", and a larger dot, than on other stamps of the sheet. It is quite probable that some accident to the overprint plate occurred between the last printing of the Queen's head stamp and the first printing of the King's head stamp, necessitating the insertion of a fresh letter "C" and dot on the 4th subject of the stereo.

The present keyplate system of stamp printing was introduced by De La Rue in 1888, and was designed to meet the requirements of Colonies requiring stamps in small quantities.

Three keyplates were made, one for Postage purposes only, a second for Revenue purposes only, and a third for Postage and Revenue combined. Any Colony requiring an issue of stamps had only to purchase an overprint plate (which embodied the name of the Colony and the denomination), and this would fit any one or all three of the keyplates, thus obviating the expense of special dies and plates being manufactured for each issue or denomination. These keyplates De La Rue furnished free of charge for all Colonies desiring to make use of them.

The system is especially desirable where small quantities of stamps are required.

The original keyplates (known as D. L. R. 1888) embodied the head of Queen Victoria. Following her death in 1901, the design was altered to include the head of King Edward VII, facing the left, on a plain ground of color, instead of a horizontally lined ground as in the Victorian design. The King's head was enclosed in an octagonal frame surmounted by a Crown. "Postage" and "& Revenue" in colorless letters, appear at the left and right of the design, respectively,—the lower corners being filled with conventional scroll ornamentation.

Since 1891, British Honduras has used De La Rue keyplates—at first the "Postage—Postage" keyplate for values up to 25c inclusive, with "Postage & Revenue" for the higher values, 50c to $5. The 5c and 10c stamps added in 1900 and 1901, in the Victorian design, were from the latter plate.

CHAPTER III.

King Edward VII, Multiple Watermark, 1904-1905.

Early in 1904 British Colonial Stamps commenced to appear on a paper having a new form of watermark. This had the same device as before (Crown and C A) repeated close together over the entire surface of the paper, so that portions of several watermarks were to be found in the space formerly occupied by one. Instead of there being 60 watermarks to a pane of 60 stamps, there were with the new, almost four times that number; hence, the term "multiple watermark".

In December, 1904, the 2c appeared on the new paper, followed by the 1c and 5c at an interval of some months. The 1c and 2c first appeared on ordinary paper, but later supplies came with the chalk surfacing (about 1907). Chalk surfaced paper was introduced to prevent the cleaning of cancelled copies, and stamps on this paper have generally a rubbed or washed-out appearance. The 5c came only on the surface paper, and the large "C" variety appears as before, once to each pane of 60 stamps.

In 1907, the series was finally completed by the addition of six higher values, 10c, 25c, 50c, $1, $2 and $5, all of which were printed on chalk surfaced paper. De La Rue keyplate 1 was used, and the same duty plates, for adding the values, as for the preceding Victorian series. The duty plates for the 10c, 25c and 50c had the numerals colorless on a horizontally lined ground, while the dollar values were the reverse, in color on a plain ground.

After five years of constant use, De La Rue keyplate 1 began to show signs of wear, and stamps printed subsequent to 1907, show the inner frame line of the name tablet broken at the top right corner. The flaw occurs on stamps 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12 and 28 of the left pane, and 1 and 2 of the right pane. It is also found on stamps of other Colonies printed from this plate during the same period; i.e., Cayman Islands, Leeward Islands, St. Lucia, etc.

On May 30, 1908, the General Post Office at Belize was destroyed by fire, and in it all records, as well as stamp stocks held there. However, the surplus

TO SHOW WHAT CAN BE DONE

The other day we visited the type founders' to make a few purchases and chanced to go into the shipping room. We know what to look for in shipping rooms, and we struck it rich here. Precancels! You said it! On one counter was an assortment of empty cartons with Jersey City precans and we glommed onto them pronto. Most of them sevens, nines, elevens and thirties. Better yet, both five and twenty cent double print. Of course you have to be right with the shipping clerk, but Philatelists have a way of getting around

Such occurrences are part of the every-day life of the alert precancel collector. What he cannot acquire by work or strategy he buys from us. We have the stock.

CHAPTER IV.

King Edward VII, Universal Colors, 1908-1911.

In 1908 the Crown Agents' color scheme for postage stamps was adopted by British Honduras, and further printings were made in line therewith. This scheme embodied the recommendation of the Washington Convention of the Universal Postal Union that all stamps of the face values of ½d, 1d and 2½d should be printed in green, red and blue respectively.

The first stamp to appear was the 2c carmine, which was placed on sale December 7, 1908, followed by the 5c ultramarine in June, 1909, and the 1c blue green in July, 1910. All three values were printed from the same head plate 1, and duty plates as before. It follows that the larger "C" continues for the 5c, and that the broken frame varieties are present in all three values.

King Edward VII died on May 6, 1910, and while the 25c black on green was not issued until November, 1911, the new plates with the head of King George V were not yet available. De La Rue's plate 2, King Edward type, was used for this printing, which plate produced sheets of 240 stamps, four panes of 60 each. There are four marginal plate numbers as for plate 1, in the same positions as before, but only in the top margin of the two upper panes, and lower margin of the two lower panes. The sheets of 240 were cut up into Post Office sheets of 120 stamps (2 panes of 60, side by side), before being sent out to the Colony.

MUTILATION OF WAR SAVING STAMPS CRIME.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Removal of a war savings stamp from the certificate upon which it was issued constitutes a crime, the supreme court held Monday. The question arose in the federal district court at New York where the government failed in its effort to convict Paul Sacks of purchasing certificates and removing the stamps. The government contended this was an alteration of a government security prohibited by the laws against counterfeiting.—H. W. BOERS.

THOS. GORMAN & BRO.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

Green—1c—Black.

This firm appears in the New England Business Directory for 1865 at Westville, Connecticut, which is a village nestling at the foot of West Rock just outside the City line of New Haven, on the banks of a small stream called West River. The firm appears in the Connecticut Business Directories and the New Haven City Directories from 1866 to 1875, usually under the title given, but occasionally simply as Thomas Gorman. In the Directories for 1876-77 the business is listed as "Estate of Thomas Gorman" and there is also reference to Mrs. Thomas Gorman in 1877 and 1879. Apparently this was a comparatively small factory and probably had its hands full competing with the Beecher factory, which was also located in Westville.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

1c Green.

Die approved, August 16, 1865.
First issued, November, 1865.
Last issued, August, 1875.
5,193,500 issued on old paper.
3,205,000 issued on silk paper.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).

"After August, 1870, these stamps were ordered by and delivered to, one Hotchkiss, and a Mr. Chas. R. Pope."

1c Black.

First issued, February 27, 1867.
Last issued, June 25, 1867.
210,000 issued on old paper.

"This stamp was first printed in green but, under date of Feb. 1, 1866, the proprietors wrote to Butler & Carpenter as follows: 'You will please have them struck off in color similar to the color herewith enclosed [black], as from the manner I put them on the boxes they don't require to be cancelled; green I don't fancy much.'

To this Butler & Carpenter replied, under date of Feb. 5, 1866, as follows: 'We have printed for you in green, this being the color you had adopted, three thousand impressions, 630,000 stamps. * * We trust you will not be seriously inconvenienced by this action, taken solely in your interest. We would prefer to print in black than green and we will hereafter do so upon exhaustion of our present balance.'

The stamps were finally printed in black early in October, 1866, and, upon being advised of such action, the Messrs. Gorman replied as follows, under date of October 24, 1866:

'You will please continue the same color.' They enclosed in this letter a marginal strip from a sheet of their stamps printed in green which explained what they meant by 'the same color.' However, the stamps had been already printed in black, so they had to exhaust the supply of that color before any more could be printed in green, which was done, and, in June, 1867, they again began to use the green stamps."

The design forms an upright rectangle of the standard 1c size, and the delicate scrolls and acanthus ornamentation found on many of the other match stamps are conspicuous by their absence. In the center is a three-quarter portrait of Mr. Thomas Gorman in an octagonal frame with "Friction" above it and "Matches" below it. A curved panel crossing the top of the stamps reads "U. S. Inter. Rev." and in each of the lower corners is a small square panel bearing the numeral 1 connected by a straight panel inscribed "One Cent." A straight marginal label at the left reads "T. Gorman & Bro." and a similar label at the right reads "Westville, Conn." Shaded triangular ornaments are found in the upper corners and in the spaces between the octagonal portrait frame and the outer parts of the stamp. The inscriptions are all in colorless characters.

The green stamp on old paper is found in yellowish, bluish and intermediate hues and is listed in both yellow green and blue green on silk paper in the Boston Book. The present writer has not noted a copy in the last named hue.

In view of the statement of the proprietors in their letter quoted above regarding the cancellation of the stamp, it is interesting to note that a large proportion of the old paper specimens in existence bear the following cancellation printed in black.

T G & B
July
1867

This overprint is found on at least three distinct hues of the stamp. Probably quite a number of other dates also exist, but the present writer has noted only two, viz.: July 1866, normal and July, 1865, inverted.

For many years the black stamp has been considered scarcer than it really is. We do not know whether this incorrect estimate of its relative scarcity has been due to a persistent idea based upon tradition, or whether the stamp was much scarcer in the earlier days of M & M collecting than it has been in recent years. There appears no record of any considerable find but copies are seen today more often than one would expect with a match stamp that has been rated in the $40.00 class. Not so many years ago a fine horizontal pair turned up.

Under present conditions ordinary copies should be obtainable at $12.00 to $18.00 while only exceptional copies are worth over $25.00, and the writer greatly doubts if $40.00 has ever been obtained for any copy of the stamp. Sterling priced the black Gorman at $25.00 in 1888. Scott quoted $25.00 in 1894, raised it to $35.00 in 1896, and dropped it to $30.00 in 1900. The quotation from 1903 to 1920 was $40.00.

The first green stamp on old paper is comparatively easy to find if one's requirements as to condition are not strict. As for well centered specimens without blemishes—well, that is another matter! The silk paper is commoner and the present quotations of $1.50 and 50c reflect the relative scarcity of the two varieties fairly accurately.

Probably there was only one plate which was engraved by Butler & Carpenter in Philadelphia. All the green and the black stamps on old paper were printed in the Quaker City, and if the green stamp on silk paper was last issued in August, 1875, as stated in the Boston Book, this also can exist only as a Philadelphia print. However, the writer does not believe it was last issued in August, 1875, but he sees no reason for believing there was a printing by the National Bank Note Company. Among the stamps turned over to the Government by Mr. Carpenter upon the expiration of his contract, August 31, 1875, were 805,770 of the Gorman stamps and undoubtedly this supply was sufficient to last until the stamps from the new plate were ready in March, 1876.

POETRY OF PHILATELY.

By W. C. S.

Not that a genius I am
In writing verse, hunting the stamp,
Perish the thought!
If I should seek reward or fame,
And burn each day the midnight-lamp,
'Twould help me naught.

An amateur, I am content
To study, search, and in my quest
To make a find
That gives me pleasure without end,
My tired body needing rest,
And peace of mind.

NEW PRECANCELS.

By H. S. DICKEY.

It seems that now they are printing the 1c stamps 10 perf. all around, instead of 10x11, and 1c Bostons are out in the new 10 perf. all around. Quite an oddity. Also Duluth, Minn., Rotnem says.

In Aeros the 16c New Washington, Ohio, appears normal, also up.

Atlanta, Ga., appears in a new type, now smaller than it used to be.

The Postage Dues offer quite a big field for specializing now, owing to the vast number of precancels being issued. Nearly all the big cities use them. I recently got a 2c Topeka, Kans., and a 50c Chicago, Ill., also a 25c Parcel Post Due, both normal and inverted, of Chicago and one party wrote me that he saw a block of over a dozen on one package recently.

When I was a kid I heard folks talking about things going higher than Gilroy's kite. I don't know to this day who Gilroy was, but I found a Gilroy, Calif., precancel the other day—a rarity, I think.

Bridgeport, Conn., is precancelling in purple ink, inverted, 1c to 50c, though I haven't seen any 13's.

Barnesville, Ga., is the oddest precancel I've run across. Do they live in barns down there?

East St. Louis, Ill., are becoming more plentiful now.

Waterloo, Ia., sure uses lots of different types in precanceling. I have 6 kinds.

Red Oak and Perry, Ia., both use 2 types.

Kansas precancels have never been either common or plentiful, but I get lots of Wichita's and Atchinson's—a big wholesale paper house and a hardware company use them.

I must mention the $5.00 Boston, Mass., (perf. 10), used by big banks, I think, in exchanging cancelled checks and money. I got 6 recently.

I got a 3c Boston (offset) tiny type recently, and it's a very rare type. I now have the 1c, 3c, 30c and 50c.

Bay City, Mich., makes a fellow step to complete his sets, as two types are used. The other type is merely the abbreviation, i. e., Mich.

Pottsville, Pa., is another good precancel. Maybe the name means that it's a manufacturing city—who knows?

West Chester, Pa., is another new one, normal, 3 lines.

I've found several inverted Scranton, Pa., precancels, also Philadelphia's, recently. Good stuff.

Westerly, R. I., (down) is appearing on a beautiful lavender colored 3c. Quite a fine one, it seems.

The Southland and the West never seem to show many precancels or precancel collectors. I wish some one could enlighten me as to where all the collectors down South have gone or what's become of them. I woke up a fellow out in Arizona recently, and he sent me 1,000 precancels this month, so I have hopes for the West; but I guess I'll have to set an alarm clock down in Birmingham, Ala., and see if I can wake anybody up. They say Birmingham is the liveliest city down South—that's the only reason I mention this place.

Next month I'll give you a little dope about the precancels of the West and South, so if any of you folks that live out in the sticks know of any new issues, tell me so I can add it to my list. I haven't set the alarm clock yet.—Precancel Gazette.

WITH THE TRADE.

The United Stamp Company, Chicago, is progressing with its feature publication, the Marquette Sectional Album, and section eleven, for the issues of Nova Scotia has now appeared. We have commented before on the enterprise of this firm in producing so useful and important contribution. It is no small undertaking to publish an album and we are always glad to commend the publisher who makes a success of what at best is a hazardous venture.

Bill Bloss, recently of Chicago, has taken a position with B. W. H. Poole of Los Angeles, California, where Mr. Bloss will find a congenial field, we are sure.

The Chicago Stamp & Coin Company has taken the quarters occupied until recently by Mrs. Harriet Michael and is now engaged in active business in the best down-town location that the company has ever had. Mrs. Harriet Michael is continuing the business established by her husband, Fred Michael, at her home, 6200 Langley Avenue, Chicago, where she is prepared to give proper attention to the details of approval business in particular.

Mr. W. G. Whittaker, of Cleveland, is now conducting his business from his office under his own name having retired, as we understand, from all business alliances in a company sense.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1611 to 1614 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

EDITORIAL.

Publicity—There's a man for you. He is no penny-a-liner ekeing out a Grub Street existence—is the Drifter of the Nation's feature, "In the Driftway." We have noticed before the philatelic inclinations of this vivid and virile writer and now in the issue of November 9th of the Nation, he does well by philately, even though he does handle it in a rather cold and stark manner. He is prone to emphasize the "madness" of stamp collecting and he does not place philately on a pedestal exactly, but what are a few plain words between friends. We remember how Harold Frederic tinctured his delightful thoughts with philately with the results that we hailed him, ardent collector as he was, as a man of gifted pen. The Drifter on former occasions had to do with stamp collecting much to the satisfaction of the editors whose shears are never sheathed; and now he has a whole column based on the romance of the Ferrari collection, the sale of which by auction is attracting no little attention from those who look to the news of the day to furnish them with plots for their work. We are pleased to notice Henri Dabot's comment, made in 1863, in Paris, in the final paragraph of the Drifter's column: "A new insanity has caught the heads of Parisians; they are collecting—what do you think? Steel pens? No. Buttons? No. Ink-smeared, used stamps!"

Exception—We have seen something that is worth a few words. Mr. E. R. Jacobs has shown us a New York five cent on cover with the postmark nicely covering the stamp which is canceled with three pen-strokes in black. Herein lies the special interest of the stamp: instead of having the initials in red (or in a few cases in what some call magenta) the inscription, "A. C. M." is in black. In these letters, where the pen or quill strokes are heavy, the letters have a suggestion of red. As the "A. C. M." is non-existent in black, regularly, the theory is that the stamp was unsigned when the letter came into the post office and that there it was signed and pen-canceled in black. For the purpose, it is supposed that the pen used for black ink was dipped into the red ink or that the pen used for the black ink was used for signing the letters; and it is the latter supposition that seems to be the more tenable.

Revived—The late J. W. Scott once said that every generation of philatelists had to be enlightened upon questions that years before had been worn thread-bare but which were so old as to be new to the collector of the present. He spoke truly; and we find that recently a contemporary across the water, upon being asked what significance was attached to the "Y 1/4" overprint on the Cuban two reales of the years 1855 to 1857, said that the question was "as inexplicable as ever." We well remember how twenty-one years ago or so, a clipping from an English paper which we reprinted in our columns, which imputed the wrong meaning to the surcharge precipitated a battle royal in our columns. The discussion was led by that great student of philately, Mr. J. M. Andreini of New York who was an authority on Spanish subjects and stamps alike. Mr. Andreini did not find his march to the ultimate truth unimpeded as he was beset by resourceful opponents on the way. Finally, Mr. Andreini closed all the other avenues of approach and proved his case in favor of the use of "Y" archaically, for "Interior." The stamps were used locally in Habana and suburbs and not on outgoing correspondence. The discussion appealed to many of our readers as the stamps in question used on the original covers were not exactly scarce at that period; and even now they are to be found in the larger collections of covers. Is there more to follow? Vide the finishing touch to the editorial in the London Philatelist for October: "We are personally satisfied now that the 'Interiors have it,' but the last word on this subject has not even now been said and we hope to be in a position to afford still more enlightenment later on."

* * *

Replies—A reader who noticed our reference to the Pony Express envelope addressed to Scotland says that he saw while abroad a number of the Wells, Fargo and Company franked envelopes addressed to points in Europe but he does not mention having seen a Pony Express in that condition. A subscriber sends in a postal to say: "I was much taken with your description of those British Columbian-Cariboo-U.S. envelopes. Do you know that at Victoria, the hand-stamped envelope impression in ink, 'Post Office, Paid, Victoria, Vancouver's Island' was used before the stamps were issued?" We should like further particulars if our correspondent has them. No name is appended to the item on the card.

Weeklies—Though this paper was established in 1891, January, it was not the first stamp paper published weekly in America. A weekly edition of the American Journal of Philately appeared on September 3, 1870, of which twelve numbers, ending with November 19, 1870, were published. While we have seen these numbers in a library, yet it is only now that we have come into possession of the series, which is interesting as an example of enterprise on the part of the publisher and for the reading contents which reflect the trend of thought fifty years ago. We shall skim rather hastily over the twelve pages, eight by six, of the first number. The editor rejoices at the briskness with which the season opens; and we quote: "Country orders are arriving faster than they can be filled by the leading New York houses; and we are pleased to note that most of the principal collectors are returning from abroad where they have been spending the summer." Engravings are shown of the "new stamp for Denmark." the 48sk and of the 5c, scarlet, 1871, Lima, Peru, but caution is advised in accepting this stamp of Peru, as the editor says that he has "strong doubts of its authenticity and should advise collectors not to purchase" this curious-looking stamp, said to be a local for Peru. The first number of W. P. Brown's pamphlet devoted chiefly to stamp collecting and called the Curiosity Cabinet is mentioned as being printed in accordance with the principles "laid down by the American Philological Society, who claim it to be the correct mode of writing our language, which it probably is; but we doubt very much if it will ever come into use." In a ringing review of "Past and Present," the editor, Mr. Scott, says: "Nothing can better prove the healthy state of Philately on the American continent than the fact that a weekly paper can find plenty of support here when in the birth-place of the science, such a venture has never been tried." Mr. Scott has no patience with those who withhold support from the stamp press, as he contends: "Failure has only overtaken those philatelists who, through lack of faith, have been niggardly in their expenditure." As an example of generous returns from belief in the investment possibilities in sta it is said: "No collector who succe in getting a large collection and has scribed to the papers has lost mone it. The beautiful collection to be so Messrs. J. W. Scott & Co., on the of October, only cost the owner a two hundred dollars; it will cert bring eight hundred under the hamm There is more to be said; and the pages of advertisements are almost w out exception those of the publishe

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP JOSEPH V. K. WELLS, Manager. BURNT HILLS, N. Y.

SWISS PRO JUVENTUTE 1921.

By A. Koechlin.

The 1921 set of Pro Juventute will be on sale during the month of December only but will have franking value until April 30, 1922. For the first time there are no restrictions as regards the use of the stamps to all countries of the postal union. The new set will comprise three values, 10c, 20c and 40c, the latter being the actual foreign mail rate. The 10c represents the arms of the Canton Wallis and will be sold at an advance of 5c. The 20c shows the arms of Berne and will be sold at a similar advance. The 40c will show the arms of Switzerland in historical fancy frame and will be sold at an advance of 10c.

(The illustration above shows the vagaries of the engraving business. As an experiment we passed to the engraver a halftone showing these three stamps in the beautiful colors of the original stamps. It will be noticed that the 10c and 40c (the former in red and olive and the latter in red and blue) reproduced very nicely, but the 20c failed in the orange background around the bear. If the cut is examined carefully the outline of the bear shows itself.—W. O. W.)

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The Rutherford Stamp Club, 250 Park Ave., East Rutherford, N. J., meets on the first and third Mondays of each month. Its third annual reception will be held Thursday, Dec. 8, with dancing, entertainment by Prof. Loewy, refreshments and stamp auction. All nearby philatelists are invited to attend.

—"Two 'Forbidden' sets of Bulgaria are being sent to every purchaser of this set of whom I have record thro' my recent ads in your paper. I am not looking for free advertising or bouquets, but merely want you to know that I still retain a glimmering sense of what common honesty is, and have a few remaining instincts of honor in dealing."—A. W. Dunning.

—Victor G. Loly has submitted for our inspection a copy of the fall program of the Collectors' Club of Southern California. It is a very praiseworthy program and should prove a great attraction to all collectors within a radius of many miles of Los Angeles.

—Oswald N. Burke of Washington, D. C., informs the Weekly that he hopes to liquidate his philatelic obligations beginning the first of the year. For over a year he has been broken in health and unable to give any attention to letters received.

—"In my small 'Ad.' of October 29 and November 5 the copy I sent you listed U. S. No. 3847a but appears in print as No. 3874a. This transposition has caused me some annoyance, owing to the difference in catalog value of the two stamps. As I have received quite a few orders for No. 3874a, (which I can't possibly fill for price quoted) I sure will appreciate your mentioning the fact. Some of these new customers may feel that I intentionally listed the higher priced revenue or that the error is mine."—C. A. Green, Norwood, O.

DEATH OF W. F. CORNELL.

The Detroit News of Thursday, Nov. 10, contained the information that a valuable collection of stamps had been stolen from the real estate office of W. F. Cornell of that city. Our Detroit correspondent, Herman W. Boers, investigated the situation and learned with great surprise upon inquiry at his home that Mr. Cornell died October 20 of pneumonia. He was a member of the Detroit Philatelic Society and resided at 295 Continental Avenue. Funeral services were held October 21, with burial at Kalamazoo.

Mrs. Cornell informed our correspondent that the theft of stamps was not known until Nov. 9, some twenty days after Mr. Cornell's death. A fine collection of Confederate covers chanced to be at his home.

THE TYAS SALE.

W. T. Wilson, of Birmingham, England, is sending out an illustrated catalog representing the fine general collection of postage stamps formed by the late Charles J. Tyas. Mr. Tyas was an old-time collector and had a general collection which was awarded a bronze medal at the London Exhibition of 1906. He was a solicitor of high standing, had held many positions of trust and died at Scarborough on May 26 of this year. The catalog is of unusual interest on account of the many full page sets of illustrations picturing many unique items. Not only are these rarities illustrated, but the catalog contains a detailed list of the good things found in the twenty volumes and also a pricelist of the stamps illustrated. The catalog is well worth the price charged, 35c.

YES, IT WOULD !

It would surely require a full page ad on every page of this issue of the WEEKLY to list the uncommon and rare stamps I am offering to serious buyers. That sounds pretty big, but it isn't as big as the whole truth. I am submitting magnificent selections of favorite countries on inspection and collectors who wish to invest more than a small amount at a time will usually find what they desire here at reasonable prices.

Many early issues in singles, pairs, strips, blocks and on covers await the call of the discriminating buyer. Nice copy of Switzerland No. 2 at just half catalog and lots of other bargains for those to whom price is an object.

Whether you like early Victorias, triangular Capes, Griqualands, U. S., or other classics that are not easy to find in satisfactory condition, this is the place to come.

United States, Mint Blocks of Four

I especially cater to collectors of United States issues from 1880 to date and have on hand a very substantial stock, especially strong in blocks. Collectors are beginning to realize the great pleasure to be derived from the study of these stamps, with the result that it is difficult to keep on hand everything. In order to plug up some of my stock holes, I would like to buy one or more blocks of the following in fine mint condition.

1894, 10c, 15c, $1, $2, $5.
1895, 15c, $1, $2, $5.
1898, 10c, all types.
1898, Omaha, 50c, $1, $2.
1902, $5.
1915, Pan. Pac., Perf. 10, 10c.
1912, 50c, $1 (367-68).
1914, Wmk., Perf. 10, 50c.
1916, Unwmk., Perf. 10, 50c, $1.

Also any of the part-perforate errors of these years such as 256a, 289a, 316a, and the like. Please send at your lowest net prices and you will receive a reply by return mail. Some do not care to sell and in such cases I offer wonderful exchange. The money is waiting—what have you to offer? If you have even a single block, send it along.

UNITED STATES.—While in New York recently I overheard a conversation between a dealer and collector that expressed the attitude of a great many and consequently a few words on the subject may be of more than passing interest. The collector is the owner of quite an attractive collection of early United States which stops with the Columbian series, in other words the Bureau issues are neglected entirely. The dealer was trying to interest him in the late varieties when he remarked that he could make neither heads nor tails out of them with the several perforations, watermarks, blue and white papers, besides the surface, flat plate and rotary prints. These may not be his exact words but he was trying to convey the opinion that late United States were too puzzling for any one other than an expert and that with so many changes the Bureau must have been trying to turn out varieties just for the collector.

As a matter of fact there are few issues of any country more interesting and the slightest study will show how the different varieties came to be issued and clearly prove that not a single stamp has the slightest taint of irregularity. The Bureau has not given the collector a thought (and rightly so) and every change in paper, watermark, perforation or method of production has been with a definite purpose in view.

To quickly review the issues from 1908 to date during which time most of the complicating changes took place, we will start in with the first series of the present design. This was perforated 12, on white paper made from wood pulp and watermarked double lined "U S P S". About this time the quantities of stamps turned out by the Bureau was becoming enormous and it was found that the wastes from badly perforated sheets was becoming a factor of no small importance. It was a known fact that in wetting the sheets before printing that the paper around the outside would shrink more than that portion innermost. As a result when the sheet was perforated a number of the stamps were correctly separated while in another portion of the same sheet the design was badly cut into. To overcome this they tried the method of spacing the stamps in the outer rows at a greater distance than those in the center thus giving us what we know as the star plates because these plates were designated by a small star near the plate number. They also tried a new paper of a different texture composed of a proposition of rags mixed with the wood pulp. This gave us the blue paper varieties. These experiments did not work out to their satisfaction and they began to think that the large watermark might have its bearing on the shrinkage consequently in 1910 they adopted a new watermark composed of smaller letters of single lines thus giving us the new 1910 single line U S P S varieties.

During this time the output was greatly increasing and in the quick handling it was found that there was much waste from sheets tearing apart. To overcome this the perforation was changed in 1914 to what is known as perf. 10. This worked very well at the Bureau but now the post office clerks began to complain that the stamps themselves would tear instead of the perforations. In the meantime the Bureau was watching every item of cost and when the time came for making a new contract for paper it was realized that thousands of dollars could be saved in the paper cost alone by omitting the watermark. They came to the conclusion that there was little likelihood of counterfeiting and anyway the watermark would be as easy as the engraving to imitate. Result—a no watermark issue perforated 10. The clerks, however, were still complaining and the Post Office asked the Bureau to investigate. They tried a new perforating wheel with more pins than the then present and less than the old and this proved satisfactory on a quantity of 2c stamps to which it was applied. This, however, was before the unwatermarked paper arrived and as a result we had a 2c perf. 11 watermarked, a complete issue in itself. The unwatermarked paper began to arrive a few months after the perf. 10 had been adopted so when the change to perf. 11 started nothing but unwatermarked stock was on hand.

The surface or offset prints were made necessary by the shortage of trained help to transfer the plates during the time when other government securities were required, such as liberty bonds, etc., which it was absolutely necessary for protection to engrave.

The rotaries were simply another step in the direction of economy, in fact we can blame practically every change we have had in late United States stamps to economy. They are always striving to turn out a better product at a less cost, resulting in most cases with new collectible varieties.

We have asked the Post Office Department to kindly prepare for us a list giving us the name of the different cities which have received the dies for revaluing envelopes since our last list was published. They inform us that no new dies have been made but Marion, Indiana, and Charlottesville, Virginia, have received dies from other cities. We know through the kindness of Mr. R. H. Mason that Concord, N. H., has received a die which we, at first, thought was sent from San Juan and consequently in our last two issues chronicled these as the San Juan overprint. We now find on closer examination that this die is the one that was first used in Ithaca and then Louisville and consequently these two chronicles should be changed accordingly. As soon as the department furnishes the list it will be promptly published.

The department advises that while no new dies have been made for changing the denomination of the 3c envelope or the 2c postals some new ones have been made for revaluing the 2c reply card.

Dr. L. C. LeCron has sent several new varieties of the 2c on 3c provisional envelopes while Mr. Herman C. Nashke sends us a new San Antonio on amber with both the 1c and 2c overprint on the same envelope. It will be recalled that sometime back envelopes from two Texas banks were found with this double surcharge and from the looks of this third variety, also from a bank, we are led to believe that the San Antonio Post Office overprinted quite a few envelopes with the 1c post card die before the error was discovered and after they learned of their mistake they again overprinted them 2c rather than scrap the envelopes in which case the clerk possibly would have had to stand the loss.

We wish to thank Mr. E. J. Newcomer for sending quite a few overprinted envelopes for our inspection.

CANADA.—Mr. George Prechavsky has submitted to us a cover with a Toronto cancellation and also these words "Do Not Place Money In Unregistered Mail".

CANAL ZONE.—Mr. George Soulman advises that the 2c stamp of Panama, No. 198, is appearing with a somewhat smaller overprint for use in this Territory.

CHINA.—We are indebted to Mr. Eugene Klein who kindly submitted to us the set of four stamps issued on October 10th and called the China Republic commemorative set. The values and colors are 1c orange, 3c green, 6c grey and 10c blue. The stamps are oblong in shape and picture three distinguished citizens of the republic, each likeness being within an oval frame. At the top in a half circle are the native Chinese characters and also one in each upper corner. The English values are in the middle of the lower part of the stamp.

COLOMBIAN REPUBLIC.—Mr. George Soulman calls attention to a copy of the 3c stamp of the type of Scott's 118 with word "Provisional" added which is perforated at the top and bottom but imperforate on each side. Mr. Soulman also calls attention to the 5c, No. 363, which he advises is being printed from a new plate. Also there has been added to the set of "Provisional" a 3c, bright green, in the type of Scott's A118. There is also the 2c red, in the same set of the type of the values ½ to 20c.

COSTA RICA.—Mr. George Soulman has shown us a 5c value of this country with the inscription "Centerario de la Independencia de Centro-America" at the base and at the top "1821 1921". At the left is "Republica" and at the right "De Costa Rica". In the center there is the likeness of a woman with a lighted torch in the right hand and the left holding a flag. The stamp is larger than usual and the color purple.

DENMARK.—The Caswin Stamp Co. has submitted to us a copy of the 20ö stamp in the type of Scott's A16 but in a brown shade. They also advise that the 10ö is expected to appear in a green color of the type of Scott's A10 and the 50ö in grey in the type of the 20ö.

ECUADOR.—Mr. George Prechavsky has advised us of the appearance of a 1c in an olive shade with a view of the "Casa de Correos" in the centre and the name of the country in a curved frame at the top and the figures of value in each lower corner with the words of value between.

ESTHONIA.—The Bulletin Mensuel reports the 50p green, imperforate in the type of Scott's A8.

FRANCE—Offices in the Levant.—Mr. George Soulman has shown us a copy of 25c with the surcharge "T.E.O. 1 PIASTRE" in two lines in black.

GERMANY.—The Bulletin Mensuel calls attention to the issuing of a new 60pf stamp of a new type.

HUNGARY.—The Times correspondent says:—

"Philately and politics frequently go hand in hand. The recent coup d' état in Western Hungary has not failed to leave its imprint on the pages of the stamp album. During August and September eight values of contemporary Hungarian postage stamps were issued by the insurgents with the addition of a four-line overprint reading 'Felkelo Magyarok —altat megszallt — Nyugatmagyarirszag —1921, Aug. Szept.' (Independent Army of Western Hungary). These stamps are said to have been in circulation for a period of fourteen days, commencing from August 29th. A special issue of permanent postage stamps for the new State of German Western Hungary is foreshadowed."

Seeing that the so-called coup d' état ended in failure, we are not inclined to view the foregoing with a very serious eye.—Stamp Collecting.

ITALY.—The Bulletin Mensuel chronicles the following values of a new set of stamps issued in commemoration of some event in the country. 15c lilac, 25c green-blue, 40c brown. The stamps are of different subjects and oblong in shape and perforated 13.

LEVANT (British P. O.).—Mr. D. Field has obtained a block of twelve current 30 paras on ½d with surcharge inverted. In view of the extreme care taken in the overprinting operation, the discovery of this variety is of more than ordinary note.—Stamp Collecting.

PERU.—Mr. George Soulman has advised of two values of the commemorative set mentioned a few weeks ago. The values Mr. Soulman has seen are the 5c bistre and the 10c bright blue. The former is a large oblong stamp with a view in the centre and at the top the dates "1821 1921" and at the base the value. The other value is smaller and shows the likeness of Guisse.

DICTIONARY ADDENDA.

By WILLARD O. WYLIE.

A FELKELO MAGYAROK ALTAL MEGSZALLOT NYUGAT MAGYARORSZAG 1921 AUG.-SZEPT.—In August, 1921, Austrian troops took possession of a portion of Western Hungary in accordance with the terms of the Versailles treaty, but the Hungarians drove them out. Hungary stamps were surcharged as above, "Western Hungary, occupied by insurgent Hungarians 1921 Aug-Sept" and used during the months specified.

AYACUCHO.—An Indian word found on Peru, 1921, issue, and meaning "Battle of Death". It has reference to the battle which secured the independence of Peru when Gen. Sucre defeated the Spaniards Dec. 9, 1824.

BARWANI.—A native Indian state in central India, near Indore. It has an area of 1362 square miles and its capital is also Barwani. Stamps were first issued in 1921 and they bore the portrait of the ruler, Rana Sir Ranjit Singh Ji.

BESA.—Stamps of Albania with this surcharge were so overprinted that they might be regarded as genuine to distinguish them from previous spurious issues.

BLOATER.—A word of reproach for a stamp collector who covets and takes possession of every stamp that he can lay his hands on. Shades, papers and perforations are eagerly absorbed and padlocked for safe keeping.

BURGENLAND.—A portion of Western Hungary which under the terms of the World War peace treaty was awarded to Austria and given the new name, "Burgenland." The transfer occasioned bad feeling on the part of Hungarians, bloodshed followed, and as this book goes to press (1922) the trouble had not been settled.

CHAKRA.—A watermark in the stamps of Siam is represented by this design, which typifies the wheel or disc weapon of the god Vishnu. The "blades" around the edge are supposed to represent flames.

C. M. T.—(Campana Militare Timbru).—This inscription found on the stamps of Western Ukrainia means Military Campaign Stamp. They were used during the Roumanian occupation from June 28 to July 24, 1919.

CORRIENTE.—This word on Salvador stamps means "current" and was applied to certain official stamps in 1918 to transform them into ordinary postage stamps.

FESTUS DA CIDADE.—This legend appears upon two "Charity" stamps issued in Lisbon ("Lisboa") in 1913. It means "Festival of the City." The use of the stamps was compulsory, in addition to the regular fees, upon all correspondence (1c) from June 10-15 inclusive and upon all telephones (2c) for the same period.

FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF CENTRAL AMERICA.—The initial step for the formation of this republic was taken Jan. 19, 1921, when a treaty looking towards this end was signed by representatives of Guatemala, Honduras, Salvador and Costa Rica. This treaty became effective April 8, 1921, when Guatemala was the third state to ratify. The capital city is Teguicigalpa, the Honduran capital.

GL. O. Z. 7 FEV. 1914.—This overprint is found on Hayti stamps and is an abbreviation for Gen. Oreste Zamor with the date of his accession to the presidency. His success as a revolutionist was short-lived, for he was massacred in 1915 with two hundred other political prisoners, this act resulting in American intervention.

GUEUDECOURT.—This word on the Newfoundland 3c Caribou stamp issued in 1918, indicates a World War action in which Newfoundland troops took part.

UNITED STAMP COMPANY

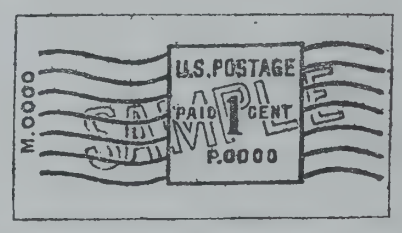
140 S. Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL

HAMBURG AMERICAN PACKET CO.—The headquarters of the West Indian Line of this company was at St. Thomas. A stamp with the inscription given above, value 10c, blue and yellow, was used on mail despatched on the steamers of this company to various points in the West Indies prior to the entrance of the several countries into the International Postal Union.

KENYA.—A colony of Great Britain in East Africa extending from the Umba to the Juba Rivers and inland to Uganda. It comprises what was formerly the B. E. Africa protectorate and some lands of the Sultan of Zanzibar and became a "Crown Colony" July 23, 1920. Stamps were first issued in 1920.

LIT. C. FABRI LIMA.—This inscription in tiny letters is found just below the frame on the 7c, Peru 1921 commemorative. It is the imprint of the lithographer, Fabri of Lima.

METERED MAIL. — This is a name given to a class of mail which requires no postage stamps. It was first used in 1921 and is the product of a machine which is capable of sealing, counting, postmarking, cancelling and stacking envelopes at the rate of 250 per minute. The machine is electrically driven and its use authorized by the U. S. government. It is designed to facilitate the despatch of similar pieces of mail matter, and the mechanism will doubtless displace to a considerable extent the use of postage stamps where large mailings occur.

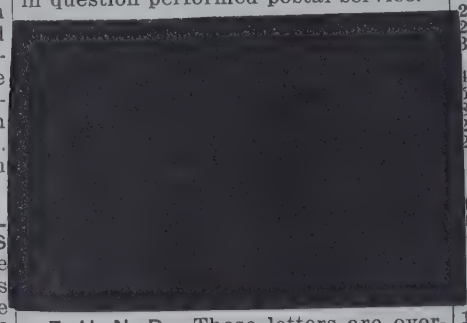


ONE FRACTION.—In 1914 Trinidad permitted the local Red Cross Society to use a type-set label as a frank upon letters soliciting donations for its work. They were used only on Sept. 18, 1914, some nine hundred copies being circulated and postmarked in regular form. Upon the stamp appears "One fraction", an unexplained expression connected with its regular use as a Red Cross seal. It passed the post on the one day in place of a half-penny stamp.

PRIMER CONGRESSO POSTAL PAN AMERICANO—BUENOS AIRES AGOSTODE 1921.—In Aug., 1921, the first Pan American postal congress was held at Buenos Aires, Argentine and a special set of stamps was issued in connection with the event with the inscriptions above indicated appearing thereon.

REPUBLIC OF CENTRAL AMERICA.—See Federal Republic of Central America.

ROYAL MAIL STAMP PACKET COMPANY. — A 10c carmine stamp with this inscription is reported to have been used upon steamships of this company plying between the ports of the West Indies and the Caribbean Sea. Only unused copies are known as we go to press (1922) but there is every reason to believe that the stamp in question performed postal service.



Z. U. N. R.—These letters are overprinted with trident on stamps of Western Ukrainia. They are the initials for West Ukraine Democratic Republic. The letters are printed in the four corners of the stamps and being in the Russian alphabet appear thus:—З Y. H. P. They stand for "Zahodna Ukrainska Narodna Republica."

WILLIAM PENN SPECIAL AIR MAIL.

By GEORGE M. EMERY.

Sworn in by John A. Thornton, postmaster of Philadelphia, as a special air mail messenger, William Penn, founder of the City of Brotherly Love, climbed into an airplane on Belmont Plateau, Fairmount Park, on Monday, November 14, last, and flew to Washington with a letter, specially cancelled, from Judge J. Willis Martin, president of the Welfare Federation of Philadelphia, to Warren G. Harding, President of the United States. Penn then flew back again to Philadelphia with the President's reply to Judge Martin.

In brief, that is the story of the William Penn Special Air Mail, authorized and sponsored by the post office department of the United States for the single trip from Philadelphia to Washington and the return from Washington to Philadelphia. Conceived as a feature of the Welfare Federation's $4,000,000 campaign for the benefit of 125 affiliated civic and philanthropic agencies in Philadelphia, it attracted city-wide attention to the drive by reason of the spectacular performance of the Quaker Founder and also served an interesting philatelic purpose by reason of the official recognition granted by the government.

In addition to the letter to the President on the down-trip, as well as in addition to the President's reply on the up-trip, Penn carried in the mail pouch provided by the post office department for the air trip about 25 letters from Philadelphians to friends in Washington and about 50 letters from residents of the capital to friends and relatives in the Quaker City, less than 100 in all on both trips. Each letter was cancelled with a special cancellation authorized and provided by the post office department, one cancellation reading "William Penn" Special Air Mail—Philadelphia to Washington—November 14, 1921, and the other reading "William Penn" Special Air Mail—Washington to Philadelphia— November 14, 1921. This cancellation is exactly similar to that used when the government air mail service was established between New York and Washington, the wording and date being set inside a circle with the broad straight bars at the right for obliteration of the postage stamp.

H. F. COLMAN
SECOND NATIONAL BANK BUILDING. WASHINGTON, D. C.

"Father Penn was sworn in by Postmaster John A. Thornton," said the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin of November 14, 1921, "just before leaving Belmont Plateau, as a special air mail messenger, the letter to President Harding having been stamped and cancelled in regulation manner at the central post office. A mail truck drove to the waiting airplane and handed Father Penn the sack containing the Federation's letters. Delivery of the Federation's mail was official in every respect.

"Among the post office officials gathered to witness the 'hop' were Postmaster Thornton, Assistant Postmaster John Lister, Superintendent of Mails Thomas P. Johnson, and Miss Anna Thornton, the postmaster's daughter."

On the return trip from the capital, Penn's letters were cancelled in the Washington post office, locked in the special mail pouch, transferred to a post office mail truck on arrival in Philadelphia, and rushed direct to the central post office at 9th and Chestnut streets where they were sorted and delivered to the addresses by the regular mail carriers on the different city routes.

Among those who received the "William Penn" Special Air Mail letters in the regular deliveries, in addition to leaders and officials of the Welfare Federation, were Joseph A. Steinmetz, 1421 Chestnut street; Eugene Klein, 1318 Chestnut street; Percy McG. Mann, 720 Liberty building; Joseph H. Hagedorn, 1520 Spruce street, and the writer at his home, 4630 Sansom street, Philadelphia.

"DELNICKA OLYMPIADA."

For the essential facts in the following article, I am indebted to the Czechoslovak Consulate at Omaha for their kindness in making a translation from an article appearing in the Philatelic Supplement of the Prague daily Tribuna.

F. S. P.

We have all become more or less familiar with the activities and ideals of the Sokol organizations in the United States during the past few years. Several large Sokol conventions and "meets" have taken place in various large cities and exhibitions of athletic training have been presented all over the country. It is not, therefore, difficult to comprehend the magnitude of the Sokol meets held in Prague last year nor the widespread interest manifested in them when it is known that a large majority of the Czechs are members of these organizations in some form.

The meet this year was held at Prague from June 26th to 30th, by the Workmen's Gymnastic Unions. As in the case of the previous Sokol meets, the Red Cross week and the Agricultural Exposition, a special cancellation was used. In addition to the usual circular cancellation inscribed "Praha Stadion", there was to the left, an irregular rectangle two and three quarters inches long by three quarters to five eighths inches in width. Each end was cut in forming a wide "V" shaped indentation. In the center of the rectangle, there is a triangle standing on its base. This contains the irregular-shaped letters "D. T. J." in double-lined letters bound together by a double-lined band. To the left of the apex of the triangle is "19" and to the right, "21" forming the year. Beginning at the upper left corner and extending diagonally to a point in the middle of the left side of the triangle is the word "DELNICKA" in fancy single-lined letters. On the right, in the corresponding position, appears the word "OLYMPIADA". In the lower corners and extending diagonally upward appears two slightly different floral ornaments. The whole gives a very pleasing appearance.

It was not without some sarcasm that there was published in the philatelic press, both here and abroad, reports stating that the entire current issue of Czechoslovakia comprising of the nineteen postage values as well as the twenty-three values of the postage due, newspaper, express delivery, and airmail were to be overprinted or surcharged "Delnicka Olympiada" to commemorate this event. Rumor also stated that an entire new issue would be forthcoming.

These reports were usually of German origin and the rumor was based on an incorrect conception obtained from perusing the prospectus issued by the Workmen's Gymnastic Unions of Prague. This prospectus offered all of the current stamps of Czechoslovakia cancelled on the original cover with this special obliteration and mailed from the special post office branch which was to be established at the Stadium. As advertised, the covers were comprised as follows:

1. Prepaid: 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 40, 50, 60, 100, 125, 185, 250, 300, 400, 500, 500Masaryk, 600, 1000 hellers for the sum of Cz. crowns, 63.22.

2. Postage Due: 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 40, 50, 100, 250, 400, 500, 1000, 2000 hellers for Cz. crowns, 66.67.

3. Newspaper Stamps: 5, 10, 20, 30, 50, 100 hellers for Cz. crowns, 3.22.

4. Airmail, for Cz. crowns, 1.20, or actual cost of postage.

All of the above, except the airmail, show an increase of 50% over face value. This could be saved by any one posting their letters at the Stadium branch post office.

The Tribuna article says regarding the above plan: "what purpose really have airmail stamps or what value can a letter have which is prepaid by the sender and at the same time provided by him with postage due stamps?" The explanation is found in the well-known proclivity of European collectors who endeavor to secure all of one issue on one envelope, regardless of the fact that the rate needed to frank the letter is much less than the value of the issue. At least, we may be thankful that only the cancellation and not the new issue or surcharges, materialized.

THE "NEW EUROPE" MARKET.

By STANLEY PHILLIPS.

There are two classes of collectors who are at present interested in what are usually termed "New Europes"—those who bought as the stamps were issued and are now bewailing the recent slump, and those who have been waiting for things to settle down and who are now beginning to realize that the settling down process is practically completed and that, if they are to make a representative showing of the stamps of the new States they must make their purchases soon.

As regards the "slump", its causes are obvious now, though in the general optimism which accompanied the cessation of hostilities no one realized that, in many ways, things would go on getting worse rather than better. Supplies of even the most legitimate issues did not reach this country in great quantity at first, partly because optimists in the new countries hoped to be able to make a living in the usual ways and did not give much thought to stamp-vending as a livelihood, and more especially because communications between one part of Europe and another were very bad after the Armistice. Thus available supplies were not large, and they came at rates of exchange which, even when they approximated to the official rate, were very high in comparison with those prevailing today, and correspondents abroad often took advantage of the chaotic conditions prevailing to charge as much as double the correct rate, with very little risk of being found out. At the same time numerous people in the countries where new stamps were being issued, being doubtful of the eventual value of their national currency, hastened to put considerable sums of money into such stamps, hoping that these would not be affected by the prevailing financial uncertainty. If only a few had done this, little harm would have been done to themselves or to the stamp market, but the practice became general in many countries. Post-armistice optimism regarding the speedy return of pre-war conditions quickly evaporated, trade was bad, exchange rates went down, and many of these investors in stamps (or speculators, if you prefer the term) were forced to unload their wares at any price because, through lack of other resources, they were being forced by circumstances to live on their capital, and the philatelic portion of it was often the only part that could be realized at all. As things became more settled, the official rates of exchange became better known, reliable agents could be found who would supply stamps at the correct rate, and this rate steadily declined in most countries, so that the general tendency of New Europe prices has been downward and some pretty severe cuts have had to be made, to the disappointment of early purchasers and the loss of all, whether collectors or dealers, who handled early consignments of these stamps in any quantity.

As one who has been responsible for the purchasing and cataloguing of these stamps for our publishers during the past two years, I have come to the conclusion that prices in most instances have reached their lowest level. In saying this I must not be understood as referring to the prices quoted in the current Gibbons' Catalogue, Part 2, or in the now obsolete War Catalogue, as these have been greatly reduced in many instances lately. The downward tendency in foreign exchanges is still marked in some countries, but something will certainly be done to stabilize them before very long, or trade of all kinds will become impossible, and in any case the falling exchange rate hardly affects any but current issues, as the stocks of most of the older issues at one time held in private hands, as I have described above, seem now to be practically exhausted. This means that by carefully noting the offers of stamps made over a given period one can estimate with reasonable accuracy the amount of surplus stock still to be absorbed by the market, and in my opinion this is very little, in the case of official issues of established governments. In the following notes I deal with the present market position of such issues. I trust that readers will not blame me if I do not prove to be correct in every instance, but I am giving here my honest opinion based on the experience of two years, during which I have lived with, worked at, and dreamed of "New Europes", have exposed some rubbish and have discovered much that is interesting, as readers of the M. C. will remember.

Czecho-Slovakia.—I have already pointed out the great interest of the issues in the "Fortress" types. A collection of these can now be formed at very little cost and affords plenty of scope for moderate specialism, as there are many variations. On the other hand, it should be noted that these stamps are now obsolete and further supplies are not likely to reach this country at the low prices on which present Gibbons' quotations are based. This is certainly a section that will well repay attention. The set of six commemoratives is only attractive by the beauty of one of its designs. It is rarely offered wholesale in this country, but is not likely to rise for the moment. I am not a lover of the "POSTA CESKO-SLOVENSKA" overprinted stamps but there is this in their favour, that a good showing can be made at a very low cost. The out-of-the-way varieties and values have all been absorbed long ago, but there seem to be plenty of the cheaper ones available. The 500 and 1,000h "Masaryk" type are stamps that should not be missed, or they are likely to be missed permanently. In the current series, the early change of colours does not seem, so far, to have made much difference to the value of the stamps as originally issued, but sets should be filled up now, as the exchange is fairly stable and there is no reason to suppose that the stamps will get any cheaper, while some of them will certainly rise before long. The high values in the "lady and the book" type come in numerous shades and several printings, which should repay study.

Esthonia.—I have always been interested in the stamps of this moderate little country which, with every temptation to issue unnecessary stamps, has only yielded to the extent of half a dozen charity labels. (I, of course, except the Russian stamps overprinted "EESTI POST", which I would advise everyone to leave severely alone.) The first issue is still offered in small lots, though not at prices which hold out hope of any further reduction in quotations. Of the next set, the 5p and 35p, in the "gulls" types, seem to be the best values, though the 70p was so soon surcharged that it too seems to be billed for a rise. As far as I know, the popular little Air Post stamp is no longer current, so this too, should improve. The Charity stamps and provisionals still seeem fairly plentiful. Do not be taken in by the 1m, "galley", in the colour of the 5m. This is an essay and not an error.

Fiume.—The first issue is better unused than it is ever likely to be "used", as most of the local speculators were misguided enough to have their sets cancelled to order, and there are still plenty of these about. The first definitive series has been dealt with at length in the M. C. from time to time. It is very difficult to estimate the comparative values of the various printings, but some of them are undoubtedly very rare, and the whole issue provides most interesting scope for study, both as to papers and gums and as regards the size of the various sheets. Complete sheets are not easy to come by nowadays, while the parcels of blocks and singles that come are only small and the demand is large and steady. The same types with "POSTA FIUME" are going to jump before long. The "Pro Fondazione" set, unsurcharged, is not often offered now; but the same set, with "VALORE GLOBALE" overprints, is as plentiful as its present low price would indicate. There are, however, two different types of overprint, and these come mixed in sets, and it is quite likely that some values may be scarce with a particular type of overprint. The "FRANCO" surcharges are not offered much today and are likely to go higher. D'Annunzio portraits will not remain much longer at current rates, as they are obsolete and remainders were surcharged. "Reggenza Italiana" surcharges were quickly sold out, and I think purchasers were lucky. So also were those who took "Governo Provvisorio" sets quickly, as these seem to have been withdrawn very soon after issue.

Georgia.—Is Georgia in Europe? Anyway, I may as well deal with it here. If you do not touch any freak errors that are offered, you can complete this country for a few pence and are not likely to lose on the deal. If variations of paper and gum and shade interest you, there are enough here to make an interesting study, and there is nothing very expensive, as yet.

Jugo-Slavia.—The "S.H.S." issues do not come so freely now as they did at one time, but there are still plenty of the commoner varieties about. The "kneeling man" type is offered occasionally, but beware of forgeries. The "DRZAVA S.H.S." on long Bosnias, are gradually disappearing from the wholesale lists, but still come in small parcels. Bosnian Charity stamps and Express ditto, with the similar overprint, rarely come now. In my opinion there is no New European issue to beat the "Chain Breaker," with its accompanying nigh values. It illustrates perfectly different methods of printing, different perforations, varying papers and gums, while the range of shades is magnificent. I have been trying hard to get some complete sheets of this issue for some time, but only the low values of the commonest Laibach printing seem to come, and small parcels of blocks and singles are spread over so many catalogue numbers and are so quickly snapped up that a far larger supply than is available would not be equal to the demand. When these stamps come into their own as a field for study there will be a rapid rise in prices. At present they are priced down, as, with the small supplies I have handled, it is impossible to know which are the real rarities, and they are usually offered us in sets. The Unpaids (large or small figures) and Journal (Cupid) stamps, which correspond to the "Chain Breaker" postage stamps, are of equal interest, and the same remarks apply. The allegorical series for Croatia-Slavonia is fairly plentiful, especially the low values, but there are a number of shades which are worth looking out for. The surcharged Bosnian portrait series never came so freely as some of the earlier Jugo-Slav stamps, and long sets are not often on offer to-day. The 50 h. is the rarity of the set, but the 30 h. does not come to hand in spite of its low catalogue price. The 1920 issue, which repeats the themes of the "Chain Breaker" series, should not be overlooked, as it had a very short life. The 15 k. and 20 k. portrait type are well spoken of, but I cannot give a definite opinion as to their future. The provisional Newspaper and Unpaid stamps are not available in large quantities, and sets are not likely to be offered at less than present quotations.

Lettland.—This country has only itself to blame if its issues are not in great favour to-day, as it has overdone the Commemorative and Provisional stunt, and the blatant advertising of which its stamps have been the subject has not improved their position in popular opinion. The "map" stamps are beginning to recover from their sudden fall, as they have always been popular, and large numbers have been absorbed by collectors trying to get sets of the complete maps. The other sets in the "Sun" type are not likely to go lower than they are; in fact, the watermarked series is likely to go up before long. "Rigas" are common stamps, but supplies are gradually disappearing. The blue "Semitan" 10 k. is much more plentiful now than it was when first issued, but the large 10 k. "Independence" is getting good, as are the 50 k. and 1 r. "Latgale." The "woman at the helm" issue has been neglected; but this is a mistake, for it is quoted at high rates by Libau dealers, who hold what stock there is. Of the later provisionals, the "2 DIWI RUBLI" on 10 k., blue, seems to be none too plentiful.

Lithuania.—The early type-set issues have been studied in detail in Germany, and most of the available stocks seem to have been absorbed there. Small parcels of the three following sets are offered from time to time, but these stamps are not by any means common. There are several different perfs. to be looked for, some of which may be rare. The issues exposed in the M.C. have been practically killed in this country, and we are glad to see that at least one of the big Continental dealers omits them from his catalogue. The current series has not reached England in any quantity yet.

Poland.—German stamps with the "POCZTA POLSKA" overprint are still plentiful; but Austrian "Feldpost" stamps with similar inscription are not offered much to-day. The latter series is interesting, as there are several uncatalogued varieties of surcharge. The "Warsaw Citizens Post" issue is still about in small lots, but is not very popular. The definitive series in "heller" or "fenni" are hardly likely to go lower than they now are. The "Cracow" series is fairly often met with, but the enormous demand for the ever popular "Paderewski" set has made it difficult to keep in stock. The most interesting Polish issues are those in the small types and corresponding large types issued during 1920. All sorts of shade, and perf. variations may be found, but supplies do not seem to England very freely. The exchange rates quoted in the daily papers are purely arbitrary for this country, stamps can never be obtained at anything like this figure. Posnania and Polish Levants are not often seen in anything like quantity, the former particular being likely to rise.

I have not dealt with the numerous Plebiscite and Occupation issues in these notes, as they have not settled down to the same extent as the issues described above. My general impression is that those who wish to fill up gaps in any of the issues generally described as "New Europe and Armistice" would be wise to do so at once, as there seems to be an early all-round recovery, but would be well advised to leave the "stunt" issues which appear from time to time severely alone.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular.

BRITISH HONDURAS, 1902-1921.

By HARRY E. HUBER.

CHAPTER V.

King George V, Plate 1, 1913,

In 1911 the D.L.R. 1888 type of keyplate was changed again, to include the head of King George V, who succeeded to the throne on the death of his father, May 6, 1910. Three plates were made up as before, one for Postage only, one for Revenue only, and a third for Postage and Revenue combined. At the same time, a further three plates were made up from an improved design on the D.L.R. 1888 model. This embodied a larger head of King George V, on a horizontally lined ground, in a pearled oval, surmounted by a crown. In the upper corners, blanks were left for the insertion of the denomination, and at the foot, another blank space for the reception of the Colony's name. Conventional foliate ornaments filled in the space at the sides. Labels on either side of the oval, at the foot, were lettered "Postage" "Postage", etc. The new design is well balanced, and presents a much better appearance than the D.L.R. 1888, in which the value tablet is much too large and crowds the design into the upper half of the stamp.

The D.L.R. 1912 "Postage & Revenue" design was adopted by British Honduras in 1912, and in March, 1913, the new series was issued. All denominations in the previous King Edward series were included with the exception of the 20c, which was omitted. The adoption of this new design necessitated a whole new set of duty plates, for of course, those made to fit the D.L.R. 1888 plate would not fit the D.L.R. 1912 keyplate. For the lower values, and the dollar values, the figures and lettering were in color on a plain ground, while for the 10c, 25c and 50c the reverse was followed.

The new stamps were printed in sheets of 120, 2 panes of 60 each, side by side, with a narrow gutter between. A marginal line, broken at the perforation lines, surrounds the two panes, and plate 1 appears four times to the sheet, and in the same positions as on the D.L.R. 1888 plate. The stamps were printed on multiple Crown and CA watermarked paper, in colors according to the Crown Agents' color scheme, and perforated comb 14. Chalk surfaced paper was used for the values 10c and upwards.

In December, 1915, the 2c appeared in bright scarlet instead of rose of the first printing.

Large purchases of the new series of stamps by collectors and dealers brought about an increase of $11078 in the postal revenue for 1913. However, in the following years the sales dropped to normal as evidenced by the following comparative figures.

		Expenditure.
	Revenue.	Inland.	Foreign.
1912	$17,814
1913	28,892	$14,202	$ 9,950
1914	17,436	19,968	10,000
1915	15,337	25,727	10,000
1916	14,467	13,480	9,167

Penny postage with the United States of America came into operation on the 1st March, 1915. This was the result of "a proposal. . . . submitted to each of the 33 countries and colonies of the Western Hemisphere", by the U. S. postal administration, "for the conclusion of postal conventions providing that the U.S. domestic letter rate shall apply to letters from the United States for each of said countries and colonies, and that the domestic letter rate of each of said countries and colonies shall apply to letters therefrom destined for the United States." This reduction in letter rate was widely announced in the papers of the country. In the "Pittsburgh Dispatch" of February 26, 1915, it took the following form:—

"Postage Is Reduced To British Colony."

"The United States and British Honduras have come to an agreement under which letters may be mailed between the two countries at the domestic postage rate. The rate to the British Colony has been five cents for the first ounce and three cents for each additional ounce.

"Beginning March 1st, the rate will be 2 cents for the first ounce and 2 cents for each additional ounce. Letters unpaid or insufficiently prepaid will be dispatched to the destination, but on delivery will be subject to a charge of double the amount of the shortage.

"This arrangement refers only to British Honduras. The letter rate to all other British Colonies, except the Bahamas and Newfoundland, is as heretofore, five cents for the first ounce and three cents for each additional ounce."

CHAPTER VI.

King George V, Moire Overprint.

The Colonial Journal for April, 1915, contained the announcement that—"The 1c, 2c and 5c stamps have been supplied overprinted with a design in special violet ink. The overprint covers the entire stamp and was applied to distinguish the stamps so that in the event of their being seized by the enemy in transit, so marked they could be declared invalid. The stamp of the 5c registered envelope is also overprinted in a similar manner."

In August, 1914, the World War had broken out, and the local authorities feared a raid from the several fast German cruisers known to be in Caribbean waters at the time. A volunteer force was called out for defence of the Colony, but the raid did not materialise.

The overprinted stamps reached the Colony without mishap, and were issued as those of the previous printing exhausted. The first to appear was the 5c, which was issued on July 29th, followed by the 2c on November 3rd, and the 1c on December 30, 1915. The violet overprint, or rather underprint, in moire pattern, covered the entire surface of the sheet, inside the marginal lines, including the gutter between the panes.

The stamps were printed from plate 1, and the quantities included in the first shipment were as follows:—

1c yellow green,	60,240
2c rose,	180,000
5c bright blue,	121,080

With the limited quantity of the 1c, it is not surprising that the attention it received at speculators' hands exhausted stock by February. A further indent was made, and the second printing, consisting of 203,880 stamps, was issued on June 6, 1916. This printing was from plate 1 also, but in blue green instead of yellow green. The 1c and 2c overprinted stamps exhausted during the year, but the 5c was on sale up to the end of 1920.

The 5c brown registration envelope (2c Postage & 3c Registration) sent out at the same time as the overprinted is a thing that rarely comes to the publisher of a philatelic work, and if we broke even the publication of our U. S. Library we thought we should have cause to pin a medal ourselves. Imagine, therefore, our delight to find the books an instantaneous success—su a success that the first editions of the green and red covers are completely and absolut sold right out. The third edition of Volume IV representing no less than 2500 copies is a sold right out and now the presses are grinding off new editions of all three works.

This U. S. Library is unlike any other set of books published on the stamps of t country inasmuch as not only has the author given his thirty years experience to the pub but he has priced and noted unusual combinations, shades and cancellations. With this formation no collector need try to unravel the intricacies of the catalogue, and no collector h any excuse not to spot a "National" from a "Continental" nor from an "American" pri The drawings, made at a cost of over $250.00, also help materially to clear things whilst in the case of Volume IV the matter has been brought up to November 1921—ori other words—to date.

By the time this ad appears we hope to have the new editions ready, but in any c Two Dollars sent to us will bring all four books to you just as soon as we get them. Own the type it is probable it will not take very long to get a new supply.

1c WAR, Moire. At first ordinary stamps were used to prepay the supplementary charge, but on August 23, 1916, the 1c blue green, with the moire overprint, was issued with a local overprint WAR, in small Roman caps. 177,480 copies were so overprinted.

The sheets of the 1c moire overprint were separated into panes of 60, and the margin at the right removed, before overprinting. WAR was applied in black from a stereo of 60 subjects, and was placed across the lower part of the oval containing the portrait. A smaller, or battered "A" occurs regularly on the 9th stamp of both panes.

Two panes (120 stamps) are known with the WAR overprint inverted.

The overprinted stamps were available for postage and registration, as well as war tax purposes.

1c WAR, yellow green, without moire, plate 1.—The stock of the 1c War, with burele overprint, having exhausted, the 1c yellow green, from plate 1, without the moire overprint, was overprinted locally in black, from the same stereo, with the word WAR, and issued March 3, 1917. The stamps were overprinted in panes of 60, and the battered "A" continued on the 9th stamp of each pane.

1c WAR, blue green, plate 2.—D.L.R. 1912, Postage & Revenue keyplate 1 having become worn, it was replaced by plate 2 in 1917, and subsequent printings sent to the Colony were from the new plate. When further 1c WAR stamps were required, the 1c blue green, from plate 2 (issued at Belize, March 13, 1917) was overprinted WAR from the same stereo, and issued in June, 1917. The broken "A" is present on the 9th stamp of each pane. The stamp is known with watermark inverted, and also reversed.

A further overprinting was made in March, 1918, for which gray black instead of jet black ink was used.

3c orange, plate 2.—A 3c stamp, printed in orange, for the combined letter rate and war tax, was announced in the January, 1917, number of the Colonial Journal, as being in preparation. It was printed from plate 2, in sheets of 120, and issued on April 16, 1917. The new duty plate necessary had the figures and lettering in color on a plain ground.

3c orange, WAR.—On March 12, 1918, the 3c orange was issued with the WAR overprint, applied locally. The sheets of 120 stamps were separated into panes of 60, and the right margin removed, before the overprint was applied. As with the 1c WAR stamps, the battered "A" appears on the 9th stamp of each pane.

1c and 3c WAR, London overprint.—On April 25, 1918, the 1c deep blue green, overprinted in London, with the word WAR in large wide block letters, 4 mm. in height, was issued at Belize. The 3c followed in September. Both stamps were printed from plate 2, and sent out in sheets of 120.

The stock of the 1c London overprint was destroyed when the Belize G. P. O. burned on August 17, A further indent reached the Colo March of the following year, an was the last printing of WAR s sent out. The 3c London overpri hausted in July, 1919, but the 1 still in use in March, 1921.

THOMAS GORMAN.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

e writer has been unable to learn ame of Thomas Gorman's brother, ascertain what happened to him. as Gorman died in the latter part 75, or early in 1876. The meagre available seem to indicate that his death the business was continby the Estate for the benefit of Gorman for about two years, and he title of the stamp was changed the firm of Thos. Gorman & Bro. ch went out of business, owing to eath of Mr. Thomas Gorman.

e second Gorman die is exactly the first, excepting only in the e of the firm name. The marginal at the left side of the stamp is inscribed "Thomas Gorman".

Boston Book gives the following t—

stamps per sheet (14x15).

s plate was made by the National Note Company and all the stamps it were printed in New York. imprint reads "Printed by the ial Bank Note Company, New ". The last printing may possibly been made by the American Bank Company, but the scarcity of the on watermarked paper and the hat the factory apparently ceased ions not later than 1878 leads to nclusion that all the watermarked s from this plate, as well as all on silk and pink paper, were Na- prints. Both green and dark shades are found on silk paper. utter shade has not been noted on lk or watermarked paper.

silk paper is one of the easiest stamps to find. It was valued thirty-five years ago and a dime ill buy as fine a copy as can be found. The pink paper was never rated over 25c until after 1900, then it jumped to 75c for a few years, and since 1906 has been quoted at $1.00, which is plenty. The quantity printed on pink paper probably was not great but an unusually large proportion of them were saved and became available for collectors.

The watermarked variety was not appreciated until the late '90s. In many cases the watermarked stamps are commoner than the same varieties on other papers and collectors and dealers probably believed this stamp was issued in large quantities on watermarked paper and that plenty were available, or would become available. They were mistaken. Until 1900 the watermarked paper was quoted at 10c, but the same catalog in which nearly all postage stamps were sharply reduced in price, raised this little match stamp from 10c to 80c and three years later—1903—the present quotation of $2.50 became effective. That figure is certainly reasonable enough for a fine copy.

The Gorman stamps are not known to have been used in multiple, and pairs or blocks are rarely seen. Four pairs of the Thomas Gorman on watermarked paper have been noted—one vertical and three horizontal. None of the stamps from this plate are found cancelled.

An old time match manufacturer who was acquainted with the trade in that part of the world tells an interesting anecdote which reveals something of the inside of the match business as it was conducted in the old days.

A great many of the matches made in the '60s and '70s, and even later, were "brimstone" — (sulphur) — friction matches and knowledge of how to make such matches was not particularly difficult to obtain. In 1869 a Gorman advertisement in the New Haven directory carries the line "Manufacturer of Friction Matches". These brimstone matches would light in a gale of wind and owing to their 40 horsepower odor that was perhaps the best place to light them, but because folks didn't enjoy opening their windows to let any passing hurricane blow the fumes away whenever they wanted to light a match, the so-called "parlor match" or snap matches were invented. The latter could be ignited in one's parlor without having all the noses in the family express marked disapproval.

Ives & Judd, proprietors of the Rag Hollow factory in West Cheshire, Conn., had obtained the secret of making parlor matches and guarded it jealously. As the story goes, a young fellow, whom we may call Delaney, because that wasn't his name, who enjoyed Judd's confidence altho he wasn't exactly a mental giant, managed to get hold of their highly prized formula and took it to Gorman's factory with the idea of cashing it in for a satisfactory amount of what now-a-days is sometimes dubbed "easy money".

He mixed up a batch of the composition in Gorman's presence and when he finished Gorman knew as much about making parlor matches as did Ives & Judd. Delaney asked $25.00 for the "secret" and when Gorman demurred at the amount as being big pay for less than two days' work, Delaney said he wanted the $25.00 "not for what he did, but for what he knew"!

Whether he got it or not doesn't matter, for the secret was worth vastly more than $25.00 to Gorman. The story does not go on to tell what Judd said when he found out what had happened, but one may well imagine the atmosphere in the immediate vicinity probably gave unmistakable indication of the presence of brimstone in no small quantity.

A REAL RECREATION.

When love of the schoolboy for playmate so fair
Is spurned, and he seeks isolation
To cry out his young grief in awful despair,
Or seeks in a fight consolation;—

When love for the maiden you loved best of all,
In youthful and deep adoration,
Is spurned, and your pride had a terrible fall,
The future seems rank desolation;—

When love of maturer years groweth quite cold,
You stand in great mortification,
And you feel forsaken, and lonely and old,
Life's nothingness your rumination;—

Friend, never despair, be you young or quite old,
And listen to this revelation:
I know how to replace your love thousandfold.
(Do not term my words desecration).

There is one great pastime that makes you forget
Of lasting and sweet fascination.
A new love I name you, that goes to your head
Like wine with its intoxication.

Philately call they, this delightful vamp
I bring to your notification.
Begin, friend, collecting the bewitching stamp
For peace, rest and real recreation.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The catalog of the second Fennell auction sale is unusually interesting. It is illustrated with half-tone reproductions of many of the rarities offered. Date of sale, December 10.

—A. W. Dunning submits to us a specimen of the razornife that he advertises elsewhere in Adlets. It is a very handy desk tool and will be found excellent for the purpose of cutting corrugated and other forms of pasteboard.

—The Leader Stamp Co., formerly in the Nicholas Bdg., St. Louis, Mo., has removed to 308 Olive Street. The firm is now located in the heart of the downtown business section of the city, with a fine large store with three superb show windows giving plenty of good light. St. Louis stamp collectors will doubtless be greatly interested in the step taken by this firm. C. T. Wessbecher is the president of the company.

—We are informed by Arthur E. Wellington that the Finnish "Aunus" stamps are becoming quite scarce. Complete sets retail for about $40 in Sweden. Mr. Wellington also advises us that a regular set of stamps will soon be issued for Palestine, the matter awaiting only the establishment of the British mandate which will follow the ratifying of the Turkish peace treaty.

—The San Francisco Call and Post in a recent issue had a write-up of Charles B. Turrill, who is pictured as riding a hobby-horse. The story informs us that Mr. Turrill is a stamp collector and has membership in the Society of Philatelic Americans. We are indebted to A. H. Hoffman for the clipping.

Be sure to see a copy of the Dealers' News—just out. It contains some of the most drastic slashes in prices ever known. Our usual rock-bottom prices have been halved and quartered. A sample copy will be sent free to any collector. It is advised that you get in on the bargains quickly, for the reason that the sharpshooters seem to have worked out a system to snap up all of the sleepers. No attention paid to telegraphic orders. Oh, yes, second installment of that K. K. K. story runs. Brought in hundreds of new subscriptions.

Special Cable—The 35c Cabot was overprinted for a one-day airplane service between St. Johns and Halifax. Only 5,000 were so overprinted and none were sold unused. We expect to have a few covers for sale. See Dealers' News No. 4. Sample free.

EDITORIAL.

Abuses—How may the "almost criminal stamp dealer" be scotched? asks a reader who calls attention to a very sharp corner that has been turned by a dealer who we are pleased to say does not advertise in the stamp papers. We know of instances where it is almost a moral certainty that the suspected dealer has engaged in methods, reprehensible from any view-point but at the same time, we cannot actually prove the misdeeds and so, we do not openly accuse him of wrong-doing. It would be impossible for us to run down every case of reported fraud as we could not spare the time and energy to accomplish the work; and unfortunately, we cannot always rely upon the truth of the reports that are submitted in complaint by those who justly feel that they are doing philately a good turn by exposing the masqueraders. What we suggest is that the reputable dealers who must know that they suffer when the unscrupulous dealer imposes on a collector and are actually harmed in a business sense, establish a legal bureau whose duty it would be to investigate reports having the ear-marks of sincerity that are lodged against any member of the trade. The findings of this board could be relied upon and would receive enough publicity to blight him; and overt act could be punished by law. We suppose that this legal department could be established by the American Stamp Dealers' Association but it is probable that it would be more mobile and alert if it were an independent adjunct financed by the high-grade dealers. Ay, there's the rub,—financed. Commercial philately is not yet aware of its importance in this country but the time is coming when it will be.

Thanks—We are grateful to Mr. Derek Ingram, the able editor of Stamp Collecting, London, for the following interesting comments: "I was interested in your paragraph on 'Queen's Heads' in the October 8th issue. Your recollection of the reference to 'Queen's Heads' in an early poem is presumably concerned with Mr. R. B. Barham's 'Ingoldsby Legends,' in which he has the following breezy picture of the new Mulready envelopes:

'The Manager rings
And the Prompter springs
To his side in a jiffy, and with him he brings
A set of those odd lookng envelope things
Where Britannia (who seems to be crucified) flings
To her right and her left funny people with wings
Amongst Elephants, Quakers, and Catabaw Kings
And a taper and wax
And small Queen's heads in packs
Which when notes are too big you're to stick on their backs.'

The 'Ingoldsby Legends' first appeared serially, under Charles Dickens's direction (1837), and were published collectively in 1840.

Punch, which is still appearing every week, said in 1842 that the ladies of England 'betrayed more anxiety to treasure up Queen's heads than King Henry VIII did to get rid of them'!"

Letter—We take the following paragraph from a letter sent us by Prof. E. G. Young, Chiao Tung University, Nanyang College, Shanghai, China: "Things are rather interesting here in the stamp line. The airplane mail service has been discontinued and the stamps are no longer on sale. They are being sold locally at double face and they are worth three or four times face, when used legitimately; and usually a cover is required to prove said legitimacy. As long as the silver dollar is worth fifty cents or more in gold, the U. S. Shanghai set will be sold. The auction season has started here; the first sale was a nice lot of stuff for the general collector."

Aerial—The relinquishment of the Chinese aerial post, if it has been abandoned, is an exception to the progress that is being made in the extension of the aerial postal service. We read in a recent despatch to our post office department that an air route of over eleven hundred miles has been established in the Belgian Kongo, "which is covered in 3 days, or an advance of 11 days over the mail carried by ordinary means." The rate for air passage is represented by special stamps. The Egyptian air mails have been extended and service between Cairo and Bagdad is now available.

* * *

Russia—The Chicago Daily News recently illustrated a portion of cover received by a resident of its city, showing that two stamps of 1,000 rubles each were employed to pay the postage from Soviet Russia. As the paper says, the stamps represent about $1,030, reckoning in the old Russian currency. It is now announced that mail both ordinary and registered, is accepted for Russia in Europe and Russia in Asia, subject to the rules and classifications of the Postal Union. The embargo against letters to Georgia, Azerbaijan, etc., has been raised; and we take it, we shall now be able to get mail through to our correspondent in Batoum.

* * *

Permit—In anwer to our inquiry as to whether the post office department allowed first-class metered mail to be sent without date, we are told by Washington: "When the indicia printed on first-class matter follow the form shown in paragraph 4 (a) of the conditions set forth on Forms 3601 and 3610, governing the acceptance of matter for mailing without stamps affixed—that is, when the words 'First-class mail' are included in the indicia—the date of mailing may be included or omitted at the discretion of the mailer."

* * *

Hinted—Can it be that Ben Hecht who lightly mentioned stamp collecting in his best seller, Erik Dorn, is insidiously hacking away at base of one of our idols so that finally he may topple it over with iconoclastic hands? We have our suspicions of Ben who had a little tale published recently in which he undertakes to describe the auctioneer, Nathan Ludlow, whose words "fire" the stamp collector, among others. Is Nathan Ludlow supposed to reflect Marvin Barlow, the Chicago stamp auctioneer for these many years? If so, have a care O, rare Ben Hecht, for the contented collectors who foregather under the spell of Barlow will fall on you and flatten you like unto a pan-cake. Barlow never describes the lot of stamps that he sells as he is sapient enough to know that his patrons know it all when it comes to stamps.

Picked—In reading Santayana's "Irony of Liberalism," in the Dial, we find among the utterances of this philosopher: "I often wonder, looking at my rich friends, how far their possessions are facilities and how far they are impediments . . . . . private automobiles, private collecti books or pictures, and private se are, to my thinking an encumb In all serenity, we offer stamps solution of the problem, how m tations of wealth, instead of add cares, may create comforts. For several weeks we have taken extra space to tell you about the new issues which have been coming in. The replies have been most satisfactory, but, there are still some people who seem to want proof that we can deliver the goods. Well, we hate to refund your money, and credit slips are n. g., so we FILL YOUR ORDER! Yes, sir, just for the FUN of it!
Still doubtful? Why not ask for approvals? You can be SHOWN all the things we advertise and the nice little specials besides. Just try "The Service with the Human Touch" and be convinced.
Just tell us all about your collection and how we can help you. Our specialty is the better class of EUROPEAN and BRITISH COLONIAL stamps. This doesn't mean that we have a lot of "First Issues" with side-walk margins, WE HAVEN'T! BUT, we do have a fine lot of stamps at fair prices. You have to do four things: Send us (1) Your NAME; (2) Your ADDRESS; (3) Your REQUIREMENTS; and (4) a Reference. WE'LL DO THE REST.

PANAMA AND ITS POSTAGE STAMPS.

By FREDERICK E. HEYDON.

CHAPTER I.

Early Postal History of Panama.

Prior to 1878 when Panama first issued its own postage stamps, in which it was less enterprising than some of the other states, the postal requirements were supplied by the issues of the Colombian government and its predecessors the Confederacion Granadina and the Estados Unidos de Nueva Granada. Panama therefore has no independent postal history or at least none as to which data are accessible before 1878, but owing to the practically entire concentration of the commerce of the country on the great trade route between Panama and Colon, it is not difficult to supply the deficiencies for all practical purposes.

We will commence, therefore, with a period anterior to the use of adhesive stamps when the practice was to indicate by a handstamp or pen on the cover the amount of postage and whether paid or collect. At Panama City the practice was to use a handstamp, oval in the examples which have been brought to my notice, and reading "PANAMA—FRANCO" where the postage was prepaid and "PANAMA—DEBE" where to be collected at destination. Following this oval was a numeral showing the amount of postage in reales. I do not know when the old Spanish currency in reales was changed into that in centavos and pesos and cannot say, therefore, whether covers exist with similar handstamps and values in centavos, but illustrate herewith one of these old postmarks from a letter of unknown date but written by Pablo Arosemena and addressed to Dr. Carlos Icaza-Arosemena, Bogota. Possibly this may be the Carlos de Icaza who was vice-president of Panama in 1841, as works of reference in English are frequently very inexact as to names and even facts in Spanish-American history.

When we come to the postage stamps of the Confederacion Granadina, and its successors used in Panama, we are dependent on the postmarks, which as regards Panama City are always, so far as I know, plainly handstamped and deserve a place in all collections of Panama stamps. Undoubtedly there is abundance of material of this sort in existence, but it is said that even on the Isthmus collectors are indifferent to them while eager to secure some accidental varieties of slight if any significance among later issues. As to the other towns within the Panama territorial limits, it may be stated that few of them used handstamps with name of town, the more usual practice being pen-cancellation. This, in fact, was the case throughout Colombia. However, other town cancellations do occur and their study is of considerable interest. The following examples of Panama postmarks on Colombian stamps may be of interest. They both occur on stamps of the 1883-1886 issue, and while one of them is only shown in part, it is the earliest example I have at hand of a dated cancellation.

In the following pages reference will be made to the use of Panama stamps in Cauca. I have noted no instances of the use of other state or departmental issues in Panama, but it is quite possible that such usage may have occurred and, unless at one of the larger towns where a handstamp was in use, we would be ignorant of the fact. It would be well for collectors to bear this subject of extraterritorial use in mind in examining Colombian stamps generally as I have a suspicion that almost anything goes there at times. This is due partly to the ignorance and incompetency of postmasters at small towns, but more perhaps to the careless business methods of the general government which neglects to keep them supplied with stamps, as is indicated by the number of provisional and local issues, bisected stamps, etc.

STAMP CLUB TO BUILD HOME.

New York Philatelic Society Now Has 400 Members.

Announcement was made at the annual meeting last week of the New York Philatelic Society that, to accommodate the increasing membership, which is now 400, a building committee has been appointed to raise funds for the purchase of a suitable home. The club's headquarters are at 20 East 125th Street. Among the members are many of the best known postage stamp collectors in this city, and among its non-resident members are collectors from many parts of Europe and Asia. The recent inauguration of club stamp auctions on Monday evenings for members has proved a very popular feature.

John L. Stroub was elected President for the coming year. K. Strand and S. Kleimann were chosen Vice Presidents, E. Weiss, Secretary; E. Bendheim, Treasurer; D. Trautmann, Chairman of the Board of Directors and G. Rothmann, Chairman of the building fund committee.—N. Y. Times.

Information regarding new issues and varieties will be gratefully received. We cannot give the addresses of correspondents.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 40 Packard Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

UNITED STATES.—Gibbon's Circular for this month states that their publishers have located a strip of three of the 1c 1861 imperforated at sides. They do not mention as to whether it is a vertical or horizontal strip but judging from the manner in which it is described we would say that it is vertical. If it is horizontal, well and good and in such a case it surely is entitled to a place in the next catalogue. If it is a vertical strip, well Sir Roger de Coverly would say that "much can be said on both sides." The issues from 1857 to 1870 come at times with such margins that parts of the next stamp shows on each side so that they might be trimmed to give the appearance of a part perforated variety. It takes a pair imperforated between at this time to convince the specialist that the variety is part perforated.

Mr. Arthur W. Line kindly informs us that the metered mail machine is being used by the Ronald Press Company and we see from the local papers that quite a few have recently been installed in Philadelphia. One paper went on to say that the machine was strongly recommended by the Postmaster General and quotes him as saying that if they were generally used by the larger firms, the annual deficit of the Post Office Department would be turned into a profit.

A number of collectors have written to ask if these impressions from metered mail machines are collectible as postage stamps. This is indeed a difficult question to answer but off hand I should say that they rank just a little better than the paid permits.

Mr. Arthur L. Tomes kindly sends me a series of the 1903 issue of entire envelopes officially surcharged "CANCELED" in large black capital letters across the stamp with the word "Specimen" falling in the center of the envelope. In the lower right corner we find detailed information as to the size, paper and costs. The set consists of the 1c size 6 on white and the 2c size 3, 4, 5, 8 and 9 on white, the 3 on amber, the 7 and 13 on blue and the size 14 on buff. These have the corner imprints of different firms and were possibly distributed by the department at the time as samples.

Messrs. E. J. Newcomer and E. C. Brown send two new unchronicled varieties of the 2c on 3c provisional envelopes for which we desire to extend our thanks.

ALEXANDRIA.—The Bulletin Mensuel chronicles the appearance of the following provisionals: 50c surcharged 15m and the 2fr overprinted 60m, both on the stamps of Alexandria of the 1903 issue.

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE.—We have seen specimens of the current 1d South African Union stamp overprinted "Bechuanaland Protectorate," but whether this is a provisional or permanent issue we cannot say.—Whitfield King Bulletin.

BRITISH LEVANT.—A further issue of stamps has been made for use on parcels, with values in sterling money instead of Turkish. These are the current British stamps overprinted "Levant" only, in the same type as the issue of 1912. The control number on the sheets of the 1d. stamps is "C12" showing that this value is part of the pre-war stock, the controls on the other values are as follows:—2d and 5d "Q21"; 4d, "R21"; 6d, "P20"; 1s, "Q20." Unfortunately the whole of our consignment of the 3d stamps was in top half sheets on which the control number does not appear. There is also a 2s 6d stamp on which there is no control number, we have only been able to obtain a few of this value, the stock at Constantinople being completely exhausted, but fresh supplies are expected shortly.—Whitfield King Bulletin.

CANADA.—A trip by aeroplane from Halifax to Newfoundland is being arranged for about the tenth of December, and the P. O. Department has been asked to encourage the venture by despatching a letter mail from Halifax on the flight in question. It has been agreed to cooperate in this way provided those sending the mail matter assume the risk. The requirements for this mail are:

(1) "By Aerial Mail" to be prominently written on the address side of the envelope.

(2) The usual four cents postage for a one-ounce letter to be affixed on the address side of the envelope.

(3) Additional postage stamps to the value of thirty cents to be placed on the address side of the envelope. In payment of the special charge for transmission by the aerial service which has been fixed by those making the flight.

CANAL ZONE.—Mr. Gerald D. Bliss has shown us the following values of the new Panama set mentioned below surcharged "Canal Zone" in black: 1c, 2c, 10c, 15c, 24c and 50c. Also the Special Delivery stamp just issued.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—The remaining values of the new type, ¼d, ½d, 1d, 2d, 2½d, 4d, 6d, 2s and 3s are expected to be issued about the end of March, 1922, when all stamps of the old type will be recalled from issue and sold or destroyed. —Whitfield King Bulletin.

It is interesting that the government es official cognizance of the depre- ted mark, since the 120 pfennig stamp ials 30 cents gold, pre-war parity. at a large depreciation is not recog- ed, is undoubtedly due to the greater ue of the mark in Germany than out- e. In any case the stamps are note- rthy as indicating the passing of the wned head as a symbol of Germany."

JOS. J. PULLEN, HOUMA, LA.

In the WEEKLY of November 5 appeared an advertisement by Mr. Pullen, his address being given as Houma, Ia. As there is only one Houma in the United States there is no doubt that all mail thus mis-sent was forwarded to him at Houma, La. We take this opportunity of announcing that Mr. Pullen is an authority on the stamps of Greece. He considers them "the most beautiful and classic in philately". When you think of the stamps of Greece our patron wants you also to think of Pullen of Houma, La., as a source of supply.

REFLECTIONS ON FERRARY PRICES.
By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

The second instalment of the sale of the Ferrary collection occupied three afternoons of fairly brisk excitement at the Hotel Drouot on Oct. 13th, 14th and 15th. The first day there was a big attendance from the start of the proceedings, but there was not the tense interest that prevailed at the first sale in June, Most of the best known dealers of Paris were there, and some of the more prominent collectors. M. Burrus, the Alsatian tobacco merchants, whose purchases provided the chief sensations in June, turned up again, and his rivalry on certain lots similar to the big items he purchased at the first sale served to keep some of the prices higher than they might otherwise have been.

A Mad Purchase.—There were about 209 people present the first day, Thursday, October 13th. The sale opened with 62 lots of Capes. The first lot, comprising two 1d and two 4d triangulars on bluish, unused, brought 1,300 francs, plus tax of 17½ per cent. Four similar stamps, in two pairs, fell in the next lot to 1,020fr. There was a certain amount of mad buying throughout the sale. Lot 25, a 1d carmine triangular, watermarked Crown CC., a mere printers' trial, not known used, was bought by a collector for 14,000 francs, which, with tax, worked out at £330, a very ridiculous price. He could have bought the stamp in London for one-third of the price almost any day of the week. An equally fine copy in the Royle collection sold by Messrs. Plumridge & Co. last May brought £100, which was probably its full worth.

The "Woodblocks."—The "woodblocks," which covered 35 lots, started with an unused 1d., with slight defect, at 5,000fr; another unused, but with slight crease, 3.250fr. Others unused brought respectively 3,300, 1,850, 3,880, 1,720fr; an unused pair, 4,700fr. A horizontal strip of four, used, brought 5,300fr. The 4d stamps unused comprised two singles, each pale blue, which fetched 6,900fr and 2,900fr, a wide difference; and two unused pairs, one pale blue and the other blue, the four stamps bringing 9,600fr. A defective deep blue 4d used fetched 1,600fr. The "rouletted" 4d used brought 4,200fr, and the more interesting retouched corner variety only 1,450fr.

One-franc Bids.—There was some funny bidding in the early part of the sale, and many cautious rises of 1 franc (equalling about fourpence!) were tendered on lots running into hundreds and thousands of francs. Some of the winning figures are 1,601, 1,201, 701, 2,001, 3,001.

A Costly Error.—One man bought two identical lots, one cost him 1,600fr, plus tax, and the other 701fr, plus tax. He had bidden 600fr on the first lot and his bid was mistaken by the auctioneer for 1,600fr.

The Imperforate Ceylons.—Ceylon covered lots 63 to 129. There were six singles of the 4d imperf., used, which fetched 2,900, 4,200, 3,300, 2,650, 1,900, 1,900fr respectively, and an used pair, which brought 3,800fr. The 8d imperf. ranged from 1,900fr to 2,800fr. A marginal copy of the 2s., unused, brought 3,100fr, and a pair, unused, but defective, brought 3,000fr.

A Pair Repaired.—Then we come to the British Guianas, the first lot (176) being Ferrary's second pair of that rarest of birds the 2 cents "circular" stamp of 1850. It will be remembered that the pair sold at the June sale fetched £5,250; the second was a wretched thing in comparison, but a French dealer bought it for £1,410 (60,000fr, plus 17½ per cent. tax). The price showed a fair profit on what Ferrary gave for it (£175) in 1890, but the photograph of it in the London Philatelic Society's handbook on the "West Indies" shows it to be a miserable thing, one of the stamps having a large triangular piece torn out of it, and the other stamp has been cut into. These defects are not so obvious in the photograph in the sale catalogue, as the specimens have been clearly repaired. The large triangular piece that was missing, incorporating the segment from the frame, including "ITI" of "BRITISH" to the centre has been added by the repairer's "art", which is not looked upon with favour in our country though it appears that they are not so particular about such matters in France.

2600A OLIVE ST., ST. LOUIS, MO.

ESTABLISHED 28 YEARS.

First Day £14,700—The sale terminated at 6.15 on the first day, the total realised being 625,795fr, or, with tax, 735,307fr, which was approximately £14,700.

THE SECOND DAY.

A Quieter Opening.—On the second day there was rather less excitement, and when the auctioneer entered the rostrum there were but 51 people present, although the room filled up as the sale proceeded. The total attendance the second day was 151, and the lots were dealt wth rather more speedily, the 200 being disposed of by 5.30 p. m.

They began with the British Guianas, continuing the 1850 "circular" issue. Lot 207 was a 4c on pale yellow pelure paper (W.H.L.) cut square, with some creasing, which brought 11,500fr. Lots 209 and 210 were unused copies of the 1c black on deep carmine of 1851, the types I and II, and they fetched 12,000fr and 10,500fr respectively. A similar price, 10,500fr, was obtained for the 4c on blue, type I, and 9,500fr for type II of the same denomination. A block of four 1c black on deep carmine, unused, but with some defects, brought 8,500fr.

£869 for a Stamp Catalogued £500.—In the 1856 issue there were some important items:—

LOT		FRANCS.
233	1856, 4c on carmine (C.A.W.), superb, used	11,500
234	— 4c on carmine (E.T.E.D.), very fine	6,000
235	— 4c on carmine (E.D.W.), superb, used on letter	10,000
242	— 4c on blue superb	34,000
244	— 4c on blue paper, coloured through (S.G. No. 27, Cat. £500 used), cut square, superb copy	37,000

This last was one of the most interesting items in the sale and was bought by one of the leading London dealers at a price which, with tax, is approximately £869, considerably over the catalogue quotation.

In the 1862 issue a entire sheet of the 1c black on rose (24 stamps), imperf., and without signature, brought 7,500fr. A sheet of the 4c on blue, rouletted, without signature, 11,500fr; a similar sheet, defective and imperf., brought 4,600fr.

A balance of the Guiana collection from 1860 onwards, comprising 796 stamps, realised 26,000 francs.

Hawaiian Missionaries.— Then followed the Hawaiians, starting with another copy of the 2 cents "Missionary," this time the rarer type I. The fine copy of the type II fetched £3,900 in June, but this type I was a little cut at the left, and was not so desirable a specimen; it sold for 90,000fr, representing with tax, £2,115. A 5c, type I, defective, brought 4,100fr, type II, also defective, 7,100fr; 13c, type I, defective, 7,100fr; type II, 5,000fr; type II, used, 3,900fr. There were about 60 lots of Hawaiians, but the "Missionaries" were the outstanding items.

The "Post Office" Mauritius.—The Mauritius commenced with lot 351, containing the two "Post Office" Mauritius, 1d and 2d, which had been used together but have been separated and put together again. The pair is of interest as being the first examples of these stamps that became known to collectors. They were found by Mme. Borchard, of Bordeaux, on her husband's correspondence, from which source 13 out of the 26 known copies of these stamps were obtained. Mme. Borchard was a collector in the early 'sixties and, finding these two stamps inscribed "Post Office", she could discover no place for them in her album. Consequently she preferred to exchange them with a boy, Albert Coutures, of Bordeaux, for two "Montevideos," for which spaces were provided in her album. Coutures' collection was sold in 1865 for the then remarkable sum of 3,000 francs to a Bordeaux merchant named Gimet. He sold the two "Post Office" Mauritius to Moens, the famous Belgian dealer, in October, 1865, for 200 francs. Moens sold them to Mr., afterwards Judge Philbrick, for 500 francs, and they were in the Philbrick collection when Ferrary bought the whole of that wonderful accumulation (except the Great Britain) for £8,000 in 1881.

The two stamps have good margins, but were otherwise defective, the penny stamp having the top left corner damaged. Here again there were indications of Parisian repairing, especially in the top left corner of the 1d, and the two celebrated rarities fetched only £2,300 the pair (98,000fr, plus tax), probably less than half what really good copies would have fetched.

Lots 353 to 359 comprised the 12 types of the 1d "Post Paid" used, early states, but on various papers. Lots 360 was a 1d vermilion "Post Paid", with fine engraving, used and slightly defective; it realised 16,000fr. Lot 382 was a fine unused 2d deep blue, first state of the plate, and brought 40,000fr, being, with tax, £1,100.

Second Day's Total £18,110.—The second day's total was 770,870 francs, which with tax, was equivalent to approximately £18,110.

THE THIRD DAY.

The sale proceeded on Saturday with the Mauritius Post Paids. An interesting lot was No. 422, containing two 2 blue, one a most distinct double impression, visible all over the design, and the other not so marked double impression; the two stamps sold for 8,600f Lot 423 was a fine pair of the 2d fille 1859, but it had a tiny pinhole, and fetched 28,000fr, or £658 with tax.

The Moldavians included a fine 27 black on rose of 1858, which brough 11,400fr, or about £268 with tax. good copy with slight crease of the 8 paras brought the record price of 31 000fr (i.e., 36,425fr) equivalent to £72 A tête-bêche pair of the 27 paras, use at Galatz (blue postmark) brought 46 000fr, or £1,081; this is said to be th only tête-bêche pair known. An 81p an 27p used together brought 29,000fr.

The Swiss were an exceptionally fi lot. The beautiful block of six "doub Genevas" unused realised 113,000 (£2,655 with tax), and the complete she of the 5c "large Eagle," 64,000fr (£1,5 with tax). A block of twelve 5c Vau 18,000fr (£423). The five types of th 4rp Zurich, in two unused pairs, and o unused single, brought 17,100fr.

A 1s orange, Newfoundland, 1860, u used brought 8,000fr (£188 with tax).

Tuscany brought a new record for th 3 lire. The prices of the chief Tusca (without tax) were:—

	FRANC
Strip of three 2 soldi red, unused	11,0
Strip of three 60 crazie red, unused	15,0
3 lire yellow, very fine unused, with gum	15,0
3 lire yellow, used	8,1

—Stamp Collectors' Fortnight

FALKLAND ISLANDS 1s WAR.

By FRANK G. GREENE.

The startling drop in Scott's of t 1s value of the Falkland Islands W Stamp Issue (No. 103) from ten to fi dollars and now to 75c, is of course, d to Scott's policy of not listing all "min varieties"

There were four separate printings this value, each slightly different fro the others. The rarity runs in order issue, the first being the scarcest, as the were but 1200 copies printed. The se ond and third are scarce but the fou is common.

The color of the first is brown; t second, bistre brown; the third, lig bistre brown, and the last deep brow

The gum also varies, the first havi a thick brown gum; the second, a th white; third, a thin brown, and the l a thick brown.

The plates of the first are good, wh the second and third issues were evide ly printed from worn plates, the lines the background around the head bei uneven and broken. The fourth iss was made from new plates.

The first issue was surcharged with dull black ink, the other three printin with a glossy black ink. When held to light this difference can easily be se all issues except the first reflecting light,

The value of the first printing shou be equal to the Bahama Islands No. 3 of which there were also but 1200 cop printed; this would give back its form value, $10.00.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

PRECANCEL PARAGRAPHS.

By FREDERICK ALLEN.

Who knows anything about Berwick, Maine? I recently acquired a 2c Pan. Pac. precancelled in small stocky type, between short bars, BERWICK, ME. Is this a spurious or a legitimate issue?

The 2c surface print has appeared from St. Paul, Minn., bearing a new precancellation in a rubber type. It reads ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA, between lines. The letters are practically the same as in the electro. No doubt this is a private cancellation authorized by the P. O.

We have so many "wildcat" precancels, that one must be constantly on the watch for such rubbish. Now that the flood of N. E. precancels, faked and otherwise has been stemmed, we must turn and face another deluge from Knoxville, Tenn. The electrotype looks o. k., but is to a certainty—speculative. Nearly everything from Knoxville comes o. g. Beautiful doubles are met with as often as the normals. The 1c and 2c imperf. have come out in normal, inverted, double and double inverted varieties. The Victory issue came in many positions also. But now Knoxville emerges in a new type, which is hand-stamped yet handsome, Knoxville, Tenn., in heavy letters with a bar at the bottom. This has appeared on the Victory 6c and 16c Aeros, dues, 1c offset, and Jamestown issue. Yes, the JAMESTOWN ISSUE. Does not that condemn them? Further developments o this case will appear next month.

Indiana, Pa., has precancelled the Special Delivery, also the 13c. The Pilgrims have appeared in the normal and inverted positions. A double print, one up and one down, occurs on the 2c Pilgrim.

Sunbury, Pa., (block capirals in one line) is out with the Pilgrim issue. All values in the four positions are met with. I do not know their exact status, but they seem o. k.—Precancel Gazette.

Our next batch of events is still largely concerned with the revolutions and declarations of independence of the Spanish territories in Central and South America. The Commemorative stamp seems to exercise a strange fascination on the Latin temperament, and probably the desire to "make a splash" is an even stronger motive for their production than the wish to make money out of philatelists, particularly as, in spite of the flood of "New Europes" which have usurped their place in popular favour, such stamps still continue to be issued. The dates refer to a period when practically the whole of the Spanish possessions in America were in the melting pot, due to the spread of revolutionary ideas which had their birth in France and found opportunity for practical expression as a result of the weakening of Spanish power during the Napoleonic wars.

1811-1911. (Paraguay, 1911 issue.) Declaration of Independence of Spanish rule. (Paraguay did not join in the movement for independence which started at Buenos Ayres, but kept itself distinct from Argentina as well as from Spain and repulsed Belgrano when he attempted to impose the revolutionary government on her.)

(Salvador, 1911 issue.) Centenary of the insurrection of 1811.

(Uruguay, "Artigas" overprint of 1911.) Commemorates the centenary of the revolution against Spain, in which Artigas, portrayed on several stamps of the country, led the Uruguayan forces.

(Venezuela, 1911, 25c.) Centenary of Independence. Venezuela revolted against Spain in 1811, but her general, Miranda, portrayed on this and other stamps of the country, was forced to surrender. In 1813, Bolivar, the Liberator, also shown on the same stamp, took up the fight, but it was not until 1819 that his efforts were crowned with success.

1813. (Barbados, Nelson statue type.) Date of erection of this, the first monument to Nelson's memory.

1813-1913. (Holland, issue of 1913.) Commemorative of the French withdrawal after the Battle of Leipzig, and of one hundred years of independence.

1814-1914. (Norway, 5, 10 and 20 öre, 1914.) In 1814, Christian Frederick proclaimed the independence of Norway (till then under Danish rule) and called the constitutional assembly which is depicted on these stamps, but the Powers would not support him and he was forced to abdicate, Norway being united to Sweden, with Charles XIII as king.

1816-1916. (Argentina, 1916 issue.) Centenary of Independence. The 5c. shows the scene of the declaration of independence, July 9th, 1816.

24 Feb., 1816. (Colombia, Registration stamp, 1910.) This stamp depicts the execution by the Spaniards, under Morillo, of a number of the inhabitants of Cartagena who had surrendered on promise of an amnesty. This stamp was quickly withdrawn after issue in consequence of representations made by the Spanish Government which did not like this reminder of a discreditable incident in Spanish history.

1817-1917. (Brazil, 100r., 1917.) Centenary of the Republican Revolution in Pernambuco. Republican Union of 6 March, 1817.

15 Sept., 1821. (Guatemala, all "Quetzal" types.) This is the date which accompanies the word "Libertad" on the scroll on which the bird perches, and is that of the throwing off of Spanish suzerainty by the Spanish possessions in Central America. The same date appears on an overprint of Salvador, applied to a 1 c. stamp in 1909.

7 Sept., 1822. (Brazil, 200 r., 1900.) Declaration of Brazilian Independence of Portuguese rule, by Dom Pedro, who took the title of Emperor on October 12th in the same year. His son, Dom Pedro II, is portrayed on the issues from 1866 to 1884.

August, 1824. (Samos, 1913 issue.) I cannot trace this date, but it probably refers to some event of the Greek War of Independence, which was of importance to the island.

1825-1910. (Bolivia, issues of 1909-10.) The independence of Upper Peru was declared on 6 August, 1825, when it became the Republic of Bolivia, with Bolivar as first president.

1825-25 August,-1908. (Uruguay, issue of Aug., 1908.) The Declaration of Uruguayan Independence was, apparently, made on this date, but it was not formally recognised until the close of the war between Argentina and Brazil (1827).

1826. ("Commonwealth" 9d. of N. S.W. and Queensland.) Date of settlement of Western Australia.

1830-1910. (Austria, Bosnia, etc., 1910.) Birth of Emperor Francis Joseph, and eightieth anniversary.

1835. (Parliamentary Stamp of Spain.) The date appears on the pedestal of the statue of Cervantes. Apparently the year in which this statue was erected.

1836. ("Commonwealth" 9d. N.S. W. and Queensland.) Founding of South Australia.

1837-1897. (Canada and Mauritius, 1897.) Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria.

1843-1893. (Shanghai, 1893.) Jubilee of the port which was opened to foreign commerce on the former date.

6 Mar., 1845-5 June, 1895. (Ecuador, 1896 series.) Commemorating the temporary supremacy of the Liberal party in 1845 and its ascendancy in 1895.

1848-1900. (Turks and Caicos Is., 1900.) The dates refer to the political separation of the islands from the Bahamas group of which they are geographically a part. They are now administered by Jamaica.

1848-1908. (Austria, etc., 1908.) Accession of Francis Joseph and 60th anniversary.

1850. ("Commonwealth", 9d. N.S. W. and Queensland.) Settlement of Queensland.

6 April, 1850. (Wurtemberg, 1851-2.) Date of treaty establishing a German-Austrian postal union.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Circular.

HOW TO KILL A STAMP CLUB.

Don't come to the meetings.

If you do come, come late.

If the weather doesn't suit you, don't think of coming.

If you do attend a meeting, find fault with the work of the officers and other members.

Never accept office, as it is easier to criticise than to do things.

Nevertheless, get sore if you are not appointed to a committee; but if you are, do not attend the committee meetings.

If asked by the chairman to give your opinion regarding some important matter, tell him you have nothing to say—after the meeting, tell everyone how things ought to be done.

Do nothing more than is absolutely necessary, but when other members roll up their sleeves and willingly, unselfishly use their ability to help matters along, howl that the organization is run by a clique.

Hold back your dues as long as possible, or don't pay at all.

Don't bother about getting new members, "Let George do it"—Woman's Shield.

VOL XIII The Filatelic Filibuster No 25

Our Motto "Fabricated, Filiform, Facinorus Filately"

Mattewan Annex.

Every week some muddler of microscopic mentality makes suggestions regarding our motto. This time a molecular-minded miscreant has suggested that we change "farraginous" to "ferruginous" implying that our effort to convey our packet-like make-up has been futile, and that the butter-brained babbler in question thinks that we are rusty! Far from it! We have the whole dictionary to consult, and if any man believes that we are unable to concoct a sufficiency of alliterative atrocities, let him peruse the above motto! A fair, fine freak, we'll say!

Our old friend and pi-maker Ah See Wrestler has been geeting in bad with the nobility again. He incurred the wrath of the Amicable Sour Dough's Annex by claiming that he was Grand Duke of Dodder, and now everyone is wondering if Baron Kase von Limberger and Count Schlick von Schwindle will wave the towels and squeeze the sponges in the opposite corners while the Duke de Dodder throws Oranges at the Margrave of Manila, who is going to shoot stogies. They say that gas warfare is barred, but the Margrave claims that a stogie is a rope!

We have received another copy of one of the Dune catalogs, and we are encouraged to publish another number of our literary lodestone. Ptcklrs of this ctlog in neckst colyumne.

The popular Presdent of the Sorority of Plastic Americans has been to Cuba on a honeymoon. Looks as if he is taking to drink rather early for a Newly-wed. Whether he stopped at the Bahamas and Bermuda on the return trip is not known, but if there isn't sufficient licker in Cuba, why not buy 100,000 hinges and be a stamp licker for a little while, stay home, settle down, and settle up!

Dumb Bell Philately.

A country which we suspect to be located in New Europe somewhere is mentioned as "Mohel!". That's a fact, brothers: there's "mo' hell" in New Europe than anywhere else, and the dealers are catching just as much of it as the collectors, perhaps more, because they have to pay the return postage on all the unsolicited consignments from Carinzig and Polstillvania and Slugo-Homebrewskia and a lot of other places we can't find on our map.

Then there is "Guinana", a compound perforation of Guinness' and Bananas, and said to be very good for falling hair, lack of original gum, and thin spots.

Also "East Agrica", located down on the farm, among the rural scenery of chickens and calves, somewhere on Broadway, judging from the "Agrica" part of it. Our Latin is kinda mixed just now, however, as we have been trying to translate said catalog into regular language.

That Mulready has as many aliases as some of our popular hold-up men. Last time it was "Mubready"; now it's "Muready". Perce, old top, try Mulberry!

"Valparoiso" is a new one, too, which we suspect ought to be Valparesis. Sounds a bit doddery, anyhow. Somebody page Orange Juice, N. J.!

One of these days we are going to get out a catalog of our own, and we are going to show this Dome ginkob that he hasn't anything on us. We are going to start right off the hip to produce a list of new ones, and just to show that our ideas are okeh, we mention Battlem, Bendeer, Cabhire, Jazzmania, Ninne, Papaw, Lemonade State, Seewar, to indicate only a few of the unusual items in stock. Of course, the printer may pi them and get them right in spite of our legitimate efforts, and if home hootch makes him stumble thus, it's a step in the right direction.

Christmas Combinations, Packets, Albums, Philatelic Accessories

This week we offer a list of good things for the beginner and younger collectors. These various combinations are made up as gift suggestions, together with choice packet values, etc., which should appeal to all. We, of course, have left some space for our old customers, and some nice new arrivals, etc., will be found under their proper headings.

MISSIONARY GIFTS

Here is the chance of solving the Christmas gift problem, at the same time boosting the greatest hobby of all time, "Stamp Collecting". There is not one reader of this "ad" who is not keenly interested in the pursuit, and also not one who does not have close friends or relatives not interested in philately. The start is always a gift of a packet, an album, or such like, and the collector is made.

Have you not someone you would like to talk "stamps" with, someone you wish would take an interest?

If so, look over the list of combinations we can offer for every purse. Our profit on these is insignificant. Our object is future business and a new collector made, or a beginner further enthused.

THE "POST PAID" MAURITIUS.

By C. A. HOWES.

(Translated by Permission from Messrs. Theodore Champion's "Monthly Bulletin" and will later be reprinted in booklet form.)

[NOTE—The sheets from which the electrotypes were reproduced that will follow in the course of this article, were reconstructed mostly from the stamps of the famous collection of Dr. Chiesa of Milan, who had devoted several years to the bringing together of this marvellous assemblage of different types in different states of impression, of shades, of blocks and of cancellation varieties.

This splendid collection was sold some two years ago by Dr. Chiesa to a French amateur, who resold it about six months ago to Mr. Hind, the great New York collector, who was able to acquire it through the medium of M. Theodore Champion, the well-known dealer.]

We had for a long time considered reconstructing the plates of the first issues of Mauritius, but from the intent to the reality there is often a mountain of hindrances. We had been able to fit together some copies, but there were too many lacking, alas, for us to realize our desires. In philately, however, one must never despair, and it is not only for lovers that the poet has sung "when in despair one still has hopes."

Having had occasion recently to have at our disposal a marvellous specialized collection of Mauritius, we had the good fortune to find, among the many copies in this collection, the particular ones that we lacked in order to reconstruct, with the original stamps, the four plates that we are now offering reproductions of to our readers.

It was no small task, seeing that the engravings showed different states of the plates and that lines were often defective. It was necessary to examine each copy minutely; to note special markings which, on many copies, were completely lacking; to measure not only the inscriptions but also the distances which separate the first and last letters in the frames; to analyse the form (quite often deformed) of the letters of each word in order to finally identify the twelve copies which constitute a plate. However, in order to find the twelve, it is readily understood that a large number of copies is necessary so as to eliminate duplicates and poor impressions.

We therefore believe we should draw the attention of our readers to the achievement that we have now accomplished in Philately, by being able to give reproductions of the four reconstructed plates of the first issues of Mauritius, a fact that gives some idea of the value of the collection, which permits the success of this work and also of the variety of types, that it offers of these rare and valuable stamps. A certain number of pairs and blocks facilitated our arrangement and often served as a basis for the reconstruction of the plate, but aside from these relative helps it was necessary for us to examine minutely into the mass that lay before us in order to find this or that copy, which was lacking, as we did not wish to present incomplete plates.

Further on we shall indicate in detail the definite points which permit the identification of the different types of each value.

Just now we wish simply to point out that when the Post Office error was recognized, the engraver was ordered to reëngrave the stamps which should this time bear the correct inscription Post Paid. As it was realized that much waste of time and difficulty occurred in printing the stamps one by one, the engraver, Barnard, was ordered to make a plate of several stamps for each value. He placed twelve engravings on each plate, but as the human hand can never draw the same line twice in succession with equal security, regularity and depth, the result is that the engravings, while all presenting the same general appearance, yet if placed side by side show individual peculiarities, often quite noticeable, which serve to constitute, as we said before, twelve different types.

Ten years later the plate of the 2 pence, which had been much used, had become worn. Another engraver was ordered to retouch it and the new work that he did upon the lines of his predecessor resulted in the Fillet type. The

Gibbons Stamp Circular

This snappy little publication is mailed free for nothing—not even postage—once a month unless the editor goes fishing or yachting. This season of the year therefore is a good time to write for a copy. This circular is not mailed to substitutors, kid collectors, send-em-back-unregistered fiends and such like. Postcards also go straight into the waste paper basket. Serious and interested collectors would do well to send for a copy and get on the list free before we close the offer with the ten thousandth name. [H same year there was a new engraving upon copper of a larger vignette with indistinct lines known under the scarcely complimentary name of the "dog's head".

Finally, we have discovered something that is not common and that is, a double impression of the 2 pence of 1848. This was due without doubt to a slight displacement of the sheet but a double print was certainly made. The printer, interrupted in the course of his work, perhaps thought he had not made the impression and he made it a second time to be sure. It is quite probable that this happened only once and there should therefore be but twelve copies possessing this peculiarity. It is certainly the first double impression known amongst the early issues of stamps, which shows that all the Mauritius stamps can be the subject of study and that research procures for him, who does not fear to indulge in it, some measure of self esteem, since the author of these lines indulges only in pure philately.

for the first printings that are found are perfect. Later, on account of the filling up of the lines with ink, the vignettes lost their clearness, but that is a common occurrence with all line engraved prints.

The plates of the One Penny and Two Pence were made up, as we shall see, by the reconstructed sheets, whose reproductions will follow in due course, of four rows of three vignettes. And, naturally, there are as many types as there were stamps engraved since, just as there are no two leaves of a tree mathematically identical in nature, the human hand cannot draw two absolutely similar figures. It thus happened that the "Post Paid" stamps had some singular adventures in the early days of Philately. The possessor of a One Penny type I, for instance, maintained that a copy of type V was counterfeit—the letters were not formed the same, the measurements of the inscriptions were different, etc. And he would arrive at the same conclusion

Reconstructed Plate of the One Penny "Post Paid" Mauritius of August, 1848.

THE ISSUE OF AUGUST, 1848.

After the error of the "Post Office" was recognized, the Government ordered the engraver Barnard, he of the rattled pate but steady hand, to engrave two plates of twelve vignettes each in the same type as the first issue, but reading this time POST PAID. It was realized that to print the stamps one at a time was a ridiculous performance and as the Government had just decreed, under date of September 10, 1848, that prepayment by means of postage stamps, would be obligatory beginning January 1, 1849, it was therefore necessary to employ somewhat more rapid methods.

It may be said that the engraver did not do too badly with this arduous work, for the Two Pence, types V and XII, for instance, which differ so much.

It can be readily understood, therefore, what great interest attaches to the publication of the exact reproduction of an entire sheet of these rare stamps. We intend to describe briefly but sufficiently each type by its special characteristics, in order to guide the collector who, by the assistance of the reproduced sheet and our indications, will easily be able to determine the number of the type that he possesses.

Below we present a summary indicating the varieties of the twelve types of the One Penny,

(a) Considering only the corners and ornaments.

(b) Considering only the inscriptions.

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

The growth of philately within the last decades had a great influence upon the twenty-five years of existence of the Collectors' Club, New York City. Right from the beginning it has developed as one of the most important philatelic associations in the country. Its members were composed of serious philatelists who devoted much of their time, not only to collecting, but also to the study of philately. Thus the members of this club could find all the elements necessary for specializing in certain countries and certain issues, more perhaps than in any other club in the country. Its rich library has been the means of great help to the members and expert advice was always available.

Like almost all concerns, also the Collectors' Club, decided to re-organize after the war, and now in entering upon another twenty-five years of existence, new methods have been adopted to instill new blood and new life.

At the last annual meeting, the following officers have been elected: John N. Luff, the well-known philatelic author and expert, President; E. M. Sterling, Vice President; H. M. Lewy, Treasurer and Dr. J. B. Chittenden, Secretary and Librarian.

It was decided that during the coming year the entrance fee will be waived. The annual dues are $10.00 for resident members and $5.00 for non-resident members. New members are welcome.

Another important decision is the establishment of a Bourse and Exchange in the club rooms, 120 West 49th Street, N. Y. C. These "Bourse Meetings" are being held twice a month during this year, but beginning January 1st, 1922, they will be held twice a week, every Tuesday and Friday nights, and also on the first and third Wednesdays of every month, which are the regular meeting nights of the club. A "Bourse Committee" has been appointed under the chairmanship of Mr. E. M. Sperling, to enforce the rules and regulations governing the Bourse.

On December 3rd, was held the anniversary dinner at the Hotel Brevoort, Fifth Avenue, at 8th Street, New York City. In the afternoon an exhibition of collections was held at the club rooms, 120 West 49th Street, from 2 to 5.30. The Secretary, Dr. J. B. Chittenden, can be seen at the club every day in the afternoon.

THE KELLEHER SALE.

By EYEFULL.

"You cannot pay too much for fine U. S. stamps" is a frequent remark of a well-known collector of the middle west, who is famed for the beautiful things he always has about him. The truth of his belief was supported at the D. F. Kelleher sale (B. L. Drew & Co.), in Boston recently, when the exceptional things, among moderate priced early U. S., brought some new top figures, and the general run of nice single copies without special interest of cancellation or shade brought well above catalog valuations. Many fine foreign stamps also brought surprising prices, general business conditions considered. Most of the lots of general interest were taken by floor bidders, who constituted a representative group of collectors and dealers from New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Washington, Chicago and other points.

LOCALS.

One had expected to find some lack of interest and consequently, low prices in certain frequently neglected lines, such as the little group of "locals on original covers" with which the sale opened, but when lot No. 1, an ordinary black Am. Letter Mail, sold for $5.25, bargain hunters began to feel they had wasted their carfare. Not one of the 21 items in this group brought less than catalog. The general average was about double catalog figures and several pieces of no spectacular appeal brought from three to nearly ten times the listed prices. For instance, Hussey's 1c red, No. 2540, Cat. $1.00, brought $8.75. The few (only three), good looking "Carriers" did as well, two copies of the Eagle bringing respectively, $10.75 and $6.75, while a Boston 1c blue, No. 1813, sold for $35.50.

1847 ISSUE.

The 1847 and 1851 issues attracted most attention. They averaged a very nice lot with a few quite exceptional items.

On cover the 5c, 47's singles, with ordinary postmarks such as New York, Boston, etc., brought anywhere from the extreme low of $5.20 to a maximum of $18.75, this latter figure for a very pretty stamp on a clean cover from Brunswick, Me., to Boston, with red grid on the stamp.

Another with red grid, from Kingston, N. Y., to Cheshire, Ct., sold for $16.75, and a third of no special interest to cancellation collectors sold for $16.25.

When the cancellation amounted to anything, the bidding was very strong. A quite ordinary "New York Ship" on a single cost the present owner $27.75; a "Boston & Albany R. R." sold at $38.25, while a "Prov. & Wor. R. R." fetched an equal amount. The cheapest pair of the 5c, and damaged at that, was $17.00, while the good ones were knocked down at $36.00 and $38.00 respectively!

Off cover the only bargain noted was a 5c with pen cancellation removed, which some lucky enthusiast secured for $4.10, while others had to pay an average of $8.00 each for nice copies, with red grid cancellations. That figure sank to insignificance when copies appeared with any other cancellation. A black town brought $21.25; a not very clear, blue paid, $14.75; a somewhat mussy green $14.75. One of the three pairs, quite nice too, was bought for $43.00, while others less attractive, sold at $24.50 and $25.00.

The 10c, '47, proved its soundness by selling on covers all the way from $26.00 to $52.50, the latter figure for a cover with a Pittsburg cancellation and "10" on the envelope and dull red "PAID" on the stamp. Off cover, a copy cancelled with fine blue bars fetched $48.00, one with a R. R. cancellation sold at $42.00, a broken frame line, $36.00, while ordinary fine copies averaged over catalog.

THE 1c, 1851.

With several specialists, who have been plating the 1c, 1851, now out of the market, so far as keen competition is concerned, one looked for no extravagant prices on the ordinary run of nice copies of this stamp. But apparently the general collector of U. S. have taken it to their hearts and no copy that by any stretch of the imagination could be called "fine" sold for less than about 50% over catalog, while items of any real interest hit the ceiling. For instance, a very pretty copy of Type II, with pane margin at bottom, cancelled in blue brought $26.50 off cover. Another fine copy with sheet margin and guide line fetched $11.00, while another good copy cancelled in red was knocked down at $21.25. "Mine runs" fine singles sold from a low of $2.60 to $7.50. Pairs more than trebled the prices for singles, the prices running $15.00, $22.50, etc. A nice vertical strip made a price of $24.00, while a good though not thrilling block reached $77.00.

THE 3c, 1851.

So far as the value of fine or even nice copies of the 3c, 1851, is concerned, the catalogs are about as good guides as moving picture posters, and less interesting to look at. The lowest prices of course, were realized on the lots with 10 or more copies. Many of these stamps lacked a lot of being superb items, but each lot had a few good things in it which encouraged the bidders to offer 25c to 50c average each for the stamps. One lot of 16 singles with paid cancellation and many "Boston" grids, sold at $20.50. Another lot of 20 miscellaneous grids, many of them undesirable, got $6.70, an average of more than 30c each, which brought the useful ones up to about $1.00 each.

As for the fancy pieces! One sheet margin copy showing a Virginia Central R. R. postmark topped the lot with a bid of $20.00 off cover. Ordinary copies off cover with Railroad cancellations sold at from $2.20 to $6.00, while those on cover realized from $5.50 to over $10.00. Two copies of the "line through 3 cents", neither of them listed as fine, brought $4.20 and $4.25, respectively. Pairs sold at from $3.00 to $6.35 for a nice vertical, lightly cancelled couple. Fine strips of three were bid up to $7.00, $7.75, $9.30 and $10.00; two strips of four $13.00 and $16.00 respectively, and a strip of five was knocked off at $16.50. The highest priced item of all the 3 cents, 1851, was a single on cover, which sold for $35.00 because of its New York, 1853, year date cancellation.

THE 5c, 1851.

All of the 5c, 1851, sold for more than catalog. Two singles on covers, each with a "close" side, yielded $42.50 and $51.00, and one off cover with a red and a black cancellation went up to $49.00.

THE 10c, 1851.

There was half a dozen nice items among the 10 cents, 1851, and they aroused keen competition. A fine wide margined copy with San Francisco postmark on cover was bid up to $25.00, a pair on cover to Havana sold at $29.00, "Outer line recut at top" on cover, $44.00. Off cover copies really did better, for a pane margin copy with center line "full scrolls" sold at $21.25, a single with red town cancellation made $14.00 and the double recut, $61.00. A nice pair fetched $29.00 and a pen cancelled strip of four, $63.00. Ordinary copies in lots of two, three and four, sold for an average of full catalog.

12 CTS., 1851.

Fine singles of the 12c, 1851, off cover, brought from $11.50 to $13.00, none lower, but the "shift" sold at $17.50 and a steamboat cancellation went to $25.00. Four pairs on cover sold at $38.00, $54.00, and $57.00 for the good ones, while a pair clipped at bottom went at $21.00.

Practically every undamaged Confederate on cover sold over catalog for the ordinary varieties, and some of them went to three times catalog figures. One cover with a 10c rose and a 10c blue, used together, was run up to $90.00, while the 10c with frame lines on all sides sold for $75.00.

Those who thought that both the money and the patience of the bidders would be exhausted before the foreign stamps were reached were sadly mistaken. Almost every fine lot offered brought a large percentage of catalog, and frequently exceeded list figures. Really fine singles and all pairs, strips or blocks of Belguim, Brazil, Canada, Capes, Chili, France and other countries popular with collectors, left official prices away in the rear.

The pence issues of Canada were particularly strong, nice pairs of the 3d, bringing about double catalog; a strip of three on wove paper fetched $24.00 (Cat. $9.00), and a strip of four sold at $46.00. Ordinary copies of the 6d sold up to $31.00, while fine copies of the 7½d ran from $43.50 to $67.00 for one on cover. A ½d cancelled "1857" in colorless numerals brought $20.50. It was a confidence-restoring sale for those who put their faith in fine stamps.

The next discontinuance of subscriptions will concern all subscribers whose wrappers bear the numbers 1611 to 1614 inclusive. Just glance at your wrapper immediately in order to make sure that your subscription is paid up. You have ample time in which to renew and be saved the inconvenience of a discontinuance. Moreover, under our new system we are making no plans for furnishing back numbers and subscribers must not expect that we can supply back numbers when we have made every effort to notify them.

We are satisfied that the system we have inaugurated is the only one under which a newspaper can do business these days, and subscribers must understand that free copies of the WEEKLY will not be sent to those who are in arrears.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

THE WHY AND WHAT OF PRECANCELS.

By V. W. ROTNEM.

The precancel has become popular; that is a conceded point. Where postmarks, postal cards, envelopes and paid permits fell down was their inability to fulfill all the requirements of true philatelic possibilities; either they lacked accessibility, were too bulky, too uninteresting, too difficult to classify, or to put it bluntly they were a poor substitute for the good old-fashioned postage stamp.

Now just what do I mean by accessibility? Just this: precancels are within the reach of everyone. Who has not at some time noticed the attractively printed names of towns on certain of the United States stamps? Who has not noticed the grocer's mail coming in with the names of odd towns? Perhaps on a canoe catalogue or supplies shipped from Old Town, Maine, by Parcel Post, you noticed a block of four twelve cent with the name of this town printed on each stamp. A Sears-Roebuck catalogue comes to you with a fine copy of the eight cent stamp with the word Delavan, Wisconsin, appearing in clear, neat type. A package from the Pacific coast bears a blue five cent with Walla Walla, Washington, (alliteration superb!). A sample of raw cotton comes from Hattiesburg, Mississippi, clearly depicted by a fine inscription in purple ink on a four cent brown; your oil stock advertisements are a god-send, a nine cent Amarillo, Texas, is a real find. The days of finds in the garret are just about over, but for a precancel fan, every day brings a pleasant surprise.

If precancels are accepted as a new twentieth century major variety, every common variety of a one, two, three or six cent stamp takes on a different aspect. It is valuable from a different angle. It approaches a distinctly philatelic economic value in proportion to the relative size of the city or town which appears printed upon it. Most precancel collectors go thru the intermediary stage of realising this value and therefore forming a little collection of all the various varieties which fall into their hands by accident. As other varieties come with every day's mail duplicates gather and exchanging starts.

This was the transition I went thru, and it happened in my case, as it does in many cases that my accumulation of certain towns especially was large. When a boy I lived in the small town of Mabel, Minn., which is very near to Winona, the latter not a large place, either. However, they did issue precancels, the fruit houses used them every day on their price lists and these ordinary penny greens were good for trade for five cents catalog value while an occasional eight cent or one of those elusive seven cent blacks would toe the mark for three jitneys.

Often a skeptical philatelist will question the economic value of a precancel. It is inconceivable to him that because one stamp of six cent denomination, having Chicago, Illinois printed thereon should be hardly worth mentioning; yet a similar six cent with Gettysburg, Pa., appearing in perhaps the same type has a value of from ten to twenty cents. There is a simple economic reason for this. Why does a United States collector pounce upon a five cent Pilgrim or an apple green thirteen cent and disregard the pretty sober grey fifteen that is next to it? There is the element of scarcity entering in. Due to his study the philatelist knows that thirteens and five cent Pilgrims are seldom used in comparison with the ten, six or fifteen of the regular issue. The same explanation may be given for the scarcity of the six cent Gettysburg and the commonness of the Chicago. One has but to compare the population of Chicago, 2,000,000 with that of Gettysburg, 5,000 to get the significance of this argument.

And so added to accessibility and interest, we have the added inducement of value in proportion to the population of the city from whence the precancel issues, and added to this the relative values of the denominations used by the city. Is it to be wondered at then, that collectors are interested in this new side line? It has all the ingredients of a stable, workable hobby; its popularity will increase.

PUBLISHERS' NOTES.

From London comes a new quarterly, with a subscription rate of one shilling a year, called the Kensington Philatelist. We find in the new paper evidences of careful editing and the excellent article on the Belgium "Victory" issue of 1919-1920 by Alexander Holland, F. R. P. S. L, illustrated, merits praise. We hope that we see further numbers of this agreeable quarterly.

Theodore Champion's Bulletin Mensuel or monthly bulletin, contains the supplement of the Yvert & Tellier-Champion catalogue, 1922, of novelties and uncatalogued varieties. We know how well the catalogue in question is esteemed and how indispensable, in consequence, the bulletin, which may always be depended upon to provide an article of two and other information as well, is regarded.

The manager of the sales department of the American Philatelic Society has issued No. 1 of the Sales Department News, which is replete with information about the department and how it may be patronized to advantage. Mr. Guest seems to have made a conspicuous success of his department and he wants all to know of the important work that he is carrying on.

The catalogue of the first auction sale of the Allen Sears, Inc., company, is something to halt the eye, as it has embellishments on the front and the next to last page that gives it an air of distinction. Kansas City, in particular, is much interested in this first sale and the catalogue lists nearly six hundred numbers for consideration.

PANAMA AND ITS POSTAGE STAMPS.

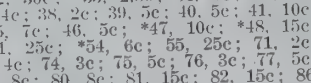
By FREDERICK E. HEYDON.

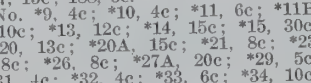
CHAPTER XV. REVISED

The Bocas del Toro Issues.

In November, 1903, a series of surcharged stamps was issued at Bocas del Toro which remained in use but a short time. The remainders were bought up by a German firm having a branch there and shipped to Europe, our supply here having been mostly obtained from German sources. Used copies, particularly of the 5c and 10c, were, however, received at New York and other ports in the ordinary course of trade, but have never been very plentiful, and the series has since become decidedly scarce. With the genuine stamps received from European sources was a liberal supply of obvious counterfeits, but whether fabricated at Bosca del Toro or "somewhere in Germany" is not known. There were also stamps bearing a totally different surcharge, which were regarded almost from the beginning as questionable.

The genuine surcharge shows wide variations in appearance due, apparently, to the way that the handstamp was applied. I give herewith two examples, a being from an unusually heavy impression and b from a rather carefully applied one. I believe that both were made from the same rubber handstamp, but the heavier impression from an optical illusion appears to be from shorter letters than the other.





There is, however, another genuine surcharge which differs from those illustrated in a period after the R. This occurs so far as known only on the 10c and 20c and is considerably rarer than the normal type.

The following list is complete so far as data is available. I would suggest that little attention be paid to varieties, except the one with period after the R. The misplaced surcharges are far from common, and are not liable to the same suspicion of being "made to order" that is suggested by the handstamped Panama and Colon issues

181. 1c green, surcharged violet. (Pairs exist, one without surcharge.)
- a. Inverted surcharge.
- b. Diagonal surcharge.
- c. Vertical surcharge.
- d. Double surcharge.

182. 2c rose, surcharged violet.
- a. Inverted surcharge.
- b. Diagonal surcharge.

183. 5c blue, surcharged violet.

185. 20c violet, surcharged violet.

186. 50c bistre-brown, surcharged violet.
- a. Diagonal surcharge.

187. 1p lake, surcharged violet.
- a. Inverted surcharge.
- b. Diagonal surcharge.

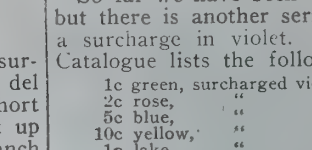
There are unimportant variations in diagonal, vertical and double surcharges.

The supplement to Stanley Gibbons' catalogue, dated June 30, 1904, lists the provisional 5c on 20c black on lilac of 1894 with the Bocas del Toro surcharge but does not give the type of the figure "5". Mr. Luff states that he has never seen this stamp and has not been able to verify its existence. As without the Bocas del Toro surcharge, the stamp in question is not rare, there would be no particular difficulty in obtaining a copy, and if I appraise the Bocas del Toro post office fairly, there would have been no difficulty in getting possession of the handstamp and using it for any speculative purpose, but I must admit some surprise that such an obvious fraud should ever have been seriously regarded.

So far we have been on firm grou but there is another series which be a surcharge in violet. The Standa Catalogue lists the following:

1c green, surcharged violet.
2c rose, " "
5c blue, " "
10c yellow, " "
1p lake, " "

Two varieties of this surcharge h been noted and I illustrate them he with:



Bartels gives the 5c and 10c as actu existing and the 1 and 2c as doubt adding as also doubtful a 20c vio surcharged violet. I have also seen t centavo.

Let us now examine the evidence which this series was listed. They w first heard of in an advertisement i German philatelic publication instead at New York, Mobile or New Orle which are the ports of the United F Co., a corporation that virtually contr the entire business at Bocas del To and where the stamps would natur arrive. A very small number of t copies subsequently arrived here, bu least in one instance with enclos of stamps from a German firm at Bo del Toro.

At first I understood that the se was entirely unknown in the Ca Zone, then I heard of a single copy t which came not from Bocas del Toro from a French dealer and still more cently some of these stamps were me by a correspondent who questio their authenticity and desired my opin These copies rather confirmed my dou

To fully satisfy myself as to truth of the matter the following no was inserted in MEKEEL'S WEE STAMP NEWS of May 11, 1918:

"In the course of my studies of postage stamps of Panama, I have occasion to inquire into the genuine of the Bocas del Toro issues, Sc Nos. 158 to 162, 378, 379 and 461.

If any of your readers have t stamps on the original covers, and kindly send them to me for examina they will be very carefully consid and promptly returned. It may b well to emphasize the fact that in a of this nature, nothing but stamps the original covers would have weight in favor of the genuineness this issue."

No replies were received to this quest. Since then, however, I have cured evidence that is conclusive a their genuineness. Mr. J. M. Ba sent me with other original covers from Chinese firms at Bocas del To their correspondents in San Franc one having a 10c Bocas del Toro st with the first surcharge accompani a registration stamp with the later charge. On the other the regular age was paid by two stamps of th Panama issue and there was a diff registration stamp with the second del Toro overprint. These covers pr that the handstamp was employed surcharge from February to June, on stamps used in regular comm correspondence, and I would hav hesitation in accepting them on ori covers. Stamps not on covers, how should be carefully examined, and I seen one copy in which I suspect the charge was made with a fine brus stead of a handstamp. I therefor with overprint c or d:—

188. 1c green, surcharged violet.
189. 2c rose, surcharged violet.
190. 5c blue, surcharged violet.
191. 10c yellow, surcharged violet.
192. 20c violet, surcharged violet (exi of genuine copies doubtful).
193. 1p lake, surcharged violet.

The authentic copies which I have are of type d.

VALUES.

By EDWIN B. HILL, Ysleta, Texas.

The advent of the last edition of our Scott's" is always hailed with riotous thusiasm,—or the reverse: dependent the point of view. There are certain llectors who find solace in the pages, r have not prices clambered? Others y the book aside with a sigh. They e the collectors who, poor in purse but t in wit, feel that the gems they deht to possess may never come to them, at least not in a condition they would ish. Theirs be the joy: let us, then,— who are poor in all but the love for e bits of paper,—rejoice that others y possess the priceless while we gather to ourselves the damaged and the dective.

I have been recently impelled to search r and wide for a copy of Scott's No. —the five cents, imperforate, 1851 ue, with all the defects in the calendar, re or less, if only the stamp is otherse fine and clean, with suitable marns. That is, a part of a stamp would asure me, or two stamps with differ minuses, but who has them, and ere may they be obtained at a price thin human ken?

I recently wrote to several dealers of minence regarding this stamp, asking prices. I distinctly stated that I was t a purchaser for anything in the line perfection, but that I was preparing paper on values, and this particular mp, which is certainly in the hard-to- class, would serve as basis.

One dealer wrote and side-stepped. probably did not have the stamp, and not wish to say so. Another said: his stamp is very hard to obtain",—a t that is fairly well known, but nevertless implied the certainty that he, too, s minus. Several others frankly acowledged that their stock did not con it,—that seldom did any of the coltions picked up in the line of business e the stamp in the album-pages.

hen, glory be! one good and friendly er replied most humanly. In subnce, he declared he had five of the mps in stock. There was a beautiful with wide margins on cover, for ich $150 had just then been paid. y had no more pairs, but of singles, at $50, one at $30, and others as low $15,—the last named having been cut the design on all sides, but otherwise ice clean copy.

nd there you are. Values have certly gone up! I do not think $150 an rbitant price for this stamp in pair cover; not for the man with the "one- " but for the every day collector, looks longingly at a stamp and then cts that he may perhaps go hungry lunch for a week without undue ill himself or his work,—well, after all, sympathy is for the chap who can of his hard-saved earnings, here there, a dollar for that which is to a thing of beauty and a joy for-recently planned to gather, in-so-far ossible, U. S. and its adjuncts—Dements, Revenues, Locals—in the con I could afford. My reward has rich. A friendly dealer recently ded over to me, for a small sum, a ection out of which he had picked all salable stamps he could use in busi cash and exchange. The residue came to give me joy,—and I have reveled and feasted. The U. S. are far from perfection,—some are sadly crippled,—although there are good things amongst them. The foreign stamps are in better condition; but I do not warm to them as I do to the stamps of our own country. They do not recall the old days, as do the Departments and the stamps of the '70's and before.

This is the era of the New Europe. I do not call it trash. Just now exchange is low, and the man who buys judiciously should not fail to have an excellent showing of the worth-while stamps. I would not advise the purchase of any doubtful issues, however. There are enough of the genuines, changing often as they do, to enthrall the lover of variety.

Then there are the old issues. British Colonials lead now, as they deserve. Holland and Belguim give joy. Specialism in the commoner issues of some chosen foreign country, where the stamps in sets may be purchased for a few cents, will give one joy equal to that evinced by him who stood "Breathless, upon a peak in Darien."

The love for and the study of stamps! How many a drab grey day, back in God's country, has the writer spent over his albums when his condition would not permit of the concentration necessary to reading and study! How much has been saved the thousands of collectors in hamlet and mart,—in home and hospital,—who have found respite in these byways of life!

But this has little to do with values, after all. I confess once more that the collector, who places the financial side first, appeals little to me. I allocate that to the dealer,—and I have found several who are real collectors at heart, aiding the stamp-lover to a bargain, here and there, for very love of the bits of paper.

By values let me be rightly understood as meaning values to the spirit and the soul of the collector. To the man or boy—I almost said man-and-boy—who loves his stamps, poor as they may be to others, but rich to him,—whose thought goes out to his little collection,—who touches his album reverently, and laves his soul in the pages opened before him,—these are the real values that count in a world gone mad.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The latest from Danzig is a set of tuberculosis stamps. We have seen three values, 30pf, 60pf and 1.20 marks The stamps are bi-colored and rather lurid in their general effect. The stamps perform postal duty, as evidenced by a cover received from George W. Angers upon which are the three stamps in question.

—W. Weber, 476 Hudson Ave., Rochester, N. Y., would like to know the present whereabouts of H. A. Miller, formerly 5256 Calumet Ave., Chicago, Ill.

—The Belmont Stamp Co. has removed from Philadelphia to Box 178, Ocean Grove, N. J.

—Mr. Leve is conducting an auction sale. It is unique. Only one item is offered, but it is a good one in that it consists of a block of ten U. S., No. 33, O. G.

—The Mauritius Nos. 4 and 4a in Mr. Ohlman's 71st sale, each started at $87 and finally sold at $131 each. Mr. Ohlman states he has many fine properties booked thru April, 1922, including some superb U. S., also the splendid U. S. Revenue collection of the late J. K. Adenaw, including his State Revenues. said to be the best in the world.

STAMPS OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

St. John's Telegram, Nov. 8, 1921.

An authoritative handbook on the postal issues of Newfoundland has at last made its appearance, and the Severn-Wylie-Jewett Co of Beverly, Mass., deserve the heartiest commendation upon having published it. My copy was received through the courtesy of Mr. Frank Wills, who has my thanks for the book for which I have been waiting for a long time. The book is divided into two parts. The first contains a detailed history of our earlier issues and also, though in not so great detail, an account of the later issues to 1919. This part was written by Mr. B. W. H. Poole, whose name is well known in all corners of the philatelic world. The second part contains a very careful account of the issues from 1897-1921, and is by Mr. Harry E. Huber, whose name was previously unknown to me. Mr. Huber seems to have given a considerable amount of time and trouble to the study of our stamps and he is in a position to even quote from official documents and private letters in support of some of his statements. In the chapter on the Guy stamps, two very noticeable flaws in an "issue of errors" are omitted. In an article published in the Telegram some time ago, I drew attention to both of these. In the 1c in one stamp on each of the sheets which contains the "NFW" error, the "E" in the word "JAMES" under the portrait reads, through a flaw, "R". In the 6c in one stamp in the bottom row of occasional sheets, the upper dot in the scroll to the left of the portrait is missing. Both of these varieties are interesting to the specialist. I think also that when so much was said about the Caribou issue, a little more space might have been devoted to discussing the many varieties in the lower values. Of the 1c, 2c and 3c, there are innumerable varieties of printing, shade and paper. The double impression of the 5c, is also worthy of note. But apart from these minor details, which I have mentioned, the article is as near perfection as is possible. The book is dressed in a paper cover and contains excellent reproductions of the G. P. O. at St. John's, and of Hon. W. W. Halfyard, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs. It is an invaluable aid to the collector of the stamps of Newfoundland.

EDITORIAL.

Buzzing—A barometer that indicates the weather of the philatelic season is the degree of interest shown by readers in the many important questions that affect collecting, as well as the non-essential features that have their place in discussion. When letters come in such number as at present, giving opinions, arguments or what-you-will, and also, clippings and contributions, we know that the philatelic tide is rising. When stamps are most in the thoughts of collectors, it is then that times are liveliest. On every hand there are these indications of activity. We feel that while there are cross-currents that may not be ignored, the full force of the present onward movement is not to be stemmed. Collectors are more engrossed in their pursuit just now than ever before.

Inquiry—There are a number of collectors who will not be side-tracked in their curiosity about the continually advancing prices of U. S. stamps. There does not seem to be anything to add to what we have already said on this subject. This remarkable development has just happened in the sense that no concerted action with an intention to inflate prices for selfish ends has been launched. Some of the pioneers in fine U. S. may have turned some stamps at a good profit but any such instances are sporadic; they are negligible when contrasted with the aggregate volume of trade. The man who sells on a rising market finds that he has to pay more for the stamps if he buys again. The present time is the heritage of the "No U. S. on approval" days when there was a comparative famine of U. S. stamps. As the critical taste of collectors developed, the number of available specimens of really fine stamps shrank sensationally. When a batch of two hundred of the 15 cent Lincoln gathered here and there in Europe may be given as an illustration of a yield of five superb copies, it is the consequence that the price of these exceptional copies will be much out of the ordinary. Then, the matter of cancellation and other considerations enter into the equation. In this connection the article on the recent Kelleher sale, which is covered so well by our faithful correspondent, "Eyefull" will add fresh fuel to the flames of controversy that is being waged by several of our readers whose conclusions are always welcome.

History—From Mr. D. D. Berolzheimer we have received a copy of the U. S. Envelope Company's publication, The Red Envelope, for October, 1921, in which Mr. James Logan, the general manager of the company, continues his story of the envelope industry in this country. In this instalment we find a picture of G. H. Reay, who had invented envelope machines and whose company produced the U. S. stamped envelopes of the 1870 issue, famous for the nicety of their execution. The Plimpton Manufacturing Company of Hartford, Conn., succeeded Reay as the stamped envelope contractors; and from Mr. Logan's article, we quote the following particulars of stamp interest: "In 1874, Hon. Marshall Jewell of Hartford, Conn., was the Postmaster General and he induced the Plimpton Manufacturing Co. to bid on the contract for supplying the Government with stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers then held by George H. Reay (of New York City). The Plimpton Mfg Co., being the lowest bidders, were awarded the contract. Realizing the size of the contract and their inadequate facilities they felt they must have assistance in carrying it out and arrangements were entered into with the Morgan Envelope Company of Springfield, Mass., by which the two companies, while each conducted its regular commercial business as a separate corporation, joined forces in executing the contract with the Government, which they held continuously against all bidders for the following thirty-two years or until 1906."

Tribute—We have a telegram from Hamilton, Ohio, telling of the death of John E. Lord, a Chicago collector, who passed away in his home city where he had gone some months ago to rest. Instead of the expected recovery, death came to the sorrow of a host of friends. In his travels, Mr. Lord met many collectors personally and through correspondence, he came in touch with others. At times he was active in society affairs, and for years he had been a member of the American Philatelic Society. Mr. Lord, who was well in the fifties, was a friend of long standing and we want to pay a tribute to his staunch qualities as a philatelist and as a citizen. Candid and sincere, he was dependable as a philatelist; he was outspoken on questions of philatelic policy and had firm convictions as to the rights of collectors, for which he always stood. Mr. Lord's engineering knowledge was at the disposal of the government during the war. At first, Mr. Lord was a general collector but in the end he concerned himself with Nicaragua and the later United States. His collection of Nicaragua is famous for its completeness in a specialistic sense, as he has been concentrating on it for many years. Mr. Lord's knowledge of the later printings of the U. S. issues was extensive as he was a close student of detail and succeeded in getting together a wealth of minor varieties. Too, we cannot pass the belated news of the death of W. F. Cornell of Detroit, without comment. Mr. Cornell's interest in stamps was first demonstrated in the early '80's when the name of Will F. Cornell was to be found often in the exchange columns of the boys' papers of the day. In later years, during his residence in Chicago, he inclined toward covers with a historical suggestion. His travels in the south in search of Confederates have been heralded in the newspapers of the sections that he visited. It will never be known how much good Mr. Cornell has done for philately. He was the most aggressive advertiser of philately imaginable and his enthusiasm was irresistible. Mr. Cornell was about fifty years of age.

Happily—We have not been averse to commenting on the weaknesses of dealers and so it is fair that we glory in their strength. A reader tells us that he received a small collection from a friend who asked him to sell it, the sender thinking that he should receive fifty dollars for it. "I can give seventy for the lot", said the dealer and he did, even though he knew that the seller was willing to take $50. This is refreshing and the day of better things is dawning. Here, too, we read in the Australian Philatelic Record of an instance of an old lady who departed from the stamp shop "well satisfied with the result of her sale." We must qualify this statement, however, by saying that the phrase comes in the course of a tale described by the writer as "a crazy stamp story". One thing that we can say is that we do not hear the tales of rapacity of stamp dealers as often as we did, not so many years ago.

THE BUCK-EYE MATCH STAMPS.

By CHRISTOPHER WEST.

The several firms treated of under this heading were successively the owners of one of the largest match manufacturing establishments in America and upon the formation of the Diamond Match Company, the third of the three Buck-Eye concerns—the Barber Match Co.—became one of the most important parts of the combination. In this connection it is of interest to note that of the millions of match stamps used by the various factories, which together composed the Diamond Match Company, not one bears the name of the Match Trust. It is true that the Swift & Courtney stamps and those of the same design with the name Beecher added, do bear the word "Diamond" but on those stamps this word is the trade name of the product, and is part of the phrase "Diamond State Parlor Match". It originally referred to the Swift & Courtney matches made at their factory in Wilmington, Delaware—the latter commonwealth often being called the "Diamond State". It seems hardly likely that the Diamond Match Company could have achieved the success with which it is credited, had the Barber concern elected to continue as an independent, but with the competition of the Barber Match Company eliminated the combination was able so strongly to dominate the match industry that for many years this leading position was not seriously threatened.

The various Barber stamps reflect much of the early history of the Middlebury factory and although they are hardly to be classed among the most beautiful of the match stamps, yet because some of them were used in enormous quantities they are among the varieties which every collector of private die revenues is practically certain to acquire.

Geo. & O. C. Barber.

This is the first adhesive of the Buck-Eye series. It is in the form of an upright rectangle of the standard 1c size In the center is a circular disk bearing the full face portrait of Mr. George Barber. The inscriptions are all in curved labels and read "Geo. & O. C. Barber—Middlebury—Summit Co.—Ohio—Inter. Rev. Matches"; the first two lines being placed above the portrait and the latter three below the portrait. Between the third and fifth of these labels at either side of the word "Ohio" is found an initial "U" at the left and "S" at the right and at either side of the portrait disk are two scrolls, each pair bound together by a ring. The ring at the left is inscribed "One" and that at the right "Cent". At the top of the stamp, midway between the corners, is a small oval disk of color on which "1 Ct." appears. The four corners of the stamp are formed by four acanthus scrolls, curved inwards. At the sides of the stamp each of these scrolls bears three small pearls on its outer edge These scrolls are an adaptation of the shell-like ornaments found in the lower corners of the 10c postage stamp of the 1855-60 series, but on this match stamp they are not exact duplications.

Probably there was only one plate which was engraved by Butler & Carpenter of Philadelphia, and all the stamps were printed there. This stamp occurs only on the thin old paper and the color is the usual dull blue, occasionally appearing greenish, characteristic of Carpenter printings of this period.

The Boston Book gives the following data:—

Die approved, September 23, 1864.
First issued, October, 1864.
Last issued, March, 1866.
8,372,420 issued on old paper.
210 stamps per sheet (14x15).

"The plate was afterwards sold to Barber & Peckham, who never used it, and by them to the Barber Match Co."

This statement is apt to mislead anyone not very familiar with the facts. What it means is that although Barber & Peckham purchased the Geo. & O. C. Barber plate no stamps from that plate were printed for Barber & Peckham after the latter had acquired the ownership of it Apparently Barber & Peckham succeeded Geo. & O. C. Barber, not later than September, 1865, and they used up the balance of the Geo. & O. C. Barber stamps, which were on hand at the factory when they became the owners of the business, and also all the Geo. & O. C. Barber stamps, which had already been printed and were in the reserve stock of Butler & Carpenter. These supplies were so large that they lasted Barber & Peckham until March, 1866.

The Barber & Peckham 1c stamp, which succeeded the Geo. & O. C. Barber adhesive is commonly found with a printed cancellation in black, consisting of the initials of the firm above with a date below. The Geo. & O. C. Barber stamp also exists with similar overprints and the writer has noted six different varieties, some of which are so much like the overprints on the Barber & Peckham 1c stamp, that it appears extremely likely they were from an earlier set up of the same identical characters of printer's type. The varieties noted are as follows:

B & P
Nov 1865

1. Small initials and large date.
2. Similar to No. 1, but larger initials and smaller date. The "&" sign is a peculiar character with a long lower loop which drops below the body of the character and then curls upward to the left. This lower loop extends a full millimeter below the bottom line of B and P.
3. Similar to No. 1, but large initials and large date, normal "&" sign.
4. "Jan 1866". Small initials and small date
5. "Oct 1865". Small date. "B & P" with fancy "&" as on No. 2. On this stamp the overprint is so badly centered that the date instead of being below the initials is above them at the top of the stamp.
6. "Sep 1865". Large date across middle of stamp. No initials. Probably the initials are absent because the overprint is not properly centered.

In a collecting sense the Geo. & O. C. Barber stamp has never been common. Although the number printed and used was quite large, the period of use was only a year and a half and this was in the earlier years of the match tax, when there were few collectors or other people who cared enough about these revenue stamps to save them

Sterling priced it at $3.00 in 1888. The Scott quotation was $2.50 in 1886, $3.50 in 1894-95, $4.00 in 1896, and $5.00 in 1898. Since 1900 it has been quoted continuously at $4.00. Very few really fine copies are known to exist and of the thirty odd different copies, which the writer has recorded, not more than half a dozen are without some defect. Four dollars therefore is not an excessive price for a fine specimen.

No pairs or other multiples have been noted.

Yes, I can supply a great many good stamps at this low figure and if you try the plan once, you'll probably come back for more.

Unused stamps that catalog but little over face, "de luxe" specimens that are in demand at a much higher rate and other special items are, of course, taboo, but you can submit a want list amounting to at least $25 cat. value, enclose a five dollar bill, postal order or check and watch the result. You'll get what you want or your money will be promptly returned. Them's my sentiments!

Larger orders welcomed at the same rate.

UNITED STATES, PINK BACK.

2c Carmine, Perforated 11, Unwatermarked.

When England declared war the North Sea was closed and the Bureau's supply of German inks soon came to an end. The U. S Govt. secured permission from Great Britain to bring one lot through the blockade, but this did not last long and we were soon using domestic inks. Result – lots of shades while experimenting, and quite a few pink backs. This, however, was in the days of the perforated 10 series.

Since then the 2c engraved stamp has been pretty uniform in color and we were having no pink backs. Some time ago the Special Delivery was found with a pink back and readily sold for $1. The small supply held by a well known dealer was soon exhausted.

I have just obtained a part of the lot of four panes, that is, 400 stamps of the 2c pink back, perforated 11, that were found and while they last you may have a copy for 15c or a block of four for 50c. No guarantee goes with them, you might find them in your post office next week and will be able to buy a block for 5c-and then again You Might Not.

Enclose a $1 bill and I will send you a block of the 2c imperf. pink back single line watermark along with the above block.

UNITED STATES.—Information from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing reaches us through Mr. Arthur E. Owen, of more than usual interest. We have all noticed in the larger cities for some time that the engraved 2c stamps have been on sale but we did not realize that such headway at the Bureau had been made in the way of turning out engraved plates, that they were able to discontinue the offset of surface printings. The last of the 2c offset plates went to press on May 14, 1921, and the reserve offset plates from which no impressions had been made were all cancelled on September 16, 1921. There were about forty plates in all and the plate block collector should take note that there will be quite a gap in the higher numbered plates of this series.

In a past Chronicle a detailed description was given of the 170 subject rotary plates, marked "S 30" for use in turning out the sidewise rotary coils. This marking, which designated the type of plate, appeared over the stamp to the right of the plate number and many plates were so marked. The Bureau has now discontinued putting the "S 30" upon the plates and all plates since No. 13400, with four exceptions, have this designation omitted. The exceptions are plates Nos. 13536-37-38 and 39.

Through the courtesy of Mr. James L. Wilmeth, Director of the Bureau, we are able to list a number of plates that were omitted from our previous list

Mr. J. M. Bartels has been fortunate in locating a cover of exceptional interest, one that is possibly the finest cover of Department stamps in existence. The cover, or rather face of the cover from a package, was sent from the Department of State to the American Public Library, Stuttgart, Germany. Besides being franked under the signature of the Chief Clerk, Erwin A. Brown, it bears a copy of the State $2, seventeen copies of the 30c in singles, pairs and strips besides a single of the 10c. The postmarks which cover stamps and cover read: "New York—Oct. 25—2:30 P. M.—'82", within a circle. All of the States on cover are more or less scarce but such a piece as this is of exceptional merit.

Mr. W. A. Langdon has located in his post office four panes of one hundred each of the current engraved 2c carmine, perforated 11, unwatermarked with a decided pink back, similar to the special delivery mentioned sometime ago. This is caused by the ink and is not to be confused with those showing an offset on the back.

A provisional postal, overprinted with a short thick "1", was listed by Mr. Bartels as coming from Fairbanks, Alaska, on the strength of a printed article on the subject. Mr. Bartels now informs me that he has received a letter from the postmaster at that point, stating that no postals were ever revalued at that office.

Mr. E. J. Newcomer sends for inspection a copy of the provisional 1c on 2c postal, purchased at the Spokane Post Office, with a different type of overprint. It seems that the dies for overprinting postals are much more numerous than those for revaluing envelopes. However, the postal collector is fortunate in not having a number of dies, sizes and colors to contend with.

Mr. Everett Van Voorhis has obtained for his collection a most interesting cover containing a copy of the 5c, 1847. While the stamp is pen cancelled, the cover besides bearing a large "5" in red has two red postmarks, one within a circle reading "Hudson Riv. Mail, N. Y., Apr. 20", the other within an oval "Post Office—Chatham Square". A small red "PAID" falls over the former postmark. On the back of the cover in red we find within an oval "Letter's for New York City, Direct to Chatham Square Post Office". The two Chatham impressions, by the way, are in a brownish red. In a recent auction a copy of this stamp on cover with the Hudson River cancellation was noted, but this Chatham Square postmark, if it may be designated as such, was not present.

We wish to thank Messrs. William Voigt, E. A. Smith, F. R. Demmerly and John L. Howard for notes of interest.

ALEXANDRIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. have submitted to us a copy of the 50c stamp with the overprint "15 Milliemes" in two lines in black.

ANGOLA.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 15c surcharged "$04" in black, with two lines obliterating the former value.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.—For some reason, at present unknown to us, a 5c stamp in the latest (Pan-American Postal Congress) design, described on page 34 of our October 15th issue, has been issued in reduced format and in red—a paler shade than that of the 12c value of the new commemorative quartette.

The shows St. George and the Dragon, the Church of St. Mary and the Courts Tower in the background. denominations are 30, 60 and 120 g, but they are sold at double face the additional charge being given e above-named fund. The stamps will be available for inland and international postage until November 30th, when they will be withdrawn from sale. —Whitfield King Bulletin.

DOMINICA.—Mr. William M. McFarlan writes us that he has just received a letter mailed in this Colony on Nov. 4th, with a new 1½d surcharge. The overprint is the same as the previous one, except that it has "1½d" in each of the lower corners and the words "One Penny Half Penny" between them

DOMINICA.—The following extract from the Official Gazette of the Leeward Islands (September 15th), is of special interest, in view of our Chronicle of a fortnight ago:—

"On and after the first day of October, 1921, special stamps may be used in the Presidency of Dominica concurrently with the uniform stamps now in use throughout the Colony of the Leewar Islands

"The design of the said special stamps for the Presidency of Dominica shall be in two medallions, one containing the Head of His Majesty the King, and the other containing the device taken from the Arms on the Public Seal of the said Presidency."—Stamp Collecting.

LITHUANIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. submit to us for Chronicle a set of four stamps recently issued by this country. At the top are the words "Lietuva" and at the bottom "Oro Pastas." The figures of value are in the centre of each side and in the centre is a winged post horn. The colors and values are 20sk bright blue, 40sk brown, 60sk green and 80sk rose.

MEMEL.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 40c stamp of France overprinted "Flugpost" and "Memel 60 Pfennig" the "p" in pfennig being a capital letter.

MONACO.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 15c of the type of A2 in a light green shade.

NEWFOUNDLAND.—Mr. Frank F. Wills sends us the following from a St. John's newspaper:

"An air mail will leave for Halifax some time about the end of the present month. The mail will be taken by Mr. F. Sidney Cotton, late R. N. A. S., in his Martynside five-passenger 'plane. Mr. Cotton has been guaranteed $1,000 towards his expenses by the Department of Posts and Telegraphs, provided he arrives at Halifax by air and within a certain time. About 600 lbs. of letter mail only will be carried and letters are now being received at the General Post Office The postage tax will be five cents. This flight will be in the nature of a demonstration and if successful, will probably result in a contract between Mr. Cotton and the Posts and Telegraphs Department, whereby the former will deliver mails by air between Botwood and St. Anthony, taking in several places in his circuit. This delivery can be accomplished in four hours.

The number of letters which will be sent by air mail to Halifax will be 5,000. None should weigh over one ounce. The mail will probably close on Nov. 26th, and Mr. Cotton hopes to start about the end of the month. A special stamp has been prepared for letters going by this mail. The 35 cent of the Cabot issue, of which there must have been an enormous quantity, has been overprinted Air Mail—Nfld. to Halifax—1921.'

The number of stamps overprinted is 10,000. All those remaining unsold after the mail is closed, will be disposed of at face value."

PANAMA—Mr. F. E Heydon informs us in regard to the new issue of stamps mentioned in our last issue that numbers issued are as follows: ½c, 1,000,000; 1c, the same; 2c, the same; 2½c and 3c, 25,000 each; 5c, 1,000 000 and the others 100,000 each. Mr. Heydon also informs us that there will be in use for thirty days only a stamp commemorating the centenary of the birth of Jose Hurtado and of these 250,000 will be printed and the remainders will be destroyed at the end of the month

ROUMANIA.—Mr. G. Hemond has submitted to us for chronicle copies of the 10b in a dark wine shade and the 2 lei in dark blue color. The type of both is as in the 1920 issue, viz., A53.

SYRIA.—The Economist Stamp Co have sent to us the 20c stamp of France with the overprint "O. M. F. Syrie 1 piastre" in smaller type than heretofore. They also advise that the 5pia on 1fr, 10pia on 2frs and 25pia on 5frs are also surcharged in the same manner.

TUNIS.—The Economist Stamp Co call our attention to three new colors in the type of the 1906 set. They are 5c orange, 25c purple and 30c red. The first is type A4 and the others are type A5.

10c GREEN, U. S. 1857

Are you seeking those hard to find minor varieties? We recently acquired some beautiful copies of this stamp, among them the shifts and curls known to specialists. A few nice pairs and strips. Also a few nicely centered copies of the 24c and 30c 1857. Not bargains for those who buy oils, but good eggs for those who salt down Liberty bonds.

NOTICE

Having sold my entire interest (as of September 15, 1921) in the Frank P. Brown Company to Mr. O. F. Pollitz, I am retiring from general stamp business. The lure of stamps, however, is still with me! I have been a collector since about 1876 and a dealer since 1893, so my interest in stamps covers a period of forty-six years.

During the last twenty years the stamp business has changed very greatly; where previous to 1900 everybody collected everything, the present is the age of specializing. No one today can collect all countries, nor can any dealer attempt to stock everything. Even if one had the capital, the overturn could by no possibility be sufficient to show profit enough to pay interest on the investment. Mr. A. wants Brazil; Mr. C., Uruguay; and Mr. K., Confederates. This being the case, I think there is an opportunity for a real Stamp Broker, one who can bring the buyer and seller together. My twenty-nine years as a dealer have given me some knowledge of who wants certain stamps and where these stamps are most likely to be found; there are hundreds of specialists of whom I have never even heard; there are many dealers who have some special item which they want to sell but do not know who wants it, and there you are! Why not a Stamp Broker!

I will be pleased to hear from every specialist who reads this advertisement, telling me just what his line is, what he "wants." WRITE ME!

TO DEALERS

Every one of you has one, two, or a dozen odd items which are "good," but for which at the moment you have no customer. This applies particularly to the dealer outside of the large cities.

Write me what you have and if I have a place for it I will ask you to submit it with the price; if not, will put your letter on file until I do have an inquiry.

Please note, I do not want cheap stamps which can be bought anywhere; I do not want damaged stamps at any price. I do want very choice or unusual items, worth from $5.00 or $10.00 up to $1000.00. No stamp will be considered unless it is worthy of a place in the collection of a specialist.

WHY NOT WRITE ME?

PHILATELIC ODDITIES.

On another page will be found a group of "philatelic oddities." We publish them as the basis for an interesting study upon the part of some of our readers who like contests. How many of the people pictured can you name, and what do you know about them that would be of interest to our readers? Have you had personal contact with any of these philatelists? True they are not up-to-date pictures, but this makes the contest all the more interesting. Prizes will be awarded and a copy of the famous Boston book on U.S. Revenues, presented by H. E. Deats, is offered for first prize. Here is the list:—

1st Prize—Boston book on U. S. Revenues.

2nd Prize—"The Stamp Collector" by Stanley C. Johnson, published by Dodd, Mead & Co., N. Y. City.

3rd Prize—"Catalog of U. S. Stamp Collection" at the U. S. National Museum, Washington, D. C. Compiled by J. B. Leavy.

At 50% Discount

The following offers are made for the benefit of those collectors who prefer to improve and increase their collections by ordering directly from special offers on the "cash-with-order" basis, and therefore, the stamps here offered at half catalog cannot be sent out in response to requests for approval selections. In many cases only a few copies are in stock, and it would not be at all fair to those who send definite orders if conditional orders were given preference. Perfect satisfaction is guaranteed—as usual—and the usual prompt refund will cheerfully be made if in any case the goods sent are not found to be exactly as described. The prices quoted are the prices in the 1922 Scott catalog. You get the stamps at just half these prices.

HOW TO ORDER

Send a list of the countries and catalog numbers of the stamps wanted and enclose the amount of your remittance by check, money order—or cash. The total cat. value of your want list must be at least four times as much as your remittance, and the greater is the list you send, the better chance you will have of getting some of the stamps you want.

Every item listed in the ad is in good to fine condition unless otherwise stated, and in most cases the unused stamps have full original gum. The German Cols. and many other unused Germans are superb—truly "CDK"—and orders for these in full sets will be given the preference.

All offers in this ad apply only to stock now on hand and are subject to change or withdrawal without notice. However, unless the present small stock is exhausted before January 15, 1922, they will hold good until that date.

("CDK" is Hottentot for Con Dition Krank,—see page ad of November 12, 1921, for further information concerning this well-known character.)

This country is also mostly "CDK", and I can't supply the whole list at 50%. But I'll go as far as I can, and when I get started sometimes I find it hard to stop. Start something!

TURKEY

No 20th Century in this country, but a grand lot of the earlier issues. "CDK" copies of Nos. 1 to 7 and Nos. 1401 to 1404 go at special net prices, but everything else that is available is yours at just 50c on the catalog dollar. Don't care whether it's used or unused, or how fine the condition is—50% takes it.

LLIOTT PERRY, Box 323, Westfield, New Jersey

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEK

THROUGH EYES OF YOUTH.

By LOWELL J. RAGATZ.

The Exposition Number of Chem and Metallurgical Engineering had in the "R" mail box upon my retu my quarters in the Varsity Club evening, and now, at seven, with d over, I had changed to smoking j and slippers, had lit my meersch dropped into my Morris chair befor fireplace, and had begun to glance the four hundred odd pages of th issue.

The buzzer on the wall interrupte reading before I had fairly begun.

I was resentful. "Some half-f fresh again, I suppose, with one of crazy ideas for making diamonds o lamp-black."

"It's a young man, sir. Says h stamp collector and has his colle with him", from the desk clerk thr the speaking tube. It was a relief t that it was not, after all, a member o order of industry-revolutionizing-mi underclassmen. The chem mag v have given a fine evening's reading who could say "not in" to a fellow lector?

A gum-shoe-like tread on the pa carpeting of the corridor ceased b my door.

"265. That's it, right there", Uncle Jeremiah, the elevator "condu half-way down the hall. A knoc went to admit the "young man".

I fear that my astonishment cause to fail in acquitting myself proper the first duties of a host. The "y man" might have been eight; his blue eyes beneath a tousled ma yellow hair, were gleaming with th citement of one entering upon a adventure. Had it not been for a worn Imperial album and an env marked "Traders" under his ar might have thought that there was mistake.

He was the first to speak.

"Good evening. My name's Ren pont, and my father's a French profs Mr. Brown, the museum man, tol that you had stamps to sell, and I'm to buy some. My father's to meet eight, after the faculty meeting. past seven's my bedtime, but I've good, and mother said I may st later tonight. I've been collecting s for two months and I've got eleven dred and thirteen kinds."

I chucked the smokes into a d as unobtrusively as possible, showed my guest a chair.

"Hm", he said, looking at my "You've got a catalogue and tw and use big hinges. I'm going to catalogue for my birthday, maybe, don't want any tweezers because I feel the stamps then. I used gl my stamps until Mr. Brown spoke about taking the right care o stamps. He gave each of us a pa of American hinges, and I've got of them yet. Will you sell me stamps? I've brought thirty-seven with me and want to spend it once."

He carefully drew from his po rolled handkerchief protecting his

I had stamps for sale, yes, hu of dollars' worth in the corner sa certainly nothing for a thirty-seve customer. As it was, I had long made it a practice never to sell to children. But there was the and under" box into which such falling into this category as cam my hands were dropped until Dealer of down state, with his hea trade, asked to have them sent It had been emptied last week, new accumulation had begun.

I'm sorry, René—." I smiled little boy opposite me. "I'm sor I can't sell you anything. But you what I will do; I'll trade wit You'll get new stamps and have thirty-seven cents left too. How strike you?"

His momentary look of disma vanished.

"Oh, that's fine! I always trad the boys and girls and like to. I t you'd have all I've got, but I brought my traders along anyhow. And then I can get those Nyassa camels and zebras from the Columbian Company with my money, can't I?"

A card table made an excellent exchange counter. He dumped his duplicates at one side: I placed my "one to tens" at the other. There was a little of everything in my holdings. A glance showed me that his were the commonest of common continentals.

"Well, how do we trade? Stamp for stamp, or how?" It had been so long since I had been a party to such a transaction that the rules of the game were rather vague.

"I always have, but that's because I haven't got a catalogue. It's not the right way, though. I know, because a lady gave me some blue one-cent Franklin stamps from some letters she got from one of Lincoln's soldiers, and one of the boys traded them all from me and gave me a Nicaragua stamp for each. Mr. Brown told me afterwards that I'd been cheated, because one of mine was worth ten of the Nicaraguas. But the boy wouldn't do anything about it; he said that I'd traded and shouldn't play Indian. Let's use your catalogue and I'll give you a penny one for a penny one of yours and so on."

I saw my little plan for bettering his collection going glimmering. He has few other than one cent stamps, while mine ran chiefly higher.

"Well," I said, "perhaps that would be a more accurate way of doing it, but we'll never get half done before your father comes for you if we stop to look them all up. Tell you what, I'll give you two of mine for each one of yours I can use. Then you won't be cheated. What say?"

He was reflective.

"Hm-well, all right, let's do. I guess you're honest."

Business moved at a rapid pace. My confrère did not possess so many stamps but that he could tell at a glance whether or not a given specimen constituted a new variety for him. Unfortunately for his state of mind a good share of mine seemed to fall into that class, and even at the rate of two to one there must needs be many which could not find a

STIR IN SHANGHAI.

Sale of the American surcharged postage stamps for Shanghai which were withdrawn from sale nine months ago, was resumed at the American Post Office yesterday. It was announced by Mr. E. H. Everett, Postmaster, that the sale of the stamps will continue until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning or longer if the present rate of exchange remains unchanged. If it drops a fraction under the rate quoted on Saturday the stamps again will be withdrawn from sale.

That the surcharged stamps have been in great demand was demonstrated yesterday as there was a rush to obtain them, despite the rain. This issue of stamps has attracted the sharp interest of philatelists and in this connection it may be said that while a complete set of the surcharged stamps may be obtained at the American Post Office here for $5.74 Mex. they have been selling recently in New York at a rate of Gold $10 per set and in London at £3. The American Post Office here is the only distributing office in the world where the stamps may be obtained.—China Press.

"Mighty Interesting"

A. C. of New York City writes: "Fourth lesson received. It is mighty interesting and touches a topic about which I knew very little until now. It is positively educational."

Mrs. S. of Piedmont, Calif.: "The course is excellent."

J. C., Malta: "To-day's lesson completes the course, which I have followed with intense interest, and it is with real regret I enclose my last exercise. . . . Hoping that others will benefit from your system as I have done."

F. G., Birmingham: "Of course I am rather an old 'junior' and 'pupil', but I wanted to see your method and I must say how pleased with it I was."

When hundreds of testimonials are all equally good, it is difficult to make a selection. They were all sent unsolicited to Mr. FRED. J. MELVILLE, the world famous expert, in thanking him for the personal attention he gives to every student taking his postal course of instruction in Philately.

Are you content to collect in the old jog-trot way? Take a course of Melvillism, and learn to collect on the most approved lines.

resting place between the covers of the Imperial.

"Well, I guess I can use all of your traders, René", I said after I had methodically given them the once over and had counted them. I would take the hundred fifteen as a lot.

"All of them?" My guest seemed to doubt his hearing. "Why, haven't you got any of them?"

I confessed honestly that such was the case.

"Why, Mr. Brown said that you had books full of stamps, and I thought you'd have all of mine. Won't he be surprised when I tell him that you didn't have a single one of them! Whoopee, I'm going to get—let's see—two hundred and thirty new ones. I'm glad I came!"

While the nimble-fingered René was making a fresh onslaught on my dwindling pile, I looked over his little album. It was much like my own first one had been, with a scattering array of the stamps of the world gleaned from the family and neighborhood correspondence, "free" packets (coming under 1c postage, though 2c had been asked and sent!), and the few approval sheets that had come with them. Blank pages were not absent, and every page excepting Nicaragua had its ugly, gaping vacant spaces. Not infrequently, sorry-looking specimens had been pressed into service. Pasted down flat ones obviously dated from the period before the memorable distribution of hinges. Yet, withal, the stamps were neatly arranged, and the thumb marks on the margins gave mute witness to the loving interest of the owner in his treasures.

"Well, I've my two hundred thirty now. They'll make my book look much nicer, and I'll have more than Willie Mason's got, I will. But there're lots more here I'd like. Can't I buy thirty-seven cents worth?" He looked up pleadingly at me.

"No, no. I can't sell you any, you know. But tell you what I will do. You've got some torn ones here. Now, I'll give you two of my good stamps for each of your damaged ones. I don't think that you'll find the same things in what I've got, but then, you'll soon get them again by trading, and in this way you'll get so many more."

"But if torn stamps aren't any good, why do you want them?"

A poser indeed.

"Well—you see, it's this way. I might use them to decorate an ash tray just like this old cigar band one I have here. I'd have to cut the stamps up anyhow, and yours aren't so badly torn but what I can use them."

"But maybe some of them are scarce, and I can't get them again?"

"Oh, you needn't worry about that. You'll soon have them all again. Only always take nice copies. Shall we begin?"

The new kind of trading was on, and I was relieved to find that my "ten cent downs" would more than meet the heavy demands being made upon them. Only once did René protest slightly.

"Aren't you taking an awful lot of them?"

"Yes, quite a few, but only the damaged ones, you see. I'll not touch the stuck-down ones, and though I'm making your album look a bit empty, just think how full it will look tomorrow after you've mounted all your new ones."

The Zululand page, vacant to be sure, was at length reached. With René's "and here're my last two", there were a mere score of my pile left. I would give them to the boy too, so that he would be quite content with the evening's adventure and could not again broach the burning subject of the thirty-seven cents.

"You can just have the rest of them too, René, for good measure. There now, you've got all of mine. Wasn't that fun?"

"Gee, but I've had a nice time! And won't everybody wonder where I got them all? But I won't tell!" He fairly beamed.

"And you've got your thirty-seven cents left, too."

His reaction was unexpected. A cloud seemed to pass over his face.

"Oh, I forgot! Won't you sell me something? Mother said that I could spend it all with you, and—"

"But you see, René, I haven't a thing left; so I just can't."

"Why, you have, too!" His face had brightened again. "You've got my old traders, but I don't want them, and then you've got my torn stamps, and I do want them. They're not whole, but they're all over half there, and that's better than nothing. Can I have them for thirty-seven cents?"

He held out his purse, confident that he would gain his point. But I was adamant.

"No, no, you use that money for those Nyassa menagerie stamps. I couldn't decorate my ash tray if I'd sell them to you, you know. Anyhow, you wouldn't want cripples to spoil the looks of your pages, would you?"

"Oh, I never thought of your tray. You can keep 'em. But I'd heaps rather have torn copies of stamps than none of those kinds at all. Then I'd have just so many more, wouldn't I?"

It was plainly futile to argue. Anything more than half a stamp would remain "another one" until Mr. Brown had spoken on when a stamp's a stamp, as he did each year after the new collectors had gotten a good start.

The sounding of the buzzer opportunely brought an end to our activities.

"Oh, there's papa!"

It was, so Gus informed me. Mons Dupont would await the arrival of the younger edition of himself in the lobby.

"Say, but we've had the nicest time. I've got so many new ones, and you got a lot of new ones too, didn't you? But if you don't use all of those torn ones, will you sell 'em to me, then?"

"Sure", I said, "if any are left, I will."

With the "young man" bound lobbyward in Uncle Jeremiah's elevator, I returned to my room, and looked over the fruits of an hour's trading.

"Well, it's given the kid a better start, anyhow, so it's not been altogether time wasted. Now these 'traders' can go to Mr Brown to start somebody else, and as for these damaged ones, there'll be none left, tray or no tray."

I stepped over to the fireplace and dropped a handful of sorry specimens upon the dull red log. A burst of flame, and they had gone the way all of their ilk should be made to take.

"Torn ones better than none. Then you have so many more."

I smiled to myself as I thought of the boy's words. Yes, it was true, through eyes of youth, a stamp's a stamp for a' that.
